handled successfully in Berlin, where the city not only provided suitable quarters for the workman, but made a profit in so doing. If the Planning Commission has not the power to do this, that authority should be granted them. That individualistic dogma that property rights must not be interfered with must be overcome for the benefit of the community. Property rights are not so sacred that personal rights and private property must defer when the needs of the community demand it. Cheap land is essential to the proper housing of the workingman whereon he can build a low cost four or five-room house with sanitary conditions, plenty of air and light. If built in rows having short depth lots of sixty to seventy feet, the twenty foot alley, so numerous in our city and entirely useless, could be eliminated, substituting therefor a three foot alley between each tier of lots, for rear entrance. This will not only economize the use of land where it is costly, but will prove a saving in cost of construction as well.

There is not a district in the older sections of the city in which there is not plenty of lots that could be used to better advantage both for the owner and for the tenant. There can be found plots of ground that could contain eight or more houses that have one building, generally in the center of the plot, it one time filling its mission stately and properly, but long since outlived its day and use, while the heirs abide their time hoping to avail themselves of the pressing demand for more land, and the neighboring tenantry giving to an exact landlord their hard earned wages for the privilege of occupying a few rooms in unsuitable surroundings.

That Pittsburgh has been neglecting the workmen's homes can easily be seen in the number of building permits for new dwellings in the past five years. The total number of four and five room dwellings were 1494, while the seven rooms and upwards were 4089. If the ratio were reversed, it would be more in keeping with the demands of the community. In the Lawrenceville section alone, there are hundreds of tenants looking for modern four room houses at reasonable rents, but none are available, while vacant lots abound, innumerable lots are occupied by ramshackle buildings, old sheds and dilapidated, unsanitary stables.

There is no use in closing our eyes to the facts that exist. They must be coped with and corrected.

That the city is hampered by its topography is unfortunate. That the city is hampered by its land owners is deplorable. That the city should continue to be hampered and injured by the latter in inexcusable and unnecessary.

The remedy is at hand; the application has been tried on other patients having a similar ailment and has been found to be a quick and permanent cure. The only disagreeable sounds heard were, not from the patient, but from the army of those who reaped but did not sow.

Stop penalizing industry. Stop making production bear the burden of taxation. Make it unprofitable to hold land out of use and it will prove profitable both to capital and labor.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

This will require the city to have needed legislation. A law should be enacted permitting the city of Pittsburgh to place on improvements a rate of taxation 50 per cent. of that placed on land, the same to become effective on a 10 per cent. reduction covering a period of five years. A law should be enacted to provide a proper method of valuation and assessment of all easements or franchises enjoyed by any public serivece corporations for the use of any highways in the city of Pittsburgh. A law should be enacted granting the city of Pittsburgh the right to assess and tax all real estate owned by railroads, street railways, light, heat and power companies, telegraph and telephone companies, or any and all public utilities companies now except, including rights of way of the same.

The department of assessors should be held to a strict accounting for the performance of the duties devolving upon it. It should be given the protection of the civil service. Men appointed to office for a brief term cannot accomplish the best results as assessors when uncertain of their tenure.

Assess all real estate annually, adopt the latest devices to accomplish the greatest efficiency. The roll of real estate assessments should be published annually, according to wards or districts as deemed advisable, and a small fee charged to cover the cost of publication. This would let the public know that each one is paying their proper proportion.

A new order is at hand; we are to have new laws, new ideals. Change is always dreaded by some, but as long as it meets with the approval of the majority, it need cause no fear. There is no need of revolution, but a little evolution will not be out of place. Pittsburgh's future is bright; there is a shining goal ahead; urge on towards it. Cast off pessimism; cheer up. Pittsburgh is still the "workshop of the world."

In explanation of the "system," Mr. Burns said:

The tax rate on all buildings should be fixed at only 50 per cent. of the rate on land. To raise all present city revenues an average rate of 15 mills has been assessed in Pittsburgh. A tax of 18 mills on land and 9 mills on buildings would raise the present revenues, at the present assessed value of the land which is practically twice that of the buildings. An increase of 3 mills on land would raise the same amount as has been raised by the six mills by which it is proposed to decrease the rate on buildings. In order to allow adjustment of investments and prevent hardships, this change of rate should spread over five years. The first year the rate on buildings should be reduced to 90 per cent. of that on land; the second year, 80 per cent. and so on by reductions of 10 per cent. a year until 50 per cent. is reached in five years.

Those benefited by having the tax on buildings would be:

All renters—for the reduction in taxes on buildings will decrease rents to the same extent.

Manufacturers—they can secure cheaper land, and after building, taxes will be far less than in other cities.

Every property owner—if he has built an improvement worth more than half the value of his land.

Every real estate broker—real estate transactions would be stimulated.

The laboring man—building and industry would be increased and work be more plentiful.

The city—Pittsburgh will replace slums with homes and factories.

Mr. Brown: Have you folks considered the subject of rental in your tabulation? What is a fair rental for a man who has improved his property by the construction of buildings?

Mr. Burns: At the present time, we feel that the rentals are not high, considering the price he has to pay for land. We have gone into a very thorough investigation as to what land can be bought for and for what buildings can be put up, and we find that the rents charged in Pittsburgh are not exhorbitant. But we also found that the land, as compared with other cities is excessively high priced.

Mr. Brown: What net income should an owner of real estate in Pittsburgh receive?

Mr. Burns: I should think that a fair return upon an investment would be about six per cent.

Mr. Brown: Take the Frick lot, for a concrete case, what would Mr. Frick do with that lot today?

Mr. Burns: He should improve the lot.

Mr. Brown: Improve it how?

Mr. Burns: You mean what sort of a building?

Mr. Brown: How would he improve that lot?

Mr. Burns: If I owned that lot I should try to enter into some arrangement with the railroad to put a nice terminal for suburban service there.

Mr. Brown: That happens to be that particular lot. Take the lots of these three-story houses, now. What would you do with those?

Mr. Burns: I should put warehouse property on them.

Mr. Brown: What does warehouse property pay in Pittsburgh?

Mr. Burns: You mean as to rent?

Mr. Brown: What kind of warehouses?

Mr. Burns: I agree with you that we cannot get a price that will bring people here to use them.

Mr. Brown: Don't you get right down to the fact that you cannot build buildings that will bring a fair return?

Mr. Burns: You cannot get a fair return on buildings under the price at which land is held.

Mr. Brown: Is a man entitled to a fair return on the value of the land and building?

Mr. Burns: The price of land and the value of the land may be very different. Downtown really is almost stagnated in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Brown: The supply exceeds the demand? Take your office.

Mr. Burns: If we could get our land rates down—

Mr. Brown: Doesn't the law of supply and demand govern the value of the land? You couldn't expect people to come and buy land in the heart of Pittsburgh the same as they would in Newark.

Mr. Burns: Take Cleveland and Baltimore which are not small places. Should we not expect to have people come here and buy land somewhere near the same?

Mr. Brown: You may have better facilities than those other cities. It is impracticable to compare one city with another. Take Market street in Philadelphia for instance, the square between Chestnut and Market and Eleventh and Twelfth, worth millions of dollars. We have four-story houses that now net us four per cent. To improve that square would cost us millions of dollars and we could only get two and a half per cent. What are we to do there?

Mr. Burns: I am not speaking of land in Philadelphia.

Mr. Brown: You have the same thing here.

Mr. Burns: It is a good deal worse. We have to pay twice as much for the land.

Mr. Brown: As I catch your thought, it is an elaboration of the Henry George idea.

Mr. Burns: The Henry George proposition is similar in that it would compel improvements and force land into use. But in addition, the Henry George theory would take all the value out of land for any private owner. This proposition would not take the value of the land off the private owner, but would help him to get a reasonable return on his land.

Mr. Brown: I am trying to get your thought. If you tear down the two and three story houses and build eight and ten story buildings, who is going to occupy them?

Mr. Burns: A man would have to pay less tax because he put some of his capital in buildings, instead of land.

Mr. Brown: Wherever there has been a demand for a large office building, a large office building has been built. Isn't that the best evidence of the fact that your large office buildings are paying?

Mr. Burns: As far as the large buildings are concerned, that may be true. I know it is impossible to rent at the figures they can in other cities.

Mr. Brown: I agree with you that the unearned increment is a serious matter. I don't see how you could compel a man to build a property unless there is a prospect of a fair return.

Mr. Burns: Take Baltimore, Cleveland—

Mr. Brown: These are special cities with special railroad facilities and a hundred other facilities that cannot be applied to Pittsburgh.

Mr. Burns: It is generally applied in German cities.

Mr. Brown: Yes, I know it is. A man cannot sweep the streets in Geramny unless he has served three years in the army. My experience has taught me that you cannot use Germany as a criterion. Where would you put the additional tax?

Mr. Burns: Put it on land.

Mr. Brown: The fellow who owns the land would have to pay the tax,—take it out of one pocket and put it in another?

Mr. Burns: Different authorities agree that the tax on buildings can be easily transferred, but you put the tax on the land it is not easily transferred. The man who owns the land would have to pay the tax. It is a very different proposition from taking it out of one pocket and putting it in another. Put it on the land that is getting the benefit out of the growth of the community. If you put it on the building, then you put it on the tenant.

MR. C. K. ROBINSON, City Solicitor, Pittsburgh.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: There are only two or three matters to which I desire to call your attention. The first is with reference to taxation of manufacturing companies.

It has always seemed to me that while it is proper to tax manufacturing companies because of the franchise right given to them as a corporation, it is not right to put them on a parity with all other classes of corporations in Pennsylvania. I want to call your attention to the fact that manufacturing companies are the basis of taxation of all State and county revenues, as they increase and multiply the sources of taxation. It has been a policy of the State of Pennsylvania to exempt those things from local taxation which are taxed by the State, and it is true in the case of manufacturing companies that all the respective corporate municipal bodies of the State have seen fit to tax them, and the State puts them on an equal parity with all other types of corporations in respect to taxation. It seems to me that while it might be fair and reasonable to tax them a mill or two mills because they have a charter and should pay for it, it is not fair to put them on the same basis as other corporations.

With reference to suggestions as to the incorporation of companies,—dispensing with the ten per cent. which is required to be paid in at the time the company is incorporated. At the present time, the suggestion is to require fifty per cent. of the amount of capital stock to be subscribed,—page 27.

Mr. Brown: That is before they commence building.

Mr. Robinson: Yes.

Mr. Brown: Not before they get a charter.

Mr. Robinson: Yes. As I understand it, the question here is to raise the whole question of whether they should be a change in respect to the law in this matter. My own opinion is that Pennsylvania has always stood well-known as one of the best incorporation States in the country, and if it is impossible to improve in this direction, so much the better. It seems to me personally that there should be no lessening of the requirement as to the payment of ten per cent. at the time of application for the charter, and as to imposing the additional requirement of fifty per cent. of the capital stock that is by way of subscription,—I understand before a company can actually transact business,—that also would seem to me to be a proper requirement. I simply want to suggest that it doesn't seem to me that the fifty per cent. of the amount of capital stock should stand alone and that the other should be repealed, because, as you are well aware, it is easy enough to get persons to subscribe, but to merely make the subscription, would be of no real value to the persons who loaned the money to the company on security of the subscription, as there would be no way of investigating the financial standing. I merely want to suggest that that should not stand alone. It might be well to add it to the ten per cent., or possibly an increased percentage.

Now, as to the requirements in connection with the issue of property which are found in section 21, on page 69 to 71, the suggestion is in line with what other States have considered,—some of the most advanced States,—and for that reason I think it deserves consideration. I doubt, however, the wisdom of applying a principle of that type by having two appraisers appraise the property of all types of corporations, as a general principle. In dealing with corporations in which the public at large are interested, such as public utilities, it seems to me it would be wise to have a provision providing for appraisers—

Mr. Brown: Appointed by whom?

Mr. Robinson: I don't suggest any change in that respect. I think it is entirely proper to have them appointed by the State officials. I don't believe it would be wise to apply a principle of that type universally to all types of corporations.

Mr. Brown: This is not intended to apply to all types, only corporations for porfit; utilities, building and loan and so on are exempted from the provisions of this Act.

Mr. Robinson: I think the principle could more fittingly be applied to some not included in the Act. It seems to me I wouldn't apply this as a universal principle. It would be better to have the directors of the corporation, at the time the stock is issued for property, to file an affidavit. They know better than an appraiser who might be appointed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth the history of the property and more of the reasons for inducing them to consider it as an element of value, and hold them personally responsible. I think there might be a suggestion that it was not wise to make even the appraisal of the Secretary of the Commonwealth final. Of course we all know that through the close association that sometimes exists between political bodies and large corporations, the element of personal interest might enter and have more or less effect upon the matter. The only suggestion I have to make in this connection is. that with this class of corporations which is specially covered here, it might be well to dispense with the necessity and expense, the delay and inconvenience and annoyance attendant upon the appointing of these appraisers and require that the directors themselves make affidavit to the fact that it was worth the amount of money, and if it was proven that the directors were not unanimous in the matter then provide that the appraisers be appointed. In other words, if, at a meeting of the Board of Directors, four voted for and three against, and that was manifest to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, then let it be made necessary to have an appraiser appointed by the Commonwealth.

MR. EDWARD SMITH:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission: It seems to me a somewhat difficult matter to come here before you and make any suggestions in relation to this Act as a whole, and I am quite unprepared to make any verbal suggestions. I am willing to make some suggestions, however. I went over this Act very carefully and it seems to me the first suggestion I want to make is right in the second paragraph:

"Section 2. A corporation may be formed for any lawful business purpose (or purposes) except that of insurance, other than title insurance, building and loan, banking, or any other business intended to derive profits from the loan and use of money, public service, or any business which shall need to condemn lands or occupy highways."

I think I very strongly approve of the suggestion you make in the note, that the corporation should not be limited to one purpose. Now, section 2d, "A corporation may be formed for any lawful business purpose (or purposes)" * * * . I don't approve of that personally. I think there are many lawful purposes for which there should not be any incorporation. I think lawyers, real estate brokers, stock brokers, and so forth, men upon whose personal character and integrity the business should depend, should not be incorporated. I think that the provision is too broad.

Mr. Brown: Wouldn't that be within the discretion of the Governor? Couldn't he refuse such a charter on the ground of public policy?

Mr. Smith: How can he, when it is stated it is for a lawful purpose?

Mr. Brown: Governor Pennypacker did it on the decision of Mr. Carson, the Attorney General, because it was against public policy.

Mr. Smith: What class?

Mr. Brown: I don't recall now.

Mr. Smith: Neither do I, but it seems to me that while the Governor may refuse any special charter, I don't see how he could refuse a charter to all classes of people.

Mr. Brown: I drew that amendment because the State of Pennsylvania taxed distilling companies, before they came into Pennsylvania and enforced the incorporation of distilling companies. They couldn't incorporate by name, and it was put in that way to cover any lawful purpose.

Mr. Smith: Hadn't they better be gotten at by amendment to the laws in relation to taxation? I am assuming that this corporation Act for all businesses is a serious matter. I don't think we will ever reach any satisfaction in this corporation matter until we have uniform corporation law in every State. I think this is a step in advance, but I would not incorporate people for "any lawful purpose."

No, the next paragraph, "except that of insurance, other than title insurance, building and loan, banking, or any other business intended to derive profit from the loan and use of money, pubilc service, or any business which shall need to condemn lands or occupy highways."

It appeared in the newspapers, instigated by my friend, Mr. Irons, that my partner, Mr. Beal, and I would appear here as representing a Philadelphia Company and the Pittsburgh Railway Company. We didn't appear here for that purpose. We are merely here for the purpose of showing our interest in the general corporation Act.

I want to call your attention to the corporation Act as to what is meant by Public Service. I don't know that you have anything in the laws of this State or anything in this Act that enables us to define public service. The paragraph following, * * * which shall need to condemn lands or occupy highways." In the way we assume it, a public service corporation has the right of eminent domain, either to a limited or a greater extent; but still that does no thelp us to define public service. Over on the south side here, I happen to be connected with the Monongahela City Inclined Plane Company. I have always assumed that a public service company, and yet it has no right to eminent domain. Street car companies are public service corporations. Is a taxicab company? I don't know,—the taxicab hasn't the right of eminent domain,—and yet it is distinctly a public service. There is no business I know of that is any more for public service than a hotel company. Yet, is that a public service corporation? I want to call your attention to the great necessity that where you do define you should define with accuracy.

John ———— said there was nothing more important for human convenience than legislation. He might have said this knowing the difficulty of drawing an Act of Assembly. Yet I know people who get up at five o'clock in the morning and draw one before breakfast.

Mr. Brown: It makes business for the lawyers, after all.

Mr. Smith: Mr. Brown, neither you or I approve of that sentiment.

Now, coming back to the paragraph, * * * "to derive profit from the loan and use of money." Now, of course, I know what the draughtsman meant. I suppose he meant that to apply to banks or trust companies; and yet, do you know of any business corporation in this country that does not make a profit out of the use of money? Is there any corporation that doesn't make a profit out of the use of money? Therefore, when you come to the matter of definition, isn't that to be considered?

Mr. Brown: The use of money as money.

Mr. Smith: That is what you mean.

Mr. Brown: Let me make a statement. For three years the Bar of this State was asked for suggestions for amendments to the corporation law. You and I know well that there has been a continuous complaint ever since the Act of 1874. I think this committee received about twenty some replies before this Act was drafted. I concluded that the only way to get the Bar interested was to give them a head they could hit at, so this Act was drafted, and the Bar was notified that it was simply a tentative Act and for the purpose of inviting criticism. I am not wedded to that Act. That committee may never report it.

Mr. Smith: If I am discussing matters that you have already considered, don't hesitate to stop me.

Mr. Brown: We are very glad to have your views.

Mr. Smith: I am willing to admit to you that I have had that Act on my desk for months, and I didn't look at it until Mr. Irons called me up on the 'phone the other day; and what called my attention to it was the fact that this Committee was going to hold their meeting in Pitsburgh. I don't believe I would have looked at it otherwise.

Now, there is another thing in that section, paragraph "E," the amount of capital stock. You didn't fix it, I suppose, merely as a matter of convenience, but you had better fix the par value there at $100.

Then, when you come to the purpose of the corporation, page 31, paragraph "G,"—"to carry on its corporate business, or so much thereof as is convenient, beyond the limits of this State, "I wouldn't put that in the corporation Act, I don't believe. In other words, I was told some years ago that the State of Kentucky passed a special Act incorporating a railroad company upon the condition that it should not build a railroad in the State of Kentucky. Now, that isn't this idea. I think we should leave that off. I think when we get uniform corporation acts, it will be a very simple matter to regulate the doing of business of a corporation in some other State. I would cut that out as to doing certain business outside of the State.

There is another thing I don't approve of,—putting the increase of capital stock and bonds in the amendments of the charater. I think our method set forth in this pamphlet is an extremely good one as far as the increase of indebtedness is concerned and of the capital stock. While, of course, the increase of the capital stock is an amendment to the charater, I don't believe the increase of indebtedness is, and I believe it would be better to leave those provisions as they are.

I want to call your attention to the meaning of this Act as I take it. If I don't state it right, let me know at once. Upon the question of the increase of indebtedness, in the first place it provides that there shall not be any increase of indebtedness beyond the assets of the corporation. If the assets are of a greater value than the par value of the capital stock, you can go beyond the amount of the capital stock, and if the assets are less, you are limited to the amount of your assets.

Mr. Brown: Isn't that a fair system?

Mr. Smith: Yes, but what is the effect of this? A corporation is organized with a capital stock of ten thousand dollars. It buys a piece of real estate and wants to put up a manufactory to the extent of one hundred thousand dollars. How is it going to do it? It can only borrow to the extent of ten thousand dollars. It cannot borrow to the extent of ninety thousand dollars, although when it gets done it will have a plant of a valuation of ten and ninety thousand, which will be a hundred thousand. But its borrowing capacity is limited to ten thousand dollars, because the assets it has are ten thousand in the bank. That isn't what you mean.

Mr. Brown: Wouldn't the building itself be an asset?

Mr. Smith: No, sir.

Mr. Brown: Wouldn't the building, together with the assets in the bank tend to make up the total assets?

Mr. Smith: I assume that is what you mean. It would be whatever the assets of the corporation were at the time. That is that proposition. You don't mean what you say.

Then another thing, you know that there has never been a more iniquitous thing, I mean in its results, than the relation of the increase of indebtedness to the capital stock. You know all over this State street car companies and all sorts of public utility companies increase their capital stock merely for the purpose of getting out sufficient bonds to build their roads. Now you are going right back to the vicious system, and making a relation between the capital stock and bonds. I don't think there is any more reason why a corporation should be held to the amount of its indebtedness than the individual. We know that when a bank or anybody else lends to the individual, they rarely look at the security. When they lend to the corporations they look at the basis of increase which is submitted to them in the shape of a bond. I think that when we begin to teach people that have money to loan that they be just as careful in their investigations of the securities of corporations, we have made a long step forward in solving this corporation problem. When you can get the people of a community to place their investments in the capital stock or bonds of a corporation you have helped a whole lot, and you will not have much water in their stocks or bonds. I feel very deeply upon this question of the relation of the bonds to the capital stock.

Mr. Brown: While you are turning leaves, you will note I said many of these paragraphs are merely for criticism. I am not wedded to this Act and we wish it understood that it is not our infant. The paragraphs in many of which are errors, are the result of suggestions by various people, and are only for the purpose of inviting criticism.

Mr. Smith: I would assume that in drafting an Act of this kind there are many difficulties to be overcome. I know the difficulty well and I appreciate it.

Mr. Brown: These are suggestions that have been made by different people. I thought this was the best way to bring them out in order to develop them in a systematic manner.

Mr. Smith: I am only going to speak of one more thing, and if you will allow me I will put all these suggestions in the form of a brief. I think all through this Act you put too great a liability upon the directors of a company. We all know that the directors of a company are not ordinarily criminal. We have all agreed,—public opinion has agreed,—that the methods of doing large business today, and even small business, is through a corporation. Some of us are interested in corporations and some sit on boards. We all know that the directors are pretty well-off wealthy men who are trying to do right; and yet, under that Act, I wouldn't sit on the board of any corporation in the State of Pennsylvania. You might be subjected to the pains and penalties of a criminal prosecution, or you might be likely to lose your reputation as men of honor. I am not going to take the trouble to call your attention to the paragraph, but I think it is too great, and I don't think you could get men to sit on boards of corporations unless they had absolute control and saw that they would not be interfered with by anybody and that there would never be anybody to raise a question as to the propriety of what they had done.

Another question I am going to call attention to is as to the limitations as to the ownership of stock in other corporations by corporations incorporated here. I think we all recognize the fault there is in corporations owning stock; but I don't believe we quite reach it here by limiting it to twenty per cent. I don't know what you are going to do or how you are going to do it, and I haven't any suggestions to make on the subject. We recognize the evil there is in permitting corporations to own stock of all sorts of corporations indefinitely, but I think you are making too drastic a limitation when you only permit them to own twenty per cent. of the capital stock of any other corporation.

Mr. Brown: Is there any real need for a change of our corporation laws. Wouldn't it be better to allow them to go along with the decisions as they are?

Mr. Smith: Yes.

Mr. Brown: That is your thought?

Mr. Smith: Yes. I think our corporation law has been rather hindered by legislation. I remember when I came to the Bar thirty or forty years ago that the capital stock of corporations was limited. I think it was a good thing. But now we have gone on,—and you know that when we came to the Bar, corporations could not be created for retail business. I believe if I had my way I would not permit today an incorporation of any retail business. I think the old Act of 1874 was an extremely good corporation Act, and we have only been forced into the present chaos of our corporation Act by the legislation in other States.

Mr. Brown: Do you think we can eliminate that chaos and improve this condition by any present legislation?

Mr. Smith: I don't know. I don't see any reason why it is not a good thing to modify the provisions of the Acts of Assembly.

Mr. Brown: Do you think we are wise in limiting it to private business corporations, or should we bring in general corporations?

Mr. Smith: I think you are wise in that way.

Mr. Brown: In looking over that Act, Mr. Smith, you will find there is quite a few mistakes in the repeat sections.

MR. J. H. BEAL:

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Commission: I am glad to hear Mr. Brown say as he did that this act is entirely tentative, as it makes it much easier to make the observation I have in mind. There are two really important questions I would like to speak about and perhaps two or three more that are merely incidental.

I understand this act to contain a provision that ten per cent. is to be paid at the time of application for charter, and that provision as to the subscription of nfty per cent. of the capital stock at the time of doing business. Also a paragraph as to the creation of corporations for any lawful purpose. I believe that is the language of the Act of 1901, with the addition here being that it may be a creation for more than one purpose.

I am in favor of allowing more than one lawful purpose to be included. The one result of not permitting that in is to require in enterprises, perhaps, to be carried on by two or three or more corporations, although all of these, perhaps, taken together, are required for the successful carrying on of the enterprise. I see no reason, therefore, why it should not be all included in one.

There is a paragraph here in regard to the preferred stock issued to the same extent as now, but it provides for an increase of preferred stock—page 79, Section 25.

My suggestion to you is this. That is, after the issue of preferred stock has been made, you are then to provide for a further increase, it seems that preferred stockholders as a body should have a vote on that. In other words the preferred shareholder should not have his preference diminished by the addition of more stock without a vote of the majority of the preferred stockholders. I think it is a good idea that the preferred stockholder should have a vote, and if you are going to increase the amount, you should give him a vote on the question.

Then you have a provision,—page 59, Section 15, lease by a corporation of its entire corporate property or part. I think the power to make a lease of the corporate property, —the real object, as I take it, is this,—to enable a corporation to make a lease of its business and turn it over accepting a fixed rental for a period of years, in lieu of the business being carried on at the risk and for the profit of the stockholders. I suggest that where that power is of so important a character, that it would be best to give the power to not less than two-thirds. In other words, if a corporation owns the majority of the stock of another company carrying on a like business, it may then come in and use that stock for the purpose of leasing another property, fixing the rental as the income of the minority of the stockholders and putting upon them the burden to show that there are actual fraud. I think that should be more than a majority.

I would also suggest that some provision similar to that contained in the Amendment of 1876 authorizing the sale of all of the property and franchises of a corporation be included in this present Act.

There is further provision here,—page 61, Section 16, authorizing corporations out of their surplus or net profits to grant allowances or pensions to employes for faithful services, and so forth, provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to directors or officers of any such corporation.

I think the ignoring of the directors, of course, is entirely proper; but to say no officer shall be included, I think would be a mistake, because you will find in large corporations where this provision would be availed of, there are men who have spent perhaps their whole lives with the company, and are just the persons who should have the benefit of such a provision; and to generally prohibit it being done for any officer, would undoubtedly restrict the benefits of the provision. And that brings me to the discussion of one of the important matters, rather an important question that this act raises. This refers to the capital stock and bonds to be issued by the corporation and ownership of shares and stock of other corporations.

I will first speak of the ownership of the stock of other corporations.

It strikes me this way. Personally I believe it would be better if the ownership of shares of stock were not vested in corporations. But then, while true theoretically, would not work out practically. The first reason is that the corporations that do business here are subject not only to the government of their origin but they have to do business in perhaps ten or twenty, or maybe thirty or forty other States all having dissimilar laws and all having different taxation system applicable to corporations, and the larger the corporation gets the more impracticable is it to take up its capital stock and have its assets in each one of these places where it may do business and undertake to deal with it in all these different jurisdictions; and therefore in view of the way in which our country is split up into various different governments, it becomes directly necessary in the carrying on of large enterprises that a certain extension should be carried on in a separate State by a different corporation from that which may be carrying on the same business in some other State. A business that has been developed and carried on in this country has been built up on these lines, and I think it would be a mistake in dealing with it in such a way that would entirely destroy the plan upon which the corporation has been built up. In addition to that, Pennsylvania can only legislate for the shares of stock owned by its own corporation. If you make your laws so drastic and so limited that the corporation can not carry on its business, it will go elsewhere and organize. It may be possible to deal with the voting power of Pennsylvania corporations, that were owned by foreign corporations. That has been done to some extent in respect to corporations violating the State law, but it would be too big a deal to consider now. The point I want to make now is you have to consider the laws of other States and what other States permit corporations to do.

Down until 1901, there was no general power in Pennsylvania corporations to own shares of stock. The result was a very great loss of revenue to the Commonwealth by way of the bonus that would be paid on incorporations. For instance you take in the organization of a very large corporation here. There was no power in the Pennsylvania corporations to own shares of stock so as to enable them to carry on the business in the manner in which it was necessary, so they were forced to Jersey to incorporate there, and then that corporation couldn't own coal lands, and they had to come back to Pennsylvania and incorporate a coal company to own coal lands. The result was a loss to the State of Pennsylvania by way of the bonus. I think in all enterprises and business that is of a responsible character, that the desire of the citizens is to always use the Pennsylvania charter if they can. They will do it unless they are forced away for some substantial reason.

As a result, the Legislature of 1901 passed an Act which was a transcript of a similar provision in the laws of New Jersey giving general power to corporations to own shares of stock in other corporations and exercising power of the stock. We have gone on with that for ten years. I think it is a great mistake to reverse the policy of the State and go back to the situation we had prior to 1901, and drive the corporations to going outside of the State and organizing companies at Pennsylvania's expense.

There is one further suggestion in that direction. It permits ownership to the extent of twenty per cent. It makes a new provision,—that is, you provide at the end of the act, these sections 13 and 14, shall not be applicable to existing corporations. Then you repeal the Act of 1901 in which they have the right to hold and the right to vote.

Mr. Brown: That is a mistake I noted.

Mr. Beal: There is another question, and that is the issues of shares of stock and issues of bonds where it is issued for other than cash. The scheme as I gather it, is that where stock and bonds are to be issued for other than money, a report is to be made to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the Secretary of the Commonwealth appoints appraisers, and the appraisers determine the value of the property and the value of the assets of the corporation, and then bonds may be issued or stock may be issued in accordance with such appraisal.

I submit it is a great mistake to apply to private business corporations a plan of governmental control by men who shall supervise and determine the amount of bonds and the amount of stock they shall have and direct the assessment that shall be made. What I have said in regard to the right which corporations have in respect to issuing stock and bonds would apply equally here. I think you will have to view it with regard to the privileges in other States in framing your provisions here. I don't believe in the issues of water stock, nor I don't think they should be allowed to issue capital stock at random. I see no objection to requiring a corporation where it issues stock or bonds to prepare and file a statement setting forth the property which it is acquiring for which the stock is issued. Let that be a matter of public record. But when it comes to having a man appraise your assets, I think that is impracticable.

Let me submit it to you in this way. When a corporation needs to borrow money for which it issues bonds, it often happens that it needs it very badly; it has got to have it quickly. A system of having a valuation of the assets of a corporation made, will probably offer more delay. I have in mind an instance now, where the appraisal has been made of the assets of the corporation for the purpose of business negotiations. That appraisal has taken a large force of men since August,—about three months. In addition to that there would be great responsibility in this. Suppose it is a merchandise business,—here is a tremendous stock of goods to be valued. If it is an iron and steel business, its mines, its buildings, equipment, its merchandise of all classes and description,—there is no limitation to which such an appraisal might not be carried. And when you get down to the value of the assets of a corporation, it is a matter of opinion at least. No two men perhaps will be able to agree upon it. In the course of law, even so fixed a thing as real estate, is susceptible to very great variation; and haven't you found a high witness value it three times what a low witness put it at? In addition to that there is this thought. Very often a corporation has to issue bonds to raise money for the construction of another plant. It has got to make its arrangements to issue these bonds to secure that property before there is a particle of work done. For instance, there is a suggestion to build a railroad here in Allegheny county. It will cost perhaps two and a half million dollars. Before that can be started, the arrangements have to be made for the sale of these bonds. There is no property there you can value, and it is entirely impracticable to apply such an act as this to a situation of that kind. There has been no ———— in Pennsylvania, by reason of the issuance of bonds or stock under the laws as they exist today. Enterprises go wrong from various causes and fail. Stockholders and bondholders lose money. Of course that you cannot remedy by legislation. So I would suggest to you that it would be a mistake for the government to undertake to supervise and control the private business affairs of business corporations. There is one thing further in that same direction. This Act contains a provision for the filing of annual statements, provisions for the calling for special statements of corporations, and for the making of investigations by a governmental officer. I submit to you that if reports are to be required from private business corporations of their own affairs, they should be confidential. But there is no occasion at this time for the creation of a bureau which will supervise and investigate the affairs of corporations, such as those carrying on merchandise business, and all the private affairs that go to make up commerce.

There is one more suggestion I would like to make, and that has to do with the liability of a transferee of shares of stock under Section 29, Paragraph 3, and Section 39.

Section 39, page 105, makes a stockholder liable to creditors for the amount necessary to meet payment of the par value of the shares, and Section 29 (3), Page 89, makes the transferee a stockholder and also provides that the corporation may hold liable for calls and assessments a person registered on its books as the owner of shares.

I suggest there should be inserted in Section 39, an additional clause explicitly providing that where shares of stock are registered on the books of the company in the name of a pledgee or trustee as such, the pledgee or trustee shall not be personally liable in respect of such shares if the fact that he holds such shares as the pledgee or trustee, be indicated upon the face of the certificate.

I make this suggestion because it is a matter which has frequently arisen in connection with large corporate loans; and it is one of which every large trust company in the State and in other States, is greatly interested. The last statement of one of the Pittsburgh trust companies showed that it held as trustee under corporate mortgage securities, aggregating at par about one hundred and seventy million dollars. These securities are deposited under corporate mortgages under which bonds are issued and sold. In order that the right of such bondholders may be protected where the collateral consists of shares of stock, it is of course necessary that these shares be transferred on the books of the corporation into the name of the trustee, and I think the universal practice in recent years has been to transfer the shares upon the corporate books in the name of the trustee, adding some such clause as this, "As trustee and pledgee under an indenture made by"—then giving the name of the company, making the mortgage as the date of the instrument.

We have several times had serious questions arise in making connections with such issues as to whether they should be a liability upon the part of the trustee in the event that it turned out that the shares of stock which had been issued and fully paid, were, in point of fact, decided must be fully paid shares.

Under the present act as it stands, there would be some risk of the court ultimately deciding that there was a statutory liability upon the party registered as the owner, and I think it would be well in any event to put the matter beyond question as can very readily be done by inserting a clause to the effect I have suggested. This could result in no injury to the corporation or to creditors, for any one having knowledge of the registration is immediately advised of the company in whose name the shares are registered is, in point of fact, only trustee or pledgee, that the reference to the document creating such trust, points out necessarily the real owner.

MR. T. L. BOWN, representing the Westinghouse Machine Company.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I do not feel that I can make many practical suggestions as to the result of your labors here, after listening to the eminent gentlemen who have preceded me, but my experience has directed my view of the corporation question from a somewhat different angle from that which they occupy; I have thought about this question, of course, and such criticisms as I may make will be directed according to the theory which seems to underlie the Act, rather than practical suggestions.

The first matter which occurs to me is in Section 2, authorizing the formation of corporations for any lawful purpose or purposes.

I am rather inclined to agree with my friend, Mr. Smith, that there are some purposes which, perhaps, should be excepted. My opinion with respect to that section is that the present law is better, which limits a corporation to the right to incorporate for a particular purpose. It seems to me that the time is rapidly coming with this State,—not only this State, but other States,—must revise her public policy towards corporations. I don't think that a corporate form of organization is the proper one for many businesses, many small businesses. I know in my law practice I frequently discourage clients from forming corporations for carrying on a small business. It seems that the policy of the State should be toward discouraging that practice and limiting the formation of corporations to purposes of public service or for the carrying on of large businesses, which we all recognize, could not be conveniently carried on in any other way.

I might say that I recognize that we are dealing with a situation that hasn't sprung up in a day or over night; the community has been carrying on its business in this way for the greater part of a generation, or longer, and we cannot revise these things in our laws at a single instant. The changes in policy will have to be gradual.

Now as to the period of operation. Since 1874 we have allowed charters to be perpetual. That has always seemed to me to be a question for consideration. The State should retain in herself some power other than a mere by-laws power, which is frequently ineffectual; and it seems to me that some of the provisions they have in some of the western States, limiting charters to thirty years or fifty years, might be desirable. In the chartering of corporations, it gives the State some power which she otherwise could not have, and we must recognize that the State has got to acquire a right or power in dealing with corporations. The present doctrine practically prevents the State from exerting a power of regulation which she should have.

The provision on page 31, to take, hold and convey such real and personal property as the purposes of the corporation requires,—I think, under that provision that the present limitation should be retained in line with the views which I have just expressed.

Another question, as to the power of a corporation to hold stock in other corporations, which has been discussed here this morning. It seems to me that that power should be limited to the stock of corporations organized for the same purpose or a similar purpose. As it is at present, there is no limitation of that power. If you allow the incorporation of a corporation for "any lawful purpose" and allow it to acquire the stock of other corporations, you haven't got any limitation at all. Theoretically, and perhaps practically, also, it would be possible for a corporation to raise in the course of time that would own everything in the State.

The power of leasing property, also, it seems to me, is one in which there should be some regulation by the State, although that is perhaps not so necessary in the case of private business corporations as it is with public service corporations. We have in this State a class of street railways, where many of the corporations are leased to other corporations on long term leases, of nine hundred years or nine hundred and ninety-nine years, at a fixed rental, and in some cases the rental is guaranteed by other corporations; it becomes practically a guaranteed dividend on that stock for all time. It does not seem to me that any corporation should have the power to impose that charge on the future.

The provision as to the issuing of stock for property is a very vexed matter. I think your Commtitee has taken a step in the right direction by requiring an investigation by some officers of the Commonwealth. I think if we had had this provision before, it might have saved us a great deal of trouble that we have now. It has occurred to me, doubtless your counsel has considered the question, I am not sure whether or not that is throwing a judicial power upon an executive officer. I don't know whether that is the case or not. It simply occurred to me there might be a question there.

Mr. Brown: I think we would have the right to do it, but I very much doubt the propriety of it. I think it would consume a great amount of time and would be impracticable.

Mr. Bown: I know that if we had such a provision we would not have the condition such as exists in this State today. You will pardon me for mentioning this, but it is a matter with which I am familiar,—that is, taking what I think is perhaps the most glaring example,—the case of the Monongahela Street Railway Company, having a stock of $70,000,000 that is not represented by a dollar of cash, and a bond issue of $4,000,000 from which the road was built. If you had some provision requiring an investigation by the officers of the State, and if in addition to that you had a provision that the Commonwealth, or creditors or parties interested had the right of questioning that valuation, you would put a stop to that practice which I say is causing so much of our trouble today.

Mr. Brown: Suppose the directors were required to take an oath that the stock or bonds represented cash or its equivalent, don't you think that would prevent such a fault? Do you think any of the directors of the Monongahela road would take an oath that the stock and bonds represented cash, when it did not?

Mr. Brown: The President and Chief Engineer of the road did——

Mr. Brown: Did they append a statement of how it was made up?

Mr. Bown: No.

Mr. Brown: That is what they should be required to do.

Mr. Bown: If I am not mistaken, under the present law it is required, though it has not been enforced. It seems to me it is a good thing to take that out of the hands of the corporations and place it in the hands of the State officers, giving the State a measure of control over these matters. I wouldn't make that official valuation conclusive, but I would retain the right of questioning that valuation.

I might say, to bring my illustration to a conclusion, that the Monongahela Street Railway Company, organized ten or twelve years ago, never has earned much more than the interest on its bonds, but under the right of way which it exercises, it has paid between four and five per cent. on that seven million of stock ever since it was leased to the Consolidated Traction Company. It takes out at least a quarter of a million of dollars a year.

Mr. Brown: Which might be put in betterments?

Mr. Bown: Yes. There is probably a way of dealing with that in relation to public service corporations; of course this is to be dealt with by another bill; but I don't suppose your committee desires any discussion on these matters.

Section 50, of the proposed act, relating to reorganization,—it doesn't occur to me, Mr. Brown, that you have any limitation in that section. That is improved greatly, provided it don't exceed the combined capital stock of the old corporation. It might be very possible that they had a lot of watered stock. It doesn't seem to me that section covers this. I suppose it is an oversight.

I think that is all I have to suggest about this act. I haven't had a chance to go over it as carefully as I shall.

H. S. KIEHL, representing Jones and Loughlin Iron and Steel Company:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission: I am a manufacturer. I want to give a concrete example, regarding the provision as to holding not more than twenty per cent. of the stock in other corporations, page 59, section 14.

There are incidental industries relating to the manufacture of steel that we are required to carry on, and they can best be carried on in the name of some other corporation, for the very good reason that the purpose for which a steel company was incorporated is that of manufacturing iron or steel, or both, but no other material or article of commerce. We are obliged to mine coal. We are obliged to "coke" the coal. We are obliged to quarry limestone for iron purposes. We don't sell a spoonful of coal. We are not in the coal business. Should it become necessary in our business for the hiring of labor from a distant place to provide transportation facilities for the men, we are obliged to incorporate our own railway company; and all because of the limitation of the powers under our charter as a steel manufacturing company.

I presume it is necessary to regulate the holding of stocks, but where they are subsidiary companies required to carry on the business, I think there should be some exception. It is not fair to say to us, "You will have to buy your coal from a coal mining company." You have no more right to say that to us than you have to the farmer that he shall not haul his grain to market, but will have to give it to the tranportation company.

Mr. Brown: Are there many other industries in the same condition you are now?

Mr. Kiehl: I should think so, yes.

Another suggestion, that you don't drop the use of the word "company" for the incorporation. That is the old word, and everybody understands it.

As to the time of reports, I think all reports should be made at the same time.

Mr. Brown: You make your report to the Federal Government on December 31?

Mr. Kiehl: Yes.

Mr. Brown: That is your fiscal year?

Mr. Kiehl: Yes.

Mr. Brown: That is the way they should all be?

Mr. Kiehl: Yes.

Mr. Brown: We made that recommendation to the Legislature, but they didn't adopt it.

J. DENNY O'NEIL, Commissioner of Allegheny County:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee: I appear before your Committee, which has been appointed to consider and report upon the revision of the corporation and revenue laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as the representative of the Board for the assessment and revision of Taxes for the County of Allegheny and as a Commissioner of the County, and desire to submit the following suggestions relative to taxation and kindred subjects:

I respectfully recommend the passage of a law requiring the taxation of the real estate of public service or quasi-public corporations, as they are called, such as steam railroads, street railways, electric light and power companies, water, gas, telegraph, telephone bridge, express, incline and pipe line companies.

The law of this State today is that the real estate of such public corporations which is essential to the exercise of their corporate franchises, is not subject to local taxation because of the fact that the Legislature has not specifically imposed such taxation. This has been decided by our Supreme Court many times, and emphasized recently in Conoi Township Supervisors against the York Electric Power Plant Company, 222 Pa., 319. In that case the court seems to doubt the wisdom of the law which it states has existed for a period of over eighty years, but does not see how any distinction can be made between the case of this company and those of similar other public service corporations.

In the case of Pittsburgh vs. the Consolidated Gas Company, 34 Superior Court, 234, the Gas Company owned twelve acres of which the half was used for their gas plant, and the balance for dumping purposes, and it was decided that although this half was not in actual use, yet if the company contemplated using it in the future, it should be exempted from taxation. So we see that it is almost entirely within the power of the public service corporations, and not within the power of the taxing authority, to say what real estate of such corporations shall be taxed. That is all wrong. There is no reason why the real estate of hotel companies, market companies, printing companies, opera companies, grain elevator companies and many others of a similar nature should be taxed, and that of the public service corporations should escape. There is no real distinction between the two, except perhaps to say that there is more reason for subjecting the real estate of the public service corporation to taxation than that of the purely private corporation. And it is no answer to say that the public service corporation pays its real estate taxation by reason of the tax of the 8 mills on its gross receipts, as provided by the Act of June 1, 1889, for the taxation against real estate is 15 to 20 mills, depending on the locality of the land, and to that amount higher than the 8 mill tax.

In Pittsburgh, by the third section of the special law of January 4, 1859, the city is allowed to tax the real estate possessed by the railroad companies. This, of course, does not include water, gas, telephone and telegraph companies, and the many other public service corporations which have come into existence since that day. The county, however, has no power to levy a county tax on the real estate of such corporations, either within the city or outside the city limits in the boroughs and townships. Such a condition of affairs is ridiculous. If the real estate of some public corporations should be taxed, the real estate of all of them should be, and if all should be taxed the taxation should be by the county as well as by the city. The office buildings of the Philadelphia Company, on Sixth avenue, those of the Bell Telephone Company, on Seventh avenue, and of the Pennsylvania Lines, West, at the corner of Tenth and Penn avenue, and those of all water, light and power companies, and the emergency residences of employes of all water and light companies, are exempt. On the other hand the small property owner, with his four to eight room dwelling, is taxed from 80 to 100 per cent. on the full taxable value, and consequently, under present conditions, in the payment of his tax, he assumes a portion of the burden which these strong financial corporations escape. Certainly no public service corporation can justify the imposition of such a burden on the owners of real estate.

The Board of Tax Revision, after thoroughly considering the policy of the laws in other States, finds that this State has been practically alone in permitting such corporations to be relieved of the taxation on their real estate. The amount of exempt property in Allegheny county has grown to such an extent during the past decade as to work a positive hardship on the remaining taxable property. A reference to the report of Allegheny county to the Secretary of Internal Affairs for the year 1900 discloses an exempt valuation of real estate in the county of $67,303,255.00, and for 1912 of $186,304,380.00, or an increase of almost three hundred per cent. of exemptions in real estate. Of course, this amount includes other exempt property, such as churches, hospitals, schools, and municipal property, but there is no doubt that a careful analysis of the figures will show fully $100,000,000, of real estate owned by public service corporations, almost all of which yields a handsome return to their stockholders.

The present method of making triennial assessment has proved to be antiquated and inadequate, and I recommend it be abolished. It was supposed that this method was universal throughout the State, but it appears that it has not been in vogue in Philadelphia for the last fifty years. We should have a continuous system of assessment and re-assessment, based upon conditions as they exist from year to year, thus allowing adjustments from time to time as conditions seem to justify. I also recommend that the present Act, governing the tax revision board be amended so that it authorizes a small force of subordinate assessors who should be under civil service, and who should give all their time to the work. The work of these men will become more valuable each year, as their experience increases, and they will do with much greater efficiency the work now done by a large force of temporary assessors, which has proven very unsatisfactory. I also recommend a change in the present law which permits returns of assessors to be sworn to before either a subordinate assessor, justice of the peace, or notary public, and make it compulsory that all returns for State taxation be made direct to the Board of Taxation, or one of its subordinate assessors. Experience has proved that notaries and justices of the peace, as a rule, fail to make the necessary inquiries of the taxables, and in this manner large amounts are omitted from the State returns. Individuals who own any real estate, and who return bonds, mortgages or other evidences of indebtedness which are subject to taxation, and who do not see fit to pay their taxes, can escape payment because the law provides no proper penalties for a failure to pay, or proper methods for collection. This is true in a variety of cases, and the whole subject should be revised with the purpose in view of compelling a prompt payment of State taxes. With stringent laws governing the collection, probably 25 per cent. additional of the State tax could be collected in Allegheny county.

The subject of taxes is as difficult as it is important and vital to the prosperity of the community. From my experience as a public official, I am convinced that a just assessment of those properties now escaping taxation, which we have just considered, together with a more efficient administration of departments and offices, and the lopping off of many perquisites which now exist and which can only continue to exist because they are viewed in the light of political positions, and reward for party services, would result in a reduction of taxes instead of an increase. And I believe that if this Commission will recommend and secure laws for our State and its many counties, cities and boroughs, which will insure more efficient administration, it will not be necessary to increase taxation. Much of our system of government is very crude, and many of our laws were intended to meet conditions 100 years ago. Today, we are suffering from too many old laws which do not meet present day needs, and from many recent laws which give too much government. We have too many officials and too much dividend authority. I believe in a system which limits the number of elective officials, and thereby enables the adoption of the short ballot. This would enable the people to fix the responsibility upon the proper persons, and this would prove a strong inducement for them to administer their office in a fair, economical and honest manner. I submit the following examples as a few instances of the present unsatisfactory and expensive methods in municipal government: The office of the delinquent tax collector in Allegheny county has been in existece since 1861. It was perhaps suited for the county then, but it has outgrown its usefulness. In 1912, the sum of $729,425.60 county tax became delinquent and was sent to the delinquent tax office for collection. On this sum the collector receives ten per cent. of what is collected. This office could be abolished and the delinquent taxes collected by the treasurer, as under the present arrangement his regular force of employess could collect the delinquent tax, and the ten per cent. penalty would go to the county, and would, no doubt, amount to forty or fifty thousand dollars in additional revenue, annually.

Another saving would be the enactment of a law to create the "Bureau of Law" for the county. A comparatively small force could attend to the business of the county, and also to a large part of the business which the State has here, for which it now employs sounsel by the year, and pays a large amount in fees.

Anohter instance I can cite is the unnecessary expense incurred by the State in spending $15,000 annually to advertise the mercantile tax list in Allegheny county, and an additional $10,000 paid to attorneys for the collection of the mercantile tax in Allegheny county.

There are many other instances that could be named whereby thousands of dollars could be saved by the abolition of unnecessary places. In Allegheny county alone two hundred to three hundred thousand dollars could be saved yearly, and the business of the county would not suffer.

Now, as President of the Retail Merchant's Association, I wish to say,—

At the 16th Annual Convention of the Retail Merchant's Association, held at Jonhstown, in August last, a resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote instructing the executive committee to do all in their power to secure the repeal of the mercantile tax at the next session of the Legislature.

The Retail Merchant's Association is the largest and the best State organization of merchants in the United States and consists of over 7,000 active members, and is in close touch and really represents the great majority of the 20,000 merchants of the State.

The Retail Merchant's Association of Pennsylvania is convinced that the mercantile tax is unfair and is opposed to the same for the following reasons:

First. It is a tax on the business of the retail or wholesale vendor of goods, wares or merchandise, irrespective of whether there is profit or not. In other words, it is not like most of our laws providing for taxes, a tax on property real or personal, or on property rights, but a tax on the right to do business. Most of the businesses covered by this law are ones which the average citizen deals with in his daily intercourse in life, and related most largely to those things which are directly or indirectly the necessities of life, and hence tends to the higher cost of living for the reason that the vendor will place the ultimate cost of the license upon the consumer. A tax upon actual profits, or a tax upon wealth in any form does not produce this result, because it is taking away from those who possess wealth of part of it to support the government. There would be some excuse for the law if it taxed a business which was of doubtful benefit to the State, such as the liquor business, but it taxes chiefly those which rise from necessity.

Second. The mercantile tax law is to a large extent class legislation. Foreign corporations which have no regular place of business within the State, but which sell within the State by agents, are not subject to the tax. These distinctions result in hardships in many cases, which amounts to unjust and unfair taxation. The injustice is further shown by the exemption of manufacturing concerns from taxation. I doubt if a valid reason can be advanced for the exemption of manufacturers, while retail and wholesale merchants are compelled to pay the tax.

Third. All retail stores that are chartered under the corporation laws of the State and own real estate are compelled to pay a city tax, school tax, county tax, State corporation tax, government corporation tax and in addition pay a mercantile tax.

Fourth. The revenues received by the State from the mercantile tax amounts to about $1,300,000.00 and is not sufficient to be essential in the administration of the State government.

For these reasons the Retail Merchant's Association of Pennsylvania requests your committee to recommend the repeal of the present mercantile tax act.

CHARLES H. STONE, Commissioner of Beaver County:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission: I want to say in beginning, that I will only attempt to give you the view point of a county commissioner from a semi-rural county, and my reason for coming is that I have an impression that there is a great body of people in the State that are greatly interested in your deliberations and from whom you will not hear. I just about have time to give you this in a disconnected way. To start with, your Board wrote our Board of Commissioners for information, as to the real estate in our county which is exempt from all county or local taxation, because of the payment of State taxation. We found it impracticable from any records we had at hand to give you this information, so we took it upon the little County of Beaver to undergo an expense of what would probably cost fifteen hundred dollars to obtain this information for you. We wanted to make up the physical value of this property. We undertook to obtain this information from these corporations, and they politely refused that information. We have undertaken to make a physical valuation of the property you have asked for. Thus far, in about one-half the districts of the county there is an assessed valuation upon this property, which we consider fairly accurate, of $5,696,596. I would say that as near as we can possibly estimate this upon these figures (although we will give you accurate information within a short time) it will approximate $10,000,000. That is a very conservative estimate. This is about 60 to 75 per cent. of the actual valuation, and these figures are not along that line.

Now, we are in favor of diverting, if not a law permitting the county to tax the property, a portion of the proceeds to the county from this property.

As I say, we are a semi-rural county, but we have $557,000 of a bonded indebtedness that is entirely upon free bridges. These bridges are State highways, these are a part of the State highways, and yet our little county, with $43,000,000 assessed valuation, is taking over this $557,000.

Mr. Brown: And the State taxes the bonds?

Mr. Stone: Yes. As I understand it, State corporations pay to the State on their capital stock and on their total receipts.

Mr. Brown: The gross receipt tax applies to public service corporations.

Mr. Stone: Then I am not informed enough on that. But to come back to the argument. I find by your financial report of 1910 that there was a balance in the treasury of over two millions of dollars. With Beaver County paying its six mills, it would seem to me a fair business proposition, when there is a surplus accumulated, and there is an economic administration of our county, to divert a part of the tax that the State has accumulated to our county, that is bearing a very heavy burden. I came here to say that is our point of view.

Mr. Brown: I understand about one-quarter of your real estate is exempted.

Mr. Stone: Yes, sir.

Mr. Brown: You have $43,000,000 you tax and about 12 to $15,000,000 exempted?

Mr. Stone: Yes, practically one-quarter.

We are spending one hundred thousand a year to take care of our hospitals and insane asylums. We are spending for the county home, etc., over $150,000 a year. Out of 220 cases committed to the county home, a majority of two-thirds were brought here or came here for employment on the railroad. The policy has been to be as lenient as possible with these corporations, but Beaver county has developed a whole lot of doubting Thomases. We want to see and we want to know. We ask for figures on these things, but we don't obtain them; but we do know that two-thirds of these people we are supporting came here or were brought here for employment in these industries.

Now let me give you the assessed valuation of Jones and Laughlin's town, Woodlawn. Their assessed valuation is one million two hundred and fifty-three thousand dollars. I don't want to tell you what their bonded indebtedness is, to say nothing of the capital stock. I live in the town of Beaver, a town of small homes. I don't suppose there is a half dozen houses in Beaver that cost over $5,000; but our assessed valuation in Beaver, with nothing like the population of the town of Woodlawn, is $2,975,000, the borough of Woodlawn, including Jones and Laughlin, is $2,419,000. The little borough of Beaver has $556,000 more assessed valuation than the town of Woodlawn. So, we think from our semi-rural point of view, in Beaver county, that it would be a very wise thing for this committee to do, if they would recommend a law which would either permit this property to be taxed for local purposes, or, if it is taxed by the State, have a part of it diverted to the county for county purposes.

H. J. THOMAS, Solicitor, Coraopolis.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission: I only wish to call your attention to one single point. That is, this committee, as I understand it, is to consider whether or not certain revenues of the State should be returned to the counties. There is one duty the State has neglected that has placed an unfair burden upon the boroughs, and that is, I think if there are any surpluses of revenue, it should not be returned to the counties or boroughs, but should be appropriated for a single purpose and expended by the State, that is in the question of establishing sewage disposal plants. A number of years ago, the boroughs of the county, and all over the State, I presume, were compelled to install their sewage disposal plants, after the establishment of the State Board of Health. The borough of Oakmont, at that time, in order to get permission of the State Board of Health to extend its sewer system was compelled to sign a contract by which they were bound to put in a sewage disposal plant at the expiration of five years, when requested by the State Board of Health. That five years limit has expired, and now at any time that the State Board of Health so demands, the borough of Oakmont must install that plant. The borough of Coraopolis which I represent is in the same condition, and I think all the boroughs in the county, and perhaps all the boroughs in the State, are in the same condition. Now, the establishment of a sewage disposal plant in Oakmont isn't for the benefit of the people of Oakmont primarily, because the establishment of such a plant is to prevent contamination of the sewers below Oakmont, because Oakmont gets its supply from the river above. It seems to me if there is any funds of the State that could be returned to the municipalities, or to the counties, it should be returned in this way. There should be an appropriation made by which the State Board could get control of funds sufficient to assist the municipalities in establishing these sewage disposal plants, and so they would be in a position to begin at a certain portion of the State, say at the headwaters of the Allegheny and through all the municipalities in that section. If you will put in the sewage disposal plant, we will pay the larger portion of it. Now that would result in a fair and more equitable way of returning money if there is any to be returned, and not only that, but it would relieve the State authorities,—the State Board of Health,—from the impression that the people generally have, that they are exercising a tyrannical authority over them.

When this matter came up in Oakmont, the people were all up in arms. They said, "Why, here the State has compelled us to enter into contract to expend large sums of money, and we don't know where we are going to get this money from. It is spending money not for the benefit of the people of Oakmont, but for the benefit of the people down the river."

Mr. Brown: What would it cost you?

Mr. Thomas: I don't know, there was an estimate furnished, but I don't know the amount; when the estimate was furnished, we did not know where the money was going to come from. In addition to these features I have mentioned, there is this: After these municipalities entered into these contracts, they simply neglected the matter and they are drifting along. Information from all over the State shows they have neglected this expense that is hanging over them, and since the signing of these contracts, the development of good highways all over the State has been agitated, and I know, as far as Coraopolis is concerned we have incurred a very large indebtedness in fixing up the streets and get the town into shape to comply with this general demand for good roads, and in fixing up these improvements, figuring what is hanging over us in the way of putting in this sewage disposal plant, we have pretty nearly reached it. There is no other source I know of for the boroughs to get the money from except by borrowing it. This is a matter of the State. The matter of taking care of the health of the inhabitants is clearly a matter of the State, which should bear the burden of it, because that expenditure by this municipality is not for their own good, but for the good of other inhabitants. Unless the State bears this burden, you will be taxing in one community for the benefit of the next community, and the next community will have to be taxed for the benefit of those further down; and when you get near the State line you will tax the people of this State for the benefit of the people in the adjoining State.

Mr. Brown: There is no Association of Boroughs in Pennsylvania, is there?

Mr. Thomas: Not that I know of.

Mr. Brown: Has there been any co-operation among the solicitors?

Mr. Thomas: Not that I know of.

MR. SIMPSON:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission: About the only matter I feel interested in, with reference to the corporation act, is the Act of July 2, 1901. It seems to me that before the corporation act can be drawn up to the conclusion, that the Act of July 2, 1901, will have to be repealed. This is a sort of a joker. That act reads: "Hereafter, any corporation organized for profit, created by general or special laws, may purchase, hold, sell, assign, transfer, mortgage, pledge or otherwise dispose of the shares of the capital stock of, or any bonds, securities or evidences of indebtedness created by, any other corporation or corporations of this State or any other State, and while the owner of said stock may exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership, including the right to vote thereon." I maintain that as long as that Act of Assembly exists on the books of Pennsylvania, that the corporation Act is practically a failure.

Mr. Brown: You notice this Act proposes to change the law.

Mr. Simpson: Yes. I hope they will be able to get it through. I consider it one of the greatest deterrments we have in the State. Two or three things have come to my mind by reason of that act. One of them, a very large corporation holding stock, and there is no doubt was created for the purpose of holding the stock of one of the best institutions that there is in Allegheny county or in the State of Pennsylvania. That corporation was created by the owner of the original corporation, held and maintained by him, or practically by him, his share of stock transferred to that institution, and when it came to a show down, the institution holding this stock or presumed to be holding it neither had the stock or the assets necessary to create a corporation. I maintain that other corporation created should have certain amount of tangible assets. I maintain that where this is done, they should put a certain amount of tangible assets into that corporation for the purpose of protecting the people that are going to help that corporation along. It was at the time it became necessary to appoint receivers in this instance, that it was found that this institution holding this stock was without tangible assets, and we couldn't possibly collect. I was one of the fellows that tried to do it. So, I say, that as a matter of justice, no corporation should be allowed to hold the stock or acquire the stock. I don't mean hold it in the sense that it might be necessary to take the stock for a few days or a few months by reason of some obligation, but what I mean is to acquire the stock of any other corporation, and the reason is this,— by reason of it, you and I hold 51 per cent. of the stock of any corporation and we can control that corporation. We take the other 49 per cent. of that money contributed by some person, and by the stock of another corporation that you and I control, and that has been done in Allegheny county. I have an illustration of one institution in Allegheny county, and, by the way, a banking institution created by the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, acquiring the stock of another bank created by reason of the laws of Pennsylvania, at $600 a share. They acquired that by reason of purchase. Inside of eighteen months from the time they acquired that stock it was necessary to apply to the Commissioner of Banking for a Receiver. That institution was wound up and the very same stock that was acquired for $600, par value $50, was sold back to practically the same people for $275 per share; so they took the 49 per cent. (and I know the fellows that acquired that stock held 51 per cent. of the institution that acquired it)—they took the 49 per cent. of the money contributed by you and me and paid themselves five hundred times what they had acquired their original stock for, while they took 51 per cent. of their own to pay themselves five hundred per cent. of it, they took the 49 per cent. of mine to pay themselves; and then, after they had used up all of mine, they took the stock back because they had their own money and mine too. I maintain that things of that kind are morally wrong and should be legally wrong. No institution should be allowed under the law to do that.

Public meeting of the Joint Committee held in the Chamber of Commerce, Erie Penna., at 10.30 A. M.

Present: Milton W. Shreve, acting as Chairman; James F. Woodward, Secretary and Treasurer; George E. Alter, William H. Keyser, Senator Kline, of Pittsburgh, sat with the Committee; Francis Shunk Brown, Esq., Counsel; Harold M. Irons, Esq. Associate Counsel.

The Chairman: It is very gratifying to see this nice representation of business men here this morning. I know you all would like to give us all the assistance you can, and I want to say in the beginning that the ideas set forth in the proposed Act are simply tentative, for your consideration and for ours,—simply something from which we can start to draft an Act such as will conform to the conditions in Pennsylvania and be for the best interests of all concerned. Mr. Francis Shunk Brown, counsel of the Committee, will outline the work of the Committee, and we shall be pleased to hear from him now.

Mr. Brown: Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: It might not be amiss, before we commence this public meeting, to say a word or two as to the past service of this Committee and its present purpose. You gentlemen, I presume, are familiar with the subject,—that this Committee was authorized by the Legislature of 1909 to consider and revise the corporation and revenue laws of the Commonwealth. At that session of the Legislature, a resolution was passed, authorizing the appointment of a committee consisting of three senators and three members of the House of Representatives, for the purpose of considering a revision of the corporation and revenue laws of this Commonwealth. In pursuance of its duties, this Committee held public meetings in the City of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Erie, Williamsport and Scranton, all of which meetings were largely attended. In addition to that letters were sent to all interests of the Commonwealth,—judges, lawyers, corporations, banks, trust companies, brokers, in fact all interests that could in any way be affected by a revision or change of our corporation laws. The purpose of this Committee was outlined in these communications and the various interests were requested to co-operate with it. After this, a report was made to the Legislature which contained many recommendations. Several of these (the most important ones) were adopted into laws. It was seen that the work that was started could not be finished and it was deemed advisable to continue the committee, which was done by resolution of May 23, 1911. This resolution was adopted and I will take the time to read it, so that you may judge just what its extent is.

"Resolved, That the concurrent resolution approved May 13, 1909, entitled 'A concurrent resolution providing for the appointment of a Joint Committee of the Senate and the House of Representatives to consider and report upon a revision of the laws of this Commonwealth relating to corporations and to revenue; for the employment of counsel and other necessary officers and employes and giving it authority to compel attendance of persons and the production of books and papers,' be, and the same is hereby extended as follows: That the present President pro tempore of the Senate shall appoint three senators, and the present Speaker of the House of Representatives shall appoint three of its members, which shall constitute a joint committee, whose duty it shall be to consider the laws of this Commonwealth, relating to corporations and to revenue and the practical working thereof, and to report to the General Assembly in 1913, whatever changes may be deemed necessary therein, together with the draft of an Act or Acts of Assembly to accomplish said changes, and together with such recommendations as may be deemed necessary relative to the administration of existing laws or as to the apportionment of said suggested act or acts. Said Committee shall have power to elect its own chairman, to sit after the adjournment of the Legislature, to employ legal counsel and such other officers and employes as may be needed to enable it to properly perform its duties as aforesaid; but its expenditures shall be limited to the amount provided therefor in the general appropriation bill to be passed at this session of the Legislature and shall be paid out of the State Treasury upon vouchers signed by the chairman of said committee. Said committee shall also have power to issue subpoenas, signed by its chairman, requiring the attendance of persons and the production of books and papers, as in its judgment will assist in the performance of its duties as aforesaid."

That was a part of the letter, one of which, was received by probably every one present in this room. The letter to which I refer was as follows:

"The Committee is collecting data upon the formation, regulation and taxation of corporations and the appropriation of State revenues for all purposes, in this State, in all of the United States, by the Federal Government, and by other nations. These subjects are being specially discussed and legislated upon at the present time throughout the world.

"The committee desires the co-operation of all interested in these subjects and requests your opinion as to any defects in the present laws of the Commonwealth, relating to the formation, regulation and taxation of corporations, associations, partnerships or individuals, the exemption of them or any of them from taxation, the appropriation of the revenue of the State, and any changes therein which you may think necessary.

"You will notice that the resolution requires a report to be made to the Legislature in 1913 and we therefore request an early reply, as it is important that all suggestions be received for consideration prior to the public meetings which the Committee may hold. We should be glad to have from you the names and addresses of any persons whom you may know who are specially qualified to give to the Committee information or assistance in the consideration of these most important subjects.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) JAMES F. WOODWARD,
Secretary.

A part of the services of this Committee, for your information, was to prepare a tentative draft of an Act, intended to codify and simplify, and avoid the confusion which now exists in the corporation laws of this Commonwealth. You gentlemen are familiar with the fact that since 1874, when the general corporation Act was passed, there have been numerous Acts of Assembly, resulting in considerable confusion, and to obviate this, it was thought advisable that some tentative Act should be drafted, so as to be sent throughout the State in the hope that we would receive suggestions, that some help might be given in the consideration of the present unsatisfactory condition. This draft is simply a tentative affair; we are not wedded to the Act, and it was drafted for the purpose of inviting criticism and suggestions.

HENRY L. FISH, representing the Erie Manufacturers' Association:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: The law firm of which I am a member represents some of the manufacturing corporations of the City of Erie and the Manufacturers' Association of this city, an association which, I think, includes nearly all the manufacturing corporations in this locality. Erie is a manufacturing city. Its growth and prosperity in the past and in the present and future depend very largely upon these manufacturing interests, and therefore we are deeply interested in the results which will follow the work of this Committee. As a member of the Bar, we are also interested in this revision of the corporation laws to which Mr. Brown has referred. I think the Bar of this State, without exception, will concede the necessity for this revision, for compiling and revising our corporation laws, so they may be gathered into one body which will be consistent and all parts of which will be consistent with each other, and not contradictory, as many parts are at this time and which will form in itself a complete instrument for the guidance and government of these corporations. If I may be permitted, I wish to call attention to a particular few,—only three or four,—of the provisions of the suggested act, which, upon reading it through, occurred to us as possibly being provisions upon which the Committee would welcome suggestions which Mr. Brown has invited.

With the solid body of this Act, I think the members of the bar, as far as I know, will agree. That certainly reflects a large amount of work upon the part of the Committee, much diligence and much wisdom. But it is only to two or three parts of sections that struck us as possibly not being such as the Committee, upon full reflection, will advise the adoption of by the Legislature, that I wish to call to your attention.

I notice a suggestion is made regarding an amendment to the section of the Act which prescribes for the name of the corporation, by annexing the word "incorporated"—by adding the word "corporation," "incorporated," or the letters "inc." after the name of the corporation and as the last word of the corporation, so as to distingusih it from a partnership, etc. It strikes me that that addition is possibly inconvenient and that it may be unnecessary also. I think anyone dealing with corporations in these days has plenty of avenues of information and avails himself of them to ascertain whether he is dealing with a partnership or a corporation, and unless every corporation now in existence amend their names to conform to this Act, there would still be confusion as between existing corporations and corporations organized hereafter.

This suggestion as to the possible advisability of omitting the requirement for publication in obtaining a charter strikes me as being a good one. I don't see the wisdom or utility at this time of, requiring this notice by publication. This is only required in a few of the States, as I believe, outside of Pennsylvania. It consumes considerable time and is unnecessary. About the only good result that would seem to be obtained from it,—and that is about the only interest that any one outside of the State department or State officials could have in it,—is in seeing that a name isn't used similar to the name of some existing corporation, and the State officials themselves take care of that point; so I think the State Department, if necessary, will protect the public or any existing corporation from any trouble that might arise from lack of notice or lack of advertisement as to the name.

Then I notice that one section of the Act proposes to limit the amount of bonds and evidence of indebtedness that may be issued by a corporation to the amount of its capital stock actually paid up. The Act of 1901 got us away from that limitation that had before existed, and while it does probably add to the security of the corporation to have its bonded indebtedness limited to the amount of its capital stock actually paid up, still it don't seem to me that is much protection to the purchasers or holders of bonds and securities of that kind; they investigate the actual security any way before they purchase them; and as the corporation itself by simply increasing its capital stock,—if it had the assets,—justify the issue of bonds by increasing its capital stock to the amount of the bonds proposed to be issued, it could issue the same amount of bonds any way, and the only actual result would be that it would pay a bonus of one-third of one per cent. to the Commonwealth under the present law. I take it that the Act of 1901 was passed in the light of experience and was a well considered act in removing the relation and limitation that had theretofore existed between capital stock and bonds.

Another provision of the Act that strikes me as not being desirable, is section 21, page 69. This section provides that shares of stock may be issued in payment for property only after an appraisement of that property by the Secretary of the Commonwealth or appraisers appointed by him. It cites as a precedent, the present statute of the State of Iowa. None of the other States of the Union have ever made this requirement, and all of them, I think, have agreed with complete unanimity that the valuation fixed by the directors and in some instances by the stockholders shall be conclusive in the absence of actual fraud.

Mr. Brown: Shouldn't there be a certificate filed in Harrisburg signed by a majority of the directors, certifying in detail just what the property is for which the stock is issued?

Mr. Fish: I don't think that would be objectionable. I think that would be desirable. But I do think that the directors who have the affairs of the corporation in charge and represent its interests should have the fixing of this valuation; and it would add to the cumbersomeness of the machinery of incorporation to delegate this authority to the State, for it would not accomplish desirable results. If a corporation is purchasing property and issues stock for itself, it can be depended upon to pay no more than it is worth; if the corporations are issuing it to themselves, nobody else is interested at that time; and if any other person issues or purchases the stock afterward, they have the power to investigate as to assets, and perhaps the filing of a statement of the character Mr. Brown suggests might afford them additional opportunity; but I do think the fixing of this valuation should be left to the incorporators or directors or the managers of the corporation. I believe that experience has shown that. It is the law of every other State except Iowa.

There is one other section to which I wish to call your attention, and that is section 47, under the head of Reports and Official Investigation, on page 123. This proposed section would require, as I understand it, an additional report to be filed by the officers of the corporation, signed and sworn to by the officers or by a majority of the Board of Directors, and filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, where it would be public and accessible to everyone, and that would be additional to the reports now required to be filed with the Auditor General for the purpose of taxation. It does seem to me that this report required here would be obnoxious. In the first place, it applies to details in which the public is not particularly interested. They are in a different situation from public service corporations, except in so far as the shares of some of them may be listed on the stock exchange and dealt in by the public. There is not a single manufacturing corporation whose shares are dealt in by the public and in which the public is interested and which are listed on the stock exchange, as far as I know, except possibly a branch of the General Electric Company. To file this report would place these corporations, their affairs, their assets, liabilities, the names of their stockholders and the number of shares held by each individual stockholder, all open to examination by every individual or partnership and competitors, every corporation and competitor, unless that publicity was regulated by various stringent provisions; and it does not seem to me that for official purposes of the State that it is necessary that such a report should be required. The State has access to the reparts filed by the Auditor General which are in detail and show practically, except the names and addresses of the stockholders and the number of shares held by each, which I think is a requirement, as far as I know, which was never made of any corporation for any purpose or purposes. I can say here that no result which will be commensurate with the objections which can be raised against this provision can be obtained. Take the Federal Corporation Act, for instance. The Act of Congress provided regulations as to the accessibility to the reports, after they reached the office of the Commissioner of Internal Affairs. It had to protect them against publicity, and an almost universal protest went up against that publicity and Congress, in making the appropriation to carry the Act into effect, was so impressed by that protest that it made the appropriation only under stringent conditions, protecting the reports against publicity providing that nobody should have access to the reports except the stockholders of the corporation who came with credentials, and then only by permission of the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Treasury, except as to corporations whose shares were dealt in by the public and listed on regular stock exchanges.

I think these suggestions, which are lengthier than I intended to make, are all I have to suggest to the Committee in connection with this proposed corporation Act. I think all other sections, as far as I have examined them in a somewhat hasty reading, impressed me as being good.

I desire to file with the Commission a protest, or objection to this proposed, or possibly suggested, capital stock tax, upon the capital of manufacturing corporations actually employed in manufacturing. As I say, this is a matter of deep interest to our local concerns. Perhaps there is not a community in Pennsylvania, unless it is Pittsburgh, in which it would be of more interest than it is here. Since 1885 it has been the set policy of this State to extend this exemption as an incentive to manufacturers to locate and remain within the State, and that is really in line with similar inducements which other localities in every State, almost, I think, has found by experience to be advisable to offer for the same purpose. It seems to be founded upon reason. It has existed so long and has been so universally adopted. I notice, I think at the hearing had here two years ago before some of the members of this same Committee, that Mr. Brown suggested the possible injustice of imposing this corporation tax upon every business corporation not engaged in manufacturing; that is, mercantile corporations; and that perhaps would seem to be an unjust discrimination in looking at it from certain points of view. We feel here, and I believe it is a general feeling, that the mercantile corporation does not stand on exactly the same basis as a manufacturing corporation as far as the interests of the community are concerned which might be formed and extended by an inducement of this kind. A manufacturing corporation goes ahead of the dealer in merchandise. That is, he has to get on the ground first. The manufacturer must produce the goods before the merchant can handle them, and while it might seem inconsistent that a mercantile establishment employing three or four hundred men should have its capital stock taxed, while the manufacturing corporation, employing the same number of men does not, I say that they are not on the same basis. The assets of the mercantile corporation are of a different character from the assets of a manufacturing corporation. There is more risk in the manufacturing business. When a manufacturing business is going ahead it is making money. As soon as it ceases, through changes in methods, to beget profit, then it simply becomes a deal which cannot be disposed of except at a great loss, whereas the risk of the mercantile concern is not so great. Its assets are more easily liquidated. It can get out when the time comes to quit. I don't know that it is entirely justifiable to impose as many taxes upon the mercantile establishment as are now imposed. For instance, a dry goods company incorporated in this State now is paying one-third of one per cent. to the State by way of a bonus when it gets its charter. Then it is subject to a local taxation on all its real estate, which in this city amounts to about 28 mills. Manufacturing establishments are subject to that same tax, all local taxes, land, building and machinery, etc. Then the mercantile corporation pays in addition to that a mercantile tax, and then a federal corporation tax; and it would seem as if the ingenuity of man had been pretty nearly exhausted in devising taxes upon mercantile concerns. But I do say that this should not be used as a reason why the capital stock of a manufacturing corporation should not be exempted.

Mr. Brown: Is there any activity in this Commonwealth that is more prosperous than the manufacturer? I don't intend to reflect my personal opinion, but I am asking that question in order to get your thought.

Mr. Fish: Perhaps if all the manufacturing establishments have their profits taken together they might show an aggregate of profits as great as that of any business in the Commonwealth; but I believe there are more failures in the manufacturing business than in any other business. They are perhaps shorter lived than any other business. As late as twenty years ago there were manufacturing establishments in this town making very large profits that have since been sold out by the sheriff. Changes in methods and so on tend to make them temporarily prosperous,—temporarily successful. We have very few manufacturing establishments in this town which have been successful or prosperous beyond the term of one generation. The public service corporations, on the other hand, are practically perpetual. They are based upon public franchises which continue to increase in value with the population. Nevertheless, these corporations pay no local taxes on their real estate.

Mr. Brown: Shouldn't they?

Mr. Fish: I see no reason why they shouldn't. If the manufacturing corporation is obliged to pay, I don't know why the public service corporation, which really gets something from the people, should not. They pay five mills to the State as a tax upon their capital stock, which is all the tax they pay except a little local taxes on some real estate they don't desire to use at this particular time. That is all the locality gets from them in the way of taxes.

Mr. Brown: Does that same criticism apply to the lighting companies, water companies and all the other companies,—other public utility companies in this community?

Mr. Fish: Yes. The point I make is that the fact that other business corporations than manufacturin corporations are obliged to pay this capital stock tax, is no better argument why the manufacturing corporation should be compelled to pay it than is the fact that the manufacturing corporations are compelled to pay these local taxes, amounting to 28 mills, in our own city, upon almost all their property, is no reason why the public service corporations should not be compelled to pay on theirs. That is, the inconsistency in one respect isn't a reason why it should be continued in respect to the manufacturing corporations.

Mr. Brown: You tax machinery in this county as real estate?

Mr. Fish: Yes, tax the buildings and machinery. Practically the whole plant.

Mr. Brown: This is exempted in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton.

Mr. Fish: It is not exempted here.

Mr. Brown: Do you consider that an unfair discrimination against other districts in this State?

Mr. Fish: If it be, this is a discrimination not under the law, but in the administration of the law by the assessor.

Mr. Brown: Machinery is exempted in Philadelphia and in Pittsburgh and Scranton. Is that a fair discrimination as respecting the other parts of the Commonwealth?

Mr. Fish: I didn't suppose machinery in Scranton or any one city of the State could be exempted by the Legislature.

Mr. Brown: Cities of the second class.

Mr. Fish: Oh, that certainly is a discrimination without reason.

Mr. Brown: You have the same industries here as they have in Pittsburgh, and necessarily in competition with each other?

Mr. Fish: Yes. The City of Erie at this time is in sore need of every revenue for public improvements. The city has been growing rapidly, but it has had difficulty in obtaining them. This question of the taxation of machinery in manufacturing plants was brought to the public attention this last spring, and the City Solicitor filed an opinion setting forth the duty of the assessors to assess that machinery and the assessments upon plants of manufacturing corporations has been very largely increased.

Mr. Brown: Do you think that an efficient effort is made in this county to produce results from returns,—personal property taxable,—I mean money at interest and mortgages?

Mr. Fish: This is a subject with which I am not very familiar. I think probably careful diligence and energetic work on the part of the assessor would discover things not now assessed. In this connection, I wish to present a resolution, which I will read. (Reads.)

Resolution adopted by the Manufacturers' Association at a general meeting held in Erie, Pennsylvania, on November 19th, 1912.

Resolved, That this Association file its protest with the Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, against the imposition of a capital stock tax upon the capital actually employed in manufacturing within the State. We respectfully submit that it would be unwise to change the settled policy of the State, which has exempted manufacturing companies from this tax since 1885, during which period the State has attained pre-eminence in manufacturing. The land, buildings, machinery and plant of such companies, is subject to heavy local taxation, to which public service corporations are not subject. They pay a large bonus to the State Treasury upon incorporating, which is a reasonable consideration to the State for the privilege obtained by their charters, which give them no right of eminent domain or any public franchise of value. Most of them are practically partnerships which have incorporated for convenience and to avoid dissolution by death, etc., and such tax would place them at a disadvantage with individuals and partnerships engaged in the same business. Such exemption is only a special inducement extended by the State to encourage manufacturers to locate and remain within the State. Such inducements have been found desirable by cities and localities all over the world, for the reason that manufacturers develop and increase business and population, whereas mercantile companies do not. Furthermore, a manufacturing business is more hazardous than a mercantile business, in that its assets cannot be liquidated without great loss, in case the enterprise is unprofitable. For these and other reasons which might be suggested, we respectfully protest against any change in the present law in this respect.

I, Ray Himrod, Secretary of the Manufacturers' Association of Erie, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct copy of the resolutions adopted at a meeting of the said Association, on the date above mentioned, and recorded upon its minutes.

(Signed) RAY HIMROD,
Secretary.

In that connection, I would suggest one more idea that I wanted to get before the Committee. I think the ordinary business corporation does not obtain as much from the State, as to what it pays for its charter, as does the public service corporation. Our expenses of incorporation in Pennsylvania are one-third of one per cent., which amount is required to be paid for the charter. This is high. It is our experience that when men are incorporating, the first thing they look at is these items of expense; and these expenses would be very seriously considered by meproposingto incorporate, that is, by partnerships and individuals who desired to incorporate to get the privileges such as charters afford. And I believe it would be doubtful whether, if this tax were imposed, the State, which is often looked at from a revenue standpoint, alone, would get any more than it does now. These concerns really are not obliged to incorporate. They don't have to have charters in order to do business. Now take one of our institutions here, an old established institution,—one of the oldest in the city, the Erie City Iron Works. If one-tenth of one per cent. were imposed on that company by the laying of a capital stock, it would be obliged to pay $2,500 to $3,000 a year. If it went up to five mills, they would pay $12,000 to $15,000, which I think that company would regard as a very heavy burden. They don't get it from their charters by way of privileges, except guarantee against dissolution in case of death, limitation of personal liability, etc. They don't get the right of eminent domain, which all these other corporations do, which only pay five mills and are exempted from local taxation. If a manufacturing company is prosperous and wishes to increase its plant and needs more room, it has to bargain with its neighbor. If he is unreasonable or if he stands upon his right to keep the land and not sell it at all, they are often obliged to move their whole business to some other locality. Companies have been up against that proposition more than once. Very rcently, there was a conspicuous example of that in this city. The Lake Shore Railroad owned a piece of land adjoining a manufacturing institution which had been growing rapidly and was in need of more room. The land wasn't used for their business, but it was good land to hold and they absolutely wouldn't put a price on it. The manufacturing company could do nothing but to buy a tract of land in another locality and build its plant in order to continue business. It seems to me that the business corporations are paying enough for the privileges they get. If they are going to be taxed more, they should get more privileges.

Mr. Brown: Do you think that piece of property to which you refer should be taxed locally and taxed at the value the manufacturing company would pay for it if they had induced them to sell?

Mr. Fish: That is taxed locally. But the tax would be all out of proportion to the rapid increase in value.

I will read the protest of the members of the Manufacturers' Association of Erie, against the repeal of the present exemption of capital stock employed in manufacturing within the State, from the payment of a capital stock tax. (Reads.)

To the Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to consider and report upon a revision of the corporation and revenue laws of the Commonwealth.

We, the undersigned, corporations existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, and engaged in manufacturing in the County of Erie, Pennsylvania, do respectfully protest against the imposition of a capital stock tax and against the repeal of the present law exempting capital employed in manufacturing within the State from such a tax.

We believe that a capital stock tax, if imposed, will discourage manufacturing companies from locating within the State. That the State will be less likely to retain all its present manufacturing interests. That the exemption is a desirable inducement to manufacturing corporations, in like with local inducements which cities everywhere have by experience found it advisable to offer such industries. That the bonus payable to the State upon incorporation in Pennsylvania is in itself a reasonable compensation to the State for the corporate privileges, without the addition of an annual tax. That the real estate, machinery and tangible assets of manufacturing corporations are all subject to local taxation, and an annual capital stock tax would be a double taxation, whereas railroads, electric light companies, and all public service corporations, are exempted from local taxation upon all property used in the exercise of their franchises. That the manufacturing business is more hazardous than a mercantile business, and that if double taxation of the latter be justifiable, it does not afford a sufficient reason for so taxing the former. That most manufacturing corporations are practically co-partnerships which have incorporated for convenience, and as a safeguard against dissolution by death, and which have obtained no public rights and franchises from the people, and such a tax will place them at a disadvantage with individuals and co-partnerships engaged in the same business.

For these and other reasons, we earnestly object to disturbing the present exemption.

This is signed by the various companies, members of the Association.

MAYOR STERN, of Erie, Penna.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: Mr. Fish has covered everything very well, and I am in hearty accord with all he has said. We feel particularly honored that it has pleased your Committee to come to our city, and on behalf of the City of Erie, I bid you a cordial welcome.

I note from the letter I received that there has been a suggestion about the return of money to the community from which it is taken. As Mr. Fish said, our city is growing very fast, and the revenue is needed for the community; and if more revenue could be returned to Erie, it would help us very much. Mr. Fish speaks of the revenue received by the State from Public Service Corporations, which includes, of course, electric light companies, water companies, gas companies, etc., railroad companies. I wanted to get some idea of the exemption in the City of Erie, in these companies, and I am told that the valuation which would be taxed would probably be two and a-half millions of dollars, which, at our rate of taxation, would bring us considerable revenue. I cannot see why the State gets this revenue. The city government is burdened with the up-keep of the fire department, police department, and other expenses, and of course these public service corporations located here get the benefit of these departments and it seems to me we should get the revenue, or the major portion of it. I hope this Committee will recommend that all the revenue, or a large proportion of it, received by the State from public service corporations be returned to the city. I think it is fair to do that very thing. These corporations are growing all the time and they are asking for our protection. Of course, it is right that we should protect them, but we should get the revenue from them which we are not getting at the present time.

Another question is the mercantile tax. I cannot see why the State wants a mercantile tax. If that tax is just, why shouldn't it be returned to the city or township in which it is collected ? I called the treasurer's office to get information about the amount of tax paid by merchants in the City of Erie I find this year the county treasurer received from mercantile tax from the merchants in Erie, retailers, $9,720, and wholesalers, $2,295. This is collected and retained entirely by the State.

Mr. Brown: I think the bulk of that is returned here,—three-fourths of it.

Mr. Stern: Well, I have been told the State retains it.

Mr. Brown: The State retains one-quarter of it and the community from which it is collected gets three-fourths of it back.

Mr. Stern: Yes, that's right. I cannot see why the State levies that tax. Why does the State go to the merchants for a tax?

Mr. Brown: The State collects that with some other taxes to help support the government. If all this tax went back to the county, there would not be any money for the judges, or any money for the hospitals, or any money for the State institutions. In other words, all the State receives is put in one general account, and they return to you three-quarters of the money.

Mr. Stern: I mean the mercantile tax. It seems to merchants all throughout the State to be an imposition. I think if it is right to impose it, it is right the money should be kept in our own county, which gives the merchant an opportunity to do business.

Mr. Woodward: Would you favor each community taking care of its own public institutions, in case the State did that?

The several communities might be able to do that. It is possible if we could get the revenue we could very well take care of our local institutions. It is very possible.

Another thing is the question of the automobile tax. I believe I am right when I say that the entire revenue is retained by the State from automobile licenses.

Mr. Brown: Yes.

Mr. Stern: Now there is a point I want to dwell on. It is estimated that the City of Erie has at the present time at least 1,500 automobiles; I have heard it figured as high as 2,000. Since the advent of the automobile and on account of its increasing use, our streets have to be maintained in better condition. Years ago, people wouldn't notice holes here and there and repairs were not necessary. At the present time, even a small hole is noticed by automobile drivers, who complain. They want the streets kept in good condition, and the expense each year is higher for maintaining these pavements in good condition. These are maintained particularly to accommodate drivers of automobiles. We don't get a cent of the revenue. We have approximately 1,500 automobiles at an average of $7.50. I understand the license on automobiles is $5.00 for a machine up to 20; $10.00 up to 40, and $15.00 above 40. I averaged that this morning at $7.50, and fifteen hundred machines would make the revenue over $11,000. That would come in very handily to the City of Erie for repairing our pavements. I hope this Committee will recommend, when you are about to take up the question of the change of the laws, that the automobile tax be returned to the community, or the major portion of it at least, in which it is collected.

I want to supplement what Mr. Fish has said about the proposed tax upon manufacturing corporations. I agree with Mr. Fish that they should not be taxed. As Mayor of the City of Erie, I want to say that the city is growing principally on account of its many industries. Industries are coming here and those we have are growing very fast, and they are the bone and sinew of our town. They are the very foundation of everything we have. I sincerely hope you will not impose any tax upon manufacturing corporations.

E. H. LAMBERTON, Esq.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee: Looking over this act with some care, I notice a number of places where I think the act could be improved. I think I must say that whoever got this up deserves a great deal of credit. It shows a remarkable amount of industry, as well as wisdom.

As a member of the Bar of Erie county, I myself am glad that the Legislature has taken up the matter of the Act of 1874 and its supplements and proposes to codify them in this manner.

I don't want to take up the time of the Committee, and point out what I consider good and what I consider bad, but I have marked it and will submit it to Mr. Brown, so he can look it over.

That one section that Mr. Fish referred to on page 123, I consider as he does. I think it is especially bad to ask the Board of Directors, united with the treasurer and the president for an affidavit as to certain conditions which, of course, they may know, and yet they may not. It is asking a good deal to ask the board of directors to get into that affidavit. It seems to me that the president and treasurer would be amply sufficient.

There is one place on page 67, it seems to me that should have read "unless authorized by law." Otherwise that section would prevent any corporation in Pennsylvania, according to my idea, engaged in the business of discounting bills, notes, etc. There is certainly an omission there.

The other things I marked as good and bad I will submit.

The important thing I want to speak about here today is in regard to the revenue law of this State. I think, perhaps, what I may have to say may be unpopular with this audience. The men who are here are mostly manufacturers, and they have had an exemption for so many years in the State taxes that they naturally think they have a sort of a right to be exempted, but as the questions by Mr. Brown have indicated, today the manufacturing interests of Pennsylvania are better able to pay the tax than any other corporations in existence. That being recognized, it seems to me that it is not good policy for the manufacturers to oppose the imposition of a small tax upon themselves. Therefore, from what I have to say, I don't wish the manufacturers to think I am opposed to manufacturing, because I am not; but I think in fairness to the community at large, and to themselves also, they should consent to have this tax the same as any other corporation; but I believe myself that the taxation on corporations, as indicated by Mr. Fish, is too great. It is asking too great a thing. The corporation tax of this Commonwealth should be reduced at least one-half. But this matter of charging one-third of one per cent. when becoming incorporated in my opinion is not only impolitic, but it is an infernal outrage. I will put what I have to say in writing, for the reason that I know this Committee's time is very brief, and I wish to get right at what I have to say so as not to keep you here any longer than necessary. You will pardon me, therefore, for reading what I have to say.

The Act of June 8th, 1891, in my opinion, is a most striking example of vicious and ill advised legislation.

It is first of all, unnecessary, the State having no need of the taxes it raises ,and merely assesses and collects them in order to give them away to the respective counties. It puts a tax on money, not because it requires to raise a sum for any State purpose, but, apparently, because, like the Irishman at the fair, whose slogan was, "If you see a head, hit it." The State is required under the Act to return three-fourths of the amount collected, to the respective counties,—a sort of double county tax, as it were, but forced out of the people by State machinery, without any request or need on the part of the counties,—a nice, quiet way of having the funds go through the hands of the State officials, for the purpose of graft or some other such pernicious object.

Now, if the State only needs one-fourth, why not in common sense assess and collect only the amount wanted, that is, one-fourth? Why assess four mills, if one mill is all the State wants? Let the counties assess and collect their own taxes; they are better judges of what they themselves need. Why put taxes on people unnecessarily?

The Act is secondly unfair to the cities.

It is of common knowledge that farmers have no money to loan on judgments and mortgages. I venture confidently to assert that this State tax practically comes off the citizens of the cities alone, and yet, while thus collected off the city people, it is all but one-fourth made a present by the State to the people of the county. In other words, the Legislature by this Act of June 8th, 1891, is forcing funds out of the one class, in order to benefit another class, a species of legislation which in free America, where all are equal before the law, and rich and poor alike have equal rights, has been universally condemned.

It is thirdly impolitic. A law such as this is a kind of inquisition, and has all the faults of an income tax law in that respect, that it inquires into and probes the private business of its private citizens. There are few business men who care to reveal to the public how many shares of stock they own, or how many judgments, mortgages or bank deposits, and consequently, in order to avoid the making out of a sworn return to the assessor, will place their money anywhere else in the world than in mortgages or judgments. As a consequence, of which, men of large means send their money out of the State, putting it even into wild cat schemes, diamond mines, etc., rather than be forced to reveal their private affairs to the curious public and the omniverous newspaper reporter. The burden of this tax thus becomes so much the heavier upon those people who keep their money within the border of the State; and I have no doubt an examination of the records in the court house of any county in Pennsylvania will reveal that this tax bears most heavily and almost exclusively upon estates in the hands of executors, administrators, guardians and trustees, and in banks and other corporations which do not have to make a return. In other words, upon the helpless widows and orphans of the Commonwealth.

Under the Act of 1889, the tax was first put at three mills, but an experience of two years must have shown it a failure as an income-producer for, in 1891, the Act was passed raising it to four mills. If a person makes no return, a penalty of two mills more is added. This raising the tax was a move in the wrong direction, for it simply drove the capitalists farther afield. If the law was not so burdensome, if, instead of a penalty for not returning money for taxation, a bonus or reduction be offered to each one returning such money, much of the funds now invested outside of Pennsylvania, like birds to their windows, would fly back home again.

When the State takes nearly half of one per cent. out of the three per cent. paid bank depositors, it certainly discourages a long line of would-be depositors and relegates much money from circulation. It is to the advantage of every community to bring out of hinding places the wealth that is rusting in idleness and to encourage deposits in bank.

It is fourthly unjust because it imposes more than one tax upon the same subject. It puts an extraordinary burden upon a class of people already over-taxed and whom of all people should be relieved of such taxes as these as much as possible. I refer particularly to purchase money mortgagors. The man who buys his home on credit is immediately met with four kinds of taxes: first, the seventy-five cents State tax put on the record of his deed; second, the seventy-five cents State tax on recording his mortgage; third, the four mills State tax on the money he borrows (for no man can doubt as to who really pays this item) for a man who loans money at 4 per cent. will certainly not loan at 4 per cent. knowing that nearly half of one per cent. is at once taken out of the 4 per cent. for State tax; fourthly, the city, county, poor and school tax heaped on to him before he has fairly moved into his house. Then, a fifth tax may be calculated upon if he should buy upon an article of agreement.

All these taxes on local real estate are enhanced also by various assessments for sewers, sidewalks, street paving, and by the fact that, while such real estate purchaser is assessed with his full quota of taxes and some of the quota also of his country cousins, it is further enhanced by the enormous amount of property that is exempt from taxation. Manufacturers paying dividends of fifty per cent. to 100 per cent. annually exempt. Does it not seem absurd to exempt the bath tub trust and yet exact it from the poor laboring man who is striving to pay for his mortgaged home?

All city, county, school, religious and charitable institutions are exempt and their share heaped upon the real estate purchaser. He is forced to contribute this much to charity whether he wants to or not. Is it any wonder that real estate is the most difficult of all commodities to sell?

If the income tax law now likely to pass Congress becomes a law, taxation by the State and taxation by the United States upon a person's savings will be so unbearable that no sane being will keep his money in sight or spread it on the mortgage record, and I venure the prophecy that many more Astors will flee abroad to escape the avalanche of taxation.

Now, a word as to the taxation of manufacturing corporations. The origin of their exemption can easily be traced to the same source as that which put a high tariff to protect our infant manufacturers.

The recent election is conclusive evidence that people believe these infants have grown enough to take care of themselves. One half the fat and greedy trusts are manufacturing corporations and there is no more excuse to exempt them from taxation than there is in protecting them by a high tariff and probably not so much. Taxation laws of Pennsylvania should be amended so as to make all manufacturing corporations of five years old and upwards whose net income annually amounts to 8 per cent. or more on the value of its property to pay the same State tax as other corporations pay. The State tax of three mills of insurance companies is another instance of the inequality of the Pennsylvania Revenue Laws. If I believe the circulars received from promoters for the formation of a new insurance company, there is no investment which produces so large returns and if our other corporations pay five mills tax, certainly insurance companies should not get off with a payment of three mills.

The tax on recording deeds, mortgages and other legal papers is impolitic for the reason that it is for the benefit of the community to have all such papers put on record as there is nothing so productive of litigation and uncertainty of titles as unrecorded papers.

The law makers who put this tax on legal papers were either not far-sighted, or else very hard up for money; and certainly now, when the State does not need the money, should be repealed. A State which can contemplate squandering fifty million dollars on its roads alone, is certainly rich enough to abandon this tax and even pay a bonus on every legal paper recorded. The payment of such a bonus would be especially desirable upon the recording of every unrecorded deed of twenty-five years old or more.

I desire now to speak of the Pennsylvania law on incorporation of companies, as I am of the opinion our law is very impolitic in this matter. We have for years been driving our own people across the line into New Jersey to incorporate because we would permit incorporation of only business of a certain limited kind. As, for example, up to a few years ago, we could not incorporate a drug store or a dry goods store. This has now been changed, but our corporation law is still narrow, illiberal and far behind our competitors. If a rich company in Philadelphia wish to incorporate a two million dollar corporation, they simply incorporate in New Jersey and open their offices across the river in Camden and thus save about seven thousand dollars at the very start. In the meantime, Pennsylvania loses in the course of a few years an income from that company enough to have paid them the seven thousand dollars or even more as a bonus to induce them to incorporate in Pennsylvania.

SUGGESTIONS.

First. Repeal the four mills tax on all mortgages, judgments and articles of agreement, or at least exempt purchase money mortgages, and contracts for the sale of real estate. If the total repeal be deemed inadvisable, then reduce it to a one mill tax and give a deduction of 50 per cent. on all money returned for taxation.

Second. Change the law so that no tax be imposed on bank deposits.

Third. Repeal the tax on recording of deeds and mortgages.

Fourth. Put the same tax on insurance companies as on other corporations.

Fifth. Put the same tax on manufacturing companies, five years old or over, which have a net revenue of 8 per cent. annually, but reduce the millage on all corporations to two mills.

Sixth. Put the bonus on all companies incorporating in Pennsylvania, the same as now charged in Delaware, viz., $10 on $10,000 up to $100,000; $50 on $500,000; $100 on $1,000,000 up to $2,000,000, and five cents per thousand on all above $2,000,000.

Seventh. Reduce and simplify the form of return of personal property so that the ordinary people can readily understand it, also make it more general, so that the business man may not resent its inquisitorial character, and may not be required to reveal private business, nor to figure out sums in partial payments.

MATTHEW GRISWOLD, representing the General Elec. Co.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I don't know as I can add anything to what has been said by Mr. Fish, as to this present law. I haven't had time to give it any personal attention; but I just want to speak a word in regard to the possible tax on corporations, and how it would affect our company. When our company located here, we had offered them every inducement to locate in the State. We looked over every possible location that would be advantageous, and of course investigated each point that would work to the advantage of this corporation. It was the favorable laws of Pennsylvania to corporations and the favorable attitude of the State toward corporations that caused them to locate in the State, and any change in these laws or in the policy of the State towards corporations, would work against the interest of the local plant here. I know it is hard work to get them to increase the plant. We started in a small way and are beginning to make quite a showing; but if we have to pay this increased tax that they don't have in New York (I understand the corporation in New York, where it employs 40 per cent. or over, in the State, is exempt from taxation)—if we have this tax to pay, it will be that much more burden upon us to get the plant to grow here, as against Schenectady. If we cannot show a chance to get ahead, we cannot have this department here. It is hard work for us to increase the plant here. They believe that when a corporation locates a branch outside of the State, they should have the most favorable laws where they locate.

Mr. Brown: Our laws are much more favorable to manufacturing corporations than the New York laws.

Mr. Griswold: That is possibly so; I haven't looked into the details of the laws of New York State.

Mr. Brown: I have made a comparison of the two States, and I find that Pennsylvania has gone far ahead on account of the liberality of her laws to manufacturing corporations.

E. P. SELDEN, Erie City Iron Works.

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Commission and Friends of Erie: I am exceedingly glad that your visit here should happen on such a delightful day, and I hope that the bright sunshine may have an influence over your decisions.

I want to say a word for the manufacturing interests of Erie, first. As a manufacturer, I want to stick with them. I believe that one of the happiest employments that we can undertake, is engaging in some business that will provide an honest employment and a means of livelihood for men, and for workers; and we endeavor to do that.

There is one point which I have not noticed in the talks here this morning, in regard to a point in favor of the manufacturing interests of the State, and one with which I have been greatly impressed, as I have thought the matter over, and that is that the manufacturer,—and I am speaking now for my fellow manufacturers of the State,—that they bring in from abroad money which is distributed here among our workmen and used by our workmen for purchasing the necessities and the luxuries of life. I don't wish to say anything detrimental at all to our mercantile establishments, or other lines of business in the State; but the manufacturing establishment brings in from abroad that which enables us to carry on our local business. It seems to me it would be a mark of wisdom for our Commonwealth to afford the manufacturers all the means possible to continue prosperity in their business. For let me say to you, in face of the fact of the general opinion among us that our manufacturers sell their product abroad,—outside of our own State,—we go outside very largely for our markets and we bring into our State and city the money which would otherwise not come here; and I put it up to your as a question, "Is it not wise to foster these interests?" There is an old saw, or a story rather, about killing the goose that laid the golden eg~ This old saying has its foundation in good, common sense, and I believe it would be very unwise to tax beyond a very limited amount, those who are doing this to which I refer,—bringing money in from abroad and distributing it here, furnishing honest employment and a means of livelihood for our fellow citizens. We of course, as citizens of the State, have the right of life, liberty and pursuit of the honest dollar; and we are willing to pay a just and proper tax for that; but beyond that, we feel it is unjust.

JUDGE W. E. RICE.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: It is not my purpose to attempt to make an argument upon the questions at issue before you.

I represent, along manufacturing lines, the Elk Tanning Company, which operates in some sixteen counties of the Commonwealth, and the ———— Company, which operates in ten counties of the Commonwealth; both companies own quite extenisve plants. I merely desire to put these companies upon record as being opposed to the repeal of the provision exempting from taxation so much of the capital stock of corporations as is actually engaged in manufacturing. I observe from the newspaper reports of the hearings heretofore had by your Committee, and especially of the one held in Pittsburgh, on Tuesday, that the objection, the main objection to the repeal of that provision, seems to come from the agricultural interests, as represented by the secretary and master of the State Grange, in which I think that there is no particular complaint, no loud complaint, from any class of people that I know of except the agriculturist, who states he is being discriminated against when the capital stock of manufacturing corporations is exempted from taxation. The difficulty with our agricultural friends is that they overlook the fact that there are few States in the Union,—I know of none, though there may be some,—where the land is free from taxation for State purposes like Pennsylvania. We must recognize that many of them overlook that fact. The farmer will make his complaint to you and will make his complaint to the Legislature when it meets next year, his voice lifted loud against what he calls a discrimination in the exemption of the capital stock of corporations; but he should consider that the men who own a house and lot should consider that they stand exactly upon the same floor with the manufacturing corporations, and all these plants, those that have been spoken of here in the City of Erie, and the great steel plants in Pittsburgh, where you had your hearing yesterday, are taxed and pay their equal proportion for local purposes and if the farmer is to be exempted from taxation for State purposes, it seems to me for a stronger reason the manufacturing concern should be exempted from taxation for State purposes, because he is increasing all the time around his plant the field and the source of taxation for local purposes; and this is why this State, as has been explained to you, have gone to so much trouble to bring in the manufacturing interests here. If there is any controversy before this Committee between the State and anyone, naturally it should be between the State and the corporations, because we must recognize that the corporations are contributing the bulk of the money that carries on this State government; the main bulk is now provided by corporations; and they are not complaining especially that I know of. I haven't heard any particularly strong complaint before your Committee as to their taxation.

The fact is, the system of taxation in Pennsyvlania compares favorably in my judgment with the system of taxation that obtains in any other State in the Union. It has been sufficient to keep us out of debt, and that being the situation, it does not seem to me that there should be imposed upon this capital stock any undue burden. In other words, we should not return to the system that prevailed prior to 1885. Every item in the way of taxation adds to the cost of production and when you add to the cost of production you have to get it back from the consumer or else take it off the wage earner, and you don't want to do that. The better way is to pursue the policy thus far pursued and protect the manufacturer who protects everybody, reduce the cost of production and help the wage of the laborer.

Mr. Brown: What is your thought as to the local taxation of the real estate of public service corporations? Do you think that should be taxed locally?

Judge Rice: I cannot say that I could answer that question.

Mr. Brown: I would like your thought if you feel you could give it. Aren't they all prosperous? Take the lighting company—

Judge Rice: I don't know. I have heard that the gas company is not very prosperous. I don't think they could stand a great amount of local taxation. I would like to answer that question generally. I say you must recognize that we all should pay taxes, to give the State money sufficient to carry on its governmental affairs; the State needs it, and so do the local bodies. The taxation, of course, should be just, so it would bear equally upon all interests. If it is a fact that the public service corporations are not paying their just proportion of taxes, then they should be made to do so to the State directly, and let them return it, which I think is the better way. I would not care to say that I was in favor of local taxation of public service corporations. If the tax is to be on the capital stock (and that is the most logical way to get at it) I think greater equity and justice could be worked out by the State with the system we have now. Up to this time, the local estate has been relieved, and the State has taken care of this through its capital stock tax. If the State can take care of this and still consider the locality, that might be wise.

L. R. BLISS, Ajax Iron Works:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

I am not prepared to speak upon this subject very learnedly, for I am not very familiar with it. I simply desire to enter a protest against any excess taxes on manufacturing concerns, which are now prosperous. I might say we have a plant at Corry, where we are very prosperous at the present time. In making a little money we endeavor to distribute it among the workmen in the way of taking care of them if they are injured in any way and giving them a half holiday occasionally; and we feel that any increase of taxes would be a little bit hard to us. Our taxes locally are very high. The only reason I am here is to enter a protest for our concern against any increase.

ROBERT DEVINE, Erie Forge Company:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

It seems to me, in view of the fact that our local representatives conflict, one with the other, that it is patent that we discuss these questions. If we have existed as a government for over a hundred years and are still debating this same simple or complex problem, it is entirely proper for us to gather here and discuss the questions and exchange ideas in the spirit of liberality and deliberation. I am a manufacturer, but I have nothing to say in behalf of maunfacturers. I believe I understand this is a hearing before a committee. I stated that if we had existed for over one hundred years and have still no settled policy by which to raise revenue, that it is altogether proper for us to gather on this day and advance our ideas concerning it; it is right and correct to do so, and I think you have the perfect privilege, whatever it may be.

I am not here to speak in behalf of the manufacturer nor in behalf of public corporations. I don't believe manufacturers should be taxed on account of what they have, on account of their increased earnings or profits, nor do I believe that public service corporations should be taxed on any real worth of labor or capital or any capital they invest or any exertions they may put forth for labor. I am opposed to the taxation of labor or capital in any form. I think that it is a great mistake that we have made and I hope that we will not make the mistake to continue to burden manufacturers and thus discourage them, but to relieve manufacturers and all industries and all capital, and encourage and promote industry and develop manufacturing by removing every obstacle, by taking off all taxes from industries and capital and labor. Now, many people seem to think that because a manufacturing establishment is paying well, earning large profits, that it should be taxed more than another industry or manufacturer that makes small profits,—where they have raised themselves from the ranks, that man should be taxed, or the corporation should be taxed, because of what they are worth or because of what they earn. That is another way of saying that if one man is more industrious than another, and therefore accumulated more wealth than another, he should be taxed accordingly; and if a corporation has through efficiency, and from industry and from better management climbed from the very bottom, that it should be accordingly taxed. I think that is a great mistake, as well as unjust, presuming it is finally imposed on the manufacturer, but it is shifted as a factor of the cost of the labor and the consumer of that product, and we are not, in fact, imposing a tax on the rich man who takes this profit finally, but on the masses. The remedy for all this, in my judgment, is to abolish all of this tax on industry or manufacturers and even on public service corporations in so far as they have no real tangible wealth. I would tax public service corporations and all other corporations for any special privilege they enjoy and would take off the taxation from all that is legitimate and rightfully theirs. If a man produces wealth, my contention is that it is his as against the world. If a number of men produce wealth, it is theirs. If a corporation produces wealth, it is theirs. We have a great many men in this country who might bear a larger burden. We have several men worth a billion dollars and a great many worth several millions. Wouldn't it be better if we could discover some means to stop the enormous flow of wealth to these individuals or to these corporations? It certainly was not earned. They have enjoyed some special privilege which enables them to accumulate this wealth and make a large profit upon the privilege they enjoy as a manufacturer, or merchant or whatever their employment may be. I have no desire to take an undue amount of time in this committee, but I would recommend that we go in the other direction.

Mr. Brown: How are you going to tax?

Mr. Devine: I would tax land values only; not land, but land values. Not according to its use, not according to the improvements upon it, but the value exclusive and independent of the use——

Mr. Brown: Have you ever figured out where that would land you, if you had no other tax than on land values. What is the average rental of a building in the City of Erie used for business purposes,—four per cent. average net income?

Mr. Devine: I am not prepared to say——

Mr. Brown: Say it is four per cent. you have your free hospitals here, and there are a number of different items. Don't you realize that you would tax land out of existence?

Mr. Devine: It taxes it into existence and will enforce and encourage the use of land.

Mr. Brown: I mean by existence, practical use.

Mr. Devine: Our contention is it will tax land out of use; it will encourage the economic use of land and will discourage land out of use. It will discourage the extravagant use of land. If we have a vacant lot, we have to build streets and sewers by that vacant lot, and it costs just as much as to build them by the improvements. If you put a tax on that vacant lot or vacant block, and it is discouraged from being held out of use, as it would be under the system proposed, then that lot would be built upon and employ capital and labor, and the city would save the cost of unnecessarily legthening the streets and lengthening the other public service systems,—sewer systems, lighting systems, telegraph systems, telephone systems, etc., would be short as to the economic use of land.

Mr. Brown: You think if a man has a million dollars in land he should be taxed, and the man who has his million invested should be exempted.

Mr. Devine: If the man has a million dollars worth of land values.

Mr. Brown: If he has a million dollars worth of farms, do you think he should be taxed?

Mr. Devine: That is the way to get at him; that is the most effective way.

Mr. Brown: How do you reach the fellow with a million dollars in bonds invested?

Mr. Devine: His bonds usually represent privileges in land.

Mr. Brown: Suppose he has no privileges. Suppose he made an invention and got a million dollars from some company, would you exempt that from taxation?

Mr. Devine: All inventions are used on land——

Mr. Brown: Suppose he invented a new flying machine, would you exempt him?

Mr. Devine: You would have to land. You can't get away from it. You leave it and come back to it. There is no difference between its application to a flying machine and to a ship.

Mr. Brown: You don't think every dollar should bear its burden? The Pennsylvania State Grange has advanced as a general proposition that every dollar should bear its burden in the State government.

Mr. Devine: I don't think the dollar should bear any burden. I don't think it is the dollar, but the mistaken connection it has. We blame the dollar, but it is the companies that monopolize the privilege of getting the dollar that we should seek the remedy in. There is the source from which the dollar orginated. Money is the creation of law that represents things. We should go to the things and then see what the source is of these things and the worth that money represents things. We should go to the things and then see in a way, but it is a great movement that is undoubtedly entitled to the consideration of this committee and of the people.

JOHN DIX, Phoenix Iron Works:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I merely came up here today to listen and not to make a speech. There are two or three of us here. I represent the Phoenix Iron Works. Mr. Campbell represents the W. H. Page Boiler Company, and Mr. Kohler the Malleable Iron Company, all in Meadville. We wish to enter our protest in behalf of the manufacturers against any tax on corporations. We believe it is unjust and we believe it is poor business policy. There are a great many corporations in Pennsylvania which are practically nothing more than partnerships. Of course, it is easily understood why it is considered desirable to incorporate. There are a great many concerns that during the last five years have not paid any dividends and haven't made any money and a good many have really gotten out of business during the period of depression. Mr. Sullivan made a good point and I agree with him,—there is a large class of manufacturing corporations such as I represent and such as a great many of the Erie concerns here, that probably dispose of 90 per cent of our produce outside the State of Pennsylvania. That money is brought directly into the State of Pennsylvania and it is one of the great sources of wealth in Pennsylvania. It will be a very easy matter if a tax is put on these smaller corporations for us to withdraw as corporations. The State then will get nothing. Mr. Campbell represents the W. H. Page Boiler Company. They are located at Meadville. It was a question of going into this State or the State of Ohio. Amongst other reasons that induced them to come here was the liberality of the laws of our State in regard to corporations. They are figuring today on another proposition and it is a question whether the corporation I speak of will locate in Pennsylvania or Ohio. I am very certain that if it were stated today that the law was going to be changed in this State and a tax was going to be placed on manufacturers, that we will lose them altogether. As a business proposition, I think it would be unwise, because the manufacturers are now paying a big bulk of the taxes of this city indirectly. They increase the value of the real estate. The work that has been done by our Chamber of Commerce of Meadville in the way of inducing and establishing manufacturers there has increased the taxable valuation of Meadville more than double in the last ten years, and the State certainly gets an advantage from that. Take these manufacturers out of the city and where will the value of real estate go to? To manufacturer today is the fountain head of all prosperity we have here. I therefore hope that your committee will recommend that there be no tax placed upon the manufacturer.

MR. W. W. KINCAID, of the Spirella Co., Meadville:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I came here to listen and not to make any address, but we are talking about a subject in which we are all interested. I served with Mr. Dick as a member of the Chamber of Commerce for ten or twelve years, and through our local Chamber of Commerce we have endeavored to bring industires into our town, the same as the Chamber of Commerce has here in Erie; and when we are bringing in industries like the Page Boiler Company, referred to, we are bringing in industries that add to the prosperity of the State of Pennsylvania. I have also had experience in endeavoring to start new industires in manufacturing entreprises. I was just figuring over in my mind these industries that we have endeavored to start in our endeavor to help our town, and I think I could say I have stock in at least six new industries that have started in the past ten years, and of these industries, I have drawn a dividend on just two. Now that is just the state of affairs. I don't think our town is any exception. I think you will find it the same all over the State. Men who have the optimism or men who have the nerve to start industries in communities, who employ labor and build up a county and increase the value of the real estate and take a chance on getting something back from their good money are not reaping a benefit from that money and further burdening the corporations of the State in the way of taxation, I think is an unwise step. I quite agree with the gentleman who spoke on my right, that if we are going to tax corporations, you should not tax them for the first ten years of their existence. Not that we want to shift any burden which should be placed upon us, any just burden of taxation. I think the corporations of the State and the men behind them aren't cowards. It is this situation that I have just laid before you. I think a man must have more than ordinary courage to start out in the manufacturing line facing the difficulties he has to face and meeting the objections he has to meet in the establishment of new industries. The wealth of this city and of any other city is centered in the manufacturing corporations. You take the manufacturing corporations out of Erie and one-half of your business blocks would be empty and you would lose half of them possibly inside of ten years; and I think that same point would hold throughout the State. If there is any one fellow or individual that should be encouraged in the whole State, it is the manufacturer, because the laborer, and not only the laborer, but the manager and the officers of the institution, depend for a livelihood upon that corporation. The people who are renting property depend upon that corporation. Ministers of the community and all the professional people of the community, lawyers, doctors and men of every profession in the community are benefitted by the standing in the community of the manufacturer. And while as I stated, he don't want to shift any just and equitable burden that should be placed upon him, I think you should investigate this matter very carefully before you decide to put a further tax on manufacturers. Now, I have had a little experience in starting these new corporations. Of course I am only an average man in an average town. Our town is only 15,000 population. I have had this experience that when a new corporation wanted to start up, to take out its charter, of course New Jersey has always looked very pleasant, so as to invite people to come and take out a charter. I am identified with a corporation that has a charter there; the firm I am most intimately connected with, though, has a Pennsylvania charter. This tax of one-third of one per cent. upon the capital stock in taking out the charter I think is exorbitant. I think it drives corporations, many of them who do business in Pennsylvania, out of the field. That is a thing to be considered in your new law. There are many other States. The first I ever had experience with was West Virginia,—went to West Virginia from Pennsylvania, a few others going to Delaware, simply because this tax is put on them in starting.

I don't know that I have anything further to say. We want to build up our community, and if you put a tax on corporations, I tell you gentlemen it is a serious matter. Three quarters of the corporations doing business, three quarters is perhaps too large,—I will say one-half,—can be located in some other State just as well as Pennsylvania, and if you make conditions harder for them, you will drive them to the other States. If you want to preserve the wealth of the State and increase the wealth of the State and increase the wealth of real estate, you want to keep the laws of the State liberal, so far as manufacturing corporations are concerned.

CONGRESSMAN PETER M. SPEER, Venango County:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I did not come with any intention of saying anything. I simply came in as a spectator, but I agree with what has been said in reference to taxing manufacturing corporations. We must realize this, that the taxes only apply in this State, and don't apply in other States. These manufacturing corporations have built up the State. A bank does not build up a community. You couldn't build a bank on a street corner where there is no houses. If you build a big store there, it will never make a dollar. If you put a manufacturing plant there and bring in a thousand people, that is a different proposition. That is why the State has made these liberal laws as to manufacturing corporations, so as to induce them to come here; they bring other business; that is what builds up a town. If you had a tax on manufacturing corporations, the City of Erie wouldn't have its big electric plant here. It wouldn't have come had it known it was going to be taxed. It came here because it was given a better advantage that some other States did not give. If we are to have legislation of that kind that would prevent manufacturing corporations from coming here and drive out those that are here, it would be against the interests of the Commonwealth.

Something has been said about public service corporations. I really don't like to say anything. I haven't considered the matter. I don't know what you contemplate. But on that subject, I don't think the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania can be said to be tender toward corporations in the matter of taxation, except manufacturing corporations. I think all of our corporations are taxed high here. The bonus you have to pay is away beyond other States. The public service corporations, while they don't have to pay local taxes on their real estate, I think pay a State tax upon the entire value of their property. Not only their real estate, but their earnings. They have to pay a tax on that, and their taxes are more than they would have to pay if they were allowed simply to be locally taxed. A great deal of the property is not real estate, and the value would be less. If they were assessed locally also, I think it would make a great deal of trouble in this matter. These localities would have different ideas as to their property, valuing those in one locality as paying more tax than some place else. You take some public service corporations, they pay not only so much on their capital stock, but a per centage on their gross recepits or gross earnings. If you will look into the matter, you will find that they are taxed very high. You take our telephone company, They pay five mills on their capital stock. We haven't property that would amount to very much in the community for assessment; it don't amount to much, but we have to pay a stock valuation which is based wholly on our earnings,—they base that on so much of the gross earnings. Then in addition to that we have to pay on our poles; that is about all the property we have that could be taxed. We pay in the district where I am, 50 cents a pole. If these poles were assessed for taxation they wouldn't be assessed for more than two or three dollars,—for local assessment about ten or twelve cents; instead of that we are paying a license tax of 50 cents per pole. The State is getting a great deal more than it would if the property was assessed locally. If the assessors did this, you couldn't get as much out of it. I think if you will look into the matter you will find our corporations pay more taxes than any other interest in the State,—our manufacturing corporations (which I think should not be taxed) and our corporations in general pay more taxes than they do in any other State in the Union.

Mr. Brown: Do you think it would create a better feeling if the State were to collect the tax on real estate and return it to the counties.

Mr. Speer: I don't favor that, except in some cases where it might be necessary. Where we can assess it locally, we should assess it. In the case of corporations, as long as they are to be taxed as they are it should be done by the State.

Mr. Brown: The reason I ask you is that this Committee is in receipt of letters from solicitors and commissioners from every county in the State resenting the exemption of the local property of these public service corporations. My thought has been that if the State collected this tax and returned it to the county, wouldn't it create a better feeling.

Mr. Speer: If that property is going to be assessed locally, I don't see how you can do it any way than to have it assessed locally. At present it is assessed by the State. We have to make a return that shows the physical property, earnings and dividend and upon that the stock is valued for taxation, and it makes a great deal more than if the physical property was valued, because the physical property doesn't begin to have the value that the capital stock would on account of its earning power and the value of its franchises. If you will allow it to be assessed locally, you will have to take off some of your State taxes.

Mr. Brown: Wouldn't the cost of assessment and collection be much less?

Mr. Speer: Yes, but it would result in a great inequality, because of the value you put on the right of way is somewhat indefinite. How are you going to value it? One county would value it at so much a mile and some other county would make it three or four times as much. I don't suppose the corporations would object to it if you took off these other State taxes. You are assessing now untangible things. They are paying on the value of their capital stock which is a great deal more than the value of the physical property in a great many cases. If you make them pay more, the people will have to pay more. The public service corporations are controlled in the prices they charge by the law. If they charge too much we can compel them to charge less. The railroads have been prevented from raising their rates in certain instances because it was not necessary. They could make sufficient money without it; but if you put a lot more taxes on them, you will have to let them raise their rates. They are entitled to make a fair dividend for their stockholders. If you put additional taxes upon them they will make additional charges, and you will be back just where you are. So I don't think you gain anything by it. I don't think the local community gains anything by it.

L. W. OLDS, Climax Mfg. Co.:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

I think the ground has been pretty well covered by the speakers who have preceded me. I represent a small factory in the City of Corry, where we employ a few men, and as has been said before, we bring quite a good deal of money into the State. We don't wish in any way to get away from our share of the burden of taxation, but in many items our men are looking for something special. They are looking at the present time for a liability act, which I believe I haven't heard come up here, although I believe it has been before you, and every tax that is put on the manufacturer will have to go back in some manner or other to the consumer, and while we are not in the same position to immediately secure that additional burden from the consumer, it makes it all the harder when in competition with other manufacturers in other States.

MR. ANDREWS, Struthers-Wells Co., Warren:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

I did not come prepared to make any remarks in reference to the Act, but some thoughts have occured to me since I have heard the remarks of the gentlemen who have preceded me; I didn't read the acts and didn't go into the matter to any extent personally, but in connection with the proposed tax on the capital stock of manufacturing corporations, I agree with some of those who have preceded me, that that tax, while it is aimed primarily at corporations, that it will eventually have to be paid by the consumer, and while these consumers will not all be Pennsylvania consumers, a great many of them will be. Under the present, up-to-date methods of accounting (and I think nearly all the large manufacturing concerns have adopted systematic methods of accounting, so as to know what their costs are or as accurately as possible determine them) the manufacturers are now on a more intelligent basis than in the past; that is, the buyer does not benefit by the manufacturers' mistakes, as he did in the past, and while competition may be to some extent regulate the selling price, all the manufacturers are practically on the same basis with reference to the cost, and they will figure every burden such as this as a part of their cost, in addition to the labor used and the material that goes into an order; and thus, in quoting their prices, the prices are bound to be higher than they would be if this tax were not imposed. This tax would be considered as a part of the expenses, and I don't think it would affect our profits at all, for the reason that we would add a certain per centage of profit over and above our costs. Our costs on every order are based on material, labor and work; each item carries a portion of the burden. Every cent spent is a part of the burden, and it is covered by our selling price; it is included in our cost and the consumer will eventually pay it. While I don't think it will affect the manufacturers that are established here at all, whether this tax is imposed or not, I do think it will have a tendency to deter manufacturers from locating here. They would probably consider this fact more seriously than it would really be; and for that reason, I don't think it would be wise to tax the capital stock engaged in manufacture in the State.

Mr. Brown: You would put it on the cost of getting the orders out?

Mr. Andrews: Yes, it would only add to the cost. It would raise the prices to a certain extent. Nearly all manufacturers figure their costs on the same basis, and all have adopted systems of accounting, so that they can account for this item of expense just as much as they do for labor and material; and it would be paid by the consumer.

W. S. SMITH, Esq., of Meadville, Pa.:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I did not come here to talk, but a few words might not be amiss, in summing up that which has been stated here by gentlemen who have appeared before you, in relation to the burdens which the several corporations have to bear. I might give you a concrete example. A concern has just filed into articles in New York; the initial cost was $700. Had they filed their articles of incorporation in the State of Pennsylvania, it would have cost $4,660. I doubt very much if there is any State in the Union where the initial cost is as great as in Pennsylvania. If there is any I am ignorant of it. The statement has been made that all other corporations, not manufacturing, bear the burden of a tax upon their capital stock of five mills, and therefore manufacturing companies should bear a small tax. Did you ever stop to consider that the manufacturing interests in a community are its bone and sinew? They are the foundation of the prosperity of a community. They get the money from every section and dump it into the coffers of your home town. They carry the money from every corner where their products are sold and pay it out in the community for labor and material and in local taxation, and, possibly, in dividends. What about the mercantile corporation? It gathers from these same sources, from the money turned in by the manufacturers, in the shape of money for merchandise, dry goods, etc. Instead of leaving it in the community, it ships it off to the wholesale markets. Mr. Speer well illustrated that problem. He said you might build a bank on a street corner, or start a store on the country cross roads. What is the result? There they die. If you build a factory there, it brings in families that become consumers. It seems to me there is no comparison between the mercantile corporation and the manufacturing corporation, as regards taxation each company should bear. I couldn't help but make a few notes of different subjects that were brought up, and it seems to me that most of the argument that I have read in the newspapers have been touched upon more or less by the gentlemen wno have discussed the matter here. In conversation with one of your committee, Mr. Woodward, he advised me that he has been chairman of the appropriation committee; that the legislature appropriated last year something like $59,000,000; that the income from the corporations of the State was in the neighborhood of 58,000,000 to 59,000,000 dollars; in other words they got this very source of revenue for making the appropriations. Did you ever stop to consider how much of this money you get back into your local communities. You are not the losers by any means. Your hospitals and other works of charity are taken care of, and this money comes to your community and you get value received.

HENRY HENDRUS, Keystone Fish Company:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I have listened very attentively to the arguments here by those interested in manufacturing corporations, and I have failed to see at all or to discover where they are any different from what we are. I don't believe they employ any more men to the thousand dollars invested than we do in the fish business. I don't believe they send to foreign cities any more of their goods than we do, and, therefore, I contend that a house like ours is on a par, on the same basis, and should be treated as a manufacturing concern. About one-third of our investment is represented by boats and fishing paraphernalia that enable us to produce the raw articles,—the fish? Now we have to pay a capital stock on that part of our money that is invested the same as the other part of our capital. We should not pay any more than anybody else that is no greater benefit to the Commonwealth than we are. I contend that if the many factories are exempted from taxation, at least concerns like ours that have money invested in the producing end, should be exempted from taxation. There is another thought occurred to me. We pay seven kinds of taxes to seven different people. Couldn't that be improved to the extent of us paying all to one man? We pay our mercantile tax to the county, county tax to the collector appointed by the County Commissioners, State tax to the State Treasurer, if we pay it before it is due; the school board is a separate collector; then we have to send money to Harrisburg, then the Federal tax,—and for fish license we have to pay to the Department of Fisheries. It seems to me it keeps us busy to know to whom to pay the taxes. There are some States in the Union where you get your tax notes from one official and you don't have to bother about any other taxes; he takes care of all taxes, all the taxes that you have, school, road, State and county and all taxes; and it is a very simple method.

Mr. Brown: Don't you think you could pay a few more taxes?

Mr. Hendrus: Yes; we are going to pay a liability tax, and an income tax and some other tax. But it does seem to me, gentlemen, that a concern like ours is on the same basis as a manufacturing concern. We take the raw material and we have to make that fish right for the consumer,—store it away for winter so it will be fit for use in the winter time. We have to put it through several processes through which fish go in order to make it right for the consumer. We don't think we are any better than the manufacturer, but we feel that we should not be burdened by any greater amount of taxation than a manufacturer. We employ just as many men per thousand dollars invested as any manufacturer, ship as great a per centage out of the State, and bring money into the State, and bring the community money by distributing it among the laboring men, and I believe the Chairman of the Committee will bear me out, that we pay a greater amount of wage for labor than any other concern.

Mr. Brown: Do you have many accidents among your men?

Mr. Hendrus: For that we have to carry a liability insurance policy.

Mr. Brown: Do you have costs for hospital service?

Mr. Hendrus: Yes; we are quite liberal in our contribution to local charities, also.

H. G. BERKHOUSE:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I came here from Kane, in behalf of the Kane Business Men's Association. My purpose is to put this organization upon record as being in favor of the repeal of the Mercantile Tax Law of 1899.

It is very evident, after listening to the arguments that have been produced here today, that if this Committee is going to attempt to do what the various gentlemen have asked for, it is almost self-evident that the State of Pennsylvania will soon be bankrupt and have no revenue or money. I don't believe in attacking any sort of a system, unless a remedy of some kind is suggested. I wish to attack this mercantile license law on two grounds, but I will suggest a remedy.

To start with, this law was passed by you in 1899, and the merchants have been paying the mercantile tax since that time. That tax is based on the volume of business done annually by the merchant, not the net profit on the gross volume of business, but the gross volume of business. We contend that that act is unjust and unfair for this reason. The profits in all lines of mercantile business, as you know, are not the same. For instance, a grocer may do forty, or fifty, or sixty thousand dollars annual business, and yet his profits are small. He wouldn't make as much money as a jeweler, and is just paying more, possibly twice as much tax as a jeweler. That is one objection to it. Another is the word "Business,"—gross volume of business. "Business" is a very liberal term. It is a question what designates the business of one man and the business of another man. For example, a merchant does so much gross volume of business in a year. A lawyer, doctor, dentist, insurance agent,—they do a certain gross volume of business. I can understand this tax based on personal property that the merchant have and I am in favor of it. I see no reason why personal property should not be subject to the same tax as real estate. For instance, you take a prominent lawyer or physician,—he may have in his office a library, or an instrument, valued at five, ten or fifteen thousand dollars. He is not selling it. He is doing business and yet he pays no tax. It seems to me that it is unfair that the merchant pays that tax while there are other men who are doing business and paying no tax. There is one other thing that is unfair and unjust, and that is this: The greatest competitor today with the retail merchant is the mail order house, and yet they pay nothing. The average retail merchant is engaged in the sale of necessities. As a general rule, the ordinary merchant is selling the necessities of life; and if you impose a tax on him you are taxing the necessaries of life and increasing the high cost of living, and adding it to the consumer, and the consumer has to pay it. The merchant figures that in the cost of doing business. Here in another thing. A great deal of the money the merchants pay for mercantile tax doesn't go to the State. Part of it goes to the cost of collection, part to the county treasurer and part of it to the newspapers throughout the State for advertising the lists, and the newspapers would undoubtedly fight the repeal of this Act of Assembly for the reason that it would mean considerable loss to them. Although I am a lawyer, I haven't studied this thing. I don't know whether it is possible to frame a law whereby a distributing station of some character could be located in this State for the mail order houses. I would suggest a tax on them and I would suggest that the automobile tax be raised. Raise the tax on automobiles and impose a tax on mail order houses, and that will wipe out the mercantile tax. Throw off the mercantile tax; remove that burden from the back of the poor merchant; he has carried it too long.

Mr. Brown: Just shift it from them?

MR. AUSTIN, Potter County:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I seem to be the only one here representing the farmer. I only want to take up a little of your time. I want to call your attention to the fact that there are probably fifty per cent. of the counties in this State that are just as ours is. We have to levy on the farmers and other businesses thirty mills and we would have to still levy about forty. Our county is going down. The State has one-quarter of our land as a forestry reserve and they don't pay anything at all. We have to fight the fires, keep the roads, keep the schools——

Mr. Brown: The State pays you some money for the schools.

Mr. Austin: Yes, a little for the schools.

Mr. Brown: Don't they pay two per cent.——

Mr. Austin: It is proportioned by eacn acre.

Mr. Brown: They pay two per cent.

Mr. Austin: The county gets nothing.

Mr. Brown: The State invests it in the county. The State pays it to the county for this purpose.

Mr. Austin: To the districts; to the road districts and to the school districts.

Mr. Brown: The majority of the land is non-productive land?

Mr. Austin: Yes; a good deal of it could be productive land.

Mr. Brown: They paid in 1910, $18,000 for road purposes and seventeen thousand for school purposes; then they paid for the extinguishing of fires $31,000, in 1910; and in addition to that, the two per cent. on roads, and two per cent. on schools.

Mr. Austin: That is what they paid for these purposes. Then they charge us one-quarter of the fighting fires, and I want to protest against it. It is too bad that we have to pay it,—that the people that live there have to raise the money to fight the fires.

Mr. Brown: How much of your per centage does that represent? The forty mills, you say, is represented by the cost of fighting the fires?

Mr. Austin: It would depend on what the fires are.

Mr. Brown: How much do you raise altogether in the county?

Mr. Austin: For county purposes we raise about $65,000.

Mr. Brown: What is your county millage?

Mr. Austin: Eight mills.

Mr. Brown: Are there many districts in your county that run as high as thirty mills?

Mr. Austin: A good many go forty and one of two sixty. You understand there are some districts in the county that haven't fifteen or twenty thousand in them; the State has bought it over; there are some townships that have only that—that is all that is left.

Mr. Brown: It hardly pays a man to live there?

Mr. Austin: That is right.

Mr. Brown: That is a peculiar condition. How do you value what you have? Do you put the full valuation on it?

Mr. Austin: Full valuation, but we don't get the full valuation. It is assessed more than they could sell it for.

Mr. Woodward: What is the average rate per acre?

Mr. Austin: Anywhere,—it is assessed one or two,—but where there is a strip of some hardwood timber about,—farm land cleared is assessed at twelve to twenty-five dollars.

Mr. Woodward: What is it worth? What could you buy the same land for?

Mr. Austin: Some of it you could buy for what it is assessed at, and some of it you couldn't. I believe the average assessment amounts to sixty per cent.

Mr. Brown: What business do you follow?

Mr. Austin: County Commissioner.

Mr. Brown: Are you affected by the sewer order of the Department of Health? I guess you are not interested in sewage disposal plants?

Mr. Austin: No. We want to protest against that fact that one dollar pays more than another, and a good deal more than another in our county. We have a railroad running through us, thirty-eight miles long, fairly well equipped, and they pay about $2,000 to the State. We have a hotel there that you would call a fourth-class hotel, and three of them would pay as much as that railroad pays. It would take about ten of our average farmers to pay as much as the railroad pays. It seems to us that is very unjust, and the other railroads and corporations are in the same shape.

Mr. Brown: That is the Coudersport & Lackawanna Railway you are speaking of?

Mr. Austin: Yes. We just want to enter a protest.

Mr. Brown: The State Grange brought to our attention the conditions in your county and they emphasized the conditions in your county as needing special relief.

Mr. Austin: I will give you an instance. We live right on the line of New York. I have a relative that lives in Potter county; he owns 100 acres of land and another man on the other side of the line owns 100 acres; the land is just the same as to worth or value. The Pennsylvania man pays $46, and the other man pays $17.

Mr. Shreve: If no other gentleman wishes to speak, the meeting will stand adjoured. We appreciate very much the kind assistance rendered our committee by the citizens of Erie, and we have no doubt we shall be influenced by the suggestions made here today.

Scranton, Pa., November 22, 1913.

Meeting of the Joint Committee held in the Lackawanna County Court House.

Present: William H. Keyser, Acting Chairman; James F. Woodward, George E. Alter, Francis Shunk Brown, Esq., counsel for the Commission, to outline the purposes of the Kline, of Pittsburgh, sat with the Committee.

Senator Keyser: The Chair will call upon Mr. Brown, counsel for the Commission, to outline the purpose of the meeting and also to read the resolution creating the Commission.

Mr. Brown: In 1909, the Legislature of Pennsylvania adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to be composed of three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives, for the purpose of considering a revision of the revenue and corporation laws of this Commonwealth. Pursuant to their appointment, every interest in this Commonwealth was communicated with by letter, requesting their co-operation. Thousands of letters were sent to bankers, brokers, judges, lawyers, manufacturers, in fact, every interest that could in any way possibly be affected by the corporation and revenue laws, in order that they might be given an opportunity to make suggestions and to co-operate with this Committee. As you gentlemen recall, public meetings were held in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Williamsport, Erie and Scranton,—in this city. That Committee reported to the Legislature and many of their recommendations were adopted in the framing of legislation. Some of their recommendations it was deemed advisable to have go back to the public for further consideration and thought and to obtain further the sentiment of the people. For this purpose the Legislature of 1911 adopted this resolution. (Reads resolution.) This resolution was incorporated in a letter which I will read. (Reads letter.)

This Committee has received hundreds of replies to this communication. The Committee caused several thousand of these letters to be printed and sent out to the various interests of the Commonwealth which might be affected. The Committee has also caused to be printed a tentative Act, relating to private corporations. Since the Act of 1874 there have been many submitted and many passed, which has resulted in considerable confusion in the law relating to private corporations. Pursuant to the general thought that we should pay some attention to this, the Committee has had prepared this act in tentative form for the purpose of inviting suggestions and criticism to the end of securing something a little better than the law in its present shape. I want to inform you gentlemen that this Act, therefore, is not the baby of this Committee, nor the baby of its counsel. Although hundreds of letters have been written to lawyers, prior to the preparation of this Act, very few suggestions have been made. But since the Act has been prepared, I have received volumes of criticism throughout the State. We are here today to receive from you folks such suggestions as you may deem proper.

MR. J. H. TORREY:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission: I don't think I have anything to say. I came here ratner to hear than to speak. I received through the courtesy of this Commission two or three letters suggesting that I give them some information. I have gone over this corporation act. I didn't realize that it was to come up today. I made some notes upon it which I shall be very glad to communicate to the counsel of the Committee very soon. I presume they are in the line of other suggestions that have come to this Committee from other sources, but if there is any information I can give upon any subject before them, I will be glad to offer them any assistance I can.

Mr. Brown: The Committee has received numerous letters from this section of the State on the subject of anthracite coal, suggesting that there should be a tax put upon anthracite coal at the mines. You will recall that such a tax was recommended in the previous report of this Committee,—a tax of five cents per ton. We would like to have the thought of you gentlemen as to whether the tax would be advisable.

Mr. Torrey: The letter of the Committee relating to that matter, if I may venture to say so, was somewhat indefinite. The letter stated, which I received, signed by you, that it had been suggested that anthracite coal companies be taxed directly by the State and the tax distributed to the counties instead of the present system of local taxation, and also that a tonnage tax be levied.

I don't know whether the Committee seriously considered doing both of these things. Of course it would be recognized at once,—and I presume is recognized by the Commission,—that to tax coal lands directly would probably involve a constitutional amendment on the ground that it would be an inequality of taxation on real estate. I don't think the owners of coal lands would themselves seriously object to a tax upon coal lands being made directly by the State, provided it was not any greater than the tax they are already paying. I don't remember whether you were present at the meeting of the Committee of the House when the bill which was recommended by this Committee was before that committee.

Mr. Brown: No, I was not.

Mr. Torrey: I appeared in opposition to the tonnage tax, on the ground that it was discriminatory and it was excessive, and that the coal lands were already bearing an amount of taxation which was quite out of proportion to the amount that they should pay both the tax directly upon their coal lands (and many of them likely to be unproductive for a great many years to come), and also indirectly the coal companies were paying a tax upon their capital stock, which made a very large amount. Before that hearing of the Committee there were some figures given which were rather suggestive as to the proportion of the local taxes which are now paid by the coal in place. Some of it, as I said before will not be mined for many years to come. Take the whole county of Lackawanna outside of two cities, the proportion paid by the coal companies is 61.37 per cent. of all taxation. In the county of Luzerne it is 68 per cent. In certain municipalities which have a very large population they are paying anywhere from 66 to 84 per cent. of the taxation. So it would seem that any proposition which looks to increasing the amount of taxation which they are now paying would be inequitable.

Mr. Brown: Do you think a tax of 5 cents a ton would result in a very serious burden?

Mr. Torrey: Not if it took the place of the tax that is now assessed. The bill presented to the Legislature was that hereafter every ton of anthracite coal of the weight of two thousand two hundred and forty pounds avordupois mined in this Commonwealth shall be subject to a tax of two and one-half per centum of the value thereof at the mouth of the mine—

Mr. Brown: The value was about two ten according to the report.

Mr. Torrey: It was perhaps five cents per ton. And this as the Committee suggests that tax was to be gotten from the consumer (I think the Committee said one of the purposes of the act was to make the people who used up our natural resources,—people in other States,—pay the tax,) that tax would really have to be upon prepared sizes. So if that tax were to be collected from the consumer it would really be a tax of somewhere from eight to nine cents per ton.

Mr. Brown: Eighty per cent. to be paid by those who are non-residents?

Mr. Torrey: Yes.

Mr. Brown: Upon a commodity on which Pennsylvania has no competition.

Mr. Torrey: Yes, if they could raise the price to that extent.

Mr. Brown: Do you know of any reason why that can not be done? Any question I may ask does not indicate my personal opionion. Is there any reason why there can not be a slight raise in the price of any commodity on which Pennsylvania has no competition?

Mr. Torrey: Any answer I make commits nobody but myself. I don't know. I know every time there is any sort of an increase in the price of coal, there is a good deal of disturbance made about it. There is this to be said in reference to that also; particularly in this region. I do not know that it is so in all regions. The mining of coal is constantly increasing in cost,—very rapidly increasing, because of getting to the lower vein, thinner vein, less pure vein. In its annual report for the year 1910, just before this bill was up, the report shows a net profit of 14 cents per ton on their coal and if it had to pay this tonnage tax, it would be nearly half of their profit today. It would be nearly half their profit.

Mr. Brown: Unless they added it to the commodity and collected it from the consumer.

Mr. Torrey: Yes.

Mr. Brown: That additional cost is added to the price of the article, isn't it?

Mr. Torrey: The tax is usually collected from the producer.

Mr. Brown: Is any additional cost generally added to the article?

Mr. Torrey: Not as such. I think you will find that a great many of these mines are mined at a loss. A great many of their reports show it. They have a good deal of extra expense in every mine that is never added to the price. The price is uniform throughout the year and I don't know way it can not be so with the taxes. I don't know that they could add that to the price of coal and collect it.

Mr. Brown: Do you think it would be more satisfactory if the State collected the taxes and distributed it throughout the counties?

Mr. Torrey: It is a very conflicting matter. It would require the consent of co-operation of the local authorities. It would be a question as to how it would be distributed. Some of it would have to go to the counties, some to the school boards, some to the boroughs and cities, some to the poor board and in proportion to their taxes, and unless properly distributed, I think you would find the local authorities opposed it.

Mr. Brown: Some of the people of this State have suggested that condition. That is the reason I asked your thought.

Mr. Torrey: I should say it is almost impossible to get up any device that would be satisfactory to most of the municipalities so they would not be opposed to such a scheme.

Mr. Brown: Don't the mining interest of this section receive hospital benefits that would somewhat even up this proportion of which you speak in the amount of taxes?

Mr. Torrey: I never compared the amount of hospital benefits received as compared with those received by other sections of the State. I don't know what the proportion is. I don't suppose we receive an excessive proportion of hospital benefits.

Mr. Brown: The percentage extending over coal mining, especially anthracite, is much larger than any other activity in the State.

Mr. Torrey: That may be true.

Mr. Brown: I wish you would give me the benefit of your thought on that Act.

Mr. Torrey: I will then.

EVERETT WARREN, Esq.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

I want to say, gentlemen, that it is a great pleasure to me to see you here today; and I am glad I must say to see the members of the joint committee of the Senate and House headed by so able a gentleman as Mr. Brown.

I observe that your proposition as voiced by Mr. Brown is practically to pull us out and look at us. If you gentlemen were here after having several years of occupation as a joint committee, to submit to those who are vitally concerned in this question of taxation of coal, which you all know is real estate, and were to sumbit to those of us who represent these interests, these property owners, a tentative draft of an act, that would be one thing. But as near as I can gather, you are here, as you express it, to get our views. You don't commit yourselves to anything. You don't say "We are in favor of anything"; you don't say "We have a certain idea"; all that you say is, inferentially and in the greatest courtesy, "We want to cross-examine you gentlemen here, and if your views are interesting they are going to be embraced in our report and recommendation;" and then you smilingly bow out of the room. And I hope I will have the pleasure of greeting at least some of you at lunch today.

I would say, assuming that I am right, that I think I am justified in another assumption, that the personnel of this Commission (some of the members I know personally, and others by reputation) that because of the personnel of this Commission, I think I have the right to assume that it is their desire and the mode of underlying everything that they are doing, to recommend when they come to their recommendation, only that which is really for the best interest of the Commonwealth who are affected. Relying upon that assumption, I am here in a sort of four-fold capacity. That is, I am interested in this subject in four different ways. First, as a citizen of Scranton, born and brought up here; I am interested in the way of being associated with banks and trust companies; and perhaps a fair reason for my appearing, is because I naturally take pride in the development of this section of Pennsylvania. I am here, as I happen to be an executor and trustee of two estates who are lessors; that is to say, they owned these coal lands and years ago they leased them to individuals or to companies which were mining companies, and under these leases the lessors, the dead men, whose estates I am charged with, have to pay the tax on coal. Then I am here because I happen to represent the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company, perhaps the largest producer of coal, at least in this particular section of the region. (The Pennsylvania Coal Company and the Hillside are perhaps the two largest producers); and therefore you see I have several view points in considering it. I would like to say that in common with you, I take great pride in the prospect of the State of Pennsylvania is today without debt. That is a remarkable statement. You down in the southeast corner of the State, and those in the northeast and all over the great Commonwealth are very proud, and have a right to be proud, of the fact that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is somewhat different from the other States, I think, in that she is free from debt. Now, I assume that there is no occasion whatever for her to increase her taxation. There is nothing that is as unpopular, whether it rests upon an individual or individuals joined together in corporate form to do business, as taxation. You all of course realize that. The theory of taxation, as I understand it, is to raise revenues to support the government. That Pennsylvania is so prosperous a State is due very largely, I think, to the taxation sources of our corporations, domestic and foreign, transacting business within our border; among them are companies producers of anthracite coal. And that being true, I think this Committee (you will pardon me for suggesting it), should hesitate sometime before they commit themselves to anything that is going to result, either by direction or indirection, in increasing the taxation upon an industry which employs hundreds of thousands of people and which secures to the Commonwealth, in the broader view, so much of prosperity in so many different directions. And when you come to talk about taxing anthracite coal, which has come in as real estate, under the decision of the Supreme Court, differently than you are going to tax other similar lines, I take issue with you. You have not told us what is in your minds.

Mr. Brown: We are open minded.

Mr. Warren: That being so, as a fair and broad proposition, why did you, two years ago, recommend the discriminatory tax,—a tax upon anthracite coal and not upon bituminous coal, and not upon slate and iron and cement lines,—and not upon other lines?

Mr. Brown: You will find that further on in the report,—bituminous coal and other products are in competition.

Mr. Warren: I am coming to that. To my mind it is not sound and equitable. I grant you the fact may be true,—I grant you that West Virginia soft coal and some little in Maryland and very little in other Eastern States,—I grant you that bituminous coal, that is Pennsylvania bituminous coal comes in competition with coal from other States. But forty per cent. of the anthracite coal is in the fiercest competition with the bituminous coal; this is particularly so in steam sizes and everybody knows that in the Western States all sizes are in the fiercest competition and in some of these sections it is necessary for the dealers to purchase and sell bituminous and anthracite coal in the same yard in order to do business. But whether they be or not, what I can't get into my head is this idea that because we have a mineral product here, a mineral acreage in Pennsylvania, the product of which is or is not in competition with coal from other States, we in Pennsylvania shall tax ourselves because we have this mineral product. One answer that is suggested by many is this: Eighty per cent. it is said (that isn't the fact), eighty per cent. goes outside of the State of Pennsylvania, and what Pennsylvania wants to do it to make her sister States pay to Pennsylvania certain sums of money because she is furnishing her sister States to their advantage, although she is of course destroying her natural resources as the product increases and distributed to the several States. But does that justify the legislature in imposing a tax upon the citizens of Pennsylvania who are supporting the government of Pennsylvania,—adding this burden that is to come from the outside States? I would like to answer a question asked Mr. Torrey. I don't believe you can add that tax to the price of coal. Don't you understand that there is a belief throughout the Eastern cities of Pennsylvania that the price of anthracite coal is too high? Have you not read within a month what they did in New York? Mr. R————Manager of the———— Iron & Coal Company up in————because of the raise in price within a year, after a raise in wages to the miners, and other additional expenses, the people of New York said, "You can't do it." They protested and they are now protesting and the government is protesting through its Inter-State Commerce Commission, and is today, of its own initiative, issuing notice to the antharctite mining interest to appear before them, and are about to introduce proceedings and take testimony and it is all because, they say, of that exhorbitant price. Don't you know the decision pending in the Supreme Court of the United States? One of the grounds of the alleged attack upon this interest is because of the high price. I may say further. I might ask you to ask any retail dealer anywhere in the East or West in which men handle coal. Take the sales agents of these large companies,—I could name many of them in New York and Boston, and you will find you are mistaken in the idea that these companies have no competition as to prepared sizes in which you say there is no competition; but assuming that there is none, then you must bear in mind that this is a problem that is not so readily disposed of, and can not be considered by adding the cost to the consumer in other States and twenty per cent. of it from the people in Pennsylvania who burn anthracite coal. I am paying twice as much as I paid fifteen years ago at my home and we are right here on top of the coal deposits now. This increase is due to the actual cost of mining the coal and I therefore think if you make an investigation which I am quite sure you will make you will find you can not do it.

Now, let us get back. Here I have a proposition as outlined in your letter,—a tax discriminatory as between anthracite and bituminous coal,—a tax that shall be imposed by the Commonwealth plus the tonnage tax. I beg of you gentlemen not to add any more burden to the producers of anthracite coal. Five cents per ton will be about fifty per cent. of what is made by the producers. Five cents is a little tax on a dollar bill. Five cents is a large tax if you don't make your dollar bill. I beg of you to bear in mind that five cents or four cents or three cents, though a small sum of money (I want you to appreciate it) is enormous in proportion to the net earnings made. If at the pit's-mouths you get two ten,—and that is not true of the companies I represent; if it be true, five cents of course is not much of a tax on two ten. But what does this two ten mean? That means what you call at the pit's-mouth, not the railway scale where it is weighed.

Mr. Brown: How do the operators sell it?

Mr. Warren: They may sell it on the 65 per cent. contract, or they may sell it, as some do for the market generally, like our friend Mr. Thorn of Minersville. Some sell one way, and some another. There are companies in this section that sell both ways. But I want to get in your mind another thought. Suppose you owned a ten-story building, which was built in a substantial way that it would be a substantial thing for a century, and you figured you would get a fair rental out of it. You had figured a certain per cent. so it would net you five, six or seven per cent., after the taxes and so forth were paid. Now, suppose every year one of your stories came off of that ten-story building and in ten years you had no building, what would you figure you should get in order to get out of that building a fair margin on your investment? Wouldn't it have to be larger than an ordinary investment?

Mr. Brown: We would do the same as we do with the Girard Estate; establish a sinking fund. We do it with the Girard Estate. We establish a sinking fund, and capitalize the money and use the interest, and have the money when the building was gone.

Mr. Warren: If that were applied to the producers of anthracite coal,—if the estate were to establish a sinking fund, how much do you think it would be up in this country? I want to submit that to some of you gentlemen down here who are familiar with the industry. The Girard Estate may do it with large property rate in Philadelphia and approved lands in Philadelphia, they may do it; but they are most favorably situated. I want to submit this proposition to this Committee, representing lessors, that today we have to pay in taxes, as lessors of our coal lands, real estate, so large a proportion of the royalty we receive from the lessee, as to make it split in two that royalty, and a low royalty at that; so that if there be any additional taxation, the burden of carrying which devolves upon us, we are going to be in as bad a position as the fellow who had hold of the tail of the bull, who couldn't let go, and didn't dare hang on. That fact I desire this Committee to consider, because it doesn't seem to me you are considering that fact at all. You are considering that the tax could be obtained from the consumer outside of Pennsylvania. That isn't true.

Mr. Brown: Four-fifths from outside of the State, one-fifth from people inside of Pennsylvania, and that one-fifth would be handed back to you for hospital service and public welfare.

Mr. Warren: I would be very glad to discuss that. I don't think any more comes back to us than goes to the other sections of the Commonwealth. I don't believe there is any discrimination against Philadelphia hospitals in favor of Lackawanna County hospitals.

Mr. Brown: But the other sections would pay this one-fifth, that is all over the State where anthracite coal is used, and the State would get the benefit of it.

Mr. Warren: I don't known of any companies that contribute as much to help employees injured. When you come to speak of the hospitals,—the State hospitals,—I think they are a great credit to the State; yet I want to say that the State of Pennsylvania gives to the hospitals in the northeast section of Pennsylvania no more than she gives in proportion to the character of the people and the construction of the people in any other section of the State. You know that in the final analysis this tax is paid by the lessor. How is he going to get it back? I tell you I represent dead men who are lessors, who are now paying a tax that has quadrupled what it was at the beginning. You tell me it can be added to the commission for the sales of coal; but that will never come back to the lease-holding companies I represent. There are many such leases. They never can get it back. You are taking their purchase money and dividing it into two parts. What is the need of it?

Mr. Brown: You represent practically every interest in this Commonwealth that is available for taxation for revenue. Assuming the State needs money for public roads, how would you raise it? Which one of your interests would you tax?

Mr. Warren: Personally, I am a great believer in the improvement of public roads, and I rejoice in the information that has come to me as the steps now being taken by Pennsylvania to improve her roads, whether in the construction of the proposed highway from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh or whether in the new State roads, and personally I am mighty glad, for I believe it is an advantage to the Commonwealth. I think there should be a constitutional amendment that would enable you to issue a bond to provide for the expenditure of such sums as may be needed to carry out the program in the construction of our roads and provide a sinking fund.

Mr. Brown: What would you levy the tax on?

Mr. Warren: You have doubled and nearly trebled the State tax on the companies I represent now.

Mr. Brown: You don't think it is fair to add any more burden to you?

Mr. Warren: No. I say we should build these roads. I say money should be provided for it. If the revenue of the Commonwealth won't do it, I think provision should be made by which sums could be obtained to do it. What are they doing in New York? How are they constructing the hundred million dollar Erie canal today? I can answer you. I can tell you how it should be done, but rationally and reasonably, as any business man would construct his business. If you were president of a corporation and had occasion to expend a large sum of money, you would issue bonds and provide a sinking fund. I am a believer in the development of the proposition in Pennsylvania as to roads. I believe we can all be benefited by it.

Mr. Brown: Propositions have been presented to us that under direction of the Department of Health and Charities, boroughs and the Commonwealth have been compelled to make provision for the construction of sewage disposal systems, and they haven't the money to do it. This is the case with many places in the Commonwealth. They say it is necessary for the general health and they say the State should build them. Why Philadelphia isn't herself able today to construct the sewage disposal plant such as Dr. Dixon suggests. Where are these revenues to come from?

Mr. Warren: You gentlemen were in the legislature some years, and are familiar with such matters. I am a little beyond my depth. But I will attempt to answer by saying that I don't think the State should do the work of the boroughs. I would assume the great City of Philadelphia would not be standing at the steps of the State Capitol asking the Commonwealth to give her any money, and I assume the boroughs here about wouldn't do it either. Of course, you know the limit of our legislature as fixed by the Constitution, but do you know because of the increased taxation upon coal as real estate for local purposes in the boroughs in this section of the State; that is, the anthracite region, there are assuming so large and such an exhorbitant figures as to put them in funds if they will use it for the purpose of putting up a good sewage system? I can look up here to the Borough of Dunmore, twenty thousand people. They are starting upon a sewage disposal system, and I assume they are going to carry it out properly and sanely. I am not very much concerned about that,—that the boroughs want certain kinds of sewage systems, and the State should be responsible for their construction. I don't think this Commission will ever recommend that.

Mr. Brown: I only mentioned it.

Mr. Warren: One more thought. I assume you understand you can not impose a tonnage tax upon anthracite coal in lieu of the present tax now in the laws of Pennsylvania, or to be passed without violating our present Constitution.

Mr. Brown: I think that tax of five cents per ton is constitutional.

Mr. Warren: You surprise me; because it has been so thoroughly discussed by those who have given it some consideration, and I thought you yourself had been confronted by the constitutional objection as to hold it very doubtful whether you will be able to do it.

You understand the mine car when it comes out contains refuse, slate and coal,—to the pit's-mouth. You understand that is three thousand pounds of material. It is not marketable coal, and when I come to talk about that, you are taxing the slate and refuse and stone that is absolutely waste, beyond the question of doubt. If you want to get anything definite at all, you certainly will have to tax it upon the waste which will be coal to start with, just after it comes from the breaker; and that is not at the pit's-mouth; when it comes from the breaker and from the rolls and from the screens into the sheds and railroad scales, then you have to——

Mr. Brown: You mean wait until it becomes marketable?

Mr. Warren: Wait until it becomes ready for the market; wait until it becomes coal. Then you understand anthracite coal is not like bituminous coal,—a run of mine product. It is a manufactured proposition. The raw material is that which comes out in the mine car, and in manufacturing in the breaker and rolling and screening, the impurities are taken from it, which are the result of the blast of the mine, and it goes through the various processes until it is finally gotten into the product that comes out in the railroad car and is marketed. This is as to all sizes. I don't know why you gentlemen have the idea that you are doing any service to the Commonwealth by imposing a tax upon anthracite coal. In the first place, I beg of you not to discriminate against anthracite coal. But if so, put it on coal alone. I beg of you not to put it on at all. Not that I am against the raising of revenue to do the thing that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania would do, but because I believe that tax as defined now you should consider other conditions before you determine what you call a small tax of five cents per ton on this coal, and that is about the increased tax on the capital stock of the various coal companies. I just read the other day that the tax had been raised on coal companies. It has been doubled and trebled, and in some instances it has been quadrupled. That is one thing. The other end of the line is the legislative department represented by you gentlemen who are about to recommend, (and I assume there will be an act embracing your recommendation) to add what you call a small tax. If I was making only ten cents on the dollar, and you came along and asked me if I could pay a small tax of five cents, I would say, "You can take half of what I have." Five cents is an enormous tax on the industry. Ten cents is the royalty rate per ton under the leases I represent—and you are talking about taking one-half of it for State purposes. You talk about the profit made by coal companies. The last report of the Delaware & Hudson Company shows their net profit was 14 cents. Take five off of fourteen,—is that a small proportion? We talk about four mills. That is a reasonable tax, but four mills on what? That is the proposition. Compare it with what you call small tax. I tell you you haven't begun to grasp what five cents tax means on coal, on anthracite coal. If the tax could be gotten from the foreigners, if you can arrange to relieve us of this, and make the other fellow pay, it would be a great thing and I agree with you. The State of Pennsylvania is giving a rich mineral deposit to those outside the Commonwealth and are not even saying thank you for it. But the trouble is that you can not make them pay it,—no legislation of yours can make them pay it. What is this investigation in your own Quaker city today? What do you suppose was the cause that started this investigation by the Railroad Commission? I will tell you,—the price of coal in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Brown: It is seven and a half.

Mr. Warren: Don't tell me, Mr. Brown, that you can add today, with the present temper of the people, to the price of coal which they regard now (though unwisely and unfairly) too high. They don't appreciate it. We strike a thin vein of coal and we are compelled to take out the rock and slate and transfer it one-eighth of a mile to get it to a point where they can mix that coal with coal of a better vein. The mining of that coal costs more to the company. I can give you the figures if you are interested in them. The consequence is that the average cost is far and away in excess of what it was ten years ago. When the anthracite strike commission sat here, they said the anthracite production would probably be sixty million. The maximum production today is over seventy million.

Mr. Brown: Seventy-five million, in 1910.

Mr. Warren: How much do you suppose has been added to the cost of production in that time? How many raises in wages? I know last summer there was in six weeks a raise of ten per cent. I know the wage scale also has been very substantially increased. I know, on the other hand, there has been one raise in the price to the consumer in the ten years since the anthracite commission sat here, and within six years the consumer of anthracite has only paid the same as he paid, I mean the larger companies,—there has not been one mill added to it except this summer when they added twenty-five cents to the cost of the prepared sizes, I believe; this was only for part of the year. You gentlemen are familiar with the talk about the high cost of living. You are familiar with what it costs today compared with ten years ago. Do you realize the cost of absolutely everything that enters into the producing of antharcite coal, has increased,—everything that enters into it? Take everything that enters into it,—mining conditions, material, everything. The tax is equitable for local purposes, but it has been made a sort of a matter of politics in this section.

Mr. Brown: Why shouldn't coal interest in this section prepare some plan or scheme,—why shouldn't some scheme be adopted by the coal interest to prevent that?

Mr. Warren: If you adopt a scheme where the tax can be added to the consumer outside of the Commonwealth, I will adopt a scheme to tax coal lands out of politics; and I will expect to make good when you do. I couldn't make good. Neither could you. Neither could you under conditions today. Here you cannot interfere with the personal equasion. These people favor the individual, probably because their thought apparently is that the corporation is richer than the individual. They have equal rights and I think they should be treated equitably and fairly.

Mr. Brown: How would it do to have all the property assessed by the State and do away with the election of these assessors every two or three years?

Mr. Warren: That is worth considering. It would serve us here with good effect.

Now I trust you will understand that all I have said is backed by a desire not to embarrass this Commission, nor is anything I may have said, intended to restrain your effort to secure a uniform and equitable body of laws in connection with matters of revenue and our corporation laws generally. I am very glad that gentlemen of your character and experience are undertaking this task, and I trust your laborers will result in much satisfaction to you and also result in advantage to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

MR. CHARLES H. WELLES:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

As the representative of a large number of manufacturing corporations, I appear before your Committee and desire to record our protest against the change of the laws by which it is proposed to impose tax upon the stock of manufacturing corporations in Pennsylvania.

First. To tax manufacturing corporations would be a very wide departure from the treatment of such corporations by the State in the past. Under the law as it at present stands Pennsylvania has taken the lead of all the States in manufacturing corporations and probably more is invested in Pennsylvania today than in any State, and, again, greater than that in the combination of a dozen States. This has been brought about by the fact that the State has fostered and encouraged manufacturing within its borders. This has been wisely done and has added very materially to the growth of the State in population and wealth. I will not endeavor to enter into the statistics bearing upon this branch of the case as I do not doubt that this has been brought to the attention of your Committee. Not only has the State encouraged the location of manufacturing enterprises within its borders by permitting them to go on with their business without taxing their capital stock, yet in addition to that the Boards of Trade of the cities and towns of the State have held it out as an inducement to individuals to form corporations in this State because they can do business here without being taxed out of existence. Under this fostering care there has been tremendous growth in manufacturing in the State. Cities and boroughs have gone so far as to exempt from taxation the real estate of manufacturing corporations for a number of years, to encourage them to locate in the municipalities. These municipalities have profited by it by the large number of people that these manufacturing concerns have brought within their territory and the monies which it has acquired out of the taxation of the real estate of the manufacturing companies and of the individual employes.

As a further encouragement of the manufacturing corporations, the Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania on the 12th day of May, 1911, placed on the statute books an Act entitled, "An Act amending paragraphs one and two of Section three of article nineteen of an act entitled, 'An Act for the government of cities of the second class,' approved the 7th day of March, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and one, amended respectively by Sections thirteen and fourteen of an act approved the twentieth day of June, A. D. one thousand nine hundred and one, defining the method of taxation and providing for certain exemptions." This act exempts from taxation machinery of all kinds. The only purpose the Legislature could have had in view was to encourage manufacturing in the State.

The State of Pennsylvania stands in an enviable position before most all the other States in the Union in that its encouragement of manufacturing corporations has been so successful. This is all owing to the liberal treatment that has been accorded such manufacturing companies by the State in exempting its capital stock from taxation.

It must be borne in mind, however that manufacturing corporations do not escape all taxation, for there is hardly a manufacturing enterprise in the State but what has a bonded indebtedness in most instances equal to its capital stock. On this the State collects from the bondholders within its borders, through the corporation itself, a tax on these bonds.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania stands in a position unlike that of any other State in the Union. There is no tax upon its inhabitants, upon real estate or personal property other than stocks, bonds and monies at interest, except such as it collects out of corporations.

Practically the whole revenue of the State is gathered from corporations within its borders or foreign corporations doing business within the State, so that the burden of taxation does not fall upon the individual in any instance. It has been said that the State Grange and its subordinate granges are urging the imposition of a tax upon the capital stock of manufacturing corporations. It would be a short-sighted policy for them to insist upon this, for the reason that the more people that are brought within the territory of the State who devote all their time and attention to manufacturing and are not producers of wealth from the soil, the more there are to consume the products that are produced by the farmers and grangers of the State. Take the territory about the City of Scranton. Where would be the market of its farmers if Scranton did not exist, and what has created Scranton but its coal and manufacturing enterprises,—so they are interdependent upon each other. The men who are employed in the factories seek their produce from those who bring it within the bounds of the city. If there were no manufacturing enterprises here, the farmers would be without a nearby market that is profitable to them; and what is true of Scranton, applies to other municipalities in the State where manufacturing is carried on. There is within my own knowledge a number of manufacturing corporations who would have been out of existence long before this had they been obliged to pay a tax upon their capital stock. Let me illustrate:

There is one corporation with a capital stock of three hundred thousand dollars or more, with a bonded indebtedness of two hundred thousand dollars. Its officers are endeavoring to save this corporation to the city of Scranton by backing its credit where the corporation itself has no credit. They are receiving nothing on their stock and in all probability will not for some years to come, yet out of personal pride they are sustaining the corporation, and the State is getting an income from the tax on the bonds.

This is only one of a number of cases that I could cite where the imposition of a tax on the capital stock would result in bankruptcy of the corporation. The stockholders would not continue the corporation if they found that a tax was to be paid every year with little prospect of their getting any return from their capital.

It is generally expected that an Employers' Liability Act will eventually be passed. When this is done there will be no escape on the part of the manufacturers to respond in damages to those of its employes who are killed or injured. This also will impose an additional burden on manufacturing companies which cannot be shifted. Will not the effect be, in case of the change in policy on the part of the Commonwealth to tax manufacturing corporations, be to drive them out of the State or prevent others from organizing and locating here? Other States are holding out strong inducements to have capital invested in their States and are relieving them from the burden of taxation and doing everything within their power to turn them in the direction of those States. Pennsylvania has porfited very largely in its manufacturing enterprises by its encouragement, and it would be suicidal to change that policy at this time.

The proposed act providing for the incorporation, regulation and dissolution of certain business corporations prepared by your Committee and submitted for criticism and suggestion, was sent to me. I have gone over the proposed act and would like to make certain suggestions that may be of no importance and yet may have some bearing upon the efficiency of the proposed act.

First. Page 11, Paragraph E. "The amount of its capital stock (which shall not be less than $5,000), and the number and par value of the shares in which it is to be divided." There is so much uncertainty in this State as to the par value of shares of stock that I think it would be wise for all shares to be made iniformly of the value of one hundred dollars. It would save confusion. As the law now stands it may be any amount they see fit and you have no means at hand to determine what the par value of the stock is. For that reason I think it would be well to have it established at one hundred dollars.

Second. Page 21, Section 7. "At the time of filing of articles of incorporation the incorporators shall pay to the State Treasurer for the use of the Commonwealth, a fee or bonus of one-third of one per centum upon the amount of capital stock specified in the articles of incorporation."

A bonus of one-third of one per cent. is in excess of that charged by most of the States in the Union and has a tendency to have individuals incorporate under the laws of other States, when it should be the policy of the government to have corporations doing business in this State to be incorporated by the State and under its supervision. This section provides for the payment of the bonus "at the time of filing." It is frequently the case that after the filing of an application for a charter something comes up that leads the parties to withdraw it. If the bonus is paid to the State Treasurer under the law there is no power by which he can return it and we meet with a great many special acts authorizing the return from the treasury of money that had been improperly paid. For this reason I feel that the payment of the bonus at the time of the filing of proofs of publication when the charter is to be granted ought to meet every requirement of the State.

Third. Page 29, Paragraph D. "A report signed and sworn to by a majority of the directors, stating that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with, shall have been filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth."

This is imposing a condition upon directors which it seems to me is wholly unnecessary. The affidavit requires of the incorporators ought to be sufficient to meet all the requirements of the law. For this reason I think this Section D should be dropped out.

Fourth. Page 53, Section 13 provides that corporations shall not purchase or otherwise acquire directly or indirectly shares of its own capital stock except under certain conditions.

It has been frequently the case in the past, and in my judgment is a very wise provision, to permit the issuing of preferred stock with power on the part of the corporation to retire that stock at any time. In these cases it has been treated practically as a loan and instead of the corporation issuing a series of bonds and encumbering its property with a mortgage, they have had no encumbrances and out of the surplus earnings have purchased and retired the preferred stock and the act ought to be elastic enough to permit that to be done under the proposed new charter act.

Page 59, Section 15. This is intended to take the place of Clause 12, Section 39 of the Act of April 29, 1874. Under the Act of 1874 this clause prevents the selling of real estate by a manufacturing corporation without the cumbersome process of having a meeting of the stockholders called, advertising the meeting for a certain length of time and then evidencing the power of sale by a paper signed by a majority of all the stockholders. A great many titles in Pennsylvania are defective in that this has not been complied with. Many of these conveyances were for property that was no longer used by the corporation and an act ought to be passed confirming these titles that are defective. This Section 15 does not provide for the sale of portions of real estate that such corporation may hold. It may be that your Committee considers that that power is lodged in the corporation without the necessity of a clause permitting them to sell. It would look, however, as if you consider that such corporations had no power to sell when they are required to obtain the consent of a majority of the stockholders before a lease can be made. The power of sale of course would carry the power to lease. I think this section might be made a little more definite on this point.

Sixth. Page 69, Part 4, capital stock and bonds. Section 21, where it treats of the issuing of shares and bonds in consideration of the property to be purchased. This is a very wide departure from the law as it now stands and makes a rather burdensome requirement and imposes upon anyone purchasing the bonds or stock the necessity of a search at Harrisburg of the right of the corporation to issue such stock and bonds and yet if such search is not made the bonds and stock in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value received are declared to be null and void. It may be that there have been cases in which large value has been placed upon property purchased but the proposed correction of this evil, if evil does exist, is cumbersome and drastic and does not seem to be followed by any State except Iowa. Good may come out of Nazareth but I hardly think a great State like Pennsylvania should follow in the wake of an agricultural State like Iowa.

Seventh. Page 105, Section 39. (1) "If the assets of any corporation shall be insufficient to satisfy the claims of its creditors, each stockholder shall be liable to pay on each share held by him the sum, if any, necessary to complete the par value of such share or such proportion of that sum as shall be required to satisfy the said claims."

There is no such requirement in the Act of April 29, 1874, and it goes without saying that the holders of stock are liable for any unpaid portion of their subscription because it is a trust fund for the benefit of the creditors.

Eighth. Page 109, Section 40. "(1) The stockholders of every corporation shall be personally liable for all sums of money due to laborers, clerks and operatives for services rendered within six months before demand made upon the corporation, and its neglect or refusal to make payment, which liability should be enforced as herein provided." I think that a limit should be placed upon the amount that any stockholder is liable for as the section as it stands makes any stockholder liable for any amount whether it is in excess of his holding of stock or not. The passage of this Act with such a provision would cause people to hesitate before going into any corporation as a stockholder might be the holder of one share of stock and yet be liable for thousands of dollars owing to employes.

Ninth. Page 123, Part 7. Reports. Official investigation. The status of most corporations in the State of Pennsylvania with reference to making reports is made very burdensome as we have the United States requirement for a report to be made as of December 31st, in each year. The revenue law of the State of Pennsylvania requires a report to be made as of the first Monday of November in each year. The corporation has a fiscal year of its own. Now the suggested act provides that "every corporation shall annually in September file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, a report of its condition as of the first day of August next preceding the date of such report, which report should be made in the form prescribed." With these multifarious reports the corporation will have to keep a clerical force to look after reports alone. Would it not be a great deal better to make all reports as of December 31 in each year and bring all the laws in harmony, thereby saving an immense amount of labor? I know of corporations that find it impossible to take an inventory more than once a year and that is usually done the first of January, yet this provision requires a statement of the assets and liabilities of the corporation and without an inventory how can it be properly done?

Page 147, Section 61. The section provides that "the charter of any corporation shall be forfeited and the Attorney General shall take the proper legal steps to have such corporation dissolved and its charter forfeited if it * * * files with the Secretary of the Commonwealth any certificate, articles or report which shall be false in any material representation and known to be false or with reasonable care could have been known to be false." I suppose that this would be determined by an action brought by the Attorney General in the name of the Commonwealth but will it be by jury trial or otherwise?

Page 153, Section 64. "(1) Upon the dissolution in any manner of any corporation, a court of equity or in vacation any judge thereof, shall have power to appoint a receiver to take charge of and wind up the affairs of such corporation who shall be held to supercede the directors of such corporation or any assignee in Pennsylvania." Do I understand this that the court of its own motion may appoint a receiver and take out of the hands or liquidating trustees the property of such corporation and impose upon it a burden of a receivership? I have known of cases in courts of other States where great hardships have been accomplished by this process. It seems to me this clause ought to be hedged about with safeguards so that no appointment of a receiver can be made without there had been a proceeding brought in the court and a hearing had in the case.

These are only a few things that have suggested themselves to my mind. There are others that undoubtedly have received the attention of those more skilled in such matters and will be considered by this Committee.

MR. J. E. BURR:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

I have heard what has already been said with reference to the subject matter, by Major Warren and Mr. Torrey, and I wish to call your attention to the initial cost of developing coal land, simply in addition, however, to what has been said adready. This initial cost is very great, as you perhaps have learned from different investigations on this subject heretofore. The cost of building breakers, installing machinery, making openings, etc., must be considered in arriving at the profit of a coal operation. The Delaware and Hudson Company makes but fourteen cents a ton on its coal, and there is no allowance made for the large work done in making the openings to produce the coal,—no allowance is made for this enormous expense, and if you add five cents a ton, or two, or three cents a ton, you are taking away that much of our profit and they certainly have very little left in the way of legitimate profit to recoup them for the enormous expenditure due to the initial cost of developing the coal operation. I simply wish to call this to your attention, because in view of the many things said, it has been overlooked. I simply ask you to bear this in mind. It is also true that not many of the colleries or companies mining the coal are making any profit. A great deal of criticism has been made of the coal mining companies for the reason that it is assumed that these companies make enormous profits, and yet, as I said before, many of them do not make profits of any account, and those that do make a profit, the profit made in coal is not what any manufacturing company would consider sufficient.

Once the coal operation is finished and abandoned, there is nothing left of value.

Mr. Brown: The coal companies are subsidiary to the railroad company, and where they don't make any money on the coal, they make thousands of dollars for hauling the product?

Mr. Burr: That is true, where the company is subsidiary to the railroad company. Here is another thing. Where that condition obtains, it would not pay an individual to develop that plant, and therefore the employment given to miners, and railroad men, and citizens of the Commonwealth in some way or measure compensates the State. What we are talking about is the conditions in Pennsylvania,—why burden should be borne in Pennsylvania. A great many of the stockholders of these companies are in Pennsylvania. Suppose it is a railroad company,—the Reading Company, the Pennsylvania Company and the D. L. and W. Company,—largely interested in the mining of anthracite and bituminous coal. They are stockholders. Of the purchasers of their stock, a great many of them live in Pennsylvania, and the burden would come upon them as well as the people who are not residents of Pennsylvania. It is quite a problem, and I appreciate all that has been said in the matter; but when you single out any single class of industry or any single class of property to bear the main burden of taxation, I think you are creating an injustice to the State at large.

Mr. Brown: Assuming that the element of taxation should be according to ability to pay,—I think it is generally said that ability to pay should be considered in the levy of all taxation. Assuming that, do you think that the manufacturer or miner of coal is any less able to pay than the farmer?

Mr. Burr: I do know many cases.

Mr. Brown: I mean taking them as an average. Assuming there is a burden to put on somebody's shoulders that is better able to bear it,—I mean from the view point of ability to pay; the average farmer and the average coal operator?

Mr. Burr: In the assumption that the corporations can shoulder heavier burdens, I suppose you are right in your assumption.

Mr. Brown: I am not making any assumption. I want to get your thought.

Mr. Burr: I only say this,—that question has suggested this: That the trouble with the farmer who complains that he cannot bear any heavier burden of taxation, and that his farm is in the same condition as it was thirty years ago, is that it is all due to his non-progressive methods. There are lots of farmers making a great deal of money by the adoption of progressive methods, and scientific methods,—a great deal more than a great many coal companies or manufacturing companies. It depends upon the individual, as to whether his business is productive. The same thing obtains regarding manufacturing. I want to say a word or two in regard to that, because I represent some manufacturers and am interested in some manufacturers. The manufacturer, it is true, makes, in some cases, a good deal of money; but there are a lot of them that don't make any money. There are a lot of failures amongst manufacturers; and yet they have had their exemption. There are a lot not making a net profit of five or six per cent. I maintain our manufacturing industries should be exempted from taxation, because while a few may be making a good deal of money because of the nature of their product or their location, taken generally, the manufacturer don't make enormous profits, and there are more failures among manufacturers as a class than there are among the business men of any other class. So that in regard to taxing the manufacturing industries, I am decidedly opposed to that, both from the viewpoint of my clients, who are manufacturers, and the fact that I am interested in manufacuring myself. But this no doubt has been before you,—it has been discussed before you and you have listened to it. It is a very important subject to this State and I believe that some readjustment of the tax laws is imperative. I think you should go into the whole tax system in some way, to devise some scheme so that there can be one assessment and that the various municipalities of the State may be bound by that one assessment, and that assessment must be made equitably and fairly by the proper person and the tax paid in one office. That is what I have in mind. Let the individuals of the State stand more tax. As it is now it is impossible to arrive at or get the benefit of the full tax on personal property or moneys held at interest. It is impossible. You know that. Every method or device is used to escape that tax and a great many people don't make any returns, and a great many people make returns that are questionable.

Mr. Brown: Would the manufacturing corporations be willing to pay a tax on all their bonds independent of whether held in the State or outside?

Mr. Burr: I think they would rather do that than have a tax on their capital stock. That possibly might be done, but of course it would work largely to the advantage of large corporations that didn't have any bonds. It would be unequal in that regard. There are a good many such. A company whose bonded indebtedness was relatively slight, would get a benefit that would not be shared by those companies that were heavily bonded.

Mr. Brown: You suggest paying the taxes in one place?

Mr. Burr: Yes.

Mr. Brown: We had a man in Erie who said he paid taxes in seven different places.

Mr. Burr: I do know we have had trouble here.

Mr. Brown: It would be a good saving.

Mr. Burr: It is what I hope to see in the State of Pennsylvania some day,—some system adopted, some method devised, whereby the matter of the collection and payment of taxes can be very greatly simplified.

H. J. HAYTOCK, Secretary, Northampton Silk Company:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I won't be able to give you a talk that will be very intelligent. I don't pose as a lawyer or anything else; but when I recieved the notice from Mr. S————that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania anticipated putting a tax upon corporations, a tax on merchandise produced by the manufacturers, I took the trouble to come over to give you my views on the question, not as an orator, but simply to give you the views as I have them in our business.

I represent a business that has come largely into Pennsylvania in the last fifteen or twenty years; that is the silk business. You have considerable around Scranton, and we have a number of plants in Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton, and the majority of these plants are incorporated in the State of Pennsylvania and came to Pennsylvania from other States on account of the corporation law that existed here which gave us an equal chance to make money in the State without undue taxation.

The one I represent, the Northampton Silk Company, has an enormous capital, but we do have some bonds and we pay the State tax on those bonds. We have some real estate, and we pay a tax on that real estate. We pay our county tax, State tax and tax on our bonds, and if we make a little money, we also have to pay a corporation tax to the government of United States of America, where we make over $5,000, which in many cases, we don't do. In the first place, in an industry like ours, this tax would be a decided hardship, as our profits are precarious, some years large and some years small. In other words, we depend upon the whims of woman, as to how much she will wear and how she will wear it; and I may say that, at the present time, she is wearing very little. She used to take ten yards for a dress, and now she takes only five; she has cut it down at the neck and off at the bottom, so you see there is little left. We have to pay a tax on our capital stock and if there is a tax on our product, it would be out of all proportion to any other industry. Our raw material is very expensive. A pound of silk might cost $3.50, $5.00 or $6.00; that would be the cost of our raw product. Before the factory can turn it out in the finished product it means something in dollars and cents. And there is not much money in it today. If we have to pay more taxes on our capital stock and if there should be such a thing as a tax on the production, we would be out of business.

(Mr. Haytock was asked to furnish the Committee with just what his interests represented in Pennsylvania).

MR. H. D. CAREY, (Representing cut glass industries):

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Commission:

I haven't anything prepared upon this subject. I have had some communication with the chairman. I will confine myself particularly to the question of taxation on manufacturing plants, being a manufacturer, I know something about the condition existing in our particular line. I may say I am President of an Association of Manufacturers, composed of the cut glass businesses, which is largely composed of the small manufacturers of this State, a good part of them are in New York and scattered throughout the country. I want to speak particularly for the small manufacturer. I am not so fortunate in representing the big manufacturers, but I think it is true that in all lines, competition is extremely keen; and there are few people, unless they are connected with the manufacturing business, that realize the keenness of competition; and we have to figure prices with a pretty sharp pointed pencil. If your sales are confined to a small territory, you may be able to fix your price according to your costs, and take from or add to, as you see fit; but when you have the whole country as a market, you have to meet competition where you have to compete with the field, not only here, but the fellow in Germany, or Austria or Belgium. You would be surprised if you could go over the lists and ascertain the number of firms that have discontinued business,—I dare say 100 per cent. inside of 15 years. It has not been because of taxes, but it has been because of competition. Now, when you meet that competition under these conditions, how are such industries going to stand further taxation which will cause an increase of their selling price? When you get down to the price of your production,—to the total amount of your production, that means a small amount; but it means an enormous tax because all of the manufacturing plants have to make enormous production and figure on very close profits, in order to pay any dividends. I have never gone over the different companies that have been chartered, but from my own observation as an attorney, I know there are a very small percentage of them that ever exist. Charters are often times gotten out by people of a certain locality; they are anxious to do something for that place and as a result they decide to start a manufacturing plant, manufacturing this and manufacturing that; they employ someone and they invest a little money. The first thing they know they invest more; and they keep investing more; and instead of paying dividends they are continually investing money, and they do that in order to enlarge their plant or their business; and it is a great benefit to the community, but too often a very losing proposition to the parties who invest. If the concerns were larger, if they were consolidations of different businesses, then it might be they could add so much for taxation, according to requirements; but with the numerous little concerns, many of them what might be called close corporations,—for instance, there may be three individuals, maybe members of particular families that have their money invested, they could just as well surrender their charters as add anything. But they had seen fit to get the charter in order to get that business separated from their other businesses. In other States,—I remember my attention was called to the State of New York. If I am wrong, you gentlemen will be able to correct me; but if my recollection serves me right, the State of New York charged a tax on manufacturing plants up until a few years ago,—ten or fifteen years ago,—when it was decided it was wiser to exempt the manufacturing company that would anchor in their State and use their money in the manufacturing in the State,—I think something like forty per cent. they had to invest there,—but at any rate, they don't tax them for the money actually invested in that State. It seems to me it would be a step in the wrong direction for our State, after encouraging small industries for so many years, to place a tax upon them which they were not able to stand. They are taxed in other ways. They are taxed locally. They aren't exempted from taxation, as many people would imagine. If their net income is over five per cent., they have to pay to the government. Then they have to bear local taxation, taxes on real estate. Oftimes they are doubly taxed. I cannot see anything to be gained, but I can see a great injustice to be done, especially to the small manufacturing plant; and I would ask that this Committee take into consideration the thousands of small manufacturing plants in this State, and so many of them are made up of workmen and people that have very little means. They have started out in an endeavor to manufacture that which they are particularly interested in, and in all of these cases competition is so keen, that I am satisfied they can hardly bear anything in the way of taxation. It is a much wiser policy for this State to deal liberally with the manufacturing plants.

MR. MARK K. EDGAR:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: By far the most important problem that confronts this community is that of securing some adequate financial return for the coal which is being taken from under our surface at the rate of millions of tons annually.

The question is one of tremendous importance, not only from the viewpoint of obtaining a just compensation in return for the loss of this body of our natural wealth, but, what is more directly to the point, as offering the most rational and convenient method or raising the large sums of money which will be required to safeguard the surface against settlement. We cannot lose sight of the fact that the whole question of an adequate tax on coal is intimately associated with the preservation of valuable property lying over the mine workings.

After all is said and done the whole problem of mine cave prevention is going to resolve itself into a question of money, large sums of money, and the raising of these funds will become at once the real issue. This is by no means the sole objective of a readjustment of our local tax system, for, with the receipt of a just revenue from coal, unfold the possibilities of parks, driveways, playgrounds, bridges, public buildings, baths, conveniences, museums and the thousand and one other things which the up-to-date, progressive American municipality is presumed to possess, and to which we, here in the coal regions, could in the future point to as the monuments left us by the coal which we once had. Nor are the paramount improvements the only thing at stake in this coal tax question. The receipt by this city and county of a fair return from this source would not only give us these things in a few years, but would so relieve the burden of taxation each year that we could probably claim the lowest tax rate of any city in the United States. What greater advantage would we need to advance rapidly to the front rank of cities in wealth and population?

The present system of taxing coal in Pennsylvania is probably the most faulty and unjust scheme of taxation in vogue anywhere in the civilized world. It is predicated upon a sight unseen assessment of a form of property, the value and quantity of which is unknown and unknowable. On this assessment is then levied a tax each year, which continues even unto the millions, as long as this property remains in the ground, where it is valueless and absolutely unproductive.

In this enlightened age we all profess to be conservationists, and yet the law of Pennsylvania with regard to the taxation of its mineral wealth is a direct attack upon the principle of conservation. If the owner of a piece of coal land were to attempt to hold it for the use of those who succeeded him, and so in a larger sense contribute to the Commonwealth of future generations, he would be taxed, and the longer he held the coal intact the greater the aggregate tax he would pay. Naturally, in the face of such a archaic system he mines his coal as quickly as possible, thereby attaining at once the twofold object of taking an immediate profit and terminating a countinuous tax on unproductive property.

If there is virtue in the argument, commonly advanced as a conservation meausre, against the imposition of any tax upon standing timber, then is there a hundred fold greater reason why all taxes upon sub-surface minerals should be abolished. Coal once mined can never be replaced, but land which has been denuded of its timber will, if protected from fire, produce another cutting in a generation or two, and so on indefinitely every thirty to sixty years contribute its quota to the national wealth. The wisdom of a policy of conservation with respect to anthracite coal, the quantity of which is, relatively, very limited, is too obvious to call for argument.

Examine for a moment the present method of taxing coal. At stated intervals the city assessors and the county commissioners appraise all property within their respective jurisdiction which is under the law of the State subject to taxation. These assessments form the basis for all of our local taxes, that of the county commissioners for the county and poor taxes, and that of the city assessors for city and school purposes. The law of Pennsylvania contemplates all real property as existing in one or the other of two estates; that which is found on the surface and that which lies under the surface. The appraisement of surface property, which is subject to view and examination, is, or can be made, a fairly accurate procedure, but to determine the quantity value and character of coal underlying hundreds of acres of surface, occurring in from one to a dozen veins, and found at depths varying from fifty feet to fifteen hundred feet, is a task wholly beyond merely human minds. The coal assessment is made in about this manner. At the triennial assessment the assessors notify the owner of a certain piece of coal land or, for example one hundred acres, that they find the land underlaid with twenty-five feet of coal. The owner being decidedly human, and knowing that the valuation then placed will be the determining factor in his tax for the next three years at least, promptly denies that there is any such quantity and suggests in rebuttal that there is only eight feet, the rest being bone, slate, etc. The burden of proof is on the assessors, who have no funds available to make the exhaustive surveys necessary to support their claim, and the result is a compromise. All hands will probably agree to let it go at ten feet. At the next triennial they may agree upon nine feet, or leaving the foot thickness remain unchanged at ten feet, shrink the acreage on the books to ninety. A most charming system, and in any event a safe assumption that the municipality is not receiving the amount of revenue from this source to which it is entitled even under this wretched method.

The recent attempt upon the part of our authorities to raise the valuation per foot acre, commendable as the motive may be, is no corrective for the bad system, but only a move which if made effective might tend to temporarily allay discontent and postpone the final solution of this problem.

All public officials who have had to do with the assessment of coal lands in Pennsylvania, all citizens who have given the subject any consideration whatever, and even the majority of coal owners themselves, agree that the only wise and fair method of taxing coal is by levying a tonnage tax. There is a wide range of opinion as to the amount that should be levied, the method of collection, and the beneficaries of the tax. With the principle, however, there is a general unanimity of agreement.

The opinion is held by many lawyers that an act to tax coal by the ton would have to be preceded by an amendment to the Constitution of the State specifically authorizing this form of taxation. Assuming this to be true, it would be necessary first to have a bill passed by the legislature submitting the question to a vote of the people. This move would have to be accompanied by an education of public opinion to a correct understanding of all the questions involved, including the proposition of the justice to be accorded to the people living in the coal producing areas of the State. It is reasonable to suppose that such an amendment would be seriously opposed at the beginning by members representing non-coal producing districts, who would argue that it would mean an increased price for coal for their constituents without adequate return benefits.

It might be stated here parenthetically, that the plan suggested for the accomplishment of a tonnage tax on coal is only tentative and the figures used are only approximated, and employed only for the purpose of illustration and argument.

Assuming that this change can only be obtained by a constitutional amendment it should be kept in mind that, formidable as this program appears it possesses this great advantage, that, being a provision in the organic law of the State it admits of any orginality or detail that may be deemed wise, and, when once embodied in the Constitution, may be applied forthwith, free from the consideration and embarrassments of any other possibly conflicting legal provisions.

An amendment to the Constitution might then be drafted in this manner:

First—Providing that the present method of taxing coal should be abolished.

Second—Providing that the Legislature should enact a law fixing a tonnage tax on all coal mined and shipped from the shaft without regard to the sizes or quality of the coal so shipped, of not more than five cents (5c) per ton on bituminous coal and not more than ten cents (10c) per ton on anthracite coal. That this tax should be collected as a State tax. That two-fifths (2-5) of the tax so collected should be retained by the State and that three-fifths (3-5) should be returned to the county where is originated. That of that portion of the tax retained by the State one-quarter (1-4) should be turned into a fund, to be created by law, for the payment of relief and benefits to workers in coal mines and their dependents. That the remaining three-fourths (3-4) of the tax retained by the State should be expended in the construction and maintenance of highways in all of the counties of the State.

That of the three-fifths (3-5) of the said tax returned to the counties wherein it originated, on-third (1-3) should go to the support of the county government and the remainder apportioned among the several municipal sub-divisions, such as cities, boroughs and townships, equally according to their respective populations.

Third—Provide that the price of coal shall not be increased, because of the imposition of the State tax, more than the tonnage tax levied by the State.

It is caculated that more than eighty per cent. (80) of the coal mined in Pennsylvania is sold outside of the State. Therefore, assuming that the tonnage tax would be passed along to the consumer in the form of an increased price on coal, limited, however, so far as the Pennsylvania consumer goes, to the small amount of the tax itself, it would be the people of other States who would be required to contribute most of the tax, and in this way make some adequate return to the State of Pennsylvania and more particularly to the coal producing sections of the State, for the deprivation we suffer in the permanent loss of our greatest natural wealth.

Pennsylvania's output of coal mined and shipped annually is in round figures, 140,000,000 tons of bituminous and 70,000,000 of anthracite. The tonnage tax applied to these figures would have the following significance: The State would receive annually a sum amounting to $1,400,000 to distribute among the injured and distressed of its children who earn their daily bread in the pursuit of one of the most hazardous occupations known. It would be in receipt of not less than $4,200,000 each year for the construction and upkeep of a system of magnificent State roads. There would be no need to amend the Constitution so that fifty million dollars worth of State bonds might be issued for that purpose. We could still have our roads and the people living outside of the State would bear four-fifths of the cost.

Lackawanna County produces on an average 20,000,000 tons of anthracite per year. This is probably the top crest, the figures possibly remaining at about this point for a while but in the near future showing a decline. On a two million dollar tax the State would profit $800,000 per year from us, while we would receive $1,200,000 for local uses. Of this amount the county would get $400,000, which would not only supplant entirely the sum now raised by taxation for county purposes, so doing away wtih the necessity of levying a county tax, but would provide on the basis of the present county expenditures, a surplus of $100,000. The City of Scranton, which is approximately half of the population of the county would receive another $400,000 per year and this sum could either be wholly devoted to safeguarding the surface against mine caves if it was required, or used in part for that purpose, and for the reduction of the city taxes.

The remaining $400,000 would be distributed between Carbondale City and the borough and township divisions of the county.

It would be futile to suggest any scheme for a tonnage tax upon coal which could not be made acceptable and advantageous to the people living in those sections of the State which did not produce coal. Fair and just as the plan might appear to us it would be impossible of adoption unless the support of this element could be secured.

Two particular features of the plan should appeal to the people residing in the non-coal producing areas:

First—The State is indirectly levying a tax upon the consumers of our coal living outsde of the State, and who are taking the bulk of our output.

Second—The State would have available each year a large sum of money to devote to the construction and maintenance of State highways, in all of the counties of the State. Divided among the sixty-seven counties the average allotment would be $63,000 per county, a sum greater in many instances than the total revenue of the county available for all purposes.

Assuming that the Legislature would enact a tonnage tax upon anthracite of ten cents per ton, the limit permitted under the proposed constitutional amendment, the increase in the price of coal due to this measure, also limited by the constitutional provisions, would be only ten cents per ton, and in the case of the average rural dweller, where wood is largely used, it is doubtful if his fuel bill would be increased more than one dollar a year. On the other hand he would enjoy the inestimable benefits of a system of highways, far better than his county government could afford to provide, to be built and maintained by the State.

In the case of Philadelphia, where the county line is indentical with that of the municipality, and where possibly the people would prefer to look after their own roads and highways, this share of the coal tax could be applied to other uses.

At a time when the State is seriously considering the suggestion of issuing a large amount of bonds (reported at $50,000,000) for the express purpose of constructing a system of State highways in each county, the possibility of securing this great sum of money without the assumption of a bond debt (which so far as the State has fortunately escaped, thanks to constitutional provisions), and which, as stated, would come largely from non-residents of the State, should be seriously considered.

The only argument that could be advanced in the coal regions against this measure is the apparent loss which would accrue to the cities, boroughs and townships, as well as the county governments through abolition of the present system of taxing coal in the ground.

Let us examine for a moment the figures for Lackawanna County, as they are probably typical of the conditions which obtain in the other coal counties.

The revenues now derived from the tax on coal in the ground are considerable, especially in the cases of the boroughs and townships where frequently a high millage is levied and where the county assessment is the basis. Our receipts are approximately as follows:

City tax	$35,000
School tax (Scranton School District)	80,000
County tax (assuming that the present high valuation on coal recently fixed by the County Commissioners is sustained)	110,000
Poor tax (Scranton Poor District), also based on the maintenance of the county assessment,	38,000
Carbondale City and all of the boroughs and townships which also depend on the maintenance of the county assessment, and which includes all of the kinds of tax levied in the boroughs and townships	300,000

This represents approximately the total amount of taxes which will be paid in one year in Lackawanna county if the present high valuation on coal is finally sustained by the courts.

A ten cent tax on coal would return to Lackawanna county as its share under this plan, $1,200,000, or considerably more than twice the amount to be received under the new valuation but the old way. The boroughs and townships would make a substantial gain in receipts while the income of the City of Scranton the sum available for the purposes of county administration would be greatly increased.

In addition to this we would also receive our share of the State allotment for road construction and maintenance, which, presuming it to be apportioned on the doubly computed basis of area and population, would probably amount to $90,000 or $100,000 more each year.

It is reasonable to suppose that under this system of taxation the people of Lackawanna County would be nearly $800,000 per year better off than we are now.

The question is a large one. To the people living in the coal regions it is one of supreme importance. Year by year our coal is leaving us in enormous quantities and the time is already in sight when, in some sections of the anthracite fields, it will be entirely exhausted.

The people living outside of the coal regions would probably not be opposed to such a measure if they could once understand the benefits to come to their localities by the imposition of such a tax, which, as already stated, would fall largely upon people living outside of the State. The position of Pennsylvania in the coal trade is so commanding that it can afford to take the inititative in such a movement.

Reform in our coal taxing system means so much not only to the inhabitants of the coal areas, but to all the citizens of Pennsylvania, that an early effort should be made to start the move, and properly such a beginning mught be made in Scranton, the largest municipality in the anthracite coal fields.

W. J. HAND, Pres., American Chair Company:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I didn't appear here as a lawyer; I am not retained to represent any one; but I do appear as a manufacturer to say a few words about the proposed change of policy in regard to the taxation of manufacturing corporations. I represent, as President, the American Chair Company, which has a plant in Susquehanna county, several miles from here. Of course, we all realize that this is a change of policy, but it seems to me that before such a change is made, the question should be carefully considered from every standpoint. We know that the policy that we have heretofore adopted in Pennsylvania of exempting manufacturing corporations has borne splendid fruit. That the statistics show. You may say some of this increase is due to the fact that we have superior natural resources here. I don't know whether it has been brought out before you, but our superiority in natural resources is dwindling. Take it right here in Scranton,—twenty years ago we were able to get a great many manufacturing industries here of the kind and shape that will run, but as has been said, things have advanced so that we have lost them, and further, perhaps, that the veins that are easier to mine have been largely mined out; that the mining is getting more expensive, and that brings into the market coal in other States; and we have to face the fact that Pennsylvania, as far as her natural resources are concerned,—owing to the fact that material and natural resources of other States are being exploited,—has lost some of these natural advantages in our manufacturing operations. If you change the policy of the State and do not exempt manufacturing corporations, you are going to do an injustice to those manufacturers who are already located here and also you are taking a step which will probably deter other manufacturing corporations that might propose to locate in this State. You might say this is a small tax, a one mill tax; but you forget that the minute you put in an entering wedge, you don't know where it is going to stop. In other words, if you let it go through now, saying one mill is a small tax, the next legislature will say two mills is a small tax; and you have staring you in the face that any manufacturer who proposes to locate his plant in Pennsylvania, knows she has changed her policy. It is these little things that will influence him in bringing his plant into Pennsylvania. You may say that may be true, but you may be magnifying the effect of it. Let me throw out this thought. I hope Pennsylvania wont change her policy with regard to manufacturing corporations, until the neighboring States do. If this Legislature appointed a committee to co-operate with committees of the legislatures of adjoining States, we could all determine upon a uniform policy, this policy would not lose any advantages. I don't think that Pennsylvania, in competition with New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland, should be put at a disadvantage as far as this tax is concerned. I know it takes very little sometimes to turn the preference as far as the location of a factory in one State or another is concerned. We all know the benefit of bringing manufacturers into a community is generally recognized. Take in our own business. We have had from other States propositions to move our factory, making us offers to relieve us from taxation. It seems to me that it would be a great mistake for Pennsylvania to give up some of her advantages in this respect, by commencing a different policy from that she has observed in the years gone by and that has certainly borne very great fruit, because there is no question that the mere fact that they have not been taxed and the liberal policy of this State toward corporations is what brought a great many of them here. I don't know that the legislature will pass a bill taxing manufacturing corporations; but if any such proposition should come up, I hope it will go through on a fair basis. You recall under our old scheme of taxing corporations, you would tax them according to production. You heard what the gentleman from Easton said, the gentleman in the silk business, that in the silk industry they didn't make any money for some years. We know that the principle of taxation is well recognized, that you try to put the tax upon people which can stand it. Take our income tax, the whole principle of that is that it is a tax upon those most able to bear it. You take the corporation government tax, and they again recognize that principle by exempting $5,000 profits of the corporations. If they have to adopt such a policy in Pennsylvania, change this whole policy with regard to manufacturing corporations; why shouldn't they have a fair show with some such proposition as that. If you could work out some scheme like that, so that the corporation would not be taxed only when it made money, it would be a great deal fairer.

The particular point I wish to make is that here is a complete reversal of policy. We don't know where it is going to stop. If you once change it, it is simply an invitation to the legislature to keep on changing, until you finally drive out a great many corporations and keep out a great many that would otherwise come in. So I think you should carefully consider this question from all standpoints,—particularly whether it is wise to change a policy which has proved itself very beneficial.

CHARLES P. O'MALLEY, Esq.:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

I wish to speak on a subject somewhat outside of what have been brought before you for consideration. I have two thoughts. My first proposition is that an exemption should be made in favor of real estate companies where 90 per cent. of the capital stock is owned by fraternal and beneficial societies. In other words, that there should be the same exemption from taxation as to those companies as is recognized in the Act of Congress taxing corporations. The reasons for this are as follows: The organization of corporations of the first class are unsatisfactory; they are unwieldly and the method of management and control is antiquated and out of date. As a rule, most of the persons who are officers of companies such as I have in mind, give their services free and it is unjust to place upon them any hardship and burdens that complying with a first class corporation requires.

The real estate of a fraternal or beneficial society to be of use to the members should be centrally located. The societies, as a rule, are unable to own and hold property centrally located, unless the ground floor of the same can be used for business purposes and provide a revenue sufficient to maintain the property. It is a very much doubted question whether or not corporations of the first class have the right to hold real estate and rent the same. Inasmuch as real estate companies wherein 90 per cent., or even a higher per centage of the capital stock is owned by beneficial societies, would be practically corporations not for profit, and the members constituting the societies would, individually, be paying their fair share of the cost and expenses of government, for this reason the stock of such companies should be exempt from taxation.

My second proposition is in the matter of facilitating small business corporations and enabling young men to get started in business. Corporations whose property is worth less than $10,000 should be exempt. The object of this is that many young men about to start in business have the ability, but lack the capital. One of the things that keeps them from organizing is State taxes. As individuals, or as partnerships, they have unlimited liability and people dislike to loan to them. If they could form a small corporation, there are men in the community who would be inclined to help them along in the way of speculation; that is, they would advance them money and take stock for the same, with the idea that if the company became successful their stock would be worth something; if the company failed they would simply lose their investment. There is a dread among business men of assuming any situation that might involve them as partners and they are not inclined to loan money on such hazardous propositions without there is a chance to do better than the usual rates of interest in some instances. I figure out that about one in four of the advances would be successful and that the men who would advance the money to young men starting in business would lose in about three out of four instances; that to encourage young men to go into business, this exemption should be made; and that for the further reason the State would derive a great deal of profit from it in this way,—that starting as a corporation and going along successfully, they would, in a short time, get over the $10,000 in assets, when, of course, they would pay the same rate as anybody else; but until they got to that point, they should be encouraged. I think it is a sort of protection to infant industries, declared for in the principles of the Republican Party and in force by them for many years in their tariff platforms. My only interest in these things is my desire to help along worthy causes, and from my observation and experience in business, I believe those two propositions are for the public welfare and would redound to the public good.

Mr. A. B. Warman, of the Lackawanna Laundry Co., appeared to represent the laundry interests. Mr. Brown explained that the Commission was in possession of a long brief upon the laundry question, which covered fully the situation at hand.

REPORTS OF THE DOLLAR SAVINGS BANK. 1911.

THE DOLLAR SAVINGS BANK,
338-344 Fourth Avenue,

Pittsburgh, Pa., January 30, 1912.

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, treasurer of The Dollar Savings Bank of Pittsburgh, Penna., in compliance with Section 10 of the charter of said bank, begs leave to submit the reports hereto attached, showing its condition on the first days of June and December, 1911. The amount of dividend credited to depositors June 1, 1911, $531,338.41 and December 1, 1911, $539,846.92, amounting to $1,071,185.33 for the year ending December 1, 1911 at the rate of 4 per cent. Also a list of all depositors as come within the meaning of Section 10 of the charter, with the amount due each, having been published as required; the Pittsburgh Daily post of January 29th, 1912.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Treasurer.

S. C. McCANDLESS,
Treasurer.

Pittsburgh, January 1, 1913.

REPORT OF THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF PENNSYLVANIA, FEBRUARY 5th, 1913.

Required by resolution adopted by the House of Representatives January 22nd, 1913.

RESOLUTION REQUESTING INFORMATION FROM THE STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

In the House of Representatives, January 22nd, 1913.

Whereas, The State Highway Commissioner has filed no report of the conduct of the State Highway Department since last session of the General Assembly, and

Whereas, Large sums of public moneys have been appropriated to and expended by that Department since the last published report of said Department, and

Whereas, It is essential that this House should have full knowledge of the operations of this Department, in order that it may be enabled to consider intelligently legislative matters affecting said department;

Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Commissioner of Highways be and is hereby required to forthwith furnish to this House full, complete and detailed information as follows:

(a) An itemized statement of the expenditures of the appropriation made by Act of 1911.

(b) A complete statement of all contracts let by the said Department since the date of the last published report, giving the name of the contractor and setting forth the location of the roads or other improvement, the amount of work done and payments therefor.

(c) The number of miles of roads constructed, the amount paid therefor and the portion thereof, if any, paid by counties and townships, and also

(d) A full report of the work and operations of the said department, including a detailed statement of all moneys expended for salaries, expenses of all kinds and costs of maintaining said department, together with a list of the names of all officers and employes thereof and the compensation received by each.

STATE HIGHWAY FUND

STATEMENT OF EXPENDITURES, JUNE 1, 1911 TO JAN. 1, 1913.

To The Honorable George E. Alter, Speaker,
And the Members of The House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, February 4, 1913.

Sirs:—In pursuance of your resolution of date January 22, 1913, I submit herewith a report as of date January 1, 1913. Inasmuch as the fiscal year of the Highway Department closes on May 31, of each year, and as the Annual Report is regularly made at that time, I have included in this report full details of the expenditures of the Department between the dates of June 1, 1911, and January 1, 1913.

This report is submitted to you herewith, and attached hereto are schedules showing detailed statements of expenditures and work done by the Department under all contracts, and divided so as to show the district and county in which the work was performed. The report also includes the administration, surveying, construction and maintenance, and the statements of all material, supplies, machinery and equipment purchased. In the fore part of these schedules is shown a summarized statement of each appropriation, showing the total appropriation, and the charges as at January 1, 1913, made against the same, as follows:—

SCHEDULE "A-1"—Covers the contracts in force between the above dates, and includes the maintenance contracts on which the work was done by the Department contractors, furnishing labor and equipment on a percentage basis, the material for which was purchased by the Department. It is itemized under the following heads: The county and township in which the work was done, the route number, the contractor's name, the date of the execution of the contract, the amount of the contract, the amount paid January 1, 1913, the cost of advertising, the length contracted for and the percentage of work completed.

SCHEDULE "A-2"—Is a report covering the expense of surveying and plotting the various Highway Routes designated in the Act of May 31, 1911, together with general engineering expense of the roads at present under construction. This schedule is in detail as to cost per mile for surveying and plotting for each route.

SCHEDULE "A-3"—Is a statement of maintenance expense, and shows the route number, the counties, the total mileage of the route, and the mileage worked by the Highway Department's maintenance forces in each county; the number of men and teams employed, the amount of money expended for labor and material, and a total maintenance cost of each route.

SCHEDULE "A-4"—Is a statement of the costs of surveying, plotting and printing the maps of the various counties of the State.

SCHEDULE "A-5"—Is a statement of the purchase of equipment, machinery and tools.

SCHEDULE "A-6"—Is a statement of Departmental Expenses.

SCHEDULE "A-7"—Is a statement of maintenance work done by the County Commissioners, in which the counties shared the costs.

SCHEDULE "B"—State-aid Fund, Act of 1911, shows the county, township and application number, the name of the contractor, the date of the contract, the amount paid as of January 1, 1913, the length contracted, and the percentage of work completed.

SCHEDULE "C"—Covers the State-aid Fund, Act of 1907 and 1909, and is in same detail as Schedule "B."

SCHEDULE "D"—Is a statement of the Cumberland Road Fund Appropriation, and is in detail as Schedule "B" and "C."

SCHEDULE "E"—Shows the expenditures under the appropriation for all Experiments and Tests.

SCHEDULE "F"—Is a detailed statement of Expenditures of the Traveling Expense Fund.

SCHEDULE "G"—Shows detailed statement of Expenditures of Contingent Fund appropriation.

SCHEDULE "H"—Shows detail expenditures of the Automobile Contingent Fund appropriation.

Attached herewith also find a list of the employes of this Department, which includes the permanent forces and the persons temporarily employed in the central offices and the various division offices.

Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD M. BIGELOW,
State Highway Commissioner.

REPORT FROM THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER RELATIVE TO SHIPMENT OF AUTOMOBILE LICENSE TAGS BY PARCEL POST.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

Harrisburg, Pa., February 12, 1913.

Honorable George E. Alter,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sir:—

In answer to your resolution of February 11th in relation to shipment of automobile license tags by parcel post, I beg leave to report that the Highway Department has been in communication with the Post Office Department in Washington (through the Postmaster in Harrisburg) beginning January first, with reference to the parcel post taking care of our license tags, as the accompanying letters will show. It is the intention of the Department, as soon as arrangements are completed, to use the parcel post for the delivery of tags in zones where the State will be benefited.

Very respectfully,
EDWARD M. BIGELOW,
State Highway Commissioner.

UNITED STATES POSTOFFICE,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

February 11th, 1913.

Hon. E. M. Bigelow, State Highway Commissioner,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Sir:—For your information I respectfully transmit herewith copies of two communications from Third Assistant Postmaster General in the matter of your inquiry about January 1, 1913, as to the shipment of automobile tags from your department by parcel post. Under date of January 3rd, I wrote tho Department explaining the large shipment of tags each year by your department and asking to be advised whether these tags could be shipped without postage stamps affixed under the provisions of Section 483 1-2, Postal Laws and Regulations.

Owing to the fact that the shipments would affect different zones in the parcel post and the postage would be different in each zone, while the weight would be the same, I submitted a recommendation as to the form to be used in mailing these tags which would expedite the shipments, and which I believe would come within the regulation in question.

There has been some question as to the delivery of the tags to the post-office, and I have been considering a plan for the handling of mail at the Capitol, which would solve the matter of delivery. This explains why I have delayed a definite reply on this subject. I had hoped to have the plan in contemplation worked out a week or more ago, and trust that arrangements may be completed in the near future.

You will observe from the letters of the Department submitted herewith that the automobile tags can be shipped in quantities without postage stamps affixed under the provisions of the Postal Laws and Regulations, but in order that a proper working arrangement may be made for the dispatch of this matter, I would suggest that you have a representative of the Department call upon the Assistant Postmaster, if you decide to use the parcel post, and he will give the necessary instructions.

Respectfully,
E. J. STACKPOLE,
Postmaster.

Following is a copy of a letter received from the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, under date of January 18, 1913.

Postmaster, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Sir:—Receipt is acknowledged of your communication of the 3rd instant, in regard to the desire of the State Highway Department of Pennsylvania to mail automobile license tags, fourth class matter, without stamps affixed, under the provisions of section 483 1-2, P. L. & R. It appears that these tags would be addressed to different zones and, therefore, would require different amounts of postage.

In reply you are informed that the question of whether or not fourth class matter may be mailed without stamps affixed under the provisions of section 483 1-2, P. L. & R., is now being considered by the Department but as yet no decision has been reached. If it should be determined that fourth class matter may be so accepted, you will be so informed.

Your inquiry in regard to the promptitude with which claims for the loss of automobile tags, which may be sent through the mails, can be adjusted, will be answered in a separate communication.

Respectfully,
C. B. HURREY,
Acting Third Asst. P. M. General.

Copy of letter received from the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, under date of January 30, 1912.

Postmaster, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Sir:—Referring to recent correspondence on the subject, your attention is invited to the inclosed circular of this office, dated January 24, 1913, to the effect that the parcel post law does not affect the privilege of mailing fourth class matter in quantities of not less than two thousand identical pieces without postage stamps affixed, under the provisions of section 483 1-2, P. L. & R. Please be governed accordingly.

Respectfully,
JAMES J. BRITT,
Third Assistant P. M. General.

UNITED STATES POSTOFFICE,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

February 11, 1913.

Hon. E. M. Bigelow, State Highway Commissioner,
Harrisburg, Penna.

Sir:—Referring further to the matter of sending automobile tags by parcel post, which was taken up with the representative of your Department about the 1st of January, I beg to say that the Department has recently adivsed us that these tags can be shipped in quantities without postage stamps affixed under the provisions of the Postal Laws and Regulations. It will be wise, perhaps, for the representative of the Department to call upon the Assistant Postmaster, who is familiar with the details, and arrange some plan agreeable to the Department for handling these tags expenditiously from time to time.

Respectfully,
E. J. STACKPOLE,
Postmaster.

THIRD AND FINAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSION TO REVISE AND CODIFY THE ELECTION LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Appointed under joint resolution of May 13, 1909, and continued under joint resolution of March 22, 1911. Made to the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly at the Session of 1913.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly.

The Commission to Codify and Revise the Election Laws of Pennsylvania appointed by the Governor of the Commonwealth in pursuance of a joint resolution approved the thirteenth day of May, A. D. 1909, and continued by joint resolution approved the twenty-second day of March, 1911, herewith presents its third and final report:

The Commission began its work about January 1, 1910, almost immediately after its appointment. It was composed of two members of the Senate, two of the House of Representatives and three citizens who held no official position. It was non-partisan. Its members came from various parts of the Commonwealth and they served without compensation.

In pusuance of the power given to it by the General Assembly it appointed an attorney, Ralph B. Evans, Esq., of Philadelphia, and a Secretary, William H. Hay, Esq., of Philadelphia. It has maintained an office in the City of Philadelphia, has held public meetings, has invited and received suggestions from all classes of citizens and has collected and studied the election laws, not only of Pennsylvania but of other States and countries.

By the terms of the resolution creating it, the Commission was directed:

First—To report a codification of the existing election laws.

Second—To report separately any changes recommended.

CODIFICATION OF EXISTING LAWS.

The work of codification was one of no small difficulty. The existing election law was embodied in a very large number of statutes, many of them amendments of portions of prior laws. To have written an entirely new code would have been to invite much future uncertainty and litigation over the meaning of new words and phrases. On the other hand, to preserve the language of the existing statutes, with which the election officers were familiar, and yet to weave those statutes into one complete code convenient for reference, required much labor. For reasons stated in the first report of the Commission, the latter method was adopted, and a complete code divided into sections, and very thoroughly indexed, was prepared by the Commission's counsel under the supervision of the Commission, and was presented to the General Assembly at its last session. In it the language of the existing statutes was preserved, except in those cases where slight changes were necessary to harmonize different provisions. It was arranged in numbered sections, with a reference under each section to the statute from which it was taken, and with an index and cross references so arranged that any provision of the law could be readily located and examined. One thousand copies of this codification were printed and furnished to the State. There has been a constantly increasing demand for copies, so that the supply is nearly exhausted. It is a convenient reference manual, not only for election officers, but for members of the General Assembly and others, in considering suggestions for changes in the law. After it had been presented, the General Assembly made a few changes in the Statute Law relating to elections, some of them embodying recommendations made by the Commission in its reports. These have been interleaved in the printed copies of the Commission's Codification and there have been added certain provisions of the law relating especially to elections in proceedings for the increase of municipal indebtedness which were not included in the codification as originally presented. The Commission in again presenting the Codification recommends that it be reprinted by the State for the use of the members of the General Assembly and other State officials, and that in such reprinting there should be printed under each heading in advance of the statutory law, and provisions of the Constitution of Pennsylvania relating to the subject matter.

SUGGESTED AMENDMENTS.

In addition to the codification of the existing laws, the Commission had been directed to report any changes in those laws which it thought should be made, and in obedience to this direction it has pursued a thorough and systematic investigation.

For convenience it divided the subject into five divisions, viz:

Registration of Voters,
Methods of Nomination,
Form of Ballot,
Conduct of Elections,
Election Contests.

Through its Secretary and Counsel it obtained and arranged for convenient reference the election laws of other States and countries and compared their provisions. By public hearings and all other available sources it sought and obtained information as to practical operation of the existing laws and as to the desirability of changes therein. As a result of its work it presented to the General Assembly at its last session two successive reports covering every detail of the subject and it embodied its suggestions in sixteen carefully drafted statutes. Two of these statutes, however, were alternative statutes. The reason for separating the amendments into separate statutes, as stated in the reports of the Commission, was that the various amendments had no necessary relation to each other, and by embodying them in separate statutes they could be separately considered and adopted, rejected or amended by the General Assembly without interferring with the other statutory amendments and without that danger of complication and error which might arise from the attempt to enact one large omnibus statute.

The reports thus presented were the result of a consideration by the Commission of the entire subject submitted to it. The members of the Commission never divided on party lines and they endeaveored by thorough discusssion among themselves to reconcile or eliminate all differences or shades of opinion on the various subjects discussed, and where there was no substantial difference of opinion among the members, alternative acts were presented for the consideration of the General Assembly, the result being that the reports presented were unanimous and signed by all the members and fairly represented the consensus of opinion of the entire Commission. These prior reports the Commission desires shall be considered as preliminary to and part of its present and final report, and for a full understanding of the views of the Commission they should be read in connection therewith.

Before the second report was presented, but after it had been put into type, the General Assembly by joint resolution extended the term of the Commission to the next session, so as to allow opportunity for further study and discussion. Other important measures occupied the attention of the General Assembly and of the public, and the reports of the Commission did not receive any general discussion or criticism either in the General Assembly or in the public press.

RESUME OF PRECEDING REPORTS.

In view of that fact a brief resume of what is contained in the reports of the Commission presented at the last session of the General Assembly will be useful.

AS TO REGISTRATION.

The Commission reported that there was practical unanimity of opinion among citizens that the Regristration System in the cities of the first and second class had proved efficient, although it needed amendment in certain details. With regard to cities of the third class, the Commission found there was complaint from the smaller cities that it was an unnecessary and expensive burden. The Commission recommended the following changes in the existing law and annexed to its report carefully drafted statutes to accomplish these changes:

a. To give to cities of the third class a less onerous system or registration.

b. To abolish all assessments, registry returns, etc., which were made necessary only by the February election.

c. To establish uniform terms for registry assessors and provide a uniform method of filling vacancies.

d. To make a uniform system of returns by tax collectors in townships, boroughs and cities of the third class.

e. To change the dates of registration in cities of the first and second class to conform to the Constitutional Amendment, abolishing the February election.

f. To add to the register in cities of the first and second class a column for noting the date of payment of tax, and to number the lines of each page for convenience of reference.

g. To define the method of proving payment of tax in cities of the first and second class.

h. To require all petitions in cities of the first and second class to be under oath, and to empower the chief clerk of the Board of Regristration Commissioners to administer such oath.

These statutes, with the omission of such of the provisions as have since been adopted or substantially adopted by the legislature, are reprinted in Exhibits A, B, C, D, E, F and G, appended to this report.

AS TO METHOD OF NOMINATION.

The Commission, after briefly reviewing the history of party nominations, the evils which, owing to various causes, had developed, and the efforts adopted to remedy these evils, discussed the system of Uniform Primaries and direct nominations which under various forms had been adopted in many of the States, including Pennsylvania.

It pointed out that the system had not to any very great extent remedied the evils it was designed to remedy, and had developed some serious evils of its own, and that there was great diversity of opinion among the citizens of the Commonwealth irrespective of party lines or partisan feeling, as to whether it should be retained. The Commission reviewed the arguments for and against the system, and reported that in its opinion the system itself was founded on a wrong theory; that the most salutary political condition of the community was not to have many parties nominating candidates at the expense of the State, but to have few well-organized partise which nominated under their own rules and competed with each other, and that the uniform primary with direct nominations tended "to weaken party organization and lessen party responsibility, to make the formation of new parties easy and to make candidates not so much the deliberate choice of well-organized party groups as the representatives of shifting groups of citizens acting together because of some sudden wave of popular impulse, or the clever manipulation of some candidate.''

In view, however, of the wide diversity of opinion on this subject and the unanimity of opinion that if the uniform primary system was retained it should be amended so as to obviate, if possible, the most serious of its evils, the Commission reported two alternative bills, one of which amended the system in the following particulars:

1. By providing for one primary each year instead of two.

2. By providing that the written acceptance of the candidate shall accompany every petition to place his name upon the primary ballot.

3. By providing that no name shall be placed upon the ballot of more than one party without the consent of the party committees.

4. By providing for the withdrawal of candidates.

5. By changing the provisions of the present law regarding the opening of the ballot box and recounting the vote.

The first and fifth of these recommendations have since been incorporated into the law. With the omission of these provisions this statute is reprinted in Exhibit K, appended to this report.

The other alternative bill amended the existing law as follows:

1. By permitting the parties to hold their primaries on different dates.

2. By Leaving to each party to determine whether it shall adopt the direct or indirect method of nomination or a combination of both.

3. By providing for the holding of the primaries by officers chosen by the parties, but under the same duties and penalties as election officers under the present law.

4. By providing that the qualifications of voters at the primary shall be determined by the rules of the party holding it.

5. By providing for the payment by the party holding the primary of the cost of holding it.

This bill is reprinted in Exhibit L, appended to this report.

FORM OF BALLOT AND CONDUCT OF ELECTIONS.

The Commission in its report reviewed the history of the movement for the adoption in the various States of the so-called Australian Ballot and showed the various forms of this ballot in use in the different states and pointed out that the legislation of the various States on the subject had been largely experimental, and vacillating, no one form apparently having been found satisfactory. The Commission then pointed out that there seemed to be no unanimity of opinion among any of the members of any party or group of citizens as to the desirable changes, but that the suggestions which seemed to deserve most serious consideration were:

1. To abolish the party square and thus change the ballot to the original Australian Ballot.

2. To retain the party square, but in some way to simplify or shorten the ballot.

3. To make the assistance clause in the election law conform to the assistance clause in The Uniform Primary Law.

4. To return to what was popularly known as the Vest Pocket System, by which the voter could mark his ballot at home and bring it to the polls.

The Commission after reviewing the various arguments for and against these various suggestions made the following recommendations, which it embodied in three carefully drafted bills annexed to its report:

1. The simplification of the present ballot by providing that only one square should be placed opposite the name of each candidate.

2. A change in the method of determining the standing of a party, this change being necessary by reason of the above simplification of the ballot.

3. A change in the assistance law so as only to allow assistance to the voter at elections under the same safeguards and conditions as are provided in the Uniform Primary Act.

These bills with certain additional changes hereafter referred to, are reprinted in Exhibits O and P, appended to this report.

With regard to the return to the system of allowing ballots to be marked at home, the Commission recognizing the fact that this was urged by a very large number of voters without regard to the party, and in view also that it was favored by a number of the members of the Commission reported an alternative act which provides for a system by which the single official ballot is retained with safeguards against the fraudulent use of surplus ballots while allowing the ballot to be marked by the citizen at his home and taken with him to the booth.

This bill is reprinted in Exhibit Q, appended to this report.

The Commission further drafted and reported with its favorable recommendation, acts which accomplished the following reforms:

1. The simplification of the system of counting the ballots so that the legal system might conform to the system actually used in practice and which had been found sufficient.

2. Allowing a ballot to stand so far as possible for that portion that was properly marked, even though mistakes had been made in other portions.

3. Defining the rights of citizens as to opening of ballot boxes in case of alleged fraud, and providing the method of obtaining such opening.

These recommendations are included in Exhibits O and R, appended to this report.

The Commission also drafted and reported with its favorable recommendation acts on the following subjects:

1. Making it obligatory on the County Commissioners to apply to the Court to change boundaries of election districts where the number of voters exceeds the constitutional limits.

2. Providing a more efficient system of changing the location of polling places and making more efficient regulations as to the physical construction of the polling room.

These acts are reprinted in Exhibits S, T and U, appended to this report.

As has already been said, the General Assembly continued the Commission before its second report was actually presented, and the Commission has therefore continued its study and investigation of the subject. A large amount of experimental legislation on the subject of election machinery has been actually passed or is under consideration in the various States, but the frequency with which this legislation has been amended and the variety which exists in the details of the schemes adopted illustrate some of the dangers of such legislation. For the reasons pointed out by the Commission in its first report there is a widespread desire to remedy certain existing evils incident to social and political conditions. The tendency at present is to ascribe those evils to systems or forms, rather than to the long indifference of citizens to their political rights in times of prosperity and to their neglect of their political duties. Hence, a tendency to experiment with new systems. These experiments, even when failures, have not been wholly without benefit to the community, since they indicate a revival of interest by the average citizen in political institutions and many citizens who had become indifferent or discouraged under the old system became active and enthusiastic under experimental systems. There is, however, a danger in experimental legislation. Every new system has evils and disadvantages of its own. Mere change of election machinery may in the end defeat the very result it was intended to secure, since the expert political worker who makes politics his business can usually operate new machinery, especially if it be complicated, with more skill and with much greater effect than disinterested citizens or groups of citizens. In a State like Pennsylvania with its great cities and its diversified conditions no change should be adopted merely as an experiment and because it is new.

ADDITIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS.

The recommendations of the Commission in its first two reports were mainly in the line of simplifying the existing system and removing as far as possible opportunities for complication or fraud. After two years' further investigation the Commission sees no reason to change its opinion as expressed in those reports. It therefore renews the recommendations then made, but with certain additional recommendations hereinafter set forth.

PARTY ENROLLMENT.

The Uniform Primary Act has for its main object the holding of party primaries by the State. It was never intended to allow members of one party to vote in the primaries of the other. In practice, however, it has been found difficult to prevent the capture of a minority party by the members of another. To remedy this various schemes of party enrollment, none of them entirely satisfactory, have been adopted in other States, and since the filing of the first two reports of the Commission there has been a growing and insistent demand in this State for some efficient method of such enrollment. This has not come from any party or from extreme partisans. On the contrary, it seems to be the most insistent on the part of the intelligent independent citizens. It has its foundation in a real evil, and the Commission has given the subject most careful consideration. As a result it has drafted and recommends a statute which is annexed to this report, marked Exhibit J. Briefly stated, it provides that every voter wishing to vote at a primary shall be enrolled as a member of some party and shall be entitled to receive at the primary only the ballot of the party under which he is enrolled In cities where personal registration is in operation this enrollment shall be made by the registrars in connection with the personal registration, and in other districts by the registry assessors. Provision is made for the change of enrollment at any time up to ten days before the primary, and penalties are prescribed for a voter voting or attempting to vote the ticket of any party other than the party under which the voter is enrolled, and for an election officer willfully accepting such a vote.

PAYMENT OF TAXES AT REGISTRATION.

Another subject which merits consideration has been brought to the attention of the Commission. Payment of some tax is a necessary prerequisite to registration. The voter who is not a property owner pays a tax designated in some localities as a poll tax and in others as an occupation tax. It would be a great convenience to the average voter, and encourage registration, if the tax could be paid at the time and place of registration. A difficulty in providing for this arose from the fact that most schemes to accomplish the result required a change in the tax laws of the Commonwealth which the Commission did not think was within the scope of its appointment. It has, however, drafted a statute which is annexed hereto, marked Exhibit I, which directs the Receiver of Taxes to have a deputy at the place of registration and authorizes him to appoint one of the registrars as such deputy. The Commission believes this will to a large extent remedy the inconvenience complained of.

PREEMPTION OF PARTY NAMES.

Since the preparation of the first two reports the holding of an election for presidential electors has developed a defect of the existing law which should be remedied. It is possible for a few citizens to preempt a party name and for parties to be multiplied to an extent which complicates the ballot and embarrasses the voter. To remedy this the Commission has drafted and recommends the passage of a statute (Exhibit N) which it appends to this report. Briefly stated, this statute provides that any body of citizens desiring to preempt a new party name must present a petition, signed by voters to the number of not less than two per cent. of the vote cast in the political division for which it is desired to preempt such name, to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, upon which there shall be a public hearing after such notice as the Court may direct.

SEPARATE BALLOTS.

The printing of the names of candidates for presidential electors upon the same ballot with the names of candidates for all other offices not only adds considerably to the size of the ballot, but also complicates the process of voting in that it presents upon the same ballot two different methods of marking a straight vote. The printing of constitutional amendments and other questions submitted to vote at the foot of the ballot also adds to its size, and may account in part for the light vote usually polled upon such questions. The present form of blanket ballot also has a tendency to confuse national, State and local issues. The Commission believes that the process of voting would be simplified and a more representative vote obtained if the ballot were divided and separate ballots provided for presidential electors, State and Congressional offices, municipal and local offices and constitutional amendments or other questions submitted to the voters. This would never require more than three ballots at any election, and, except when a question was to be voted upon, not more than two ballots would ever be required. The Commission has drafted and recommends the passage of a statute amending the statute printed in Appendix A of the Second Report, embodying in that statute the changes above suggested and also an additional change in the form of the ballot confining to established parties the right to the use of a party square. This statute is appended to this report (Exhibit O). This amendment also provides that defectively marked ballots shall be enclosed in a separate envelope, with the number marked on the outside, and sent with the returns to the Prothonotary. The Commission believes that this will facilitate the computation of the returns and aid in the detection of fraud.

NOMINATION OF SUPREME AND SUPERIOR COURT JUDGES.

The attention of the Commission has been called to the fact that under the Uniform Primary Act no method is provided for the nomination of candidates for Judge of the Supreme and Superior Courts when such judges are to be elected at a municipal election. Under the Constitution, such judges may be elected either at a general or municipal election. The Uniform Primary Act provides that candidates for all offices to be filled at the municipal election shall be nominated at the fall primary, but it also provides that candidates for offices to be voted for by the electors of the State at large, which, of course, includes Judges of the Supreme and Superior Courts, shall be nominated by State conventions. There is, therefore, an irreconcilable contradiction as to the method of nominating candidates for these offices when voted for at municipal elections. To remedy this condition the Commission has drafted and recommends the passage of a statute (Exhibit M) appended to this report, providing for the election at the fall primary of delegates to a State convention to be held for the purpose of nominating candidates for Judge of the Supreme and Superior Courts when such office is to be filled at a municipal election.

HOURS OF REGISTRATION.

It has been suggested to the Commission that the hours of registration in cities of the first and second class should be lengthened. The Commission approves of the suggestion and has accordingly drafted and recommends the passage of an amendment of the Personal Registration Act making the hours for registration from seven a. m. to eleven a. m. and from two p. m. to nine p. m. This statute is pirnted in Exhibit H, appended to this report.

ALLOWANCE OF MILEAGE FOR RETURNING BALLOT BOX.

The present law allows no mileage to the inspector for returning the ballot box after the election. In country districts, where the distance is sometimes considerable, this is a hardship. It seems to the Commission only fair that the inspector should receive the same mileage for this service as is allowed the judges of election for delivering their returns. The Commission has accordingly drafted and submits herewith (Exhibit V) an amendment to the existing law designed to accomplish this purpose.

INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM, RECALL, COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT AND WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The foregoing report covers the changes or amendments to the election law recommended by the Commission. It has been suggested, however, that the Commission consider and report upon certain other matters now the subject of public discussion. These are popularly known as the Initiative, the Referendum, the Recall, Woman Suffrage and the Commission Form of Government. A majority of the Commission are of opinion that all of these are entirely beyond the scope of the reference to the Commission. All of them except the Commission Form of Government involve not merely amendments to the existing election laws, but fundamental changes in the organic law of the Commonwealth, and there is nothing in the resolution appointing the Commission which, in the opinion of a majority of the Commission, would justify it in considering or reporting upon them. With regard to the Commission Form of Government, while it might be accomplished by statute without change in the organic law of the Commonwealth, it has, in the opinion of a majority of the Commission, no necessary relation to the election laws. With a change in municipal government it might ultimately be possible, with the aid of constitutional amendments, to adopt in municipalities a short ballot which could be made simple. As was pointed out by the Commission in its second report, the adoption of what is known as a short ballot in municipalities might render possible the abolition of the party square on the ballot, but a short ballot in municipalities is not possible even with a commission form of government, without amendments of the Constitution reducing the number of elective officers. While, therefore, it is true that the adoption of a commission form of government might make desirable certain changes in the election machinery, the question is nevertheless primarily one of municipal government and not one of election law, and in the opinion of a majority of the Commission the relation between the two did not justify the Commission in extending its recommendations beyond the scope of the matters referred to it.

At the close of the last session of the General Assembly, the Committee on Judiciary General of the Senate referred to this Commission for its consideration two bills which had been introduced relating to proposed amendments to the Constitution of Pennsylvania so as to allow women to vote at elections, and the Commission gave a public hearing, at which three societies, one advocating unrestricted woman suffrage, one advocating a limited suffrage for both men and women and one opposing woman suffrage, appeared and with force and ability advocated their respective views. A majority of the Commission are of opinion that this subject does not fall within the scope of their appointment, and that this scope cannot be enlarged by a committee of either house without a joint resolution of the General Assembly. As a matter of courtesy, however, both to the Senate Committee and to the women who most ably presented their views at the hearing, the Commission deems it proper to say that as the result of a careful consideration of the arguments a majority of the Commission are of opinion that irrespective of the question of jurisdiction, no recommendation of woman suffrage should be made by the Commission.

The question is not one to be decided merely upon the basis of woman's mental or physical equality with man or upon the injustice of refusing her a vote to protect her property rights. The real question is the benefit or disadvantage to the Commonwealth by making such a serious change in its organic law. It is apparent that if the effect of amending the Constitution so as to give votes to women would be to add to the electorate a large mass of indifferent citizens who did not desire the franchise and were unwilling to assume the responsibility of exercising it, the result would be a detriment to the State, even though a few active intelligent women would avail themselves of the privilege. The indifferent citizen who is careless of his political privileges is almost as much of a menace to the State as the corrupt one. The Commission does not think that sufficient evidence has been produced to show that a majority, or even a very large minority, of the women of the State care anything about the matter or desire to receive and assume the responsibility of the franchise. There are active and intelligent groups of women on both sides of the question—it may even be said on three sides of the question, since one group strongly opposes unlimited suffrage for women, and advocates a limited suffrage which shall include both men and women, but the Commission has seen no evidence of that unanimity and strength of desire for the suffrage on the part of the women of the Commonwealth which alone would make them desirable voters.

The Commission therefore makes no recommendation on the subject of woman suffrage.

First—Because it believes that the subject is outside the purpose of its appointment.

Second—Because it believes that until a very large proportion of the women of the Commonwealth desire it, the only effect of it would be to add to the already large mass of indifferent voters, and this would be a detriment to the Commonwealth.

The Commission gratefully acknowledges the numerous suggestions which it has received from citizens of the Commonwealth, from voluntary associations of such citizens, such for example as the Committee of Seventy in Philadelphia and from the Board of Registration Commissioners. As was said in its earlier reports many suggestions came from citizens who had considered the subject from the standpoint only of one locality, and the Commission had to disregard some suggestions otherwise meritorious because the Constitution requires the election laws to be uniform, and the suggested changes were not suitable to all local conditions. Other recommendations were disregarded because they were purely experimental and the Commission believed that it was wiser to attempt to simplify and improve existing machinery than to rashly experiment with new, to the confusion of the voter and possible injury to the State. Every suggestion has been considered, and every new law in any of the States has been obtained, if possible, and studied. The Commission annexes hereto a chart showing the course of the several States in regard to election laws and other matters which might affect their operation. The Commission has in its possession nearly a full collection of the existing election laws of the various States, which it will forward to the Legislative Reference Bureau for the use of the General Assembly.

For the convenience of the General Assembly the Commission reprints and annexes to this report the statutes originally recommended, except in so far as the recommendations therein contained have since been adopted or substantially adopted by the Legislature, together with the amendments above referred to and also the additional statutes not annexed to its original report, but now recommended as a result of the Commission's subsequent work.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTED AMENDMENTS.

A brief summary of all of these statutes is as follows:

Exhibit A. Enlarging the term of Registry Assessors in Boroughs and Townships from two to four years and giving to the County Commissioners the power to fill vacancies.

Exhibit B. Extending to Cities of the third class the provisions of the Act of June 25, 1895, P. L. 296 (Codification, Secs. 4, 5), relating to returns by tax collectors.

Exhibit C. Enlarging the term of registry assessors in cities of the third class from two to four years.

Exhibit D. Abolishing the December Assessment.

Exhibit E. Abolishing the December Registry List.

Exhibit F. Abolishing Personal Registration in cities of the third class and providing a substitute system of registration.

Exhibit G. Changing the form of register in cities of the first and second class, and defining the method of proving the payment of tax at registration.

Exhibit H. Changing the hours of registration in cities of the first and second class.

Exhibit I. Providing for the payment of taxes at the time of registration.

Exhibit J. Providing a system of party enrollment.

Exhibit K. Amending the existing Uniform Primary Act so as to require the candidate's consent before his name is placed on the primary ballot and providing for the withdrawal of candidates, and preventing a candidate from running on the ballot of more than one party except by consent of the party committee.

Exhibit L. Providing for the holding of separate primaries by each party, conducted by party officers and under party rules, and at the expense of the party, but subject to certain legal restrictions and safeguards against fraud.

Exhibit M. Providing a method for the nomination of candidates for the office of Judge of the Supreme and Superior Courts, when such office is to be filled at a municipal election.

Exhibit N. Regulating the preemption of party names.

Exhibit O. Condensing and simplifying the ballot by providing for only one square opposite the name of each candidate and by dividing the ballot into separate sheets for presidential electors, State and Congressional offices, municipal offices and constitutional amendments, changing the method of obtaining assistance, and the method of counting and returning the vote.

Exhibit P. Prescribing the method of determining the status of a party.

Exhibit Q. The so-called "Envelope Ballot Law," providing a method whereby the voter may secure and mark his ballot before going to the polls and retaining all the safeguards of the present system against fraud.

Exhibit R. Facilitating the opening of the ballot box and recounting the vote where fraud is suspected.

Exhibit S. Requiring the County Commissioners to begin proceedings for the division of election districts in cities of over one hundred thousand inhabitants whenever more than two hundred and fifty votes have been polled in such district.

Exhibit T. Providing a comprehensive and exclusive method of changing polling places.

Exhibit U. Prescribing more definitely the requisite physical arrangements of polling places.

Exhibit V. Providing for the allowance of mileage for returning the ballot boxes after the election.

EXHIBIT A.

REGISTRATION IN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS.

Amendment to Act of June 16, 1891, P. L., 298.

Commission's Codification, page 4, Section 16.

Proposed Amendments: (1) Increase term of Registry Assessors from two to four years; for the sake of general uniformity, to secure more experienced officials, to render less frequent elections necessary and to make terms uniform with real estate assessors.

(2) Empower County Commissioners to fill vacancies instead of the Court, because commissioners fill vacancies in office of real estate assessors, and all duties of registry assessors are under direction of commissioners.

AN ACT.

To amend section one of an act approved the sixteenth day of June, A. D. 1891, entitled "An Act to authorize the election of assistant assessors, for the purpose of registration of voters, in the townships and boroughs containing more than one election district wherein but one assessor for valuation resides," by enlarging the term of assistant assessors, providing for their election every four years, and changing the power of filling vacancies from the court of quarter sessions to the county commissioners.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That section one of an act approved the sixteenth day of June, A. D. 1891, entitled, "An Act to authorize the election of assistant assessors, for the purpose or registration of voters, in the townships and boroughs containing more than one election district wherein but one assessor for valuation resides," which reads and provides as follows, to wit:

"Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the qualified voters of every election district in boroughs and townships in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania wherein more than one election district is authorized and where but one assessor for valuation of taxable property resides in the borough or township having more than one election district, shall on the third Tuesday of February, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, and annually thereafter, elect a properly-qualified person for assistant assessor in each of said election districts, who shall perform all the duties relating to elections now required to be performed by assessors in boroughs and townships having but one election district.

"In case of a vacancy in said office, the court of quarter sessions, or any judge of the said court of the same county, shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy," be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows, to wit:

Section 1. Be it enacteed, etc., that the qualified voters of every election district in boroughs and townships in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, wherein more than one election district is authorized, and where but one assessor for valuation of taxable property resides in the borough or township having more than one election district shall at the municipal election on the Tuesday after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen, and quadrennially thereafter, elect a properly-qualified person for assistant assessor in each of said election districts to serve for four years, who shall perform all the duties relating to elections now required to be performed by assessors in boroughs and townships having but one election district. In case of a vacancy in said office, the county commissioners shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy.

EXHIBIT B.

REGISTRY ASSESSMENTS IN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS AND IN CITIES OF THE THIRD CLASS.

Commission's Codification, page 2, sections 4 and 5.

Proposed amendment: (1) To extend to the cities of the third class the operation of the Act now relating to townships and boroughs; because it is proposed to relieve the cities of the third class from the necessity of personal registration; there will then be no public record of what voters have qualified themselves by paying the necessary State or county tax within two years. This return by the tax collectors to the county commissioners will supply that record; and enable the registrars to complete their voting list for the election officers.

AN ACT.

To amend the title and sections one (1) and two (2) of an act approved June 25, A. D. 1895, entitled "An Act requiring tax collectors of townships and boroughs of the Commonwealth to give a numbered tax receipt from a book to be furnished by the county commissioners, containing a correspondingly numbered stub, and requiring a sheet setting forth name, amount of tax paid and number of receipt to be sent, twenty days before each election, to the county commissioners for public inspection, and to provide for punishment of tax collectors violating the provisions of this act."

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the title of an act approved June 25, A. D. 1895, which title is as follows: "An Act requiring tax collectors of townships and boroughs of the Commonwealth to give a numbered tax receipt from a book to be furnished by the county commissioners containing a correspondingly numbered stub, and requiring a sheet, setting forth name, amount of tax paid and number of receipt to be sent, twenty days before each election, to the county commissioners for public inspection, and to provide for punishment of tax collectors violating the provisions of this act," be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"An Act requiring tax collectors of townships, boroughs and cities of the third class of the Commonwealth to give a numbered tax receipt from a book to be furnished by the county commissioners containing a correspondingly numbered stub, and requiring a sheet, setting forth name, amount of tax paid and number of receipt, to be sent, twenty-five days before each election, to the county commissioners for public inspection, and to provide for punishment of tax collectors violating the provisions of this act."

Section 2. That Section 1 of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That tax collectors of townships and boroughs of the Commonwealth furnish each person, on the payment of taxes, with a numbered receipt setting out date, name of tax-payer, amount of tax and district in which tax-payer is assessed, from a book to be furnished by the county commissioners containing a stub, that on the stub a memoranda shall be made in ink of the number of the receipt, the date, name of tax-payer, amount of tax and district in which tax-payer is assessed," be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That tax collectors of townships, boroughs and cities of the third class of the Commonwealth furnish each person, on the payment of taxes, with a numbered receipt, setting out date, name of tax-payer, amount of tax and district in which tax-payer is assessed, from a book to be furnished by the county commissioners, containing a stub, that on the stub memoranda shall be made in ink of the number of the receipt, the date, name of tax-payer, amount of tax and district in which tax-payer is assessed."

Section 3. That Section 2 of said act, which reads as follows: "Section 2. That twenty days before each election the tax collector of townships and boroughs shall send a sheet to the office of the county commissioners containing the number of each receipt issued, date of payment, name of tax-payer, amount of tax and district in which tax-payer is assessed for the period since the last report. The first report shall be for taxes received on and after June first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five," and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 2. That twenty-five days before each election the tax collector of townships, boroughs and cities of the third class shall send a sheet to the office of the county commissioners containing the number of each receipt issued, date of payment, name of tax-payer, amount o ftax and district in which tax-payer is assessed for the period since the last report. The first report shall be for taxes received on and after June first, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen."

EXHIBIT C.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN CITIES OF THE THIRD CLASS.

Proposed change: To extend the term of registry assessor in cities of the third class from two to four years; because this is uniform with the term of the real estate assessor, who is frequently the same person as the registry assessor, in his election district; it makes the term uniform with registry assessors in boroughs and townships and with the terms of county commissioners, who revise and regulate the work of the registry assessors.

A complete new act is more desirable than to cite for amendment parts of two separate acts.

AN ACT.

Fixing the term of registry assessors or assessors to perform only duties incident to the holding of elections and registration of voters in cities of the third class at four years.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That at the municipal election to be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen, and quadrennially thereafter, at the November municipal election, there shall be elected in each election district or precinct in all cities of the third class in the Commonwealth, a properly qualified person for registry assessor, to perform only such duties as are now and as heretofore have been required by law of assessors, registry or assistant assessors, incident to the holding of elections and registration of voters.

Section 2. That the term of such assessors shall begin on the first Monday of December following their election and shall continue for four years.

Section 3. The compensation of such assessors shall be the same as now fixed by law.

Section 4. That all laws inconsistent with this are hereby repealed.

EXHIBIT D.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS BY REGISTRY ASSESSORS IN ALL ELECTION DISTRICTS.

Amendment to Section 1 of the Act of May 29, 1891, P. L. 134. Commission's Codification, page 6, Section 20.

Purpose of Amendment: To dispense with registry in December—no longer necessary, because February elections are abolished.

AN ACT.

To amend an act approved May 29, 1891, amending an act approved January 30, 1874, the former being entitled "An Act to amend Sections one, two and three of an act, entitled 'A further supplement to the act regulating elections in this Commonwealth,' approved the thirteenth day of January, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, changing the time and manner of making the registry of voters and the duties of registry assessors," by abolishing the December registry.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That so much of Section 1 of an act, approved May 29, 1891, entitled "An Act to amend Sections one, two and three of an act entitled 'A further supplement to an act regulating elections in this Commonwealth,' approved the thirteenth day of January, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, changing the time and manner of making the registry of voters and the duties of registry assessors," which reads as follows:

"Section 1. That for the purpose of making the original anuual assessment and registration of voters in each of the election districts of this Commonwealth, it shall be the duty of each of the assessors, who are required to perform any of the duties incident to the holding of elections and the registration of voters in the different election districts of this Commonwealth, to visit in person each and every dwelling house in his district on the first Monday in May and on the first Monday in December of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be possible and practicable, when all of said dwelling houses cannot be personally visited by him on the said first Monday of May and on the first Monday in December," shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 1. That for the purpose of making the original annual assessment and registration of voters in each of the election districts of this Commonwealth, it shall be the duty of each of the assessors, who are required to perform any of the duties incident to the holding of elections and the registration of voters in the different election districts of this Commonwealth, to visit in person each and every dwelling house in his district on the first Monday in May, or as soon thereafter as may be possible and practicable, when all of said dwelling houses cannot be personally visited by him on the said first Monday of May.

EXHIBIT E.

ASSESSMENTS OF VOTERS BY REGISTRY ASSESSORS

See Act of May 16, 1895, P. L., 75, Sec. 3. Commission's Codification, page 9, Section 26.

Proposed Amendment: To strike out the December Registry—because of the abolition of the February Election.

AN ACT.

Amending an act approved May 16, 1895, entitled "An Act to amend Sections two and three of an act, entitled 'A further supplement to the act regulating elections in this Commonwealth,' approved the twenty-ninth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one changing the time and manner of making the registry of voters and the duties of registry assessors."

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That Section 3 of an act approved May 16, 1895, entitled "An Act to amend Sections two and three of an act, entitled 'A further supplement to the act regulating elections in this Commonwealth,' approved the twenty-ninth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, changing the time and manner of making the registry of voters and the duties of registry assessors," which reads as follows:

"Section 3. After the assessments have been completed on the sixty-second day before the third Tuesday of February, and on the sixty-second day before the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each year, the assessor shall, on the following day, make a return to the county commissioners of the 'Original Registry List' thus revised and completed, and the county commissioners shall thereupon proceed to make out a complete list in alphabetical order of all persons so returned as taxables in said election district, and furnish the same together with the necessary election blanks to the officers of the election in such election district on or before seven o'clock in the morning of the election, and no man shall be permitted to vote at the election on that day whose name is not on said list unless he shall make proof of his right to vote as hereinafter required. 'The Original Registry List,' as returned to the county commissioners preceding the November election, shall be returned by the county commissioners to the assessor before the first Monday of December, which shall be used by said assessor to make his original registry list for December, as heretofore provided," shall be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 3. After the assessments have been completed on the sixty-second day before the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each year, the assessor shall, on the following day, make a return to the county commissioners of the "Original Registry List" thus revised and completed, and the county commissioners shall thereupon proceed to make out a complete list in alphabetical order of all persons so returned as taxables in all and every election district in the townships and boroughs of this Commonwealth, and furnish the same, together with the necessary election blanks, to the officers of the election in such election district, on or before seven o'clock in the morning of the election; and no man shall be permitted to vote at the election on that day whose name is not on said list, unless he shall make proof of his right to vote as hereinafter required,

EXHIBIT F.

REGISTRATION IN CITIES OF THE THIRD CLASS.

This act contemplates that in cities of the third class the registry assessors shall make the original canvass and registry of voters after the usual Spring changes; the same as is provided for boroughs and townships in Sections 20, 21, 22 and 23 of the Code. Sections 24, 25 and 26 of the Code, relating to boroughs and townships, are superseded and supplied by this act, which prescribes more rigid regulations for registration in cities of the third class; but abolishes and obviates the necessity of personal attendance upon the registrars.

See Acts of 1906, P. L., 63, 1907, P. L., 251, and 1911, P. L., 1014. To be repealed and supplied by this law.

AN ACT.

To provide for the revision of the registration of voters in cities of the third class, by registrars appointed by the county commissioners; and prescribing penalties for their violation or neglect of duty and for other misconduct.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the county commissioners of each county in which are located cities or a city of the third class, shall not later than September 1, 1913, and thereafter not later than September 1st, every fourth year, appoint two registrars for each election precinct in such city or cities, to serve for a term of four years, and until their successors are duly qualified. The said registrars must be duly qualified electors of the precinct or ward for which they are appointed, and must have been residents of the city in which said precinct or ward is situated for a period of two years before their said appointment, and of the precinct or ward for one year immediately preceding the same. They must be sober and judicious persons, of good moral character, able to read intelligently and to write legibly. One of the said registrars shall be a member of the party polling the highest vote within the election precinct or ward at the last preceding Presidential election and the other shall be a member of the party polling the next highest vote. It is the intent of this act that at all times the Board of Registrars shall be, as nearly as may be, evenly divided in political faith, and, therefore, if it appear that at any time, by reason of a change in political affiliations or because of error in the appointment, the Board is not so evenly divided, any ten electors of the district may file a petition with the county commissioners, setting forth the facts, and praying that the changed or erroneous appointments may be revoked and another appointment made instead. The county commissioners shall grant a public hearing, and if they find the facts to be as represented, they shall give the relief asked for. No person who holds, or is a candidate for, a public office shall act as registrar.

Section 2. The county commissioners shall also be empowered to remove any of the said registrars for misconduct or malfeasance in office.

Section 3. The names of two suitable persons to be registrars shall be suggested to the county commissioners, by petitions duly filed for each precinct or ward, by the party representatives of the two leading parties of the precinct or ward. The petitions shall be signed by five electors of the district, and shall set forth the names, addresses, occupations, and political affiliations of the persons suggested. The signers of the petitions shall swear to the truth of the facts set forth therein. The petition shall remain on file, open to the public inspection, at least ten days before the persons named therein shall be appointed, except in cases where a vacancy occurs in the office of registrar within ten days of a registration day, when the appointment can be made without such delay. If no petitions are filed, the county commissioners may appoint. No appointment shall be made unless the person who desires to be appointed personally appears before the county commissioners and satisfies them of his qualifications. In case of reappointment, however, it shall not be necessary for him to appear before them.

Section 4. At least one week's notice of the time and place of the examination of the suggested registrars shall be given by the county commissioners, in the daily press; and any elector may apper, either in person or by counsel, and object to the qualification of any applicant. If the persons nominated are found not to be properly qualified, the county commissioners may decline to appoint them; and the party authorities of the precinct or ward may then suggest another name, or other names, for the said place or places, and failing to do so the commissioners shall appoint.

Section 5. The registrars shall receive a compensation of five dollars a day, for the time actually spent in the work of registration.

Section 6. The registrars of each election district shall meet at the polling places thereof, on the seventh Tuesday and third Saturday preceding every November election, and shall remain in open session, from eight ante meridian to one post meridian, two to six post meridian, and from seven post meridian to ten post meridian, of each registration day.

Section 7. They shall, at the first of such meetings herein provided for, viz.: on the seventh Tuesday before the November election, obtain and receive from the county commissioners, who shall deliver to them the "Original Registry List" provided for in the laws regulating the assessment of voters by the assistant or registry assessors. They shall proceed to make out two complete lists in alphabetical order of all persons returned thereon as legal voters; noting their reported place of residence, street and number.

Section 8. They shall, at each of said meetings, revise and purge said lists by adding thereto any names of qualified electors—proved by the written affidavits of two qualified electors—who have been omitted therefrom; and they shall strike from the list the names of such persons as shall be proved, to their satisfaction, by the affidavits of at least two qualified electors of the precinct or ward, to have died, or removed from the district, since the original registry.

Section 9. They shall obtain and receive from the county commissioners and the county commissioners shall deliver to them the originals or copies of the tax collectors' reports provided for by the laws of this Commonwealth to be made by the tax collectors for their election districts for the two preceding years; and therefrom they shall obtain the information and record opposite each voter's name the date of his last payment of a State or county tax.

Section 10. Parties or bodies of electors, who are now, or hereafter may be, entitled to have watchers at the general election, shall be allowed to appoint not more than three electors of the precinct or ward to act as watchers in each place of registry, without expense to the county, on each registration day. No more than one watcher from such party shall be allowed in the registry place at any one time. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, stating his name and the party or policy he represents. Watchers shall be entitled to be present during all of the public sessions herein provided for, and shall be required to show their certificates when requested to do so. They shall have the power to challenge.

Section 11. At the end of each day's registration the registrars shall compare the two registers, so kept, and cause any errors in either of them to be corrected by aid of the entries in the others, so as to make the same agree, where there is any difference between them. The registrars shall then sign their initials on the line immediately under the last names registered, under each letter, in both books, together with the date. At the close of the registrations, the registrars shall sign a certificate, the form of which shall be printed on the last page of the registers, setting forth the number of persons added to the "original registry" on each day, and the number of names which have been stricken out, if any.

Section 12. If any citizen shall object to the action of the registrars in accepting or rejecting any claim for registration, or to any record or act or registration, he may file his petition with the county commissioners, setting forth the ground of his complaint, within five days. If the complaint is to the acceptance of a claim, notice to the claimant shall be given by leaving a written or printed notice at his place of residence, as given by him to the registrars and recorded on the registers. When such petitions are filed, the county commissioners shall fix a time and place for hearing them, sufficiently in advance of the election to enable the same to he heard and disposed of prior thereto, and to have a review thereof by the courts. Such hearing shall be public, before the county commissioners, and the registers of voters may be amended, either by the insertion of a new name or the cancellation of a name already on the registers, or otherwise, as the county commissioners may order. The county commissioners may enforce their orders as herein provided, or may make the amendments themselves or by their clerks.

Section 13. Any elector who is not satisfied with the decision of the county commissioners, may petition the court of common pleas, or any judge thereof at chambers, setting forth the reasons why he feels that injustice has been done, and thereupon the said court of common pleas or judge may, in its or his discretion, allow an appeal from the decision of the county commissioners. And the court, after a public hearing, may reverse, affirm, or alter the decision of the county commissioners, Said appeals must be made not later than five days preceding the election.

Section 14. The county commissioners shall supply to the registrars the blank books, forms and other supplies prepared for their use, before the first registartion day. On registration days, and during the time from one such day to another, until the close of the registration period, the said registrars shall have the custody and control, and shall be charged with the safe-keeping, of the registers in which they have made entries, together with all affidavits, forms, and so forth, and shall return them to the county commissioners on the Monday after the third Saturday before the November election.

Section 15. On or before seven o'clock on the morning of election day of the county commissioners shall furnish the two lists of the completed registry of voters to the officers of the election in their respective election districts.

Section 16. No person who appears on said lists to be a legally qualified voter shall be subject to challenge; and the vote of each person on said list shall be accepted by the election officers.

Section 17. No person who does not appear on said list to be a legally qualified elector shall be permitted to vote.

Section 18. After the election, the election officers shall deposit one of the registry lists with the voters' list in the ballot box; the other registry list shall be returned to the county commissioners, and the registrars shall deliver all affidavits, vouchers, unused forms and other papers to the county commissioners, who shall retain them for one year at least except in cases of contested elections, when they shall be under the control and abide the order of the court hearing the contest.

Section 19. The county commissioners of each county, upon proper vouchers, shall provide for the payment of the registrars provided by this act. They shall furnish proper rooms for the accommodation of themselves and their records. They shall also prepare and have printed, at the expense of the county, all the registers, affidavits, blanks, blank books, and stationery required by the provisions of this act, or which are reasonably necessary to carry out it provisions, and shall provide for their proper distribution to the registrars. It shall also be their duty to see that the polling places are open and in proper order for the use of the registrars.

Section 20. The two registers shall be used at elections by the election officers, in the place of the ballot check-list and the voting check-list. One of the said registers shall be marked "ballot check-list," and the other shall be marked "voting check-list." The ballot check-list shall be returned to the county commissioners and the voting check-list shall be deposited in the ballot box.

Section 21. Any registrar willfully violating any of the provisions of this act; or wilfully registering any false statement, or any elector as qualified whom he knows not to be qualified, or excluding from the registry any voter whom he knows to be qualified shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than 30 days not more than a year,and a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100) and not more than one thousand dollars ($1000) and in addition thereto he shall be deprived of the right of suffrage for a term of four years from the date of his sentence.

Section 22. Any elector who shall wilfully make any false affidavit or statement to any registrar, with intent to procure the registration of an elector not qualified or to exclude or prevent the registration of an elector who is qualified, shall be deemed to have committed perjury and shall be punishable as other perjury is punished, and in addition thereto he shall be deprived of the right of suffrage for a term of four years from the date of his sentence.

Section 23. All laws, acts of assemblies or parts of such acts inconsistent herewith or conflicting with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Section 24. The act of assembly approved March 6, 1906, P. L., 63, entitled "An Act to provide for the personal registration of electors in cities of the third class of this Commonwealth, to make such registration a condition of the right to vote in such cities, and to provide penalties for violation of its provisions," and all amendments thereto are hereby expressly repealed.

Section 2. That section eight of said act, as amended by section six of said Act of June 16, 1911, which reads as follows:

"Section 8. Every person who shall have paid his taxes on or before the last day for registration and who shall possess all the other qualifications of an elector, as provided in the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, or who by continued residence in his election division will obtan such qualifications before the next ensuing election, shall be entitled to be registered; but no person shall be registered unless at least two of the registrars determine that he is so qualified," be amended to read as follows:

Section 8. Every person who shall have paid his taxes on or before the last day for registration and who shall possess all the other qualifications of an elector, as provided in the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, or who by continued residence in his election division will obtain such qualifications before the next ensuing election, shall be entitled to be registered; but no person shall be registered unless at least two of the registrars determine that he is so qualified. When the person offering to register claims the right on payment of tax, the receipt for such tax, if signed by the proper officer, shall be evidence thereof; if such person is unable to produce such receipt, then the payment of the tax may be proved by the oath of such person, stating when, where and to whom such tax was paid, and that the receipt therefor has been lost, destroyed or is inaccessible.

EXHIBIT H.

HOURS OF REGISTRATION.

Codification, Section 36.

Purpose: To lengthen the hours of registration.

AN ACT

To amend section six of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the personal registration of electors in cities of the first and second classes of this Commonwealth, to make such registration a condition of the right to vote in such cities and to provide penalties for violations of its provisions" approved the seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six as amended by section four of an Act approved the sixteenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven, by changing the hours of registration.

Be it enacted, etc., That Section six of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the personal registration of electors in Cities of the first and second classes of this Commonwealth, to make such registration a condition of the right to vote in such cities and to provide penalties for violations of its provisions," approved the Seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six as amended by section four of an Act approved the sixteenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven, which reads as follows:

"Section 6. The registrars of each division shall meet at the polling place thereof, in even numbered years on the ninth Thursday, seventh Tuesday, and fifth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration, and on the fifth Wednesday preceding the Spring primary, which shall be known as the Spring registration; and, in odd-numbered years, on the tenth Thursday, ninth Tuesday, and eighth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration; and shall remain in open session from seven ante meridian to ten ante meridian, and from four post meridian to ten post meridian, of each registration day. They shall, on said days, receive personal applications from persons who claim that they are entitled to be registered. They shall have power to administer oaths, shall examine said applicants under oath and shall record on the register the names of those whom they shall determine to be qualified, as hereinafter provided. Two weeks' notice of the registration days shall be given by the commissioners, by publication in at least two daily newspapers in the city, and by posting notices at the polling places. Electors who did not register at fall registration may register at spring registration, and the list shall become of no validity at the beginning of the period of fall registration next succeeding that at which the registers were opened. The old registers shall be preserved by the commissioners for at least two years after the year in which they shall have been in use," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 6. The registrars of each division shall meet at the polling place thereof, in even numbered years on the ninth Thursday, seventh Tuesday, and fifth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration, and on the fifth Wednesday preceding the Spring primary, which shall be known as the Spring registration; and, in odd-numbered years, on the tenth Thursday, ninth Tuesday, and eighth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration; and shall remain in open session from seven ante meridian to eleven ante meridian, and from two post meridian to nine post meridian, of each registration day. Electors who did not register at fall registration may register at spring registration, and the list shall become of no validity at the beginning of the period of fall registration next succeeding that at which the registers were opened. The old registers shall be preserved by the commissioners for at least two years after the year in which they shall have been in use.

EXHIBIT I.

PAYMENT OF TAXES AT REGISTRATION.

Purpose: To provide for the payment of taxes at the time and place of registration.

AN ACT

Providing for the appointment of deputy tax collectors to sit at the polling places in cities of the first, second and third class upon the days provided for the personal registration of electors in said cities and for the appointment of registrars as such deputy tax collectors.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the receiver of taxes in cities of the first class and the city treasurer in cities of the second and third class shall appoint a deputy tax collector for each election district in said cities, whose duty it shall be to be present at the polling place upon each of the days provided by law for the personal registration of electors in said cities during the hours of registration and to receive payment of taxes from persons who have been duly assessed in said district and make proper receipt therefor. The said receiver of taxes or city treasurer may appoint one of the registrars as deputy tax collector for that purpose, and it shall be the duty of the board of registration commissioners in cities of the first and second class and of the county commissioners in cities of the third class within ten days after the appointment of any registrar to certify to the said receiver of taxes or city treasurer the name of the registrar so appointed.

Section 2. The said deputy tax collectors shall hold office for the same period and shall receive the same compensation and shall be subject to the same duties and penalties as are provided by law in the case of other deputy tax collectors in said cities.

Section 3. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

EXHIBIT J.

PARTY ENROLLMENT.

Purpose: To prevent raiding at the primaries.

AN ACT

To provide for the registration and enrollment of the voters of the State according to their respective party preferences, and to prescribe penalties for false registration, and for voters voting, or attempting to vote, and for election officers permitting, or conspiring to permit, them to vote at a primary by or on any other than their own proper party ticket.

Section 1. Be it enacted, That at each and every registration of voters held under any of the election and registration laws of this State, whether it is a personal registration or otherwise, and in all cities, counties, boroughs, townships and all other districts, there shall be a registration and enrollment of the voters according to their respective party preferences and affiliations.

Section 2. In all election districts where personal registration is required, in addition to other questions to be asked and answered and record made of the answer, the voter shall be interrogated and his answer shall be recorded as to the political party with which he is affiliated and at whose next primary he desires to vote; and this party preference or affiliation shall be certified with and in the same manner as all other matters of which record is made. Provided, however, that if any voter does not desire to vote at a primary election he shall not be required to answer as to his party affiliation, and in such case his party affiliation shall not be recorded.

Section 3. In all election districts in which personal registration is not required, and in which the registry of voters is made by assessors, registers or registrars, the person making the registry shall ascertain, by inquiry of the voter when practicable, and by the best other means in his power, the party politics, preferences or affiliations of the voter and note and record the same with the residence and other particulars required in registration; and the same shall be returned and certified with the names of the voters.

Section 4. Any elector who is dissatisfied with the registration made of his party preferences or affiliations, or whose preferences and affiliations have not been ascertained, designated or recorded, may have the registry corrected, amended, altered or enlarged so as to secure a correct registration in the same manner and by the same processes as are provided by law for the correction and amendment of the registry in other particulars, provided that such amendments shall not be made later than ten days before any primary election at which the voter desires or intends to vote.

Section 5. No voter enrolled or registered as a member of any one particular party shall be allowed to receive or vote the ballot of any other political party, and no elector who is not enrolled or registered as a member of some political party shall be permitted to vote, at any primary election.

Section 6. Any assessor or registrar willfully violating any of the provisions of this act, or willfully registering any false statement of an elector, or registering as the member of a political party one whom he knows not to be such, or excluding from a party registry or enrollment any voter whom he knows to be entitled thereto, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than thirty (30) days nor more than one (1) year, and a fine of not less than One Hundred Dollars ($100) and not more than One Thousand Dollars ($1,000), and, in addition thereto, he shall be deprived of the right of suffrage for a term of four (4) years from the date of his conviction.

Section 7. Any elector who shall willfully make any false affidavit or statement to any assessor or registrar, with intent to procure the false party enrollment or registration of himself or of any other voter, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than thirty (30) days nor more than one (1) year, and a fine of not less than One Hunderd Dollars ($100) and not more than One Thousand Dollars ($1,000), and, in addition thereto, he shall be deprived of the right of suffrage for a term of four (4) years from the date of his conviction.

Section 8. Any voter or elector of the Commonwealth willfully voting, or attempting to vote, at any primary election in violation of the provisions of this act, or any election officer willfully receiving or conspiring to receive the vote of any elector casting the ballot as a voter of any political party not qualified as a member of said party under the provisions of this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than thirty (30) days nor more than one (1) year, and a fine of not less than One Hundred Dollars ($100) and not more than One Thousand Dollars ($1,000), and, in addition thereto, he shall be deprived of the right of suffrage for a term of four (4) years from the date of his conviction.

Section 9. All laws or Acts of Assembly inconsistent or in conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

EXHIBIT K.

UNIFORM PRIMARIES.

Commission's Codification, sections 89 to 91.

Purpose of Amendment: (1) To require the candidate's consent to any petition to place his name on the ballot. (2) To prevent a candidate from running on more than one ballot. (3) To provide for the withdrawal of candidates.

AN ACT

To amend an Act entitled "An Act providing a uniform method of electing certain party officers and delegates to State and National conventions and of making nominations for certain public offices; providing for the payment of the expenses of the same; making certain violations thereof misdemeanors, and prescribing penalties for the violation of its provisions," approved the seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six, by providing that the signed consent of the candidate shall accompany every petition to place his name upon a primary ballot; providing that no candidate's name shall be printed upon the ballot of more than one party except with the consent of every such party; and providing for the withdrawal of candidates.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That section five of an act entitled "An act providing a uniform method of electing certain party officers and delegates to State and National Conventions and of making nominations for certain public offices; providing for the payment of the expenses of the same; making certain violations thereof misdemeanors and prescribing penalties for the violation of the provisions," approved February seventeenth, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six, which reads as follows:

"Section 5. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party, upon the filing of petitions, signed by qualified electors of the political district division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated.

The said petitions, in the case of candidates for Congress or for State offices, shall be filed, at least four weeks prior to the primary, with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and in all other cases shall be filed, at least three weeks prior to the primary, with the county commissioners of the respective counties.

The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for members of Congress, Judges of the various courts, and State Senator, two hundred qualified electors.

2. Candidates for nomination for members of the State House of Representatives, and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

3. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to State and National conventions, and for party offices, ten qualified electors," be amended to read as follows:

Section 5. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party upon the filing of petitions signed by qualified electors of the political district or division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated and accompanied by the signed consent of the candidate, duly acknowledged in the manner provided for the acknowledgment of deeds: Provided, that after a petition has been filed to place the name of a candidate pupon the ballot of any party, no petition shall be filed to place his name upon the ballot of any other party, unless he shall first withdraw as a candidate of such first party, or unless such petition shall be accompanied by the written consent of every party whose nomination he seeks, signified by the certificate of the chairmen of the respective party committees for the political district for which such nomination is to be made, that such committee consents thereto.

The said petitions in the case of candidates for Congress, or for State offices, shall be filed at least four weeks prior to the primary with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in all other cases shall be filed at least three weeks prior to the primary with the county commissioners of the respective counties.

The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for members of Congress, Judges of the various courts and State Senators, two hundred qualified electors.

2. Candidates for nomination for members of the State House of Representatives and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

3. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to conventions and for party offices, ten qualified electors.

Any person for whom a petition has been filed as aforesaid may at any time up to ten days before the primary withdraw his name with the same effect as if such petition had never been filed, by filing in the office in which such petition was filed his written withdrawal, duly asknowledged in the manner provided for the acknowledgment of deeds.

EXHIBIT L.

SEPARATE PARTY PRIMARIES.

Commission's Codification, Sections 78 to 115.

Purpose of Amendments: (1) To allow parties to hold their primaries on different dates. (2) To leave to the party to determine whether it shall nominate directly or indirectly. (3) To permit each party to select its own officers for the conduct of its primary, and to determine the qualifications of its members. (4) To place the cost of the primaries upon the parties.

AN ACT.

To amend an act entitled "An Act providing a uniform method of electing certain party officers and delegates to State and National conventions and of making nominations for certain public offices; providing for the payment of the expenses of the same; making certain violations thereof misdemeanors, and prescribing penalties for the violation of its provisions," approved the seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six, by providing for separate primaries for each party, conducted by officers selected by the party; permitting parties to determine what candidates they shall nominate thereat; defining the method of ascertaining the vote cast by a party for the purpose of determining its right to nominate by primary; requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several parties; providing that the signed consent of the candidates shall accompany every petition to place his name upon a primary ballot; providing that no candidate's name shall be printed upon the ballot of more than one party except with the consent of every such party; and providing for the withdrawal of candidates.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That Section two of an act entitled "An Act providing a uniform method of electing certain party officers and delegates to State and National conventions and of making nominations for certain public offices; providing for the payment of the expenses of the same; making certain violations thereof misdemeanors and prescribing penalties for the violation of its provisions," approved the seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six (Pamphlet Laws, page 36), as amended by Section one of an act approved the sixth day of April, A. D. 1911, which reads as follows:

"Section 2. From and after the approval of this act one primary shall be held each year, in every election district of this Commonwealth in which nominations are to be made or delegates or party officers elected, as herein provided. The said primaries shall be held on the last Saturday of September in all odd numbered years, and on the second Saturday of April in all even numbered years. The primary held on the last Saturday of September shall be known as the Fall primary, and the primary held on the second Saturday of April shall be known as the Spring primary.

Delegates to State and National conventions, except delegates-at-large to National conventions, which shall be elected by the State convention, shall be elected at the Spring primary, throughout the Commonwealth, by any party or body of electors one of whose candidates, at either the general or municipal election preceding, polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the State for any candidate at the last general election. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the general election, with the exception of those nominated by National or State conventions, shall be nominated at the Spring primary. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the municipal election shall be nominated at the Fall primary, and such party officers as are provided for by the rules of the several political parties to be elected by vote of the party electors, shall be elected at the Spring primary, by any political party or body of electors one of whose candidates, at either the general or municipal election preceding such primary, polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast, in the political district in which nominations are to be made or candidates elected, for any candidate at the last general election.

No delegates to State or National conventions, or officers of parties, shall be elected, or candidates for the public offices herein specified be nominated, in any other manner than as set forth in this act: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the nomination of candidates for borough or township offices, or other offices not herein specifically enumerated, in the manner provided by existing laws; or any association of electors, not constituting a party, from nominating candidates by nomination papers, as is provided by existing laws.

This act shall not apply to the nomination of candidates for Presidential electors, or to the nomination of candidates to be voted for at special elections to fill vacancies; but it shall not be construed to prevent the nomination of Presidential electors at primaries, if the rules of the respective parties so provide," be amended to read as follows:

Section 2. Nominations may be made by any political party which at the general or municipal election next preceding polled at least two per centum of the largest entire vote for any office cast in the State, or in the political district or division thereof for which said party desires to make nominations in such manner not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act as such party may determine. The vote polled by any party shall be the largest vote polled by any candidate of such party who was not the candidate of any other party, or in case of no such candidate, then the straight party vote.

A primary is any election held by a political party, as aforesaid, either for the election of delegates, or the nomination of candidates by direct vote of the party electors. Every such primary shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this act, except primaries held for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at special elections to fill vacancies.

Primaries shall be held at such times not later than the fourth Saturday in September, in each year as the party shall elect, Provided, That all of the primaries of one party throughout the State shall be held on the same day.

Section 2. That Section three of said act, as amended by Section two of said Act of April 6, 1911, which reads as follows:

"Section 3. On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the primary, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send to the county commissioners in each county a written notice, setting forth the number of Congressmen and officers of the Commonwealth, not nominated by State conventions, to be elected or voted for therein at the next succeeding general election.

On or before the same date in even numbered years the chairman of the State committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners a written notice, setting forth the number of delegates to be elected in such county to the State and National conventions of such party.

On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Spring primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice, setting forth the names of all party offices to be filled by election at the ensuing primary.

On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Fall primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice setting forth the names of all county and city offices to be filled by the election at the ensuing primary.

Upon receipt of such notices, and beginning within one week thereafter, such county commissioners shall publish the number of delegates to be elected to the State and National conventions of each party, together with the names of all offices for which nominations are to be made or candidates for the party offices to be elected, within the county, at the ensuing primary, at least once each week for three successive weeks, in two newspapers of general circulation published within the county, wherever such course is possible. Such newspapers, so far as practicable, shall be representative of different political parties," be amended to read as follows:

Section 3. Any party desiring to hold a primary in any county or division thereof shall, through the chairman of its county committee, on or before the ninth Saturday preceding the date of such primary, send written notice to the county commissioners of the date upon which it is proposed to hold such primary, together with a list of delegates and party officers to be elected and candidates to be nominated thereat.

Upon receipt of such notices, and beginning within one week thereafter, the county commissioners shall give notice of the date of such primary and of the delegates and party officers to be elected and candidates to be nominated thereat by publication at least once a week for three successive weeks in two newspapers of general circulation published within the county, whenever such course is possible.

Section 3. That Section five of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 5. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party, upon the filing of petitions, signed by qualified electors of the political district division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated.

The said petitions, in the case of candidates for Congress or for State offices, shall be filed, at least four weeks prior to tht primary, with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and in all other cases shall be filed, at least three weeks prior to the primary, with the county commissioners of the respective counties.

The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for members of Congress, Judges of the various courts, and State Senators, two hundred qualified electors.

2. Candidates for nomination for members of the State House of Representatives, and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

3. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to State and National conventions, and for party offices, ten qualified electors," be amended to read as follows:

Section 5. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party upon the filing of petitions signed by qualified electors of the political district or division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated and accompanied by the signed consent of the candidate duly acknowledged in the manner provided for the acknowledgment of deeds, Provided, That after a petition has been filed to place the name of a candidate upon the ballot of any party, no petition shall be filed to place his name upon the ballot of any other party, unless he shall first withdraw as a candidate of such first party, or unless such petition shall be accompanied by the written consent of every party whose nomination he seeks, signified by the certificate of the chairman of the respective party committees for the political district for which such nomination is to be made, that such committee consents thereto.

The said petitions in the case of candidates for Congress, or for State offices, shall be filed at least four weeks prior to the primary with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in all other cases shall be filed at least three weeks prior to the primary with the county commissioners of the respective counties.

The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for offices to be filled by voters of the State at large, five hundred qualified electors.

2. Candidates for nomination for members of Congress, Judges of the various courts and State Senators two hundred qualified electors.

3. Candidates for nomination for members of the State House of Representatives and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

4. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to conventions and for party offices, ten qualified electors.

Any person for whom a petition has been filed as aforesaid may at any time up to ten days before the primary withdraw his name with the same effect as if such petition had never been filed, by filing in the office in which such petition was filed his written withdrawal duly acknowledged in the manner provided for the acknowledgment of deeds.

Section 4. That Section seven of said act which reads as follows:

"Section 7. The county commissioners shall prepare, and furnish to the election officers for use at the primaries, as many official ballots of each party as are equal to double the total number of votes cast for any candidate of said party, within the election district, at the last general election: Provided, That the county commissioners shall furnish such additional number of ballots, in any election district, as may be requested in writing by the chairman of the county committee of any party; such requests must be filed with the county commissioners two weeks before the primary.

The county commissioners shall also furnish one-fourth as many specimen ballots as the whole number of official ballots, to be printed on colored paper, and to be of the same size and form as the official ballot, for the use of the electors at the polls.

The official ballots shall be bound, in books of one hundred each, in the same manner as ballots at elections; and shall be delivered to the officers of election in the same manner as ballots are or hereafter may be required by law to be delivered to officers of election, for use at elections.

The county commissioners shall prepare, and furnish to the election officers, at the primaries, such ballot-boxes, properly numbered for each election district, list of voters, forms, blanks, return sheets, blank books and other supplies as they are, or hereafter may be, required to furnish, by law, to said officers for use at elections, and shall deliver them in the same manner as at elections. The said supplies shall have printed upon them appropriate instructions, and shall be in appropriate form for use at the primaries. They shall also provide for the opening of the polling places, for the compensation of the owners thereof, shall see that they are in proper order, and provided with voting-booths, as at elections," be amended to read as follows:

Section 7. The county commissioners shall prepare and furnish to the election officers, for use at the primaries, as many official ballots as are equal to double the total number of votes cast for any candidate of the party holding the primary within the election district at the last general election, Provided, That the county commissioners shall furnish such additional number of ballots in any election district as may be requested in writing by the chairman of the county committee of such party; such requests must be filed with the county commissioners two weeks before the primary.

The county commissioners shall also furnish one-fourth as many specimen ballots as the whole number of official ballots, to be printed on colored paper and to be of the same size and form as the official ballot, for the use of the electors at the polls.

The official ballots shall be bound in books of one hundred each in the same manner as ballots at elections, and shall be delivered to the officers of election in the same manner as ballots are, or hereafter may be required by law to be delivered to officers of election for use at elections.

The county commissioners shall prepare and furnish to the election officers at the primaries such ballot boxes, properly numbered for each election district, lists of voters, forms, blanks, return sheets, blank books and other supplies as they are or hereafter may be required to furnish by law to said officers for use at elections, and shall deliver them in the same manner as at elections. The said supplies shall have printed upon them appropriate instructions, and shall be in appropriate form for use at the primaries. They shall also provide for the opening of the polling places, for the compensation of the owners thereof, and shall see that they are in proper order and provided with voting booths as at elections.

Section 5. That Section eight of said act which reads as follows:

"Section 8. The primaries shall be conducted by the regular election boards, duly elected under existing laws, who shall receive one-half the compensation for their services that they receive at elections. Inspectors of elections shall have the right to appoint clerks to assist them, as at elections, who shall receive one-half the compensation that clerks receive for such services at elections. Vacancies on election boards shall be filled in the manner now provided by law. Before entering upon their duties the election officers and clerks shall be sworn, as is now required by law.

The polls shall be open between the hours of two post meridian and eight post meridian: Provided, That all persons licensed to sell liquors, either at wholesale or retail, or as bottlers, shall be compelled to keep their places of business closed, on said days for holding said primary elections, only between the hours of one o'clock post meridian and nine o'clock post meridian.

Primaries shall be conducted in conformity with the laws governing the conduct of general elections, in so far as the same are not modified by the provisions of this act or are not inconsistent with its terms: But, provided, That no elector shall be permitted to receive any assistance in marking his ballot, unless he shall first make an affidavit that he cannot read the names on the ballot, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot," be amended to read as follows:

Section 8. Primaries shall be conducted by election officers appointed or elected by the party holding the primary, in the manner provided by the rules of such party. Before entering upon their duties such officers shall be sworn in the manner now required by law in the case of election officers at elections.

The polls shall be open between the hours of two P. M. and eight P. M.

Primaries shall be conducted in conformity with the laws governing the conduct of general elections in so far as the same are not modified by the provisions of this act, or are not inconsistent with its terms, provided that no elector shall be permitted to receive any assistance in marking his ballot, unless he shall first make an affidavit that he cannot read the names on the ballot, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot.

Section 6. That Section nine of said act which reads as follows:

"Section 9. The county commissioners shall keep an accurate account of the entire expense of holding such primaries, including the preparation and delivery of supplies, voting materials, et cetra, and the total amount shall be paid, in the first instance, by the county treasurer, upon the order of the county commissioners. As soon as convenient thereafter, the county commissioners shall prepare an itemized statement of the amount so paid, verified by oath, and send the same, accompanied by the receipted vouchers, to the Auditor General, who, if he finds the same correct shall draw a warrant on the State Treasurer, for the proper county, for the amount so approved, which shall be paid by the State Treasurer out of the money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated," be amended to read as follows:

Section 9. Upon receipt of notice from any party of its intention to hold a primary, the county commissioners shall furnish to the chairman of the county committee of such party an estimate of the approximate cost of conducting such primary, which sum shall be deposited by the party with the county treasurer not less than two weeks prior to the date of such primary. The county commissioners shall keep an accurate account of the entire cost of holding such primary, including the preparation and delivery of supplies, voting materials, etc., and the total amount shall be paid in the first instance by the county treasurer, upon the order of the county commissioners. Within one week after the primary, the county commissioners shall prepare and send to the chairman of the county committee an itemized statement of the cost of conducting the primary, verified by oath and accompanied by the receipted vouchers. If the amount deposited by the party shall exceed such cost, the county commissioners shall send with such statement a warrant upon the county treasurer for such excess, and if the cost shall exceed the amount of the deposit, the party shall pay such difference to the county commissioners. If any party shall fail to make such payment at least two weeks prior to the date of election, the county commissioners shall not print the names of the candidates of such party upon the ballot.

Section 7. That Section ten of said act as amended by Section three of said Act of April 6, 1911, which reads as follows:

"Section 10. The qualifications of electors entitled to vote at a primary shall be the same as the qualifications of electors entitled to vote at elections, within the election district where the primary is held. Each elector shall prove his qualifications and his identity in the same manner in which electors in the election district in which he offers to vote are, or hereafter may be, required by law to prove their qualifications or identity, on election day.

Each elector shall have the right to receive the ballot of the party for which he asks: Provided, That if he is challenged, he shall be required to make oath or affirmation that, at the last preceding election at which he voted, he voted for a majority of the candidates of the party for whose ballot he asks.

Upon executing such affidavit the voter shall be entitled to receive the ballot for which he has called, and to cast his vote according to law," be amended to read as follows:

Section 10. The qualifications of electors at primaries shall be determined by the rules of the party holding the primary, and it shall be the duty of the chairman of the county committee of such party to furnish to the election officers before the opening of the polls a copy of the party rules, containing the qualifications of voters at primaries: Provided, That no person may vote at the primary of more than one party in the same year.

Section 8. That Section eleven of said act as amended by Section four of said Act of April 6, 1911, which reads as follows:

"Section 11. The ballot-boxes, lists of voters (a copy of which shall be posted outside of the polling place), and other records shall be delivered into the custody of the officers who now are, or hereafter may be, required by law to keep similar records of election.

Upon the closing of the polls at such primary election, the election officers shall forthwith proceed to open the ballot-boxes and take therefrom the ballots, and first count the number cast for each party, and make a record thereof; and then count the vote cast for the different persons named upon said party ballots; and, when said count is finally completed, they shall certify, in due and proper form, to the number of votes cast for each person upon the respective party tickets. They shall then replace the ballots, counted and canvassed, in the boxes, and lock the same. They shall then place the returns of votes and the register of voters, aforesaid, for each party, in separate envelopes, and seal the same; which said envelopes shall, on or before noon of the Tuesday following, be deposited by the judge of election in person, or by registered mail, with the county commissioners, who shall on the succeeding day, at noon, publicly commence the computation and canvassing of the returns, and continue the same from day to day until completed; and for that purpose to have the right to petition the court of common pleas for the use of its processes to enforce the provisions of this act in relation to the returns of the election officers.

Upon the sworn petition of ten qualified electors of any county setting forth any specific act of fraud which upon information they consider reliable they believe has been committed in any election district of said county, the court of common pleas of said county shall order the county commissioners to open the ballot-box of such district and decount the votes, such recount to be conducted in such manner and under such conditions as the court shall prescribe. Any person aggrieved by any decision of the county commissioners relative to the counting of the votes may appeal therefrom to the court of common pleas of the proper county, whose duty it shall be to hear said appeal, and to make such decree as right and justice shall require: Provided, however, That in case of a contest of delegates to a State convention, such contests shall be determined by the State convention, according to the rules of their respective parties. Contests of primaries shall be originated and conducted as in the case of elections.

The county commissioners shall make the proper certification of returns of votes cast for the candidates for nomination for members of Congress or for State offices to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who shall tabulate the same, and shall certify to the county commissioners the result of the computation of the vote for such offices, at least twenty (20) days prior to the election," be amended to read as follows:

Section 11. The ballot-boxes, lists of voters (a copy of which shall be posted outside of the polling place), and other records shall be delivered into the custody of the officers who now are, or hereafter may be required by law to keep similar records of election.

Upon the closing of the polls at such primary election, the election officers shall forthwith proceed to open the ballot-boxes and take therefrom the ballots and then count the vote cast for the different persons named upon said ballots, and when said count is finally completed, they shall certify in due and proper form to the number of votes cast for each person. They shall then replace the ballots counted and canvassed in the boxes and lock the same. They shall then place the returns of votes aforesaid in an envelope and seal the same, which said envelope shall, on or before noon of the day following be deposited by the judge of election in person, or by registered mail, with the county commissioners, who shall on the succeeding day, at noon, publicly commence the computation and canvassing of the returns, and continue the same from day to day until completed, and for that purpose shall have the right to petition the court of common pleas for the use of its processes to enforce the provisions of this act in relation to the returns of the election officers.

Upon the sworn petition of ten electors of any county setting forth any specific act of fraud which upon information which they consider reliable they believe has been committed in any election district of said county the court of common pleas of said county shall order the county commissioners to open the ballot-box of such district and recount the votes, such recount to be conducted in such manner and under such conditions as the court shall prescribe. Any person aggrieved by any decision of the county commissioners relative to the counting of the votes, may appeal therefrom to the court of common pleas of the proper county, whose duty it shall be to hear such appeal and make such decree as right and justice shall require; Provided, however, That in case of a contest of delegates to a convention, such contest shall be determined according to the rules of the party. Contests of primaries shall be originated and conducted as in the case of elections.

The county commissioners shall make the proper certification of returns of votes cast for the candidates for nomination for members of Congress, or for State offices to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who shall tabulate the same, and shall certify to the county commissioners the result of the computation of the vote for such offices at least fourteen days prior to the election.

Section 9. That Section twelve of said act as amended by Section one of an act approved the twenty-second day of May, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven (Pamphlet Laws, page 199), which reads as follows:

"Section 12. Candidates for offices of the Commonwealth, to be voted for by electors of the State-at-large, shall be nominated by the State conventions, for which delegates are elected in accordance with the terms of tnis act. The delegates who receive a plurality of the vote of party electors at the Spring primary shall be the duly elected delegates to the respective State and National conventions.

Candidates for nomination, as provided herein, who receive a plurality of votes of any party at a primary meeting, shall be the candidates of that party, and it shall be the duty of the proper officers to print their names upon the official ballots, for use at the election, as is now or hereafter may be required by law.

Candidates for party offices, who receive a plurality of the votes cast for such candidates, shall be the party officers of such party.

In case of a tie, the candidates receiving the tie vote shall cast lots before the county commissioners or the Secretary of the Commonwealth, as the case may be, and the one to whom the lot shall fall shall be entitled to the nomination or election.

Vacancies happening or existing after the date of the primary may be filled in accordance with the party rules, as is now or hereafter may be provided by law," be amended to read as follows:

Section 12. Candidates for nomination who receive a plurality of votes of any party at a primary shall be the candidates of that party, and it shall be the duty of the proper officers to print their names upon the official ballots for use at the election as is now, or hereafter may be required by law. Nominations made otherwise than by primary shall be certified in the manner now provided by law.

Candidates for delegates who receive a plurality of the votes cast for such delegates shall be the duly elected delegates of such party.

Candidates for party offices who receive a plurality of the votes cast for such candidates shall be the party officers of such party.

In case of a tie, the candidates receiving the tie vote shall cast lots before the county commissioners or the Secretary of the Commonwealth, as the case may be, and the one to whom the lot shall fall shall be entitled to the nomination or election.

Vacancies happening or existing after the date of the primary may be filled in accordance with the party rules as is now, or hereafter may be provided by law.

Section 11. That section fourteen of said act which reads as follows:

"Section 13. Each candidate shall be entitled to have two watchers at the primaries, as at elections, only one of whom shall be entitled to be within the polling room at one time. Their rights, duties and methods of appointment shall be as at elections. Each party or candidate may, at any time before the primary, present a petition to the court of common pleas of the proper county, setting forth the fact that it or he has reason to believe that in a certain district or districts frauds or unfair methods may be attempted; and if, upon a consideration of the facts presented in said petition, the court shall be of the opinion that said application is made in good faith, the said court shall appoint an overseer for said petitioner or petitioners, who shall be entitled to remain within the polling-place during the casting and the counting of the ballots," be amended to read as follows:

Section 13. Each candidate shall be entitled to have two watchers at the primaries as at elections, only one of whom shall be entitled to be within the polling room at one time. Their rights, duties and methods of appointment shall be as at elections. Each candidate may at any time before the primary present a petition to the court of common pleas for the proper county, setting forth the fact that he has reason to believe that in a certain district or districts fraud or unfair methods may be attempted, and if upon a consideration of the facts presented in said petition the court shall be of the opinion that said application is made in good faith, the court shall appoint an overseer for said petitioner or petitioners, who shall be entitled to remain within the polling place during the casting and counting of the ballots.

"Section 14. Any person who votes or attempts to vote at a primary, knowing that he does not possess the qualifications of a voter at such primary, as indicated by this act, or who shall vote or attempt to vote more than once at a primary, or who shall have unlawfully in his possession an official ballot, outside the polling place, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, in the discretion of the court. No police officer in commission, whether in uniform or in citizen's clothes, shall be within one hundred feet of a polling place during the conduct of a primary election, unless in the exercise of his privilege of voting, or for the purpose of the serving of warrants or the preserving of the peace.

Any election officer who permits a person to vote at any primary, with the knowledge that such person is not so entitled to vote, or refuses to permit any lawfully entitled elector to vote at such primary, with the knowledge that such person is so entitled to vote, or who refuses to permit him to receive the party ballot for which he asks, after having executed the affidavit herein provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Any election officer or clerk who shall be guilty of any willful fraud in the conduct of his duties at a primary, or who shall make a false return of the votes cast at such primary, or who shall deposit fraudulent ballots in the ballot-box which he knows to have been fraudulently deposited therein, or who shall write false names in the lists of voters for the purpose of concealing the deposit of such fraudulent ballots, or of aiding in the perpetration of such fraud, or who shall conspire with others to commit any of the offenses herein mentioned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Except as modified by the terms of this act, election officers shall be subject to the same pains and penalties for violations or neglect of their duties at a primary as they are or hereafter may be subject to for violation or neglect of such duties at elections. In all other respects, officers officiating at primaries shall be subject to the pains and penalties provided by law for offenses committed at primaries. The existing laws relating to bribery at primaries shall continue in force, and shall apply to bribery at primaries as provided by this act," be amended to read as follows:

Section 14. Any person who votes, or attempts to vote at a primary, knowing that he does not possess the qualifications of a voter at such primary, as determined by the party rules, or who shall vote, or attempt to vote at the primary of more than one party in the same year, or who shall have unlawfully in his possession an official ballot outside the polling place, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, in the discretion of the court. No police officer in commission, whether in uniform or in citizen's clothes shall be within one hundred feet of a polling place during the conduct of a primary election, unless in the exercise of his privilege of voting, or for the purpose of the seving of warrants, or the preserving of the peace.

Any election officer who permits a person to vote at any primary, with the knowledge that such person is not so entitled to vote, or refuses to permit any lawfully entitled elector to vote at such primary, with the knowledge that such person is so entitled to vote, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Any election officer or clerk who shall be guilty of any willful fraud in the conduct of his duties at a primary, or who shall make a false return of the votes cast at such primary, or who shall deposit fraudulent ballots in the ballot box, or who shall certify as correct a return of ballots in the ballot box which he knows to have been fraudulently deposited therein, or who shall write false names on the lists of voters, for the purpose of concealing the deposit of such fraudulent ballots, or of aiding in the perpetration of such fraud, or who shall conspire with others to commit any of the offenses herein mentioned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Except as modified by the terms of this act, the election officers shall be subject to the same pains and penalties for violation or neglect of their duties at a primary, as they are, or hereafter may be subject to for violation or neglect of such duties at elections. In all other respects, officers officiating at primaries shall be subject to the pains and penalties provided by law for offenses committed at primaries. The existing laws relating to bribery at primaries shall continue in force, and shall apply to bribery at primaries as provided by this act.

EXHIBIT M.

NOMINATION OF JUDGES OF SUPREME AND SUPERIOR COURT.

Purpose: To remedy an evident oversight in the Uniform Primary Law so as to provide a method for nomination of Judges of the Supreme and Superior Courts when voted for at municipal elections.

AN ACT

To provide for the election at Fall primaries of delegates to State conventions for the purpose of nominating candidates for the office of Judge of the Supreme and Superior Courts when such office is to be filled at a municipal election.

Whereas, It is provided by the Section two of the Act of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that all Judges elected by the electors of the State at large may be elected at either a general or municipal election as circumstances may require, and

Whereas, It is provided by the Section two of the Act of February 17th, 1906 (P. L. 36), as amended by the Section one of the Act of April 6th, 1911 (P. L. 43), that candidates for all offices to be filled at the municipal election shall be nominated at the Fall primary, and

Whereas, It is provided by Section twelve of said Act of February 17th, 1906, as amended by Section one of the Act of May 22d, 1907 (P. L. 199), that candidates for offices of the Commonwealth to be voted for by electors of the State at large shall be nominated by State Conventions, and

Whereas, There is no provision under existing laws for the election of delegates to State Conventions for the nomination of candidates for offices to be filled at municipal elections; therefore

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That whenever a Judge of the Supreme or Superior Courts is to be elected at a municipal election any party or body of electors one of whose candidates at either the general or municipal election preceding polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the State for any candidate at the last general election may at the Fall Primary preceding such municipal election elect delegates to a State Convention to be held for the purpose of nominating candidates for the office of Judge of the Supreme or Superior Courts to be voted for at said municipal election. The said election of delegates shall be conducted in accordance with existing laws regulating the election of delegates to other State Conventions except as herein modified.

Section 2. Conventions composed of delegates elected in accordance with the provisions of this Act may nominate candidates for the office of Judge of the Supreme and Superior Courts to be filled at the succeeding municipal election in the manner provided by existing laws for the nomination of candidates by State Conventions.

Section 3. Certificates of nomination by such conventions shall be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth at least twenty-one days before the date of such election, and when so filed shall be deemed valid unless objections thereto are duly made as now provided by law at least eighteen days before the date of election.

Section 4. All Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

EXHIBIT N.

PRE-EMPTION OF PARTY NAMES.

Amendment to Act of 1897, P. L. 223.

Codification, Section 117.

Purpose: To discourage the unreasonable multiplication of parties.

AN ACT

To amend an Act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties and punishing certain offenses in regard to such election," approved the tenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three by changing the method of pre-empting the use of party names.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That section three of an Act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties, and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, as amended by Section one of an Act approved the ninth day of July, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven, which reads as follows:

"Section 3. Nominations of candidates for any public office may also be made by Nomination Papers, signed by qualified electors of the State, or of the electoral district or division thereof for which the nomination is made, and filed in the proper office as provided in section five of this act. Blank forms for making such nomination shall be furnished by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and no other form than the ones so prescribed shall be used for such purpose. Where the nomination is for any office to be filled by the voters of the State-at-large, the number of qualified electors of the State signing such Nomination Paper, shall be at least one-half of one per centum of the largest vote for any officer elected in the State at the last preceding election at which a State officer was voted for. In the case of all other nominations the number of qualified electors of the electoral district or division, signing such Nomination Paper, shall be at least two per centum of the largest entire vote for any officer elected at the last preceding election in the said electoral district or division for which said Nomination Papers are designed to be made. Each elector signing a Nomination Paper shall add to his signature his place of residence and occupation, and no person may subscribe to more than one nomination for each office to be filled. The signatures to each Nomination Paper and the qualification of the signers shall be vouched for by the affidavit of at least five of the signers thereof, which affidavit shall accompany the nomination paper: Provided, That if five of the electors composing any political body making a nomination by Nomination Papers shall file with the prothonotary of the county in which the Nomination Paper or papers are to be filed an affidavit setting forth that they have adopted a certain political appellation to designate their policy, subject to the limitations of this act regarding the selection of names, that thereafter such political body shall have the exclusive right to use the said name or appellation for the election for which such nomination or nominations are made, provided that a certificate from the prothonotary setting forth such a compliance with the act be filed with the Nomination Papers filed by such political body," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 3. Nominations of candidates for any public office other than candidates of political parties for offices for which nominations are regulated by the "Uniform Primaries Act" may also be made by nomination papers, signed by qualified electors of the State, or of the electoral district or division thereof for which the nomination is made and filed in the proper office as provided in section five of this act. Blank forms for making such nomination shall be furnished by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and no other form than the ones so prescribed shall be used for such purpose. Where the nomination is for any office to be filled by the voters of the State-at-large, the number of qualified electors of the State signing such nomination paper. shall be at least one-half of one per centum of the largest vote for any officer elected in the State at the last preceding election at which a State officer was voted for. In the case of all other nominations the number of qualified electors of the electoral district or division, signing such nomination paper, shall be at least two per centum of the largest entire vote for any officer elected at the last preceding election in the said electoral district or division for which said nomination papers are designed to be made. Each elector signing a nomination paper shall add to his signature his place of residence and occupation, and no person may subscribe to more than one nomination for each office to be filled. The signature to each nomination paper and the qualification of the signers shall be vouched for by the affidavit of at least five of the signers thereof, which affidavit shall accompany the nomination paper: Provided, That if any body of electors making such nominations shall desire to adopt a certain political name or appellation to designate their policy they shall present a petititon to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County setting forth the name or appellation which they desire to adopt and the electoral district or division in which they desire to use said name. Said petition shall be signed by qualified electors of the electoral division or district in which it is desired to use said name to the number of not less than two per centum of the largest vote cast in such electoral division or district for any office at the last election at which an officer was voted for by the electors at large of said division or district, and shall be supported by an affidavit of not less than five of the signers that the averments of the petition are true and that the signers are all qualified electors of said district or division. Each elector signing such petition snall state after his signature his occupation and place of residence, and no elector shall sign more than one such petition for the same electoral district or division. The Court shall thereupon, after such notice by advertisement or otherwise as the Court may direct, hear said petition, and unless cause be shown to the contrary shall make an order granting to the said body of electors the exclusive right to use said name or appellation in such electoral district or division for the election for which such nomination or nominations are made, Provided that a certified copy of such order shall be filed with the nomination papers. No body of electors nominating by nomination papers shall be entitled to have any political name or appellation printed upon the official ballot unless it shall have complied with the provisions of this act.

EXHIBIT O.

SEPARATE BALLOT LAW.

Amendments to Act of 1893, P. L. 419, and Act of 1903, P. L. 340.

Codification, Sections 128 to 138 and 183 to 216.

Purposes: To shorten and simplify the ballot, and the method of counting and computing the returns.

AN ACT

To amend an act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties, and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, by changing the form of ballot, the method of obtaining assistance and the method of counting and returning the votes.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That section fourteen of an act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties; and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, as amended by section two of an act approved the twenty-ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 14. When Presidential electors are to be voted for, the names of candidates for Presidential electors shall be arranged in party groups, as presented in the several certificates of party nomination and nomination papers, and the groups shall be printed upon the ballot in order of the vote obtained in the State, at the last Presidential election, by the parties nominating, beginning with the party which obtained the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of political parties not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the order of arrangement shall be alphabetically.

At the head of each group of candidates shall be printed the appropriate party name or political appellation, together with the surnames of the candidates of such party for President and Vice President, underneath which shall be printed the names of the appropriate candidates for Presidential electors.

At the right of the space containing the surnames of the candidates for President and Vice President, and their party name or political appellation, there shall be a square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X), and at the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector, there shall be a similar, but smaller square.

The names of candidates for all other offices, shall, in all cases, be arranged under the title of the office for which they are candidates, and be printed in the order of the votes obtained for the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating at the last Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of parties not represented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, the name of the nominees of such parties shall be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. At the right of the name of each nominee, or candidate, shall be printed the name or appellation of the political party presenting or nominating him and at the right of such party name, or political appellation, there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross mark.

Whenever any candidate shall receive more than one nomination for the same office, his name shall be printed once, and the names of each political party, so nominating him, shall be printed to the right of the name of such candidate, arranged in the same order as candidates names are grouped, that is to say, in the order of the votes obtained by such party at the last preceding Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote. If such cadidate shall be nominated by any political party not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the name of such parties shall follow the other names, and be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or appellation. At the right of every party name, or political appellation, shall be a square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark.

There shall be left, at the end of the groups of candidates for Presidential electors, and of the list of candidates for each different office (or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held, in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefor), as many blank spaces as there are persons to be voted for, for such office, in which space the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot as a candidate for such office, and such insertion shall count as a vote, without the cross-mark as hereinafter mentioned.

Whenever the approval of a constitutional amendment or other question, is submitted to the vote of the people, such question shall be printed upon the ballot in brief form, and followed by the words "yes" and "no," and if such question be submitted at an election of public officers, it shall be printed after the list of candidates.

The ballot shall be so printed as to give to each voter a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates by a cross-mark (X), in a square of sufficient size, at the right of the name of each candidate, and inside the line enclosing the column, and, in like manner, answers to questions submitted by similar marks, in squares at the right of the words "yes" and "no." And on the ballot may be printed instructions how to mark, and such words as will aid the voter to do this, as "mark one," "mark two," and the like.

Provided, That a voter may designate his choice of an entire group of candidates for Presidential electors by one cross mark (X) in a large square, which shall be placed at the right of the names of the candidates for President and Vice President, at the head of such group, and such mark shall be equivalent to a mark against every name in the group.

Provided further, That each voter may have the opportunity of designating his choice for all the candidates, as nominated by one political party, there shall be printed on the extreme left of the ballot, and separated from the rest of the ballot by a space of at least one-half inch, a list of the names of all the political parties or groups of nominees, represented on such ballot and presenting candidates to be voted for at such election. Such names shall be arranged in the order of the votes obtained, at the last Presidential election, by the candidate at the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating beginning with the party that received the highest vote cast. Following the names of such political parties, shall be the names of the parties or principles not presented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. A square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark, shall be placed at the right of each party name or appellation. Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that political appellation, or party name, including candidates nominated by more than one party, or group of citizens.

At the head of every ballot shall be printed the following instructions:

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice, in the first column. A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate, indicates a vote for that candidate," be amended so as to read as follows:—

Section 14. When Presidential electors are to be voted for the names of the candidates for Presidential Electors shall be printed upon a separate ballot to be designated as the "Presidential Ballot." The names shall be arranged in party groups, as presented in the several certificates of party nomination and nomination papers and the groups shall be printed upon the ballot in order of the vote obtained in the State, at the last Presidential election, by the parties nominating, beginning with the party which obtained the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of political parties not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the order of arrangement shall be alphabetically.

At the head of each group of candidates shall be printed the appropriate party name or political appellation, together with the surnames of the candidates of such party for President and Vice President, underneath which shall be printed the names of the appropriate candidates, for Presidential electors, and at the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X).

At the right of the space containing the surnames of the candidates for President and Vice President, and their party name or political appellation, there shall be a similar but larger square. Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against each candidate for Presidential elector in the group.

At general elections the names of candidates for all offices to be voted for other than Presidential Electors shall be printed upon a single ballot to be designated as the "State Ballot." At Municipal Elections the names of all the candidates to be voted for shall be printed upon a single ballot to be designated as the "Municipal Ballot," except that when Judges of the Supreme or Superior Courts are to be voted for at a Municipal Election a separate State Ballot shall be provided for that purpose. The names shall in every case be arranged under the title of the office in the order of the votes obtained for the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating at the last Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of parties not represented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, the name of the nominees of such parties shall be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. At the right of the name of each nominee or candidate, and on the same line, shall be printed the initial letters of the name or appellation of each political party presenting or nominating him, arranged in the above order, and at the right of such party names or poliitcal appellations there shall be a single square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark. On the extreme left of the ballot and separated from the rest of the ballot by a space of at least one-half inch, there shall be printed a list of the names of all political parties represented on such ballot and presenting candidates to be voted for at such election which at the preceding election polled not less than two per centum of the highest vote for any office cast in the political district for which such ballot is to be used. Such names shall be arranged in the order of the votes obtained, at the last Presidential election, by the candidates at the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating, beginning with the party that received the highest vote cast. Provided that in the case of parties not represented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, the names shall be arranged alphabetically according to the party name. A square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark, shall be placed at the right of each party name. Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that party name, including candidates nominated by more than one party.

At the head of every ballot shall be printed the following instructions:

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice. A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate, indicates a vote for that candidate. And on the ballot may be printed instructions how to mark and such words as will aid the voter to do this, as "mark one," "mark two," and the like.

There shall be left at the end of the groups of candidates for Presidential electors, and of the list of candidates for each different office (or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held, in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefor) as many blank spaces as there are persons to be voted for, for such office, in which space the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot as a candidate for such office, and such insertion shall count as a vote, without a cross-mark.

Whenever the approval of a constitutional amendment, or other question is submitted to the vote of the people, such question shall be printed upon a separate ballot to be designated as the "Referendum Ballot." The question shall be stated in brief form followed by the words, "yes" and "no," and at the right of each of said words there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X).

Section 3. That section fifteen of said Act which reads as follows:

"Section 15. All the ballots used at the same voting place at any election shall be alike, and shall be at least six inches long and four inches wide. They shall be printed with the same kind or kinds of type (which shall not be smaller than the size known as "brevier" or "eight point body"), upon white paper without any impression or mark to distinguish one from another, and of sufficient thickness to prevent the printed matter from showing through. Each ballot shall be attached to a stub or counterfoil, and all the ballots for the same voting place shall be bound together in convenient numbers in books in such manner that each ballot may be detached and removed separately.

A diagonal folding line shall be printed on the right hand upper corner of the back of each ballot, and the said corner shall be edged with adhesive paste so that the corner when folded at the folding line can be securely fastened down over the number now required by the Constitution of this Commonwealth, so that the said number cannot be seen without unfastening or cutting open the part so fastened down. The top of each ballot shall have a margin of equal size on both back and face, and the said folding-line shall be upon this margin and the space between the folding-line and the paste shall be filled in with solid printing, and nothing else shall be printed on the margin except instructions how to mark: Provided, That if at any time the said Constitution shall cease to require ballots to be numbered, the foregoing requirements as to the folding-line, the margin and the adhesive paste shall be void.

On the back of each ballot, or on the right hand side of the back, if the ballot is printed in two columns, there shall be printed as a caption, "official ballot for," followed by the designation of the voting place for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the election and a facsimile of the signatures of the county commissioners of the respective counties who have caused the ballots to be printed. A record of the number of ballots printed and furnished to each voting place, shall be kept and preserved by the county commissioners of the several counties. When it is shown by affidavit that mistake or omission has occurred in the publication of names or description of candidates, or in the printing of the ballots, the court of common pleas of the district or county or any judge thereof, may upon the application of any qualified elector of the district or county require the county commissioners to correct the mistake or omission, or to show cause why they should not," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 15. Presidential and Municipal ballots shall be printed upon white paper, State ballots upon yellow paper and Referendum Ballots upon pink paper. All of the ballots of the same kind at the same voting place shall be alike and shall be at least six inches long and four inches wide. They shall be printed with the same kind or kinds of type, (which shall not be smaller than the size known as "brevier" or "eight point body"), without any impression or mark to distinguish one from another and upon paper of sufficient thickness to prevent the printed matter from showing through. Each ballot shall be attached to a stub or counterfoil and all the ballots of the same kind shall be bound together in convenient numbers in books in such manner that each ballot may be detached and removed separately.

On the back of each ballot, or on the right-hand side of the back, if the ballot is printed in two columns, there shall be printed as a caption, the words Official Presidential, State, Municipal or Referendum Ballot, as the case may be, followed by the designation of the voting place for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the election and a facsimile of the signatures of the county commissioners of the respective counties who have caused the ballots to be printed. A record of the number of ballots printed and furnished to each voting place shall be kept and preserved by the county commssiioners of the several counties. When it is shown by affidavit that mistake or omission has occurred in the publication of names or description of candidates, or in the printing of the ballots, the court of common pleas of the district or county, or any judge thereof, may upon the application of any qualified elector of the district or county require the county commissioiners to correct the mistake or omission, or to show cause why they should not.

Section 4. That section twenty-six of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 26. If any voter declares to the judge of election that by reason of any disability he desires assistance in the preparation of his ballot, he shall be permitted by the judge of election to select a qualified voter of the election district to aid him in the preparation of his ballot, such preparation being made in the voting compartment," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 26. If any voter shall make an affidavit that he cannot read the names upon the ballot, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to make his ballot, he shall be permitted by the judge of election to select a qualified voter of the election district to aid him in the preparation of his ballot, such preparation being made in the voting compartment.

Section 5. That section twenty-seven of said act as amended by section four of said act, approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 27. If a voter has marked his ballot otherwise than as directed by this act, so that for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office; but the ballot shall be counted for all other offices for which the names of candidates have been properly marked.

No ballot without the official endorsement shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be allowed to be deposited in the ballot box, and none but ballots provided in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be counted. Ballots not marked, or improperly or defectively marked, shall be endorsed as defective, but shall be preserved with the other ballots. If any ballot appears to have been obtained otherwise than as provided in this act, the judge of election shall transmit such ballot to the district attorney, without delay, together with whatever information he may have tending to the detection of the person who deposited the same," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 27. If a voter has marked his ballot otherwise than as directed by this act, so that for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office; but the ballot shall be counted for all other offices for which the names of candidates have been properly marked: Provided, That if a voter shall make a cross (X) in a party square, and also in the square opposite the name of any candidate or candidates for any office, or shall also write the name of any such candidate in the blank spaces provided for that purpose, his ballot shall be counted as a vote for such candidate for that office, and as a straight party vote for all other offices.

No ballot without the official endorsement shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be allowed to be deposited in the ballot box, and none but ballots provided in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be counted. Ballots not marked or improperly or defectively marked, shall be endorsed as defective, and enclosed in a separate envelope, endorsed "defective ballots" together with the total number of such ballots, and returned by the Judge of election to the prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas. If any ballot appears to have been obtained otherwise than as provided in this act, the judge of elections shall transmit such ballot to the district attorney, without delay, together with whatever information he may have tending to the detection of the person who deposited the same.

Section 6. That section twenty-eight of said act as amended by section five of said act, approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 28. After the polls are closed, the election officers only shall remain in the voting-room within the guard rail, and shall there at once proceed to count the votes. Such counting shall not be adjourned or postponed until it shall have been fully completed. A record shall first be made of the number of the last ballot cast; the officers in charge of the voting check-list shall, in the presence of the other officers and watchers, count in a distinct and audible voice the names checked on the said list, and announce the whole number thereof; and the list of voters, the stubs of ballots used, and all unused ballots, shall then be sealed up, as required by section twenty-five of this act. The ballot-box shall then be opened by the inspectors, the ballots taken therefrom, and audibly counted, one by one, by them, and when the count is completed the whole number of ballots cast shall be announced; and the counting of the number of votes received by each person voted for shall then proceed. The judge in the presence of the inspectors, shall read aloud the name or names marked or inserted upon each ballot, together with the party name, or political appellation, under which each vote was cast, and the answers marked thereon to the questions submitted, if any, and the clerks shall each carefully enter each vote as read, and keep account of the same in tally-papers prepared for the purpose. It shall be unlawful for either judge or inspectors while counting the ballots or the votes thereon, to have in his hand any pen, pencil or stamp for marking ballots.

All ballots, after being removed from the box, shall be kept within the unobstructed view of those present in the voting-room, so that they may be able to see all the marks on each ballot, but out of their reach, until they are placed in the ballot box as required by law. A full return shall be made in the manner now provided by law, of all votes cast; and such returns, as well as those made by the judges of the courts, shall state in every case the number of votes cast for each candidate by each political party or body of which such candidate is a nominee, as the same shall appear upon the ballots cast. The total vote, as soon as counted, shall be publicly announced.

It shall be the duty of the police officers, constables, and deputy constables, now required by law to be present at the polls, to remain in the voting room, but outside of the guard-rail, while the votes are being counted, and preserve order therein. No person, except the said peace officers, when necessary for the preservation of the peace, or persons acting by their authority, shall enter into the space within the guard-rail or converse with any election officer in any way after the polls are closed and until the counting of the votes has been computed," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 28. After the polls are closed, the election officers only shall remain in the voting room, within the guard-rail, and shall there at once proceed to count the votes. Such counting shall not be adjourned or postponed until it shall have been fully completed. A record shall first be made of the number of the last ballot cast. The officers in charge of the voting check list shall in the presence of the other officers and watchers count in a distinct and audible voice the names checked on the said list and announce the whole number thereof, and the list of voters, the stubs of ballots used and all unused ballots shall then be sealed up as required by section twenty-four of this act. The ballot box shall then be opened by the inspectors, and the ballots taken therefrom and the Presidential, State, Municipal and Referendum ballots separated, and audibly counted, one by one by them, and when the count is completed, the whole number of each kind of ballots cast shall be announced. The straight party ballots shall then be separated from the split ballots and the straight party ballots cast for each party shall be counted and a memorandum thereof made upon the tally sheet and the proper number of votes entered opposite the name of each candidate. The split ballots shall then be counted, one by one, and the proper entries of votes cast made upon the tally sheets. In case of any question submitted to vote, the judge, after the count of votes cast for candidates shall have been completed, shall go over the Referendum ballots one by one and read aloud the answers marked thereon to each of the questions submitted, and the clerks shall carefully enter each answer as read in the tally papers. It shall be unlawful for either judge or inspectors while counting the ballots or the votes thereon, to have in his hand any pen, pencil, or stamp for marking ballots.

All ballots after being removed from the box shall be kept within the unobstructed view of those present in the voting room, so that they may be able to see all the marks on each ballot, but out of their reach until they are placed in the ballot box, as required by law. A full return shall be made in the manner now provided by law, of all votes cast.

It shall be the duty of the police officers, constables and deputy constables now required by law, to be present at the polls to remain in the voting room, but outside of the guard rail, while the votes are being counted, and preserve order therein, No person except the said peace officers when necessary for the preservation of the peace, or persons acting by their authority, shall enter into the space within the guard-rail or converse with any election officers in any way after the polls are closed, and until the counting of the votes has been completed.

EXHIBIT P.

DETERMINATION OF PARTY STATUS.

Purpose: This Act prescribes the method of determining the vote cast by any party. It is made necessary by the change in the ballot provided in Exhibit O.

AN ACT

Defining the method of determining the vote cast by any political party and prescribing the method of making the return of such vote.

Be it enacted, etc., That where under any existing or future law the status of a political party is made to depend for any purpose upon the vote polled by such party, such vote shall be taken as the highest vote polled for any candidate of such party who is not also a candidate of any other party; or in case of no such candidate, then as the vote polled in the party square of such party, and for this purpose the judges of election and the judges of the courts in making up their returns shall state separately the votes polled by each party in the party square.

EXHIBIT Q.

ENVELOPE BALLOT LAW.

Amendments of Act of 1893, P. L. 419 and Act of 1903, P. L. 340.

Codification, Sections 128 to 138 and 183 to 216.

Purpose: To provide a method whereby the voter may secure and mark his ballot before going to the polls; to simplify the ballot, and the method of counting.

AN ACT.

To amend an act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties, and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, by changing the form of the ballot, the method of distributing the ballots to the electors, the method of voting, and the method of counting the votes.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That Section one of an act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties, and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, which reads as follows:

"Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That all ballots cast in elections for public officers within this Commonwealth shall be printed and distributed at public expense as hereafter provided. The printing of the ballots and of the cards of instruction for the elections in each county, and the delivery of the same to the election officers as hereinafter provided, and all other expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be a county charge, unless herein otherwise provided, the payment of which shall be provided for in the same manner as the payment of other election expenses. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to prepare forms for all the blanks made necessary or advisable by this act, and to furnish copies of the same to the county commissioners of each county who shall procure further copies of the same at the cost of the county and furnish them to the election officers or other persons by whom they are to be used, in such quantities as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That all ballots and envelopes cast in elections for public officers within this Commonwealth shall be printed and distributed at public expense, as hereinafter provided. The printing of the ballots, the envelopes and of the cards of instructions for the elections in each county, and the delivery of the same to the election officers, as hereinafter provided, and all other expenses incurred under the provisions of this act, shall be a county charge, unless herein otherwise provided, the payment of which shall be provided for in the same manner as the payment of other election expenses. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to prepare forms for all the blanks made necessary or advisable by this act, and to furnish copies of the same to the county commissioners of each county, who shall procure further copies of the same at the cost of the county, and furnish them to the election officers or other persons by whom they are to be used, in such quantities as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

Section 2. That Section thirteen of said act, which reads as follows.

"Section 13. The county commissioners of each county shall cause all the ballots to be used therein to be printed. The said commissioners shall ascertain the office to be filled and shall be responsible for the accurate printing of the ballots in accordance with this act, and for the safekeeping of the same while in their possession, or that of their subordinates or agents," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 13. The county commissioners of each county shall cause all the ballots and envelopes to be used therein to be printed. The said commissioners shall ascertain the offices to be filled, and shall be responsible for the accurate printing of the ballots, in accordance with this act, and for the safe keeping of the ballots and envelopes while in their possession, or that of their subordinates or agents.

Section 3. That Section fourteen of said act, as amended by Section two of an act approved the twenty-ninth day of April, Anno Domini, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 14. When Presidential electors are to be voted for, the names of candidates for Presidential electors shall be arranged in party groups, as presented in the several certificates or party nomination and nomination papers, and the groups shall be printed upon the ballot in order of the vote obtained in the State, at the last Presidential election, by the parties nominating, beginning with the party which obtained the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of political parties not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the order of arrangement shall be alphabetically.

At the head of each group of candidates shall be printed the appropriate party name or political appellation, together with the surnames of the candidates of such party for President and Vice-President, underneath which shall be printed the names of the appropriate candidates for Presidential electors.

At the right of the space containing the surnames of the candidates for President and Vice-President, and their party name or political appellation, there shall be a square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X), and at the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector, there shall be a similar, but smaller, square.

The names of candidates for all other offices shall, in all cases, be arranged under the title of the office for which they are candidates, and be printed in the order of the votes obtained for the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating at the last Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of parties not represented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, the name of the nominees of such parties shall be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. At the right of the name of each nominee, or candidate, shall be printed the name or appellation of the political party presenting or nominating him, and at the right of such party name, or political appellation, there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark.

Whenever any candidate shall receive more than one nomination for the same office, his name shall be printed once, and the names of each political party, so nominating him, shall be printed to the right of the name of such candidate, arranged in the same order as candidates' names are grouped, that is to say, in the order of the votes obtained by such party at the last preceding Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote. If such candidate shall be nominated by any political party not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the name of such party shall follow the other names, and be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or appellation. At the right of every party name, or political appellation, shall be a square, of sufficent size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark.

There shall be left, at the end of the groups of candidates for Presidential electors, and of the list of candidates for each different office (or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held, in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefor), as many blank spaces as there are persons to be voted for, for such office, in which space the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot as a candidate for such office, and such insertion shall count as a vote, without the cross-mark as hereinafter mentioned.

Whenever the approval of a constitutional amendment, or other question, is submitted to the vote of the people, such question shall be printed upon the ballot in brief form, and followed by the words, "yes" and "no," and if such question be submitted at an election of public officers, it shall be printed after the list of candidates.

The ballots shall be so printed as to give to each voter a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates by a cross-mark (X), in a square of sufficient size at the right of the name of each candidate, and inside the line enclosing the column, and, in like manner, answers to questions submitted, by similar marks, in squares at the right of the words "yes" and "no," and on the ballot may be printed instructions how to mark, and such words as will aid the voter to do this, as "mark one," "mark two," and the like: Provided, That a voter may designate his choice of an entire group of candidates for Presidential electors by one cross-mark (X), in a large square, which shall be placed at the right of the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President, to the head of such group, and such mark shall be equivalent to a mark against every name in the group: Provided further, That each voter may have the opportunity of designating his choice for all the candidates, as nominated by one political party, there shall be printed on the extreme left of the ballot, and separated from the rest of the ballot by a space of at least one-half inch, a list of the names of all the political parties or groups of nominees, represented on such ballot and presenting candidates to be voted for at such election. Such names shall be arranged in the order of the votes obtained, at the Presidential election, by the candidate at the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating, beginning with the party that received the highest vote cast. Following the names of such political parties, shall be the names of the parties or principles not presented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. A square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark, shall be placed at the right of each party name or appellation. Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that political appellation, or party name, including candidates nominated by more than one party, or group of citizens.

At the head of every ballot shall be printed the following instructions:

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice, in the first column. A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate, indicates a vote for that candidate," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 14. When Presidential electors are to be voted for, the names of candidates for Presidential electors shall be arranged in party groups, as presented in the several certificates of party nomination and nomination papers, and the groups shall be printed upon the ballot in order of the vote obtained in the State, at the last Presidential election, by the parties nomiating, beginning with the party which obtained the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of political parties not presented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the order of arrangement shall be alphabetically.

At the head of each group of candidates shall be printed the appropriate party name or political appellation, together with the surnames of the candidates of such party for President and Vice-President, underneath which shall be printed the names of the appropriate candidates for Presidential electors.

At the right of the space containing the surnames of the candidates for President and Vice-President, and their party name or political appellation, there shall be a square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X), and at the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector, there shall be a similar, but smaller square.

The names of candidates for all other offices shall, in all cases, be arranged under the title of the office for which they are candidates, and be printed in the order of the votes obtained for the head of the respective tickests of the parties or bodies nominating at the last Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of parties not represented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, the name of the nominees of such parties shall be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. At the right of the name of each nominee, or candidate, and on the same line, shall be printed the initial letters of the name or appellation of each political party presenting or nominating him, arrenged in the above order, and at the right of such party names or political appellations there shall be a single square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark.

There shall be left, at the end of the groups of candidates for Presidential electors, and of the list of candidates for each different office (or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held, in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefor), as many blank spaces as there are persons to be voted for, for such office, in which space the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot as a candidate for such office, and such insertion shall count as a vote, without the cross-mark as hereinafter mentioned.

Whenever the approval of a constitutional amendment, or other question, is submitted to the vote of the people, such question shall be printed upon the ballot in brief form, and followed by the words, "yes" and "no," and if such question be submitted at an election of public officers, it shall be printed after the list of candidates.

The ballots shall be so printed as to give to each voter a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates by a cross-mark (X), in a square of sufficient size at the right of the name of each candidate, and inside the line enclosing the column, and, in like manner, answers to questions submitted, by similar marks, in squares at the right of the words "yes" and "no," and on the ballot may be printed instructions how to mark, and such words as will aid the voter to do this, as "mark one," "mark two," and the like. Provided, That a voter may designate his choice of an entire group of candidates for Presidential electors by one cross-mark (X), in a large square, which shall be placed at the right of the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President, at the head of such group, and such mark shall be equivalent to a mark against every name in the group: Provided further, That each voter may have the opportunity of designating his choice for all the candidates, as nominated by one political party, there shall be printed on the extreme left of the ballot, and separated from the rest of the ballot by a space of at least one-half inch, a list of the names of all the political parties or groups of nominees, represented on such ballot and presenting candidates to be voted for at such election. Such names shall be arranged in the order of the votes obtained, at the last Presidential election, by the candidate at the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating, beginning with the party that received the highest vote cost. Following the names of such political parties shall be the names of the parties or principles not presented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. A square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark, shall be placed at the right of each party name or appellation. Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that political appellation, or party name, including candidates nominated by more than one party, or group of citizens.

At the head of every ballot shall be printed the following suggestions:

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice, in the first column. A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate, indicates a vote for that candidate.

Section 4. That Section fifteen of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 15. All the ballots used in the same voting place at any election shall be alike, and shall be at least six inches long and four inches wide. They shall be printed with the same kind or kinds of type, (which shall not be smaller than the size known as "brevier" or "eight-point body"), upon white paper without any impression or mark to distinguish one from another, and of sufficient thickness to prevent the printed matter from showing through. Each ballot shall be attached to a stub or counterfoil, and all the ballots for the same voting place shall be bound together in convenient numbers in books in such manner that each ballot may be detached and removed separately.

On the back of each ballot, or on the right hand side of the back, if the ballot is printed in two columns, there shall be printed as a caption, "official ballot for," followed by the designation of the voting place for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the election and a facsimile of the signatures of the county commissioners of the respective counties who have caused the ballots to be printed. A record of the number of ballots printed and furnished to each voting place shall be kept and preserved by the county commissioners of the several counties. When it is shown by affidavit that mistake or ommission has occurred in the publication of names or description of candidates, or in the printing of the ballots, the court of common pleas of the district or county, or any judge thereof, may upon the application of any qualified elector of the district or county require the county commissioners to correct the mistake or omission, or to show cause why they should not," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 15. All the ballots used at the same voting place at any election shall be alike, and shall be at least six inches long and four inches wide. They shall be printed with the same kind or kinds of type (which shall not be smaller than the size known as "brevier" or "eight-point body"), upon white paper without any impression or mark to distinguish one from another, and of sufficient thickness to prevent the printed matter from showing through.

On the back of each ballot, or on the right hand side of the back, if the ballot is printed in two columns, there shall be printed as a caption, "official ballot for," followed by the designation of the voting place for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the election and a facsimile of the signatures of the county commissioners of the respective counties who have caused the ballots to be printed. When it is shown by affidavit that mistake or omission has occurred in the publication of names or description of candidates, or in the printing of the ballots, the court of common pleas of the district or county, or any judge thereof, may upon the application of any qualified elector of the district or county require the county commissioners to correct the mistake or omission, or to show cause why they should not.

In addition to the official ballot, there shall be an official envelope large enough to conveniently receive a single ballot when folded. On the back of the envelope shall be printed the words "official envelope," followed by the date of the election, and a facsimile of the signatures of the county commissioners. The flap of the envelope shall be gummed. A record of the number of ballots and envelopes printed and furnished to each voting place shall be kept and preserved by the county commissioners of the several counties.

Section 5. That Section sixteen of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 16. The couny commissioners of each county shall provide for each election district in which an election is to be held, one set of such ballots of not less than seventy-five for every fifty and fraction of fifty voters therein, as contained upon the assessor's list. They shall also prepare full instructions for the guidance of voters, as to obtaining ballots, as to the manner of marking them and the method of gaining assistance, and as to obtaining new ballots in place of those accidentally spoiled; and they shall respectively cause the same, together with copies of sections thirty to thirty-five inclusive of this act, to be printed in large clear type on separate cards to be called Cards of Instruction. They shall also, in addition to the number of tickets required to be printed for general distribution, have printed five hundred official and one hundred sample ballots for every five thousand voters within the county, which tickets shall be kept at the office of the commissioners for the use of any district or districts, the tickets for which may be lost or destroyed. They shall also cause to be printed on tinted paper and without the facsimile endorsements, copies of the form of the ballot provided for each voting place at each election therein, which shall be called Specimen Ballots, and at each election they shall furnish to each voting place, together with the ballots to be used there, a sufficient number of cards of instruction and specimen ballots for use as required in Section twenty-one of this act. They shall also provide for each election district, at every election therein, two copies of the assessor's list of voters, and shall deliver the same as such lists are now delivered, one copy to be called the "ballot check-list," for the inspectors in charge of the ballots, and the other copy to be called the "voting check-list," to be used in marking the name of those who have voted and the number of their ballots as now required by law," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 16. The county commissioners of each county shall provide for each election district in which an election is to be held one set of such ballots and envelopes of not less than seventy-five for every fifty and fraction of fifty voters therein, as contained upon the assessor's list. They shall also prepare full instruction for the guidance of voters, as to obtaining ballots, as to the manner of marking them, and as to obtaining new ballots and envelopes in place of those accidentally spoiled; and they shall respectively cause the same, together with copies of sections thirty to thirty-five inclusive of this act, to be printed in clear type on separate cards, to be called Cards of Instruction. They shall also, in addition to the number of tickets and envelopes required to be printed for distribution to the judges of election have printed five hundred official ballots and envelopes for every five thousand voters within the county, which tickets and envelopes shall be kept at the office of the commissioners, for the use of any district or districts the tickets or envelopes for which may be lost or destoryed. They shall also furnish to each voting place, together with the ballots and envelopes to be used there, a sufficient number of cards of instruction for use as required in Section twenty-one of this act. They shall also provide for each election district except in cities of the first, second and third class at every election therein two copies of the assessor's lists of voters, and shall deliver the same as such lists are now delivered, one copy to be called the Ballot Check List for the inspectors in chargt of the ballots, and the other copy to be called the Voting Check List, to be used in marking the names of those who have voted.

Section 6. That Section seventeen of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 17. The ballots, together with the specimen ballots and cards of instruction printed by the county commissioners as herein provided, shall be packed by them in separate sealed packages with marks on the outside clearly designating the election districts for which they are intended and the number of ballots of each kind enclosed.

They shall then be sent by the county commissioners of the respective counties to the judges of election at the several voting places so as to be received by them on the Saturday or Monday before the day of election. The respective judges of election shall on delivery to them of such packages, return receipts therefor to the commissioners, who shall keep a record of the time when and the manner in which the several packages are sent, and shall preserve for the period of one year, the receipts of the said judges of election.

The commissioners of any county may, if they prefer, instead of sending the packages to the judges or any number of them in the manner aforesaid, notify the judges of the election districts for which the said commissioners are required to provide ballots, to come to the said commissioners' office on the day before the election, at a time specified, and it shall be the duty of each of the said judges to come to the said office at that time, and there on presentation of his certificate of election as judge, to receive and receipt for one package of ballots, specimen ballots and cards of instruction, for use in his election district. He shall keep the said package sealed and shall be responsible for the safe-keeping thereof until the ballots are used at the election. In case a judge of the election is prevented by illness from performing the duties aforesaid, he shall depute one of the inspectors to act in his place," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 17. The ballots, together with the envelopes and cards of instruction printed by the county commissioners, as herein provided, shall be packed by them in separate sealed packages, with marks on the outside clearly designating the election districts for which they are intended, and the number of ballots and envelopes enclosed.

They shall then be sent by the county commissioners of the respective counties to the judges of election at the several voting places, so as to be received by them on the Saturday or Monday before the day of election. The respective judges of election shall on delivery to them of such packages, return receipts therefor to the commissioners, who shall keep a record of the times when and the manner in which the several packages are sent, and shall preserve for the period of one year the receipts of the said judges of election.

The commissioners of any county may, if they prefer, instead of sending the packages to the judges, or any number of them in the manner aforesaid, notify the judges of the election districts for which the said commissioners are required to provide ballots, to come to the said commissioners' office on the day before the election, at a time specified, and it shall be the duty of each of the said judges to come to the said office at that time, and there on presentation of his certificate of election as judge, to receive and receipt for one package of ballots, envelopes and cards of instruction, for use in his election district. He shall keep the said package sealed and shall be responsible for the safe keeping thereof until the ballots and envelopes are used at the election. In case a judge of the election is prevented by illness from performing the duties aforesaid, he shall depute one of the inspectors to act in his place.

Any party, through the chairman of its county committee or any candidate whose name is printed on the ballot, may obtain from the county commissioners any number, not less than fifty, of the official ballots for any district, by presenting to the county commissioners, not less than seven days prior to the election, written application for the same, accompanied by the deposit of a sum sufficient to cover the costs of printing. Such ballots may be distributed in advance of the election, and may be voted in the same manner as ballots obtained at the polls.

Section 7. That Section twenty of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 20. At the opening of the polls in each voting place the seals of the packages shall be publicly broken and the said package shall be opened by the judge of elections. The cards of instruction shall be immediately posted at or in each voting shelf or compartment provided in accordance with this act for the marking of the ballots, and not less than three such cards and not less than five specimen ballots shall be immediately posted in or about the voting room outside the guard-rail; and such cards and specimen ballots shall be given to any voter at his request," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 20. At the opening of the polls in each voting place the seals of the packages shall be publicly broken and the said package shall be opened by the judge of elections. The cards of instruction shall be immediately posted at or in each voting shelf or compartment provided in accordance with this act for the marking of the ballots, and not less than three such cards shall be immediately posted in or about the voting room outside the guard-rail; and such cards shall be given to any voter at his request.

"Section 21. Any person desiring to vote shall give his name and residence to one of the election officers in charge of the ballots, who shall thereupon announce the same in a loud and distinct tone of voice, and if such name is found upon the ballot check list by the inspector or clerks in charge thereof, he shall likewise repeat the said name, and the voter shall be allowed to enter the space enclosed by the guard-rail, unless his right to vote be challenged. No person whose name is not on the said list, or whose right to vote shall be challenged by a qualified citizen, shall be admitted within said guard-rail until he has established his right to vote in the manner now provided by law, and his name, if not on the check lists, shall then be added to both lists. As soon as a voter is admitted within the rail the election officer having charge of the ballots shall detach a ballot from the stub and give it to the said voter, but shall first fold it so that the words printed on the back and outside, as provided is Section fifteen of this act, shall be the only wording visible and no ballot shall be voted unless folded in the same manner. Not more than one ballot shall be given to a voter except as provided in Section twenty-five of this act. As soon as a voter receives a ballot the letter "B" shall be marked against his name on the margin of the ballot check list; but no record of the number of the ballots shall be made on the said lists. Besides the election officers and such supervisors as are authorized by the laws of the United Staees or overseers appointed by the courts of this Commonwealth, not more than four voters in excess of the number of voting shelves or compartments provided, shall be allowed in said enclosed space at one time," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 21. Any person desiring to vote, shall give his name and residence to one of the election officers in charge of the ballots, who shall thereupon announce the same in a loud and distinct voice, and if such name is found upon the ballot check list by the inspector or clerks in charge thereof, he shall likewise repeat the said name, and the voter shall be allowed to enter the space enclosed by the guard-rail, unless his right to vote be challenged. No person whose name is not on the said list, or whose right to vote shall be challenged by a qualified citizen, shall be admitted within said guard-rail until he has established his right to vote in the manner now provided by law, and his name if not on the check list shall then be added to both lists, except in cities of the first, second and third classes, where if his name is not on the registry list, he shall not be entitled to vote. As soon as a voter is admitted within the rail, the election officer having charge of the ballots shall give to the voter one of the official envelopes, and if the voter shall ask for a ballot, he shall give him also one of the official ballots. Not more than one envelope shall be given to each voter, except as provided in Section twenty-five of this act, and as soon as the voter receives an envelope, the letter "B" shall be marked against his name in the ballot check list. Besides the election officers and such supervisors as are authorized by the laws of the United States or overseers appointed by the courts of this Commonwealth, not more than four voters in excess of the number of voting shelves or compartments provided, shall be allowed in said enclosed space at one time.

Section 9. That Section twenty-two of said act as amended by Section three of said act, approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 22. On receipt of his ballot, the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the space enclosed by the guard-rail, retire to one of the voting shelves or compartments, and draw a curtin, or shut the screen or door, and shall then prepare his ballot as follows:

If he desires to vote for every candidate of a political party, he may make a cross-mark in the appropriate square, opposite the name of the party of his choice, in the straight party column on the left of the ballot, and every such cross-mark shall be equivalent to a vote for every candidate for the party so marked.

If he desires to vote for an entire group of Presidential electors, he may place a cross-mark in the appropriate square, at the right of the name of the party of his choice. If he desires to divide his vote among candidates from different groups of Presidential electors, he shall make a cross-mark in the appropriate square, to the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector for whom he desires to vote: Provided, That a mark in the straight party column, opposite the name of the party of his choice, shall also be counted as a mark for each Presidential elector nominated by such party.

He may vote, according to the above provisions, for the candidate of his choice for each office to be filled, according to the number of persons to be voted for by him for each office, or he may insert in the blank space provided therefor, in accordance with Section fourteen of this act, any name not already on the ballot. And in case of a question submitted to the vote of the people, he may mark in the appropriate margin or space a cross (X), opposite the answers which he desires to give. In all cases where, by existing laws, a voter is entitled to cast more than one vote for a single candidate, he shall place in the appropriate square, instead of a cross (X), a number, which shall indicate the number of votes to be counted for the candidate whose name is so marked.

Before leaving the voting shelf or compartment the voter shall fold his ballot, without displaying the markings thereon, in the same way it was folded when received by him, and he shall keep the same so folded and deposit it in the ballot-box without undue delay, and shall quit the enclosed space immediately thereafter," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 22. On receipt of his envelope, the voter shall forthwith, without leaving the space enclosed by the guard-rail, retire alone to one of the voting shelves of compartments, and draw a curtin or shut the screen or door, and there remain until he shall have enclosed in his envelope the ballot which he desires to vote. The voter may use for the preparation of his ballot either a ballot which he has received from the election officers, or one of the official ballots which he shall have received elsewhere, but none but official ballots shall be voted.

If he desires to vote for every candidate of a political party he may make a cross-mark in the appropriate square opposite the name of the party of his choice in the straight party column on the left of the ballot, and every such cross-mark shall be equivalent to a vote for every candidate for the party so marked.

If he desires to vote for an entire group of Presidential electors, he may place a cross-mark in the appropriate square at the right of the name of the party of his choice. If he desires to divide his vote among candidates from different groups of Presidential electors, he shall make a cross-mark in the appropriate square, to the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector for whom he desires to vote: Provided, that a mark in the straight party column, opposite the name of the party of his choice, shall be counted as a mark for each Presidential elector nominated by such party.

He may vote according to the above provisions for each office to be filled, according to the number of persons to be voted for by him for each office, or he may insert in the blank space provided therefor, in accordance with Section fourteen of this act any name not already on the ballot. And in case of a question submitted to the vote of the people, he may mark in the appropriate margin or space a cross (X), opposite the answer which he desires to give. In all cases where, by existing laws, a voter is entitled to cast more than one vote for a single candidate he shall place in the appropriate square, instead of a cross (X), a number, which shall indicate the number of votes to be counted for the candidate whose name is so marked.

After enclosing his ballot in the envelope, the voter shall seal the envelope and deposit it in the ballot-box without undue delay, and quit the enclosed space immediately thereafter.

Section 10. That Section twenty-three of said act as amended by Section one of an act approved April sixteenth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 23. No voter shall be allowed to occupy a voting shelf or compartment already occupied by another, except when giving the help allowed by Section twenty-six of this act, nor to remain within said compartment more than three minutes in case all of such compartments are in use, and other voters are waiting to occupy the same. No voter not an election officer shall be allowed to re-enter the enclosed space after he has once left it, except to give help as hereinafter described. Each voter's name shall be checked on the voting check-list by the officer having charge thereof, as soon as he has cast his vote in the manner provided by law. It shall be the duty of the judge of election to secure the observation of the provisions of this section, to keep order in the room in which the voting is held and to see that no more persons are admitted within the enclosed space than are allowed by this act. Each party which has by its primary meeting, caucus, convention or board, sent to the proper office a certificate of nomination, and each group of citizens which has sent to the proper office a nomination paper as provided in Sections two and three of this act shall be allowed to appoint three qualified electors, who must be three electors residents of the division in which they are authorized to act, to act as watchers in each voting place without expense to the county, one of whom shall be allowed to remain in the room outside of the enclosed space. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, stating his name, the names of the persons who have appointed him and the party or policy he represents; and no party or policy shall be represented by more than one watchers, voters not exceeding ten at any one time who are shall be required to show their certificates when required to do so. Until the polls are closed, no persons shall be allowed in the room outside of the said enclosed space except these watchers, voters not exceeding ten at any ont time who are waiting their turn to prepare their ballots, and peace officers when necessary for the preservation of the peace. No person when within the voting room shall electioneer or solicit votes for any party or candidate, nor shall any written or printed matter be posted up within said room except as required by law. When the hour for closing the polls shall arrive all persons within the enclosed space who have received ballots but have not yet deposited them, shall be required to mark and deposit their ballots forthwith, but no other person shall be allowed to vote," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 23. No voter shall be allowed to occupy a voting shelf or compartment already occupied by another, nor to remain within said compartment more than three minutes in case all of such compartments are in use and other voters are waiting to occupy the same. No voter, not an election officer, shall be allowed to re-enter the enclosed space after he has once left it. Each voter's name shall be checked on the voting check list by the officer having charge thereof as soon as he has cast his vote. It shall be the duty of the judge of election to secure the observation of the provisions of this section, to keep order in the room in which the voting is held, and to see that no more persons are admitted within the enclosed space then are allowed by this act. Each party which has by its primary meeting, caucus, convention or board, sent to the proper office a certificate of nomination, and each group of citizens which has sent to the proper office a nomination paper shall be allowed to appoint three qualified electors, who must be three electors residents of the division in which they are authorized to act, to act as watchers in each voting place without expense to the county, one of whom shall be allowed to remain in the room outside of the enclosed space. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, stating his name, the names of the persons who have appointed him and the party or policy he represents; and no party or policy shall be represented by more than one watcher in the same voting room at any one time. Watchers shall be required to show their certificates when required to do so. Until the polls are closed, no person shall be allowed in the room outside of the said enclosed space, except these watchers, voters not exceeding ten at any one time who are waiting their turn to prepare their ballots, and peace officers, when necessary for the preservation of the space. No person when within the voting room shall electioneer or solicit votes for any party or candidate, nor shall any written or printed matter be posted up within said room except as required by law. When the hour for closing the polls shall arrive all persons within the enclosed space who have received envelopes but have not yet deposited them, shall be required to deposit their ballots forthwith, but no other person shall be allowed to vote.

Section 11. That Section twenty-four of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 24. No list or memorandum of the names of voters, except such lists as are expressly authorized by law, shall be made within the voting-room by any person or officer, nor shall any list or memorandum of the numbers marked upon the ballots be made or kept except such lists as are expressly authorized by law; Provided, That any voter may make a memorandum of the number of his own ballot and watchers may keep their poll-books and challenge lists.

After the closing of the polls and before the ballot-boxes are opened, all the lists of voters, upon which the numbers of the ballots are recorded as now required by law, shall be placed in separate sealed covers properly marked, and the stubs of all the ballots used, together with all unused ballots and the ballot check-list, shall also be enclosed in a sealed package properly designating the voting place, which package shall be sent to the proper office as required by law in the case of the ballots cast, and neither the said package, nor the said list of voters shall thereafter be opened except by the return judges, or in the case of a contest, or upon the order of a court of a competent jurisdiction," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 24. No lists or memorandum of the names of voters, except such lists as are expressly authorized by law, shall be made within the voting-room by any person or officer, but watchers may keep their poll-books and challenge lists.

After the closing of the polls and before the ballot-boxes are opened, all the lists of voters shall be placed in separate sealed covers properly marked, and all unused ballots and envelopes and the ballot check-list shall also be enclosed in a sealed package, properly designating the voting place, which package shall be sent to the proper office, as required by law in the case of ballots cast, and neither the said package, nor the said list of voters shall thereafter be opend, except by the return judges, or in the case of a contest or upon the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Section 12. That Section twenty-five of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 25. No person other than the election officers shall take or remove any ballot from the voting place. If any voter inadvertently spoils a ballot he may obtain another upon returning the spoiled one. The ballots thus returned shall be immediately canceled, and at the close of the polls shall be secured in an envelope, sealed and sent to the proper office, as required by law in the case of the ballots cast," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 25. No person other than the election officers shall take or remove any envelope from the voting place. If any voter inadvertently spoils a ballot or envelope, he may obtain another upon returning the spoiled one. The envelopes thus returned shall be immediately canceled, and at the close of the polls shall be secured in a sealed cover and sent to the proper office, as required by law in the case of ballots cast.

Section 13. That Section twenty-seven of said act, as amended by Section four of said act, approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 27. If a voter has marked his ballot otherwise than as directed by this act, so that for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office; but the ballot shall be counted for all other offices for which the names of candidates have been properly marked.

No ballot without the official endorsement shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be allowed to be deposited in the ballot-box, and none but ballots provided in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be counted. Ballots not marked, or improperly or defectively marked, shall be endorsed as defective, but shall be preserved with the other ballots. If any ballot appears to have been obtained otherwise than as provided in this act, the judge of elections shall transmit such ballot to the district attorney, without delay, together with whatever information he may have tending to the detection of the person who deposited the same," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 27. If a voter has marked his ballot otherwise than as directed by this act, so that for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office; but the ballot shall be counted for all other offices for which the names of candidates have been properly marked; Provided, That if a voter shall make a cross (X) in a party square, and also in the square opposite the name of any candidate or candidates for any office, or shall also write the names of any such candidates in the blank space provided for that purpose, his ballot shall be counted as a vote for such candidates for that office and as a straight party vote for all other offices.

None but official ballots, contained in official envelopes shall be counted. If any envelope shall contain more than one ballot, such ballots shall not be counted. Ballots not marked, or improperly or defectively marked, shall be indorsed as defective, and enclosed with the envelopes in a separate sealed package indorsed "defective ballots" together with the total number of such ballots and returned by the judge of elections to the prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas. If any envelope appears to have been obtained otherwise than as provided in this act, the judge of election shall transmit such envelope to the district attorney without delay, together with whatever information he may have tending to the detection of the person who deposited the same.

Section 14. That Section twenty-eight of said act, as amended by Section five of said act approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 28. After the polls are closed, the election officers only shall remain in the voting-room within the guard-rail, and shall there at once proceed to count the votes. Such counting shall not be adjourned or postponed until it shall have been fully completed. A record shall first be made of the number of the last ballot cast; the officers in charge of the voting check-list shall, in the presence of the other officers and watchers, count in a distinct and audible voice the names checked on the said list, and announce the whole number thereof; and the list of voters, the stubs of ballots used, and all unused ballots, shall then be sealed up, as required by Section twenty-five of this act. The ballot-box shall then be opened by the inspectors, the ballots taken therefrom, and audibly counted, one by one, by them, and when the count is completed, the whole number of ballots cast shall be announced, and the counting of the number of votes received by each person voted for shall then proceed. The judge, in the presence of the inspectors, shall read aloud the name or names marked or inserted upon each ballot, together with the party name, or political appellation, under which each vote was cast, and the answers marked thereon to the questions submitted, if any; and the clerks shall each carefully enter each vote as read, and keep account of the same in tally-papers prepared for the purpose. It shall be unlawful for either judge or inspectors while counting the ballots or the votes thereon, to have in his hand any pen, pencil or stamp for marking ballots.

ballot, but out of their reach, until they are placed in the ballot-box as required by law. A full return shall be made in the manner now provided by law, of all votes cast; and such returns, as well as those made by the judges of the courts, shall state in every case the number of votes cast for each candidate by each political party or body of which such candidate is a nominee, as the same shall appear upon the ballots cast. The total vote, as soon as counted, shall be publicly announced.

It shall be the duty of the police officers, constables and deputy constables, now required by law to be present at the polls, to remain in the voting room, but outside of the guard-rail while the votes are being counted, and preserve order therein. No person except the said peace officers when necessary for the preservation of the peace, or persons acting by their authority, shall enter into the space within the guard-rail, or converse with any election officer, in any way after the polls are closed and until the counting of the votes has been completed," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 28. After the polls are closed, the election officers only shall remain in the voting-room, within the guard-rail, and shall there at once proceed to count the votes. Such counting shall not be adjourned or postponed until it shall have been fully completed. The officers in charge of the voting check list shall in the presence of the other officers and watchers count in a distinct and audible voice the names checked on the said list and announce the whole number thereof and the list of voters and all unused ballots and envelopes shall then be sealed up as required by Section twenty-four of this act. The ballot box shall then be opened by the inspectors, and the ballots taken therefrom, and audibly counted, one by one, by them, and when the count is completed, the whole number of ballots cast shall be announced. The ballots shall then be taken from the envelopes and the straight party ballots separated from the split ballots. The straight party ballots cast for each party shall be counted and a memorandum thereof made upon the tally sheet and the proper number of votes entered opposite the name of each candidate. The split ballots shall then be counted, one by one, and the proper entries of votes cast made upon the tally sheets. In case of any question submitted to vote, the judge, after the count of votes cast for candidates shall have been completed, shall go over the ballots one by one and read aloud the answers marked thereon to each of the questions submitted, and the clerks shall carefully enter each answer as read in the tally papers.

All ballots, after being removed from the box, shall be kept within the unobstructed view of those present in the voting-room, so that they may be able to see all the marks on each ballot, but out of their reach, until they are placed in the ballot-box, as required by law.

It shall be the duty of the police officers, constables, and deputy constables now required by law, to be present at the polls, to remain in the voting-room, but outside of the guard-rail, while the votes are being counted, and preserve order therein. No person, except the said peace officers, when necessary for the preservation of the peace, or persons acting by their authority, shall enter into the space within the guard-rail, or converse with any election officers in any way after the polls are closed, and until the counting of the votes has been completed.

Section 15. That Section thirty of said act, as amended by Section six of said act approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 30. A voter who shall allow his ballot to be seen by any person, with the apparent intention of letting it be known how he is about to vote, or shall cast or attempt to cast any other than the official ballot which has been given him by the proper election officer, or shall falsely declare to a judge of election that, by reason of any disability, he is unable to mark his ballot, and on that account desires assistance in marking it, or shall wilfully violate any other provision of this act; or any person who shall interfere with any voter when inside said enclosed space or when marking his ballot, or who shall endeavor to induce any voter before depositing his ballot to show how he marks or has marked his ballot; or any helper who shall attempt to influence the vote of the voter whom he is assisting, or who shall mark a ballot in any other way than that requested by the voter whom he is assisting, or who shall disclose to any one the contents of any ballot, which has been marked with his help, except when required so to do in any legal proceedings; shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than three months, or both, at the discretion of the court," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 30. A voter who shall allow his ballot to be seen by any person, with the apparent intention of letting it be known how he is about to vote or shall cast or attempt to cast any other than the official ballot, or shall wilfully violate any other provision of this act; or any person who shall interfere with any voter when inside said enclosed space or when marking his ballot, or who shall endeavor to induce any voter before depositing his ballot to show how he marks or has marked his ballot, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than three months, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Section 16. That Section thirty-two of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 32. Any person who shall falsely make or wilfully deface or destroy any certificate of nomination, or nomination paper, or any part thereof, or any letter of withdrawal, or file any certificate of nomination, or nomination paper, or letter of withdrawal, knowing the same or any part thereof to be falsely made, or suppress any certificate of nomination, or nomination paper, or any part thereof, which has been duly filed, or forge, or falsely make the official endoresement on any ballot, or wilfully destroy or deface any ballot, or wilfully delay the delivery of any ballots, shall be guilty of misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 32. Any person who shall falsely make or wilfully deface or destory any certificate of nomination, or nomination paper, or any part thereof, or any letter of withdrawal, or file any certificate of nomination, or nomination paper, or letter of withdrawal, knowing the same or any part thereof to be falsely made, or suppress any certificate of nomination, or nomination paper, or any part thereof, which has been duly filed, or forge, or falsely make the official endorsement on any ballot or envelope, or wilfully destroy or deface any ballot or envelope, or wilfully delay the delivery of any ballots or envelopes, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Section 17. That Section thirty-four of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 34. Any printer employed by the commissioners of any county to print any official ballot, or any person engaged in printing the same, who shall appropriate to himself, or give or deliver or knowingly permit to be taken any of said ballots by any other person than such commissioners, or their duly authorized agent, or shall wilfully print, or cause to be printed any official ballots in any other form than that prescribed by such commissioners, or with any other names thereon, or with the names spelled otherwise than as directed by them, or the names or printing thereon arranged in any other way than that authorized and directed by this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, at the discretion of the court," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 34. Any printer employed by the commissioners of any county to print an official ballot or envelope, or any person engaged in printing the same, who shall appropriate to himself, or give or deliver or knowingly permit to be taken any of said ballots or envelopes by any other person than such commissioners, or their duly authorized agent, or shall wilfully print, or cause to be printed any official ballot in any other form than that prescribed by such commissioners, or with any other names thereon, or with the names spelled otherwise than as directed by them, or the names or printing thereon arranged in any other way than that authorized and directed by this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Section 18. That Section thirty-five of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 35. Any person other than an officer charged by law with the care of ballots, or a person entrusted by any such officer with the care of the same for a purpose required by law, who shall have in his possession outside the voting room any official ballot, or any person who shall make or have in possession any counterfeit of an official ballot, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 35. Any person other than an officer charged by law with the care of envelopes, or a person entrusted by any such officer with the care of the same for a purpose required by law, who shall have in his possession outside the voting room any official envelope, or any person who shall make or have in possession any counterfeit of an official ballot or envelope, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Section 19. That Section twenty-six of said act be and the same is hereby repealed.

EXHIBIT R.

OPENING BALLOT BOXES.

Amendment to Act of 1909, P. L. 425.

Codification, Section 221.

Purposes: To facilitate the opening of ballot boxes and recounting of the vote in cases of fraud.

AN ACT.

To amend Section thirteen of an act, entitled "A further supplement to the Act regulating elections in this Commonwealth," approved the thirtieth day of January, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, as amended by Section one of an act approved April twenty-eight, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine as further amended by Section one of an act approved May sixth, one thousand nine hundred and nine, by providing for the opening of the ballot-boxes under certain circumstances.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That Section thirteen of an act entitled "A further supplement to the Act regulating elections in this Commonwealth," approved the thirtieth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, as amended by Section one of an act approved April twenty-eighth, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, as further amended by Section one of an act approved May sixth, one thousand nine hundred and nine, which reads as follows:

"Section 13. As soon as the polls shall close the officers of election shall proceed to count all the votes cast for each candidate voted for, and make a full return of the same in triplicate, with a return sheet in addition, in all of which the votes received by each candiate shall be given after his or her name, first in words and again in figures, and shall be signed by all or said officers and certified by overseers, if any, or if not so certified, the overseers and any officer refusing to sign or certify, or either of them, shall write upon each of the returns his of their reasons for not signing or certifying them. The vote, as soon as counted, shall also be publicly and fully declared from the widow to the citizens present, and a brief statement showing the votes received by each candidate shall be made and signed by the election officers as soon as the vote is counted, and the same shall be immediately posted up on the door of the election house for information of the public. The triplicate returns shall be enclosed in envelopes and be sealed in presence of the officers, and one envelope, with the unsealed return-sheet, given to the judge, which shall contain one list of voters, tally-paper, and oaths of officers, and another of said envelopes shall be given to the minority inspector. All judges living within twelve miles of the prothonotary's office, or within twenty-four miles, if their residence be in a town, village or city upon the line of a railroad leading to the county seat, shall before two o'clock post meridian of the day after the election, and all other judges shall, before twelve o'clock meridian of the second day after the election, deliver said return, together with the return-sheet, to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county, which said return-sheet shall be filed, and the day and hour of filing marked thereon, and shall be preserved by the prothonotary for public inspection. At twelve o'clock on the said second day following any election, the prothonotary of the court of common pleas shall present the said returns to the said court. In counties where there is no resident president judge, the associate judges shall perform the duties imposed upon the court of common pleas, which shall convene for said purpose; the returns presented by the prothonotary shall be opened by said court and computed by such of its officers and such sworn assistants as the court shall appoint, in the presence of the judge or judges of said court, and the returns certified and certificates of election issued under the seal of the court as is now required to be done by return judges; and the vote as so computed and certified shall be made a matter of record in said court. The sessions of the said court shall be open to the public. And in case the returns of any election district shall be missing when the returns are presented, or in case of complaint of a qualified elector under oath, charging palpable fraud or mistake, and particularly specifying the alleged fraud or mistake, or where fraud or mistake is apparent on the return, the court shall examine the return, and if in the judgment of the court it shall be necessary to a just return, said court shall issue summary process against the election officers and overseers, if any, of the election district complained of, to bring them forthwith into the court, with all election papers in their possession; and if palpable mistake or fraud shall be discovered, it shall, upon such hearing as may be deemed necessary to enlighten the court, be corrected by the court, and so certified; but all allegations of palpable fraud or mistake shall be decided by the said court within three days after the day the returns are brought into court for computation; and the said inquiry shall be directed only to palpable fraud or mistake, and shall not be deemed a judicial adjudication to conclude any contest now or hereafter to be provided by law; and the other of said triplicate returns shall be placed in the box and sealed up with the ballots. Nothing in this act shall require the returns of elections of townships or borough officers to be made to the court as directed in this section; but all returns of the election of townships and borough officers shall be enclosed in a sealed cover, directed to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the proper county, and shall by some one of them be delivered into his office within three days after every such election, and filed therein. In counties where there are three or more judges of said court learned in the law, at least two judges shall sit to compute and certify returns, unless unavoidably prevented. If any of the said judges shall himself be a candidate for any office at any election, he shall not sit with the court, or act in counting the returns of such election, and in such cases the other judges, if any, shall act, and if in any county there shall be no judge qualified to hold the said court, under the provisions of this act, present and able to act, then, and in every such case, the register of wills, the sheriff and the county commissioners of the proper county shall be and constitute a board who, or a majority of whom, shall have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties vested in, or required to be performed by the court of common pleas of such county, by and under the provisions of this section; but none of the said officers shall act as a member of such board when himself a candidate for any office at the election, the returns of which the said board is required to count under the provisions of this section. The returns required by this act to be presented by the prothonotary of the courts of common pleas of Philadelphia and Allegheny, respectively, shall be presented to such two or more of the judges of the several courts of common pleas of said counties, respectively, as the judges of said courts, or a majority of them, may designate to perform the duty of receiving computing and certifiying said returns. When two or more counties, or parts of two or more counties, are connected for the election of any officer, the courts of such counties, or parts of counties, comprising the district, shall each appoint a return judge, resident within such district, to meet within seven days after the day of the election of such officer, at such places is required by law, or if no place of meeting is designated by law, at such place within such district where the returns of the election of such officer shall, by law be directed to be filed, to compute and certify the vote of such district, and it shall be the duty of the return judges, in such case, to transmit to the person elected, as such officer's certificate of his election, within five days after the day of making up such return. All officers provided for by this act shall be compensated as like officers are paid by existing laws. Whenever a plea has been or shall be provided by the authorities of any city, county, township or borough, for the safe-keeping of ballot-boxes, the judge and minority inspector shall, after the election shall be finished, and the ballot-box or boxes containing the tickets, list of voters and other papers, have been securely bound with tape and sealed, and the signatures of the judge and inspectors affixed thereto, forthwith deliver the same, together with the remaining boxes, to the mayor and recorder of such city, or in counties, townships or boroughs, to such person or persons as the court of common pleas of the proper county may designate, at the place provided, as aforesaid, who shall then deposit the said boxes and keep the same to answer the call of any court or tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election. Whenever the election officers of any election district shall require the election boxes of such district to hold any election which, by law, they are or shall be required to hold, they shall keep the same securely in their possession without opening, until the morning of such election, and until they shall severally be sworn or affirmed not to disclose how any elector shall have voted, and after being so sworn or affirmed, they shall open the said boxes and burn and totally destroy all the ballots and other papers which they shall find therein, before proceeding to hold such election," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 13. As soon as the polls shall close the officers of election shall proceed to count all the votes cast for each candidate voted for and make a full return of the same in triplicate, with a return sheet in addition, in all of which the votes cast for each candidate shall be given after his or her name, first in words and again in figures, and shall be signed by all or said officers and certified by overseers, if any, or if not so certified, the overseers and any officer refusing to sign or certify, or either of them, shall write upon each of the returns his or their reasons for not signing or certifying them. The vote, as soon as counted, shall also be publicly and fully declared from the window to the citizens present, and a brief statement showing the votes received by each candidate shall be made and signed by the election officers as soon as the vote is counted, and the same shall be immediately posted up on the door of the election house for information of the public. The triplicate returns shall be enclosed in envelopes and be sealed in presence of the officers, and one envelope, with the unsealed return-sheet, given to the judge, which envelope shall contain also one list of voters, tally-paper, and oaths of officers, and another of said envelopes shall be given to the minority inspector, and the third of said triplicate returns shall be placed in the box and sealed up with the ballots as now provided by law. All judges living within twelve miles of the prothonotary's office, or within twenty-four miles, if their residence be in a town, village or city upon the line of a railroad leading to the county seat, shall, before two o'clock post meridian of the day after the election, and all other judges shall, before twelve o'clock meridian of the second day after the election, deliver said return, together with their return-sheet, to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county, which said return-sheet shall be filed, and the day and hour of filing marked thereon, and shall be preserved by the prothonotary for public inspection. At twelve o'clock on the said second day following any election, the prothonotary of the court of common pleas shall present the said returns to the said court. In counties where there is no resident president judge, the associate judges shall perform the duties imposed upon the court of common pleas, which shall convene for said purpose; the returns presented by the prothonotary shall be opened by said court and computed by such of its officers and such sworn assistants as the court shall appoint, in the presence of the judge or judges of said court, and the returns certified and certificates of election issued under the seal of the court as is now required to be done by return judges; and the vote as so computed and certified shall be made a matter of record in said court. The sessions of the said court shall be open to the public. It shall be the duty of the court upon the petition of ten qualified electors of any ward, township or borough containing more than two election districts to open two ballot-boxes selected by lot from such ward, township or borough, and to recount the votes. It shall likewise be the duty of the court upon the sworn petition of ten qualified electors of any county, setting forth any specific act of fraud which upon information which they consider reliable they believe has been committed in any election district of said county to open the ballot-box of such district and recount the votes; Provided, That in either case such petition shall be presented within three days after the day the returns are brought into court for computation. And in case the returns of any election district shall be missing when the returns are presented, or where fraud or mistake is apparent on the return the court may open the ballot-box of such district and count the votes. And if in the judgment of the court it shall be necessary to a just return, said court shall issue summary process against the election officers and overseers, if any, of the election district complained of, to bring them forthwith into the court, with all election papers in their possession. And if mistake or fraud shall be discovered, it shall, upon such hearing as shall be deemed necessary to enlighten the court, be corrected by the court, and so certified. Nothing in this act shall require the returns of elections of township or borough officers to be made to the court as directed in this section, but all returns of the election of township and borough officers shall be enclosed in a sealed cover, directed to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the proper county and shall by some one of the election officers, be delivered into his office within three days after every such election and filed therein. In counties where there are three or more judges of said court learned in the law, at least two judges shall sit to compute and certify returns, unless unavoidably prevented. If any of said judges shall himself be a candidate for any office at any election, he shall not sit with the court, or act in counting the returns of such elections, and in such cases the other judges, if any, shall act; and if in any county there shall be no judge qualified to hold the said court, under the provisions of this act, present and able to act, then, and in every such case, the register of wills, the sheriff and the county commissioners of the proper county shall be and constitute a board who, or a majority of whom, shall have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties vested in, or required to be performed by the court of common pleas of such county, by and under the provisions of this section; but none of the said officers shall act as a member of such board when himself a candidate for any office at the election, the returns of which the said board is required to count under the provisions of this section. The returns required by this act to be presented by the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of Philadelphia and Allegheny counties, respectively, shall be presented to such two or more of the judges of the several courts of common pleas of said counties, respectively, as the judges of said courts, or a majority of them, may designate to perform the duty of receiving, computing and certifying said returns. When two or more counties, or parts of two or more counties, are connected for the election of any officer, the courts of such counties, or parts of counties comprising the district, shall each appoint a return judge, resident within such district, to meet within seven days after the day of the election of such officer, at such place as is required by law, or if no place of meeting is designated by law, at such place within such district where the returns of the election of such officer shall, by law, be directed to be filed, to compute and certify the vote of such district, and it shall be the duty of the return judges, in such cases, to transmit to the person elected, one of the returns as such officer's certificate of his election, within five days after the day of making up such return. All officers provided for by this act shall be compensated as like officers are paid by existing laws. Whenever a place has been or shall be provided by the authorities of any city, county, township or borough, for the safe-keeping of ballot-boxes, the judge and minority inspector shall, after the election shall be finished, and the ballot-box or boxes containing the tickets, list of voters and other papers, have been securely bound with tape and sealed, and the signatures of the judge and inspectors affixed thereto, forthwith deliver the same, together with the remaining boxes, to the mayor and prothonotary of such city, or in counties, townships or boroughs, to such person or persons as the court of common pleas of the proper county may designate, at the place provided, as aforesaid, who shall then deposit the said boxes and keep the same to answer the call of any court or tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election. Whenever the election officers of any election district shall require the election boxes of such district to hold any election which, by law, they are or shall be required to hold, they shall keep the same securely in their possession without opening, until the morning of such election and until they shall severally be sworn or affirmed not to disclose how any elector shall have voted, and after being so sworn or affirmed, they shall open the said boxes and burn and totally destroy all the ballots and other papers which they shall find therein, before proceeding to hold such election.

EXHIBIT S.

DIVISION OF ELECTION DISTRICTS.

AN ACT.

Providing for the division of election districts in cities of more than one hundred thousand inhabitants.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That whenever at any election more than two hundred and fifty votes shall have been polled in any district in a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants, it shall be the duty of the county commissioners of the county in which such city is located, within three months after such election, to commence appropriate proceedings in the court of quarter sessions of such county for the purpose of dividing such district.

EXHIBIT T.

CHANGE OF POLLING PLACES.

Codification, Sections 156 to 159.

Purpose: To provide a comprehensive and exclusive method of changing polling places.

AN ACT.

Providing the method of changing polling places.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That it shall be lawful for the county commissioners of any county, at any time not less than three weeks prior to any election or registration day, for any reason that may seem proper to the county commissioners, upon a petition of at least ten qualified electors of any election district within the county, to change the polling place of said district. Upon presentation of any such petition, the county commissioners shall fix a time for a hearing thereon, which shall be not less than five, nor more than ten days after the filing of the petition, and notice of such hearing shall be posted for at least four days prior thereto on a public bulletin board in the office of the county commissioners, and also on the outside of the polling place. At such hearing, any qualified elector of the election district shall have the right to appear and to be heard, either in favor of or against such change; provided that the county commissioners may, in their discretion, direct that an election be held to determine the question where such polling place shall be located.

Section 2. It shall likewise be lawful for the county commissioners at any time within three weeks of any election or registration day, whenever the existing polling place for any reason has been rendered unvailable within four weeks of the date of such election or registration day, upon the petition of at least ten qualified electors of the district, to change the polling place of such district. Upon presentation of such petition, the county commissioners shall fix a time for a hearing thereon, of which at least one day's public notice shall be given in the manner provided in section one of this act, and at such hearing any qualified elector of the district may appear and be heard, either for or against the proposed change.

Section 3. It is intended by this act to furnish a complete, comprehensive and exclusive system for changing the location of the polling places within the Commonwealth, and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

EXHIBIT U.

ARRANGEMENT OF VOTING ROOM.

Amendment to Act of 1893, P. L. 419.

Codification, Section 194.

Purpose: To improve the physical condition of polling places.

AN ACT.

To amend Section nineteen of an act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers, requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties, and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and three.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That Section nineteen of an act entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections," approved the tenth day of June, 1893, (P. L. 419), which reads as follows:

"Section 19. The county commissioners of each county shall provide for each election district therein, at each election, a room large enough to be fitted up with voting shelves and a guard-rail as hereinafter provided. If in any district no such room can be rented or otherwise obtained, the said commissioners shall cause to be constructed for such district a temporary room of adequate size to be used as a voting room. They shall also cause all the said rooms to be suitably provided with heat and light, and with a sufficient number of voting shelves or compartments at or in which voters may conveniently mark their ballots, with a curtin, screen or door at the upper part of the front of each compartment, so that in the marking thereof they may be screened from the observation of others, and a guard-rail shall be so constructed and placed that only such persons as are inside said rail can approach within six feet of the ballot-box and of such voting shelves or compartments.

The arrangement shall be such that neither the ballot-box nor the voting booths shall be hidden from view of those just outside the said guard-rail. The number of such voting shelves or compartments shall not be less than one for every seventy-five names on the assessor's lists; but shall not in any case be less than three for the voters qualified to vote at such voting place. No persons other than the election officers and voters admitted as hereinafter provided, shall be permitted within the said rail, except by authority of the election officers for the purpose of keeping order and enforcing the law. Each voting shelf or compartment shall be kept provided with proper supplies and conveniences for marking the ballots," be amended to read as follows:

Section 19. The county commissioners of each county shall provide for each election district therein at each election a room large enough to be fitted up with voting shelves and a guard-rail as hereinafter provided. If in any district no such room can be rented or otherwise obtained, the said commissioners shall cause to be constructed within such district a temporary room of adequate size to be used as a voting room. Every room used as a voting room shall be on the ground floor, shall have at least one window looking out upon the highway at the front of the building in which the polling place may be located, and shall contain at least two hundred square feet of floor space. The said commissioners shall cause each of said rooms to be suitably provided with heat and light, and with at least the number of voting compartments hereinafter specified in which voters may conveniently mark their ballots, with a curtin, screen or door at the upper part of the front of each compartment, so that in the marking of their ballots the voters may be screened from the observation of others, and a guard-rail shall be so constructed and placed that only such persons as are inside said rail can approach within six feet of the ballot box and of such voting shelves or compartments. Such guard-rail shall not consist merely of a rope or chain, but shall be of rigid construction. The number of voting compartments shall not be less than one for every seventy-five names on the assessor's list, and shall not in any case be less than three. The polling place shall be so arranged that neither the ballot-box nor the front of the voting compartment shall be concealed from the view of those just outside the guard-rail. No persons other than the election officers and voters as hereinafter provided shall be permitted within the said rail, except police officers who may be admitted by authority of the election officers for the purpose of keeping order and enforcing the law. Each voting shelf or compartment shall be kept provided with proper supplies and conveniences for marking the ballots.

EXHIBIT V.

Amendment of Act of 1903, P. L., 217.

Codification, Section 217.

Purpose: To provide for the payment of mileage for returning the ballot boxes after the election.

AN ACT.

To amend Section seventy-four of an act entitled "An Act relating to the elections of this Commonwealth," approved the second day of July, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine, by providing for the payment of mileage to inspectors of election for delivering the ballot boxes to the justice of the peace after the election.

Be it enacted, etc., That Section seventy-four of an act entitled "An Act relating to the election of this Commonwealth," approved the second day of July, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine as amended by Section one of an act approved the sixteenth day of April A. D. 1903, which reads as follows:

"Section 74. As soon as the election shall be finished, the tickets, list of taxables, one of the lists of voters, the tally-papers and one of the certificates of the oath or affirmation taken and subscribed by the inspectors, judges and clerks, shall all be carefully collected and deposited in one or more of the ballot-boxes; and such box or boxes, being closely bound round with tape, shall be sealed by the inspectors and judge of the election, and together with the remaining ballot-boxes, shall within one day thereafter be delivered by one of the inspectors to the nearest justice of the peace, who shall keep such boxes containing the tickets and other documents, (said justice of the peace to receive the sum of three dollars per year, for all services rendered in the care of the ballot-box or boxes placed in his custody, said sum to be paid by the county treasurer upon an order drawn by the county commissioners), to answer the call of any persons or tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election and the other list of voters, tally-papers and certificates, shall be inclosed by the said inspectors and judge in a sealed cover, directed to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county and shall by some one of them be delivered into his office within three days thereatfer, where the same shall be filed," be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 74. As soon as the count shall be finished, the tickets, list of taxables, one of the lists of voters, the tally-papers and one of the certificates of the oath or affirmation taken and subscribed by the inspectors, judges and clerks, and shall all be carefully collected and deposited in one or more of the ballot-boxes; and such box or boxes, being closely bound round with tape, shall be sealed by the inspectors and judge of the election, and together with the remaining ballot-boxes, shall within one day thereafter be delivered by one of the inspectors to the nearest justice of the peace, who shall keep such boxes containing the tickets and other documents, (said justice of the peace to receive the sum of three dollars per year, for all services rendered in the care of the ballot-box or boxes placed in his custody, said sum to be paid by the county treasurer upon an order drawn by the county commissioners), to answer the call of any persons or tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election and the other list of voters, tall-papers and certificates, shall be inclosed by the said inspectors and judge in a sealed cover, directed to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county and shall by some one of them be delivered into his office within three days thereafter where the same shall be filed. For the distance necessarily traveled in delivering the ballot-boxes to the nearest justice of the peace as aforesaid such inspector shall be entitled to receive the same mileage as is allowed by law to judges of election for delivering the returns of township elections to the prothonotary.

Massachusetts Ballot.—For convenience in classification the form of ballot with columns arranged according to office, without party circle or square, is referred to as Massachusetts form.

*New York Ballot.—The form of ballot with party columns, and party circle or square, is referred to as the New York form.

a Unless otherwise specified "Uniform Primary Direct," means a primary conducted by the State in which some or all of the nominations are made directly, and not through conventions. "Party Primary Direct" means a similar primary not conducted by the State, but by the party. And "Party Primary" means a primary conducted by the party in which no nominations are made directly.

b The words "Personal Registration" do not mean that such registration is State wide. In most of the States it is confined to the larger cities.

c Preference primary provided for by party regulation only, others by statute.

A CODIFICATION OF THE ELECTION LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA AS THEY NOW ARE, EXCEPT AS NECESSARILY MODIFIED BY THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS OF 1909.

1. QUALIFICATION OF ELECTIONS

A. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

PROOF OF NATURALIZATION AND PAYMENT OF TAX.

1. In all elections hereafter the certificate of naturalization, if genuine, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts mentioned therein; and where the person offering to vote claims the right on the payment of tax, the receipt for such tax, if signed by the proper officer, shall be the evidence thereof; if such person does not produce such receipt, then the payment of the tax may be proved by the oath of such person, or other evidence, stating when, where and to whom such tax was paid. (Act 1874, Sec. 3, P. L. 45.)

COUNCILS TO FIX AMOUNT OF POLL TAX IN PHILADELPHIA.

2. It shall be the duty of the Councils of the City of Philadelphia to fix the amount of county tax to be assessed personally and annually on the qualified electors of the said city, at a rate sufficient to provide for the payment of all election expenses in the said city, and no part of said tax assessed and collected shall be applied to any other purpose; and the said Councils shall appropriate annually a sufficient sum for said purposes. And the city commissioners shall furnish all the books, blanks, stamps, stationery and materials necessary for the purpose of this Act, which shall be paid out of the appropriations to be made as aforesaid. (Act 1869, Sec. 41, P. L. 65.)

POLL TAX TO BE ASSESSED BY CANVASSERS.

3. The assessors of the City of Philadelphia shall not assess any poll or personal tax for election purposes, but all such tax shall be assessed, in the several election divisions in the said city, by the canvassers of said divisions, and shall be paid to the receiver of taxes of the said city, or to his agents specially appointed by him to receive the same: Provided, That owners of real estate or personal property, who shall have paid a State or county tax upon the same, within two years of any election, which shall have been assessed at least sixty days before such election, shall not be required to pay any additional tax to entitle them to the privilege of electors. (Act April, 1870, Sec. 4, P. L. 54.)

TAX RECEIPTS TO BE NUMBERED.

4. Tax collectors of townships and boroughs of the Commonwealth shall furnish each person, on the payment of taxes, with a numbered receipt setting out date, name of taxpayer, amount of tax and district in which taxpayer is assessed, from a book to be furnished by the county commissioners containing a stub. On the stub a memoranda shall be made in ink of the number of the receipt, the date, name of taxpayer, amount of tax and district in which taxpayer is assessed. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 296.)

TAX COLLECTORS TO REPORT TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

5. Twenty days before each election the tax collector of townships and boroughs shall send a sheet to the office of the county commissioners containing the number of each receipt issued, date of payment, name of taxpayer, amount of tax and district in which taxpayer is assessed for the period since the last report. (Act 1895, Sec. 2, P. L. 296.)

REPORT TO BE KEPT FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION.

6. The commissioners are hereby directed to have such reports of taxpayers bound and kept for public inspection. (Act 1895, Sec. 3, P. L. 296.)

PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO MAKE REPORT.

7. Any tax collector failing to comply with the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, to be fined not more than two hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1895, Sec. 4, P. L. 296.)

B. ASSESSORS.

ELECTION IN DISTRICTS OTHER THAN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS.

8. There shall be elected in each election district, except in boroughs and townships, a properly qualified person for assessor, who shall serve for two years. (Act 1874, Sec. 15, P. L. 39.)

TO PERFORM ONLY DUTIES INCIDENT TO ELECTIONS.

9. The assessors so elected shall be assessors only to perform such duties as are now required by law of assessors incident to the holding of elections and registration of voters, and the office of assessor for the purpose of valuation with all the duties incident thereto shall continue and remain as now provided by law. (Act 1874, Sec. 1, P. L. 44.)

ELECTION IN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS.

10. The qualified voters of every borough and township in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, shall vote for and elect a properly qualified person for assessor in each of said districts, who shall serve for four years. (Act 1889, Sec. 1, P. L. 7.)

WHEN BOROUGH IS DIVIDED INTO WARDS.

11. When any borough has been or shall be divided into wards, the qualified voters of each of such wards shall severally elect a properly qualified person as assessor for said ward, who shall likewise serve for four years. (Act 1889, Sec. 1, P. L. 133.)

DUTIES OF ASSESSORS IN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS.

12. The assessors elected in townships and boroughs shall perform all the duties of assessors under the laws of this Commonwealth, as well as those relating to elections as to the valuation of property. (Act 1889, Sec. 2, P. L. 133.)

IN CASE OF VACANCY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO APPOINT.

13. If the electors of any district shall fail to choose an assessor at the time appointed by law, or if any person elected to such office shall neglect or refuse to serve therein, or if any vacancy shall happen therein, by death or otherwise, the commissioners of the county shall appoint a fit person to fill the office, who shall have the same powers, be subject to the same penalties, and receive the same compensation, as if he had been elected in manner aforesaid. (Act 1834, Sec. 87, P. L. 553.)

TERM OF APPOINTEES.

14. Whenever the commissioners of any county shall, under existing laws, appoint a person to fill the office of assessor, such person shall serve until the next election for assessors, as provided by this act. (Act 1889, Sec. 4, P. L. 7.)

COMPENSATION OF ASSESSORS.

15. The asessors shall each receive the same compensation for the time necessarily spent in performing the duties hereby enjoined as is provided by law to assessors making valuations, to be paid by the county commissioners as in other cases. (Act 1874, Sec. 18, P. L. 40.)

ASSISTANT ASSESSORS.

16. The qualified voters of every election district in boroughs and townships in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania wherein more than one election district is authorized and where but one assessor for valuation of taxable property resides in the borough or township having more than one election district shall elect a properly qualified person for assistant assessor in each of said election districts to serve for two years, who shall perform all the duties relating to elections now required to be performed by assessors in boroughs and townships having but one election district. In case of a vacancy in said office, the court of quarter sessions, or any judge of the said court of the same county shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy. (Act 1891, Sec. 1, P. L. 298.)

PROTHONOTARY TO CERTIFY NAMES OF PERSONS ELECTED TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

17. The prothonotary of the court of common pleas of every county within this Commonwealth shall, within fifteen days after the township elections, in each year, are returned into his office make out, certify and deliver, under his hand and seal of office, to the commissioners of his proper county, a list of the names of the persons elected to the offices of assessor and assistant assessors, and the names of the wards, townships, incorporated districts and boroughs, within their respective counties, for which they were respectively elected; and shall be allowed therefor the usual fees for equal or similar services, to be paid out of the county treasury. (Act 1840, Sec. 9, P. L. 686.)

ASSESSORS TO ATTEND ELECTIONS IN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS.

18. It shall be the duty of said assessors respectively in boroughs and townships to attend at the place of holding every general, special or township election, during the whole time said election is kept open, for the purpose of giving information to the inspectors and judge, when called on, in relation to the right of any person assessed by them to vote at such election, or such other matters in relation to the assessment of voters, as the said inspectors or judge, or either of them, shall from time to time require; for which attendance said assessor shall be entitled to the sum of one dollar per day, to be paid as officers of election are paid by law; and when the township is divided for which said assessor is elected, he shall attend at the election district in which he resides, and is entitled to vote. (Act 1839, Sec. 59, P. L. 531.)

POWER TO ADMINISTER OATHS.

19. The assessors shall have the power to administer oaths to any person claiming the right to be assessed, or the right of suffrage, or in regard to any other matter or thing required to be done or inquired into by any of said officers, under this act; and any wilful false swearing by any person in relation to any matter or thing concerning which they shall be lawfully interrogated by any of said officers or overseers, shall be perjury. (Act 1874, Sec. 17, P. L. 40.)

C. ASSESSORS' LIST, REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN BOROUGHS AND TOWNSHIPS.

HOW LISTS TO BE PREPARED.

20. For the purpose of making the original annual assessment and registration of voters in each of the election districts of this Commonwealth, it shall be the duty of each of the assessors, who are required to perform any of the duties incident to the holding of elections and registration of voters in the different election districts of this Commonwealth, to visit in person each and every dwelling house in his district on the first Monday in May and on the first Monday in December of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be possible and practicable, when all of said dwelling houses cannot be personally visited by him on the said first Monday of May and on the first Monday in December, and to make a list in a book prepared for that purpose by the county commissioners, of all the qualified electors that he shall find, upon careful and diligent inquiry, to be bona fide residents of his district, together with the date when such dwelling house was visited by the assessor, entering them in such book in the order in which such dwelling houses are visited; and the qualified electors in each dwelling house being grouped together, and if in a city or town, the names of the qualified electors shall be grouped together by streets, alleys or courts, and the persons so found to be legally qualified electors shall forthwith be assessed; the assessor shall, in all cases, personally ascertain by careful and diligent inquiry of the voter or of some known resident of the election district in which the voter claims the right to vote, upon what ground each person so assessed claims to be a legally qualified voter. (Act 1891, Sec. 1, P. L. 134.)

TO BE KNOWN AS ORIGINAL REGISTRY LIST. CONTENTS.

21. The list thus prepared shall be designated and known as the "Original Registry List." It shall be the duty of the said assessor to enter in said "Original Registry List" the names of the male citizens, twenty-one years of age and upwards, claiming to be qualified voters in the election district of which he is the assessor; and opposite each of said names state whether said citizens is or is not a housekeeper, and if he is, the number of his residence in cities or towns where the same are numbered, with the street, alley or court in which situated, and if in a city or town where there are no numbers, the name of the street, alley or court on which said house fronts; also the occupation of the person at the date of such assessment, and where he is not a housekeeper, the occupation, place of boarding and with whom at the date of his assessment; and if working for another, the name of the employer; and write opposite each of said names the word "voter." (Act 1891, Sec. 1, P. L. 134.)

REGISTRATION OF NATURALIZED PERSONS AND PERSONS VOTING ON AGE.

22. Where any person claims to vote by reason of naturalization, he shall exhibit his certificate thereof to the assessor, unless he has been for two consecutive years next preceding, a voter in said district; and in all cases where the person has been naturalized, the name shall be marked with the letter "N;" where the person has merely declared his intentions to become a citizen and designs to be naturalized before the next election, he shall exhibit the certificate of his declaration of intention and the name shall be marked "D. I.;" and where the person shall be entitled by existing laws to be naturalized without making a declaration of his intentions to be naturalized, and intends to be naturalized at least one month before the next general election, the name of such person shall be marked "I. N.;" where the claim is to vote by reason of being of the age of twenty-one years and under twenty-two, as provided by law, the word "age" shall be entered, and if the person has moved into the election district to reside since the last general election, the letter "R" shall be placed opposite the name. (Act 1891, Sec. 1, P. L. 134.)

COPY OF LIST TO BE PLACED ON DOOR OF VOTING PLACE. REGISTRATION ON PERSONAL APPLICATION.

23. It shall be the duty of the said assessor to forthwith make a copy of the said original list, with the observations and explanations required to be noted as aforesaid, to be made out as soon as practicable. It shall be his duty on or prior to the fourth Monday of May and on or prior to the second Monday of December in each year, to place a copy on the door of, or on the house where the election of the respective district is required to be held, and retain the original list in his possession for the inspection, free of charge, of any person resident in the said election district who shall desire to see the same; and it shall be the duty of the said assessor to assess, from time to time, on the personal application of any claiming the right to vote, the name of such claimant, and mark opposite the name "C. V.," and immediately assess him, noting as in all other cases his occupation, residence, the date of his assessment, whether a boarder or housekeeper; if a boarder, with whom he boards, and whether naturalized or designing to be, marking in all cases opposite the name the letter "N.," "D." or "I. N.," as the case may be; if the person claiming to be assessed, be naturalized, he shall exhibit to the assessor his certificate of naturalization; and if he claims that he designs to be naturalized before the next ensuing election, he shall exhibit the certificate of his declaration of intention, if such previous declaration is required by the laws of the United States. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 75.)

CORRECTION OF LISTS.

24. It shall be the duty of the said assessor to be present at the election house of the said election district, during the two secular days next preceding the day fixed by the 26th section of this Code for returning the list to the county commissioners, from ten ante meridian to three post meridian, and from six post meridian to nine post meridian, of each of said days, for the purpose of hearing and acting upon applications to be made under the provisions of this section, or relating to names upon said list, or that are sought to be placed thereon, or struck therefrom; and it shall be his duty to correct said original list by adding thereto upon personal application the names of persons entitled to vote not already thereon, and by striking therefrom fictitious names, or names of persons who may have died or removed from said district; and in all cases it shall be the duty of the said assessor to enter in his book, opposite the name of each voter, the name or names of the person or persons, together with the residence of the same, who shall furnish information as to the residence and qualifications of each voter who has been assessed, or as to the persons whose names shall be stricken from said original list; and the said original list shall be open for inspection by any qualified elector of the county or ward in which the election district is situated, as well as by the persons claiming to be registered; and the court of common pleas of the proper county, or any law judge thereof at chambers, on the application of any qualified elector of the ward or county under oath, which oath may be made at any time before the day of election, shall call the assessor and the complainant before it or him by citation or rule to show cause, and shall hear the parties and dispose of the subject in a summary manner, as to law and justice shall belong, and shall, if need be, order, the assessor to correct the registry accordingly, and the said court or judge may enforce such order by attachment as in proceedings for contempt. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 75.)

ASSESSORS TO SIT AT THEIR RESIDENCE WHERE NO PERMANENT POLLING PLACE.

25. It shall be the duty of the assessor in all voting districts or precincts of this Commonwealth where temporary voting places are or may be established, to be present at his place of residence in said election district or precinct during the two secular days next preceding the day fixed by the 26th section of this Code for returning the list to the county commissioners, from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 9 p. m. of each of said days, to perform all the duties as set forth in the 24th section of this Code. (Act 1893, Sec. 1, P. L. 455.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO MAKE UP LIST OF VOTERS.

26. After the assessments have been completed on the sixty-second day before the third Tuesday of February, and on the sixty-second day before the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each year, the assessor shall, on the following day, make a return to the county commissioners of the "Original Registry List" thus revised and completed, and the county commissioners shall thereupon proceed to make out a complete list in alphabetical order of all persons so returned as taxables in said election district, and furnish the same, together with the necessary election blanks, to the officers of the election in such election district, on or before seven o'clock in the morning of the election; and no man shall be permitted to vote at the election on that day whose name is not on said list, unless he shall make proof of his right to vote as hereinafter required. "The Original Registry List," as returned to the county commissioners preceding the November election, shall be returned by the county commissioners to the assessor before the first Monday of December, which shall be used by said assessor to make his original registry list for December as heretofore provided. (Act 1895, Sec. 3, P. L. 78.)

QUALIFICATION OF UNREGISTERED VOTERS.

27. On the day of election any person whose name shall not appear on the registry of voters, and who claims the right to vote at said election, shall produce at least one qualified voter of the district as a witness to the residence of the claimant in the district in which he claims to be a voter, for the period of at least two months immediately preceding said election, which witness shall be sworn or affirmed and subscribe a written or partly written and partly printed affidavit to the facts stated by him, which affidavit shall define clearly where the residence is of the person so claiming to be a voter; and the person so claiming the right to vote shall also take and subscribe a written or partly written and partly printed affidavit, stating, to the best of his knowledge and belief, when and where he was born; that he has been a citizen of the United States for one month and of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; that he has resided in the Commonwealth one year, or, if formerly a qualified elector or a native born citizen thereof, and has removed therefrom and returned, that he has resided, therein six months next preceding said election; that he has resided in the district in which he claims to be a voter for the period of at least two months immediately preceding said election; that he has not moved into the district for the purpose of voting therein; that he has, if twenty-two years of age or upwards, paid a State or county tax within two years, which was assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election. The said affidavit shall also state when and where the tax claimed to be paid by the affiant was assessed, and when and where and to whom paid; and the tax receipt therefor shall be produced for examination, unless the affiant shall state in his affidavit that it has been lost or destroyed, or that he never received any; and if a naturalized citizen shall also state when, where and by what court he was naturalized, and shall also produce his certificate of naturalization for examination. But if the person so claiming the right to vote shall take and subscribe an affidavit that he is a native-born citizen of the United States, or, if born elsewhere, shall state the fact in his affidavit, and shall produce evidence that he has been naturalized or that he is entitled to citizenship by reason of his father's naturalization, and shall further state in his affidavit that he is, at the time of making the affidavit, of the age of twenty-one and under twenty-two years; that he has been a citizen of the United States one month, and has resided in the State one year; or, if a native-born citizen of the State and removed therefrom and returned, that he has resided therein six months next preceding said election, and in the election district two months immediately preceding such election, (and) he shall be entitled to vote, although he shall not have paid taxes. The said affidavit of all persons making such claims and the affidavits of the witnesses to their residence shall be preserved by the election board, and at the close of the election they shall be inclosed with the list of voters, tally-list and other papers required by law to be filed by the return judge with the prothonotary, and shall remain on file therewith, in the prothonotary's office, subject to examination as other election papers are. If the election officers shall find that the applicant possesses all the legal qualifications of a voter he shall be permitted to vote, and his name shall be added to the list of taxables by the election officers, the word "tax," being added where the claimant claims to vote on tax and the word "age," where he claims to vote on age, the same word being added by the clerks in each case, respectively, on the lists of persons voting at such election. Provided, That in case any person is allowed to vote at an election, who is not registered, but makes an affidavit which by reason of the failure to fully observe the requirements of this section is insufficient, in any contest growing out of said election it shall be lawful to correct any mistakes or supply any deficiencies in such affidavit, so as to show that the said person was in fact a qualified voter; but this shall not apply to non-registered voters who make no affidavit, or one which makes no attempt to comply with the law. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 254.)

QUALIFICATION OF CHALLENGED VOTER.

28. It shall be lawful for any qualified citizen of the district, notwithstanding the name of the proposed voter is contained on the list of resident taxables, to challenge the vote of such person, whereupon the same proof of the right of suffrage, as is now required by law, shall be publicly made and acted on by the election board, and the vote admitted or rejected, according to the evidence. Every person claiming to be a naturalized citizen shall be required to produce his naturalization certificate, at the election, before voting, except where he has been for five years consecutively a voter in the district in which he offers his vote; and on the vote of such person being received, it shall be the duty of the election officers to write or stamp on such certificate the word "voted," with the day, month and year; and if any election officer or officers shall receive a second vote on the same day, by virtue of the same certificate excepting where sons are entitled to vote, because of the naturalization of their fathers, they and the person who shall offer such second vote shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court; but the fine shall not exceed five hundred dollars in each case, nor the imprisonment one year. The like punishment shall be inflicted, on conviction, on the officers of election who shall neglect or refuse to make, or cause to be made, the indorsement required as aforesaid on said naturalization certificate. (Act 1874, Sec. 11, P. L. 36.)

The provisions of Sections 27 and 28 shall not apply in cities of the first, second and third class in so far as they conflict with the provisions of Sections 29 to 77 of this Code.

D. PERSONAL REGISTRATION IN CITIES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND CLASSES.

DEFINITIONS.

29. "Commissioners," as used herein, has reference to Registration Commissioners; "oath" includes affirmation, and "swear" includes affirm, wherever used. All references to public officers or municipal authorities, where not otherwise specified, shall be understood to refer to the authorities of the proper county or judicial district. "Party," as used herein, has reference to a political party which, at the last Presidential election, polled two per centum of the vote cast in any city or election district for the Presidential Elector receiving the largest vote therein. "Register" means the book containing, or to contain, the registry list of electors, prepared by the registrars. "General election" means the election held in even numbered years. "Municipal election" means the election held in odd numbered years. (Act 1911, Sec. 1, P. L. 993.)

BOARD OF REGISTRATION COMMISSIONERS.

30. The Governor of the Commonwealth shall, not later than June 15, in the year 1912, and in every fourth year thereafter, appoint a Board of Registration Commissioners for each of said cities (of the first and second classes), consisting of four duly qualified electors of said city, not more than two of whom shall be members of the same party. The commissioners shall hold office for a term of four years, or until their successors qualify. Any commissioner may be removed for cause, by the Governor. Any vacancy in a Board of Commissioners shall be filled by the Governor, within ten days after the vacancy occurs, and the person appointed to fill such vacancy shall hold office during the remainder of the term of the commissioner in whose place he was appointed. All appointments shall be so made that at no time shall more than two commissioners belong to the same party. Commissioners in cities of the first class, shall receive a compensation at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum; in cities of the second class, at the rate of two thousand dollars per annum; said compensation shall be paid by the treasurer of the proper county. (Act 1911, Sec. 2, P. L. 994.)

JURISDICTION OF REGISTRATION COMMISSIONERS UPON CONSOLIDATION OF TWO OR MORE CITIES.

30½. In the case of consolidation of two or more cities, under the laws of the Commonwealth, the Boards of Registration Commissioners of said cities, provided for and appointed in accordance with an act, entitled "An Act to provide for the personal registration of electors in cities of the first and second classes of this Commonwealth, to make such registration a condition of the right to vote in such cities, and to provide penalties for the violations of its provisions," approved the seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six, shall remain in office and continue their functions until the expiration of the term for which they were appointed, each Board of Registration Commissioners remaining in charge of the municipal territory for which it was appointed. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 394.)

ORGANIZATION.

31. As soon after their appointment as may be, the commissioners shall organize by selecting a chairman and a secretary, who shall not be members of the same party. The concurrence of three commissioners shall be necessary to any affirmative action, except as may be otherwise provided herein. The commissioners shall keep a record in permanent form, of all their proceedings. Their records shall be open to the public at all reasonable times; and they shall make an annual report to the Governor. They shall have power to administer oaths. (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 50.)

REGISTRARS.

32. The commissioners shall, not later than August fifteenth of each year, appoint three registrars for each election division, as herein provided. The registrars must be duly qualified electors of the said division, and shall have been residents of the city for a period of two years, and of the ward for one year, immediately preceding their appointment. They must be sober and judicious persons, of good moral character, able to read intelligently and to write legibly. Two of the registrars shall be members of the party polling the highest vote, in excess of two per centum, cast within the election division at the last preceding Presidential election for the Presidential elector receiving the largest vote therein; and one shall be a member of the party polling the next highest number of votes, in excess of two per centum, cast within the election division at the last preceding Presidential election for the Presidential elector receiving the largest vote therein. The commissioners shall provide at all times a Board of Registrars, not more than two of whom shall be of the same political faith. If, therefore, it appears at any time that, by reason of a change in political affiliations or because of error in the appointment, a Board is not so divided, any ten electors of the ward may file a petition with the commissioners, setting forth the facts, and praying that one or more of the appointments may be revoked, and that other appointments may be made. The commissioners shall grant a public hearing, and, if they find the facts to be as represented, shall give the relief asked for. Two of the said registrars, one of which shall be of the majority party, shall be designated by the commissioners to have charge of the voting check-list, as hereinafter provided. No person who holds, or is a candidate for public office shall act as registrar. (Act 1911, Sec. 3, P. L. 995.)

PETITIONS FOR APPOINTMENT.

33. The names of three qualified persons shall be suggested to the commissioners, by petitions duly filed for each division,—two by the party polling the highest vote, in excess of two per centum, within the division at the last preceding Presidential election, for the Presidential elector receiving the largest vote therein; and one by the party polling the next highest number of votes, in excess of two per centum, within the election division, at the last preceding Presidential election, for the Presidential elector receiving the largest vote therein, by the district division committees, if such exist; and, if not, by the ward executive committees, if such exist; if not, by the city committees. These petitions shall be signed by five electors of the ward, and shall set forth the names, addresses, and occupations, and political affiliations of the persons suggested. Each candidate for registrar shall swear to the truth of the facts set forth in his petition. The petitions shall remain on file, open to public inspection, at least ten days before the person named therein shall be appointed, except in cases where a vacancy occurs in the office of registrar within ten days of a registration day. If no petitions are filed, the commissioners may appoint without regard to party; and, if the persons suggested by petition are unfit, shall have power to appoint others of whom they have knowledge. No appointment shall be made unless the person to be appointed has personally appeared before the commissioners, and has satisfied them of his qualifications; but, in case of a reappointment, it shall not be necessary for the person so reappointed to be summoned. At least one week's notice of the time and place of the examination, for each ward or election division, of those persons who have been suggested by petition, or are under consideration, for appointment as registrars in such ward or election division, shall be published by the commissioners in at least two daily newspapers in the city. Any elector may appear in person, and first being duly sworn, (and) show wherein any person, so under consideration, does not possess the qualifications of a registrar. If the persons nominated are found not to be properly qualified, the commissioners may decline to appoint them; and the division committee, ward executive committee, or city committee shall then suggest other names as aforesaid. (Act 1911, Sec. 3, P. L. 995.)

THREE COMMISSIONERS TO APPROVE APPOINTMENTS.

34. No person shall be appointed a registrar unless the appointment is approved by three commissioners; Provided, That if two commissioners have concurred in approving three persons, successively, to fill one position, and the other two commissioners have concurred in objecting to said persons, the commissioners first referred to may approve three other names; and from these six, all having been suggested by petition, the other two commissioners must select the registrar. (Act 1911, Sec. 3, P. L. 995.)

POWERS OF COMMISSIONERS. COMPENSATION OF REGISTRARS.

35. The commissioners shall have power to summon any person whom they desire to interrogate, and all persons testifying before said commissioners shall be first duly sworn by said commissioners. Any person so appointed a registrar must perform his duties as prescribed by this act, unless excused therefrom by the commissioners, for cause shown. The registrars shall receive a compensation of ten dollars per day, for the time actually spent in registration. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 395.)

REGISTRATION DAYS.

36. The registrars of each division (of cities of the first and second classes) shall meet at the polling-place thereof, in even-numbered years, on the ninth Thursday, seventh Tuesday, and fifth Saturday, preceding the November election, which shall be known at the Fall registration, and on the fifth Wednesday preceding the Spring primary, which shall be known as the Spring registration; and, in odd-numbered years, on the tenth Thursday, ninth Tuesday, and eighth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration; and shall remain in open session from seven ante meridian to ten ante meridian, and from four post meridian to ten post meridian, of each registration day. They shall, on said days, receive personal applications from persons who claim that they are entitled to be registered. They shall have power to administer oaths, shall examine said applicants under oath, and shall record on the register the names of those whom they shall determine to be qualified, as hereinafter provided. Two week's notice of the registration days shall be given by the commissioners, by publication in at least two daily newspapers in the city, and by posting notices at the polling-places. Electors who did not register at Fall registration may register at Spring registration, and the list shall become of no validity at the beginning of the period of Fall registration next succeeding that at which the registers were opened. The old registers shall be preserved by the commissioners for at least two years after the year in which they shall have been in use. (Act 1911, Sec. 4, P. L. 999.)

FORM OF REGISTERS.

37. Every person claiming the right to vote must appear in person before the registrars in the division in which he lives, on one of the days prescribed by law, and answer the questions put to him by them. These answers must be recorded on a single line, in two registers, which shall have the following form. The size and character of the said register shall be determined by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and the form thereof shall be furnished by the said Secretary to the respective commissioners. (Act 1911, Sec. 5, P. L. 1,000.)

INSTRUCTIONS.

38. Immediately above the form shall be printed the following instructions: The applicant must be sworn, or affirmed that the information given by him in reference to his right to be registered shall be the truth. Any wilful false statement constitutes perjury, and is punishable as such. (Act 1907, Sec. 3, P. L. 399.)

MANNER OF RECORDING ANSWERS.

39. Every register shall be indexed alphabetically from A to Z. The lines of each page shall be consecutively numbered in both margins, beginning with the number one at each alphabetical division of the register. The answers of the applicants shall be recorded in their presence, in both registers, in the following manner: In the first column shall be entered the surname of the applicant, in the order of his appearance at the polling-place, on the page bearing the index letter of his surname; in the second column shall be entered his Christian name or names; in the third column, his occupation; in the fourth column, the street and number of his residence; in the fifth and sixth columns, whether he is a lodger, lessee, or owner, and, if he is a lodger or is lessee of a portion only of a house, the location or number of the room or floor which he occupies; in the seventh and eighth columns shall be entered the length of his residence in the State and division, respectively; in the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth columns, the location of the house from which he last registered, giving State, city, street, and number, respectively, and the year in which he is so registered; in the thirteenth column, the State or territory of the United States, or the foreign country, where he was born; in the fourteenth column, whether, being foreign-born, he produces his naturalization papers; in the fifteenth column, the number of the affidavit of naturalization of his father, if taken; in the sixteenth and seventeenth columns, the manner in which he complies with the law relating to the payment of taxes as a qualification of the right to vote, whether by the production of his receipt or by making affidavit; if the applicant is less than twenty-two years of age, the word "age" shall be recorded in said column; in the eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first columns, his personal description, designating whether white or colored, his approximate age, height, and weight; in the twenty-second column, in the register marked "voting check-list," he shall be required to sign his name, if able to write; if he alleges inability to write, a record of the fact shall be made in the same column; and unless due to some apparent physical infirmity, he shall be required to make affidavit of his inability to write; in the twenty-second column, in the register marked "ballot check-list," he shall, if challenged on election day, be required to sign his name; in the twenty-third column shall be entered the number of the challenge affidavit of every person who is required to take said affidavit; in the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh columns, the election officers shall record, in one register, the obtaining of the ballot, and, in the other, the casting of the vote of the registered elector at the Fall primary, November election, Spring primary, or special election, as hereinafter provided, or as may hereafter be provided by law. (Act 1911, Sec. 5, P. L. 1000.)

PERSONS ENTITLED TO REGISTER.

40. Every person who shall have paid his taxes on or before the last day for registration, and who shall possess all the other qualifications of an elector, as provided in the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, or who by continued residence in his election division will obtain such qualifications before the next ensuing election, shall be entitled to be registered; but no person shall be registered unless at least two of the registrars determine that he is so qualified. (Act 1911, Sec. 6, P. L. 1005.)

CHALLENGES.

41. Any person claiming the right to register may be challenged by a registrar, or by any qualified elector of the election district. Any person so challenged shall answer the questions of the challenge affidavit, as herein specified; and after his answers have been recorded, he shall sign, if able to write, and swear to their truth. He shall also make affidavit, at the same time, to the truth of his answers as recorded in the register, if able to read, and which he shall be deemed to have examined or have had the same read to him. The affidavit of all persons so registered shall, at the close of each day of registration, be numbered and filed. The challenge affidavit shall be in the following form:

Registrars.

The challenged applicant shall produce such further proof as the law requires challenged persons to produce on election day, and it shall be the duty of the registrars to require it before permitting him to be registered. All persons claiming the right to vote by reason of naturalization shall be required to produce the proper naturalization papers, or a certified copy thereof, before they shall be registered, but no such person shall be required to produce his papers a second time in the same district, unless he is challenged; Provided, That any person claiming citizenship by reason of the naturalization of his father, may be registered either by the production of his father's papers or a certified copy thereof, or by making affidavit that his father was naturalized at a time when he, the applicant, was less than twenty-one years of age, and that he is unable to produce his father's papers. Whenever the applicant is rejected, after a portion of the record has been filled in, a line shall be drawn through the record already made, and the registrar shall note on said line the reason for the rejection, and shall add his initials thereto. All affidavits and vouchers shall be executed in duplicate, one being delivered into the custody of each registrar who has charge of the registers. (Act 1907, Sec. 4, P. L. 407.)

REVISION OF REGISTERS. REGISTRATION OF PERSONS REMOVING.

42. On the registration day preceding the Spring primary the registrars shall, in addition to the registration of electors, strike from the list the names of such persons as shall be proven to their satisfaction, by the affidavits of at least two qualified electors of the ward, to have died, or removed, from the division since the last registration. The registrars shall record, on blank forms provided for that purpose, the names and previous places of registration, giving wards and divisions, of all persons registered by them on said day, who give, as such place of previous registration, a place in the same city, and shall forward the same to the commissioners for their information. Thereafter, upon the return of the registers to the office of the commissioners, it shall be their duty to examine the same, and, wherever registered persons have given as their last place of registration another election division in the same city, to strike said name from the register of said district of prior residence, and to note thereon the reason for so removing the name. At any time between the November election and the tenth day prior to the Spring primary, any registered elector who has removed from one election division to another in the same city, two calendar months prior to the Spring primary, may apply at the office of the commissioners and have the registry of his name transferred from the division from which he has removed to the one in which he has taken up his new residence. It shall be the duty of the commissioners, upon satisfactory proof of the elector's identity, to strike his name from the register in the division from which he has removed, to examine him in the regular way as to his qualifications, and, if his answers are satisfactory, to register him in the division to which he has removed. (Act 1911, Sec. 7, P. L. 1005.)

WATCHERS.

43. Parties or bodies of electors, who now are, or hereafter may be, entitled to have watchers at the general election, shall be allowed to appoint not more than three electors of the ward to act as watchers in each place of registry, without expense to the county, on each registration day. No more than one watcher from such party shall be allowed in the registry place at any one time. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, stating his name and the party or policy he represents. Watchers shall be entitled to be present during all of the public sessions herein provided for, and shall be required to show their certificates when requested to do so. They shall have the power to challenge. (Act 1906, Sec. 11, P. L. 58.)

NUMBER OF PERSONS ALLOWED IN ROOM.

44. No more than six electors, other than the registrars and the watchers herein provided for shall be allowed in the registry-room at any one time. (Act 1906, Sec. 12, P. L. 58.)

CERTIFICATE OF REGISTRARS.

45. At the end of each day's registration the registrars shall compare the two registers, so kept, and cause any errors in either of them to be corrected, by aid of the entries in the other, so as to make the same agree, where there is any difference between them. All of the registrars shall then sign their initials on the line immediately under the last names registered, under each letter, in both books, together with the date. At the close of both Fall and Spring registrations the registrars shall sign a certificate, the form of which shall be printed on the last page of the register, setting forth the number of persons registered on each day, and the number of names which have been stricken out, if any. (Act 1911, Sec. 8, P. L. 1007.)

STREET LISTS.

46. The registrar who has not charge of either of the rgeisters shall prepare two "street lists" of all names registered. These lists shall contain the names of the electors and their addresses, in the order in which their residences appear upon the streets of the division. One of said street lists shall be hung outside of the polling-place, and shall remain in that position until the next election. The other shall be returned to the office of the commissioners, and at least one hundred exact copies of it shall be printed in pamphlet form, and shall be ready for distribution at least three weeks before election day. (Act 1911, Sec. 9, P. L. 1007.)

47. One of said street lists shall be hung outside of the polling-place, and shall remain in that position until the next election. The other shall be returned to the office of the commissioners, and at least one hundred exact copies of it shall be printed in pamphlet form and shall be ready for distribution at least three weeks before election day. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 58.)

COMPLAINTS TO BOARD OF REGISTRATION COMMISSIONERS.

48. If any citizen shall object to the action of the registrars in accepting or rejecting any claim for registration, he may file his petition, duly sworn to by said citizen, with the commissioners, setting forth the ground of his complaint. If the complaint is to the acceptance of a claim, notice to the claimant shall be given by leaving a written or printed notice at his place of residence, as given by him to the registrar and recorded in the register. When such petitions are filed the commissioners shall fix a time and place for hearing them, sufficiently in advance of the election to enable the same to be heard and disposed of prior thereto, and to have a review thereof by the courts. Such hearing shall be public, before the commissioners, and the register of voters may be amended, either by the insertion of a new name or the cancellation of a name already on the register, or otherwise, as the commissioners may order. The commissioners may enforce their orders as herein provided, or may make the amendments themselves or by their clerks. All such applications for correcting the register must be made not later than fifteen days prior to a general or municipal election. (Act 1911, Sec. 10, P. L. 1008.)

APPEALS.

49. The applicant, or any elector who is not satisfied with the decision of the commissioners, may petition the court of common pleas, setting forth the reason why he feels that injustice has been done, and thereupon the said court of common pleas may, in its descretion, allow an appeal to it from the decision of the commissioners. The said court may then fix a day for a public hearing, of which notice shall be served by the petitioner upon the commissioners and upon the person or his attorney who opposed his contention before the commissioners, together with a copy of the petition, at least five days before such public hearing may take place, proof of which must be exhibited to the court. The said court, after such public hearing, may reverse, affirm, or alter the decision of the commissioners. Said petitions for appeals must be filed not later than ten days preceding an election. (Act 1907, Sec. 6, P. L. 411.)

ILLNESS OR ABSENCE ON REGISTRATION DAYS.

50. Any qualified elector who has paid his taxes after the last day of the Fall registration, and on or before the final day for the payment of the same in odd numbered years, may, on the twentieth day preceding the election in odd numbered years, present his petition to the commissioners, setting forth the fact as to the payment of his taxes, and given in detail the information required to be recorded in the register, and praying that his name may be added to the register in the proper division. If the facts are proven to the satisfaction of the commissioners, subject to the same conditions as though the applicant for such registration had presented himself for registration before the board of registrars of his district, they shall order the name of the petitioner to be inserted in the register in the proper place. Any qualified elector who was too ill to appear at the polling-place on all of the registration days preceding such election or primary, or who was unavoidably absent from the city on all of said days, may at any time, up to two weeks before any election, present his petition to the commissioners, setting forth the facts as to his illness or unavoidable absence, and setting forth in detail the information required to be recorded in the register, and praying that his name may be added to the register in the proper division. After this petition shall have remained in the office of the commissioners, open to public inspection, for at least two days, a hearing shall be granted; the petitioner shall personally appear, and if the facts are proven, to the satisfaction of the commissioners, to be as reported, they shall order the name of the petitioner to be inserted on the register in the proper place. This hearing shall be public and any qualified elector shall have the right to challenge and to require proper proof of identity, as in the case of registry before the registrars. If any person is not satisfied with the decision of the commissioners, he may appeal to the court of common pleas, as in other cases. The commissioners shall also have power to investigate, on their own motion, any irregularities in registration, and shall have power to summon witnesses, to examine them under oath, and to require the production of the books and papers of the registrars. The commissioners shall have authority to summon such number of registrars as, in their judgment, may be necessary to assist them in carrying into effect the provisions of this section. Registrars when summoned by the commissioners, under this section, shall be entitled to and receive the same compensation as is received by registrars under the existing law for registration services. (Act 1911, Sec. 10, P. L. 1008.)

CUSTODY OF REGISTERS.

51. The two registrars designated to keep the two registrers shall obtain at the office of the commissioners the blank books, forms, and other supplies prepared for their use, before the first registration day in the fall, and before the Spring registration day, and shall have the same at the polling-place on said days. On registration days, and during the time from one such day to another until the close of the fall registration period, the said registrars shall have the custody and control, and shall be charged with the safekeeping of the registrers in which they have made entries, together with all affidavits, forms, et cetera, which have been taken in duplicate, as hereinbefore provided. During the same periods, the other registrar shall be charged with the safe-keeping of the street-lists which are in course of preparation by him. At the close of the registration, and before twelve o'clock noon on the following day, the two registrars who have been charged with the keeping of the registers shall deliver the same, together with one street-list, all affidavits, vouchers, unused forms, et cetera, to the registration commissioners at such place as may be designated by them. The said papers and books shall remain on file at a place designated by the commissioners, open to public inspection, under proper regulations for their safe-keeping, subject, however, to the further provisions of this act. The registration commissioners shall have power to appoint a recorder, and fix his compensation, at a sum not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars per annum; a clerk, who shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, a stenographer, who shall act as clerk, who shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum; a custodian, who shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum; a messenger, who shall receive a salary of eight hundred and forty dollars per annum; and not more than fifteen clerks, for such time as may be necessary, at a compensation not exceeding three dollars per diem, for the time actually employed; and an attorney, whose compensation shall not exceed two thousand dollars per annum. All petitions provided for by this act shall be sworn to by at least one of the petitioners, and the recorder shall have power to administer such oaths. (Act 1911, Sec. 11, P. L. 1011.)

DUTIES OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

52. The county commissioners of each county, upon proper vouchers, shall provide for the payment of the commissioners, counsel, registrars, and other officers or clerks provided by this act. They shall furnish proper rooms for the accommodation of the commissioners and their records. They shall also, at the direction of the commissioners, prepare and have printed, at the expense of the county, all the registers, street-lists, affidavits, blanks, blank books, and stationery required by the provisions of this act, or which, in the judgment of the commissioners, are reasonably necessary to carry out its provisions, and shall provide for their proper distribution to the commissioners and their registrars. It shall also be their duty to see that the polling-places are open and in proper order for the use of the registrars. They shall also deliver the two registers to the election officers, in the manner in which they are or may be required to deliver other election materials for use on election day. (Act 1907, Sec. 7, P. L. 414.)

RIGHT TO VOTE.

53. Any person whose name is on the register shall be entitled to vote at any general, special, primary, or municipal election, unless it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the election officers that he has become disqualified since registration. Provided, That if a special election shall intervene between registration day and the next general or municipal election, the presence of the name of an elector on the list shall only be prima facie evidence of his right to vote. If his name is not registered he shall not be entitled to vote at any election. Before receiving his ballot every voter shall satisfy the election officers of his identity, and, if challenged, by signing his name in the place provided for that purpose, if able to do so, and by the production of such other evidence as is or may be required by law. (Act 1907, Sec. 8, P. L. 416.)

BALLOT AND VOTING CHECK LISTS.

54. The two registers shall be used at elections, by the election officers, in the place of the ballot check-list and the voting check-list. One of the said registers shall be marked "Ballot check-list" and the other shall be marked "Voting check-list." After the polls are closed the names checked as having voted, in the said two registers, shall be immediately counted, and the result announced before the ballot-box is opened. The two registers shall be immediately sealed in an envelope, and shall be returned to the custody of the commissioners when the ballot-box and other election returns are delivered to the proper officers. (Act 1907, Sec. 8, P. L. 416.)

E. PERSONAL REGISTRATION IN CITIES OF THIRD CLASS.

APPOINTMENT OF REGISTRARS.

55. The county commissioners of each county in which is located cities or a city of the third class shall, not later than June fifteenth, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and every fourth year thereafter, appoint two registrars for each election precinct or ward, to serve for a term of four years, and until their successors are duly qualified. The said registrars must be duly qualified electors of the precinct or ward for which they are appointed, and must have been residents of the city in which said precinct or ward is situated for a period of two years before their said appointment, and of the precinct or ward for one year immediately preceding the same. They must be sober and judicious persons, of good moral character, able to read intelligently and to write legibly. One of the said registrars shall be a member of the party polling the highest vote, in excess of two per centum, within the election precinct or ward at the last preceding Presidential election for Presidential elector, and the other shall be a member of the party polling the next highest number of votes in excess of two per centum, cast within the election precinct or ward at the last preceding Presidential election for Presidential elector. It is the intent of this act that at all times the Board of Registrars shall be, as nearly as may be, evenly divided in political faith, and, therefore, if if it appears that at any time, by reason of a change in political affiliations or because of error in the appointment, the Board is not so evenly divided, any ten electors of the district may file a petition with the county commissioners, setting forth the facts and praying that the changed or erroneous appointments may be revoked and another appointment made instead. The county commissioners shall grant a public hearing, and, if they find the facts to be as represented, they shall give the relief asked for; but no registrar shall be revoked merely because his party, at an election following his appointment, has polled a less number of voters in the district than some other party. No person who holds or is a candidate for a public office shall act as registrar. (Act 1911, Sec. 1, P. L. 1014.)

REMOVAL.

56. The county commissioners shall also be empowered to remove any of the said registrars for misconduct or malfeasance in office. (Act 1906, Sec. 1, P. L. 63.)

PETITIONS FOR APPOINTMENT.

57. The names of two suitable persons to be registrars shall be suggested to the county commissioners, by petitions duly filed for each precinct or ward, by the party representatives of the two leading parties of the precinct or ward. The petitions shall be signed by five electors of the district, and shall set forth the names, addresses, occupations, and political affiliations of the persons suggested. The signers of the petitions shall swear to the truth of the facts set forth therein. The petition shall remain on file, open to the public inspection, at least ten days before the persons named therein shall be appointed, except in cases where a vacancy occurs in the office of registrar within ten days of a registration day, when the appointment can be made without such delay. If no petitions are filed, the county commissioners may appoint without regard to party. No appointment shall be made unless the person who desires to be appointed personally appears before the county commissioners and satisfies them of his qualifications. In case of reappointment, however, it shall not be necessary for him to appear before them. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 251.)

HEARING.

58. At least one week's notice of the time and place of the examination of the sugested registrars shall be given by the county commissioners, in the daily press; and any elector may appear, either in person or by counsel, and object to the qualification of any applicant. If the persons nominated are found not to be properly qualified, the county commissioners may decline to appoint them; and the party authorities of the precinct or ward may then suggest another name, or other names, for the said place or places. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 251.)

COMPENSATION.

59. The registrars shall receive a compensation of five dollars a day, for the time actually spent in the work of registration. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 251.)

REGISTRATION DAYS.

60. The registrars of each precinct or ward (in cities of the third class) shall meet at the polling-place thereof, in even-numbered years, on the ninth Thursday, seventh Tuesday, and fifth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration, and on the third Wednesday preceding the Spring primary, which shall be known as the Spring registration; and in odd-numbered years, on the tenth Thursday, ninth Tuesday, and eighth Saturday preceding the November election, which shall be known as the Fall registration; and shall remain in open session from eight ante meridian to one post meridian, two to six post meridian, and from seven post meridian to ten post meridian, of each registration day. They shall on said days receive personal applications from persons who claim that they are entitled to be registered as voters. They shall have power to administer oaths, shall examine said applicants under oath, and shall record on the registers the names of such persons as are qualified to vote as herein provided. Two week's notice of the registration days shall be given, by the registrars posting notices at the polling-places. Electors who did not register at Fall registration may register at Spring registration, and the list shall become of no validity at the beginning of the period of Fall registration next succeeding that at which the registers were opened. The old registers shall be preserved by the county commissioners for at least two years after the year in which they shall have been in use. (Act 1911, Sec. 2, P. L. 1016.)

ILLNESS OR ABSENCE ON REGISTRATION DAYS.

61. Every person claiming the right to vote must appear in person before the registrars, in the precinct or ward in which he lives, on one of the days prescribed by law, prior to every November election; and if he has, subsequently to the said November election, moved into another precinct or ward, he must appear in person before the registrars, in the district to which he has thus removed, in order to enable him to vote at the ensuing Spring primary; unless, in either case, he is prevented by sickness or necessary absence from the city from appearing before the said registrars to be registered in person. In either of these cases, it shall be his right, at any time, to present his petition to the county commissioners; and in case they shall refuse to order his name placed on the registration list, the said petitioner may appeal to the court of common pleas of the district in which he resides, if the said court is in session, or, if not in session, to any judge thereof; whereupon the said court shall grant a rule upon the said county commissioners to show cause why the name of the said person should be placed upon the register; and the said court, or judge thereof, shall fix a day certain for the return of the said rule, at which time the parties can be heard; and upon the return of the said rule, upon a hearing duly had, if the said court or judge shall be satisfied that the facts set forth in the petition are true, and that the applicant was prevented by sickness or necessary absence from the city from appearing in person before the registrars and being registered, and is qualified to vote, the rule may be made absolute; and the registrars shall be directed to place the name of such person or persons upon the registers. (Act 1911, Sec. 3, P. L. 1017.)

FORM OF REGISTERS.

62. Every person appearing before the registrars, after being sworn, shall answer the questions put to him by them. These answers must be recorded on a single line, in two registers, which shall have the following form. The size and character of the registers shall be determined by the county commissioners.

Surname	Christian Name	Occupation	Present Residence

INSTRUCTIONS.

63. Immediately above the form shall be printed the following instructions: The applicant must be sworn or affirmed that the information given by him in reference to his right to be registered shall be the truth. Any wilful false statement constitutes perjury, and is punishable as such. (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 65.)

MANNER OF RECORDING ANSWERS.

64. Every register shall be indexed alphabetically from A to Z. The lines of each page shall be consecutively numbered in both margins, beginning with the number one at each alphabetical division of the register. The answers of the applicants shall be recorded in their presence, in both registers, in the following manner: In the first column shall be entered the surname of the applicant, in the order of his apperance at the polling-place, on the page bearing the index letter of his surname; in the second column shall be entered his Christian name or names; in the third column his occupation; in the fourth column, the street and number of his residence; in the fifth or sixth columns, whether he is a lodger, lessee or owner, and, if he is a lodger, or lessee of a portion only of a house, the location or number of the room or floor which he occupies; in the seventh and eighth codunms shall be entered the length of his residence in the State and district, respectively; in the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth columns, the location of the house from which he last registered, giving State, city, street, and number, respectively, and the year in which he so registered; in the thirteenth column, the State or territory of the United States, or the foreign country, where he was born; in the fourteenth column, whether, being foreign-born, he produces his naturalization papers; in the fifteenth column, the number of the affidavit of naturalization of his father, if taken; in the sixteenth and seventeenth columns, the manner in which he complies with the law relating to the payment of taxes as a qualification of the right to vote, whether by the production of his receipt or by making affidavit of payment of tax, if receipt is not produced; if the applicant is less than twenty-two years of age, the word "age" shall be recorded in said column; in the eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first columns, his personal description, designating whether white or colored, his approximate age, height, and weight; in the twenty-second column shall be entered the number of the challenge affidavit of every person who is required to take said affidavit; in the twenty-third, twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, and twenty-sixth columns the election officers shall record, in one register, the obtaining of ballot, and, in the other, the casting of the vote of the registered elector at the Fall primary, November election, Spring primary, or special election, as hereinafter provided, or as may hereafter be provided by law. (Act 1911, Sec. 3, P. L. 1017.)

PERSONS ENTITLED TO REGISTER.

65. Every person who shall have paid his taxes on or before the last day of registration, and who shall possess all the other qualifications of an elector as provided in the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, or who by continued residence in his election district will obtain such qualifications before the next ensuing election, shall be entitled to be registered. Any qualified elector who has paid his taxes after the last day of the Fall registration, and on or before the final day for the payment of the same, in odd-numbered years, may, on the twentieth day preceding the election in odd-numbered years, present his petition to the county commissioners, setting forth the fact as to the payment of his taxes and giving in detail the information required to be recorded in the register, and praying that his name may be added to the register in the proper division. If the facts are proven to the satisfaction of the commissioners, subject to the same conditions as though the applicant for such registration had presented himself for registration before the board of registrars of his district, they shall order the name of the petitioner to be inserted in the register in the proper place. (Act 1911, Sec. 4, P. L. 1022.)

CHALLENGE.

66. Any person claiming the right to register may be challenged by a registrar or by any elector of the precinct or ward. Any person so challenged shall answer the questions of the challenge affidavit, as herein specified; and after his answers have been recorded, he shall sign and swear, or affirm, to their truth. He shall also make affidavit, at the same time, of the truth of his answers as recorded in the registers, and which he shall be deemed to have examined or had read to him. The affidavits of all persons so registered shall, at the close of each day of registration, be numbered and filed. The challenge affidavit shall be in the following form.

Registrars.

67. The challenged applicant shall produce such further proof as the law requires challenged persons to porduce on election day, and it shall be the duty of the registrars to require it before permitting him to be registered. All persons claiming the right to vote by reason of naturalization shall be required to produce the proper naturalization papers, or a certified copy thereof, before they shall be registered; but no such person shall be required to produce his papers a second time in the same precinct or ward, unless he is challenged. Whenever the applicant is rejected, after a portion of the record has been filled in, a line shall be drawn through the record already made, and the registrars shall note on said line the reason for the rejection, and shall add their initials thereto. (Act 1906, Sec. 6, P. L. 69.)

REVISION OF REGISTERS.

68. On the registration day preceding the Spring primary the registrars shall, in addition to the registration of electors, strike from the list the names of such persons as shall be proven, to their satisfaction, by the affidavits of at least two qualified electors of the precinct or ward, to have died, or removed from the district, since the last registration. The registrars shall record on blank forms provided for that purpose the names and previous places of registration, giving wards and precincts, of all persons registered by them on said day, who give as such place of previous registration a place in the same city, and shall froward the same to the commissioners for their information. Thereafter, upon the return of the registers to the office of the commissioners, it shall be their duty to examine the same, and, wherever registered persons have given as their last place of registration another election district in the same city, to strike said name from the register of said district of prior residence, and to note thereon the reason for so removing the name. Any registered elector who has removed, between the November election and the Spring primary, from one election district to another in the same city, two calendar months prior to the Spring primary, and who failed to apply to have his name transferred on the register on the registration day prior to the Spring primary, in the district to which he has removed, may apply on the eleventh or tenth day prior to the Spring primary, at the office of the county commissioners, and have the registry of his name transferred from the district from which he has removed to the one in which he has taken up his new residence. It shall be the duty of the commissioners, upon satisfactory proof of the elector's identity, to strike his name from the register in the district from which he has removed, to examine him in the regular way as to his qualifications, and, if his answers are satisfactory, to register him in the district to which he has removed. (Act 1911, Sec. 5, P. L. 1023.)

WATCHERS.

69. Parties or bodies of electors, who are now, or hereafter may be, entitled to have watchers at the general election, shall be allowed to appoint not more than three electors of the precinct or ward to act as watchers in each place of registry, without expense to the county, on each registration day. No more than one watcher from such party shall be allowed in the registry place at any one time. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, stating his name and the party or policy he represents. Watchers shall be entitled to be present during all of the public sessions herein provided for, and shall be required to show their certificates when requested to do so. They shall have the power to challenge. (Act 1906, Sec. 8, P. L. 70.)

NUMBER OF PERSONS ALLOWED IN ROOM.

70. No more than six electors, other than the registrars and the watchers herein provided for, shall be allowed in the registry-room at any one time. (Act 1906, Sec. 9, P. L. 70.)

CERTIFICATE OF REGISTRARS.

71. At the end of each day's registration, the registrars shall compare the two registers, so kept, and cause any errors in either of them to be corrected by aid of the entries in the other, so as to make the same agree, where there is any difference between them. The registrars shall then sign their initials, on the line immediately under the last name registered, under each letter, in both books, together with the date. At the close of both Fall and Spring registrations, the registrars shall sign a certificate, the form of which shall be printed on the last page of the register, setting forth the number of persons registred on each day, and the number of names which have been stricken out, if any. (Act 1911, Sec. 6, P. L. 1024.)

COMPLAINTS TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

72. If any citizen shall object to the action of the registrars in accepting or rejecting any claim for registration, he may file his petition with the county commissioners, setting forth the ground of his complaint, within ten days. If the complaint is to the acceptance of a claim, notice to the claimant shall be given by leaving a written or printed notice at his place of residence, as given by him to the registrars and recorded on the registers. When such petitions are filed the county commissioners shall fix a time and place for hearing them, sufficiently in advance of the election to enable the same to be heard and disposed of prior thereto, and to have a review thereof by the courts. Such hearing shall be public, before the county commissioners, and the registers of voters may be amended, either by the insertion of a new name or the cancellation of a name already on the registers, or otherwise, as the county commissioners may order. The county commissioners may enforce their orders as herein provided, or may make the amendments themselves or by their clerks. All such applications for correcting the registers must be made not later than ten days prior to an election. (Act 1906, Sec. 11, P. L. 71.)

APPEALS.

73. The applicant, or any elector who is not satisfied with the decision of the county commissioners, may petition the court of common pleas, setting forth the reasons why he feels that injustice has been done, and thereupon the said court of common pleas may, in its descretion, allow an appeal to it from the decision of the county commissioners. And the said court, after a public hearing, may reverse, affirm, or alter the decision of the county commissioners. Said appeals must be made not later than five days preceding an election. (Act 1906, Sec. 11, P. L. 71.)

CUSTODY OF REGISTERS.

74. The registrars shall obtain, at the office of the county commissioners, the blank books, forms and other supplies prepared for their use, before the first Fall registration day, and shall have the same at the polling-place on the said day. On registration days, and during the time from one day to another, until the close of the registration period, the said registrars shall have the custody and control and shall be charged with the safe-keeping of the registers in which they have made entries, together with all affidavits, forms, and so forth, which have been taken in duplicate, as hereinbefore provided. At the close of the registration, and before twelve o'clock noon of the following day, the registrars shall deliver the registers, together with all affidavits, vouchers, unused forms, and so forth, to the office of the county commissioners; and the said papers shall remain there on file, open to public inspection, under proper regulations for their safe-keeping; subject, however, to further provisions of this act. On Monday or Tuesday prior to the third Wednesday preceding the Spring primary, the said registrars shall obtain from said office, each, the register kept by him, together with a sufficient number of blank forms and other supplies, and shall have the same at the polling-place, for use on said registration day; and, as before, shall be charged with the safe-keeping and return of said records before noon of the day following the registration day. (Act 1911, Sec. 7, P. L. 1025.)

DUTIES OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

75. The county commissioners of each county, upon proper vouchers, shall provide for the payment of the registrars provided by this act. They shall furnish proper rooms for the accommodation of themselves and their records. They shall also prepare and have printed, at the expense of the county, all the registers, affidavits, blanks, blank books, and stationery required by the provisions of this act, or which are reasonably necessary to carry out its provisions, and shall provide for their proper distribution to the registrars. It shall also be their duty to see that the polling-places are open and in proper order for the use of the registrars. They shall also deliver the two registers to the election officers, in the manner in which they are or may be required to deliver other materials for use on election day. (Act 1907, Sec. 4, P. L. 254.)

RIGHT TO VOTE.

76. Any person whose name is on the register shall be entitled to vote at any general, special, municipal, or primary election, unless it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the election officers, that he is no longer a resident of the election district in which he is registered: Provided, That if a special election shall intervene between registration day and the next general or municipal election, the presence of the name of an elector on the list shall only be prima facie evidence of his right to vote. If his name is not registered he shall not be entitled to vote at any election. Before receiving his ballot every voter shall satisfy the election officers of his identity, and, if challenged, by signing his name in the place provided for that purpose, if able to do so, and by the production of such other evidence as is or may be required by law. (Act 1907, Sec. 5, P. L. 256.)

BALLOT AND VOTING CHECK LISTS.

77. The two registers shall be used at elections by the election officers, in the place of the ballot check-list and the voting check-list. One of the said registers shall be marked "ballot check-list," and the other shall be marked "voting check-list." After the polls are closed the names checked as having voted, in the said two registers, shall be immediately counted, and the result announced before the ballot-box is opened. The two registers shall then be immediately sealed up in an envelope, and shall be returned to the custody of the county commissioners when the ballot-box and other election returns are delivered to the proper officers. (Act 1906, Sec. 13, P. L. 72.)

II. METHODS OF NOMINATION.

A. UNIFORM PRIMARIES.

DATE OF PRIMARY. SCOPE OF ACT.

78. One primary shall be held each year, in every election district of this Commonwealth in which nominations are to be made or delegates or party officers elected as herein provided. The said primaries shall be held on the last Saturday of September in all odd-numbered years, and on the second Saturday of April in all even-numbered years. The primary held on the last Saturday of September shall be known as the Fall primary, and the primary held on the second Saturday of April shall be known as the Spring primary. Delegates to State and National conventions, except delegates-at-large to National conventions, which shall be elected by the State convention, shall be elected at the Spring primary, throughout the Commonwealth, by any party or body of electors one of whose candidates, at either the general or municipal election preceding polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the State for any candidate at the last general election. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the general election, with the exception of those nominated by National or State conventions, shall be nominated at the Spring primary. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the municipal election shall be nominated at the Fall primary, and such party officers as are provided for by the rules of the several political parties, to be elected by vote of the party electors, shall be elected at the Spring primary, by any political party or body of electors one of whose candidates, at either the general or municipal election preceding such primary, polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the political district, in which nominations are to be made or candidates elected, for any candidate at the last general election. (Act 1911, Sec. 1, P. L. 43.)

PROVISIONS MANDATORY. EXCEPTIONS.

79. No delegates to State or National conventions, or officers of parties, shall be elected, or candidates for the public offices herein specified be nominated, in any other manner than as set forth in Sections 78 to 115 of this Code; Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent the nomination of candidates for borough or township offices, or other offices not herein specified enumerated, in the manner provided by Section 116 of this Code; or any association of electors, not constituting a party, from nominating candidates by nomination papers, as is provided by existing laws. (Act 1906, Sec. 2, P. L. 36.)

80. This act shall not apply to the nomination of candidates for Presidential electors, or to the nomination of candidates to be voted for at special elections to fill vacancies; but it shall not be construed to prevent the nomination of Presidential electors at primaries, if the rules of the respective parties so provide. (Act 1906, Sec. 2, P. L. 36.)

SECRETARY OF COMMONWEALTH TO FURNISH COUNTY COMMISSIONERS LIST OF OFFICES TO BE VOTED FOR.

81. On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the primary, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send to the county commissioners in each county a written notice, setting forth the number of Congressmen and officers of the Commonwealth, not nominated by State conventions, to be elected or voted for therein at the next succeeding general election. (Act 1906, Sec. 3, P. L. 37.)

CHAIRMAN OF STATE COMMITTEE TO FURNISH LIST OF DELEGATES TO BE ELECTED.

82. On or before the same date, in even-numbered years, the chairman of the State committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners a written notice, setting forth the number of delegates to be elected in such county to the State and National conventions of such party. (Act 1911, Sec. 2, P. L. 45.)

CHAIRMAN OF COUNTY COMMITTEE TO FURNISH LIST OF PARTY OFFICERS TO BE ELECTED.

83. On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Spring primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice, setting forth the names of all party offices to be filled by election at the ensuing primary. On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Fall primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice, setting forth the names of all county and city offices to be filled by the election at the ensuing primary. (Act 1911, Sec. 2, P. L. 45.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO PUBLISH LISTS.

84. Upon receipt of such notices, and beginning within one week thereafter, such county commissioners shall publish the number of delegates to be elected to the State and National conventions of each party, together with the names of all offices for which nominations are to be made or candidates for the party offices to be elected, within the county, at the ensuing primary, at least once each week for three successive weeks, in two newspapers of general circulation published within the county, wherever such course is possible. Such newspapers, so far as practicable, shall be representative of different political parties. (Act 1906, Sec. 3, P. L. 37.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO PREPARE BALLOTS.

85. Official primary ballots for each party shall be prepared by the county commissioners. These ballots shall be printed on white paper of uniform quality, and shall be uniform in size, style of printing and general appearance. (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 37.)

FORM OF BALLOT.

86. The ballot for each party shall be in the following form:

..... PRIMARY BALLOT.

[And on the back of such ballot shall also be printed in prominent type the name of the party.] (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 37.)

ARRANGEMENT OF NAMES.

87. The ballot shall vary in form only as the names of offices or candidates may require. The names of the candidates shall appear in alphabetical order under the respective offices. The voter may designate his choice, as is indicated by the instructions shown on the form of ballot above set forth. (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 37.)

DELEGATES MAY INDICATE CANDIDATES THEY WILL SUPPORT IN CONVENTION.

88. Each candidate for delegate shall have the right, by filing a request with the county commissioners, to have printed at the right of his name upon the official ballot, in the space provided for that purpose, the name of the candidate whom he will support in the convention. (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 37.)

PETITION TO PLACE NAME ON BALLOT.

89. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party, upon the filing of petitions, signed by qualified electors of the political district division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated. (Act 1906, Sec. 5, P. L. 39.)

FILING.

90. The said petitions, in the case of candidates for Congress or for State offices, shall be filed, at least four weeks prior to the primary, with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and in all other cases shall be filed, at least three weeks prior to the primary, with the county commissioners of the respective counties. (Act 1906, Sec. 5, P. L. 39.)

NUMBER OF SIGNERS.

91. The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for Members of Congress, Judges of the various court, and State Senator, two hundred qualified electors.

2. Candidates for nomination for Members of the State House of Representatives, and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

3. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to State and National conventions, and for party offices, ten qualified electors. (Act 1906, Sec. 5, P. L. 39.)

SECRETARY OF COMMONWEALTH TO FORWARD LIST OF CANDIDATES TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

92. The Secretary of the Commonwealth, immediately after the filing of the said petitions with him, shall forward to the county commissioners of each county a correct list of the candidates of each party for the various offices, as contained in such petitions. (Act 1906, Sec. 6, P. L. 39.)

FORMS OF BALLOT TO BE ON FILE.

93. The county commissioners shall have on file in their office, at least one week preceding the primary, open to public inspection, forms of the ballots with the names printed thereon, which shall be used in each election district within such county. (Act 1906, Sec. 6, P. L. 39.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO PREPARE BALLOTS.

94. The county commissioners shall prepare, and furnish to the election officers for use at the primaries, as many official ballots of each party as are equal to double the total number of votes cast for any candidate of said party, within the election district, at the last general election: Provided, That the county commissioners shall furnish such additional number of ballots, in any election district, as may be requested in writing by the chairman of the county committee of any party; such requests must be filed with the county commissioners two weeks before the primary. (Act 1906, Sec. 7, P. L. 39.)

SAMPLE BALLOTS.

DELIVERY OF BALLOTS.

BALLOT BOXES, SUPPLIES, ETC.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

98. The primaries shall be conducted by the regular elections boards, duly elected under existing laws, who shall receive one-half the compensation for their services that they receive at elections. Inspectors of elections shall have the right to appoint clerks to assist them, as at elections, who shall receive one-half the compensation that clerks receive for such services at elections. Vacancies on election boards shall be filled in the manner now provided by law. Before entering upon their duties the election officers and clerks shall be sworn, as is now required by law. (Act 1906, Sec. 8, P. L. 40.)

POLLING HOURS. LIQUOR SELLING.

99. The polls shall be open between the hours of two post meridian and eight post meridian: Provided, That all persons licensed to sell liquors, either at wholesale or retail, or as bottlers, shall be compelled to keep their places of business closed, on said days for holding said primary elections, only between the hours of one o'clock post meridian and nine o'clock post meridian. (Act 1906, Sec. 8, P. L. 40.)

CONDUCT OF PRIMARY. ASSISTANCE.

EXPENSE OF PRIMARY.

101. The county commissioners shall keep an accurate account of the entire expense of holding such primaries, including the preparation and delivery of supplies, voting materials, et cetera, and the total amount shall be paid, in the first instance, by the county treasurer, upon the order of the county commissioners. As soon as convenient thereafter, the county commissioners shall prepare an itemized statement of the amount so paid, verified by oath, and send the same, accompanied by the receipted vouchers, to the Auditor General, who, if he finds the same correct, shall draw a warrant on the State Treasurer, for the proper county, for the amount so approved, which shall be paid by the State Treasurer out of the money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated. (Act 1906, Sec. 9, P. L. 41.)

QUALIFICATION OF VOTERS.

102. The qualifications of electors entitled to vote at a primary shall be the same as the qualifications of electors entitled to vote at elections, within the election district where the primary is held. Each elector shall prove his qualifications and his identity in the same manner in which electors in the election district in which he offers to vote are, or hereafter may be, required by law to prove their qualifications or identity, on election day. (Act 1906, Sec. 10, P. L. 41.)

CHALLENGE.

103. Each elector shall have the right to receive the ballot of the party for which he asks: Provided, That if he is challenged, he shall be required to make oath or affirmation that, at the last preceding election at which he voted, he voted for a majority of the candidates of the party for whose ballot he asks. (Act 1911, Sec. 3, P. L. 46.)

104. Upon executing such affidavit the voter shall be entitled to receive the ballot for which he has called, and to cast his vote according to law. (Act 1906, Sec. 10, P. L. 41.)

CUSTODY OF BALLOT BOXES, ETC.

105. The ballot-boxes, lists of voters (a copy of which shall be posted outside of the polling-place), and other records shall be delivered into the custody of the officers who now are, or hereafter may be, required by law to keep similar records of election. (Act 1906, Sec. 11, P. L. 41.)

CANVASSING THE VOTE.

106. Upon the closing of the polls at such primary election, the election officers shall forthwith proceed to open the ballot-boxes and take therefrom the ballots, and first count the number cast for each party, and make a record thereof; and then count the vote cast for the different persons named upon said party ballots; and, when said count is finally completed, they shall certify, in due and proper form, to the number of votes cast for each person upon the respective party tickets. They shall then replace the ballots, counted and canvassed, in the boxes, and lock the same. They shall then place the returns of votes and the register of voters, aforesaid, for each party, in separate envelopes, and seal the same; which said envelopes shall, on or before noon of the Tuesday following, be deposited by the judge of election in person, or by registered mail, with the county commissioners, who shall on the succeeding day, at noon, publicly commence the computation and canvassing of the returns, and continue the same from day to day until completed; and for that purpose to have the right to petition the court of common pleas for the use of its processes to enforce the provisions of this act in relation to the returns of the election officers. (Act 1906, Sec. 11, P. L. 41.)

RECOUNT.

107. Upon the sworn petition of five qualified electors of any election precinct, division, or district that any specific act of fraud, which, upon information which they consider reliable, they believe has been committed in any election precinct, division, or district of the county, the court of common pleas of said county shall order the county commissioners to open the ballot-box of such election precinct, division, or district, and recount the votes; such recount to be conducted in such manner and under such conditions as the court shall prescribe. Any person aggrieved by any decision of the county commissioners, relative to the counting of the votes, may appeal therefrom to the court of common pleas of the proper county, whose duty it shall be to hear said appeal, and to make such decree as right and justice shall require: Provided, however, That in case of a contest of delegates to a State convention, such contests shall be determined by the State convention, according to the rules of their respective parties. Contests of primaries shall be originated and conducted as in the case of elections. (Act 1911, Sec. 4, P. L. 47.)

CERTIFICATE OF PERSONS NOMINATED.

CANDIDATES NOMINATED BY CONVENTION.

VOTE REQUIRED TO NOMINATE.

110. Candidates for nomination, as provided herein, who receive a plurality of votes of any party at a primary meeting, shall be the candidates of that party, and it shall be the duty of the proper officers to print their names upon the official ballots, for use at the election, as is now or hereafter may be requred by law. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 199.)

PARTY OFFICERS.

TIE VOTE.

VACANCIES.

113. Vacancies happening or existing after the date of the primary may be filled in accordance with the party rules, as is now or hereafter may be provided by law. (Act 1907, Sec. 1, P. L. 199.)

WATCHERS. OVERSEERS.

114. Each candidate shall be entitled to have two watchers at the primaries, as at elections, only one of whom shall be entitled to be within the polling-room at one time. Their rights, duties and methods of appointment shall be as at elections. Each party or candidate may, at any time before the primary, present a petition to the court of common pleas of the proper county, setting forth the fact that it or he has reason to believe that in a certain district or districts fraud or unfair methods may be attempted; and if, upon a consideration of the facts presented in said petition, the court shall be of the opinion that said application is made in good faith, the said court shall appoint an overseer for said petitioner or petitioners, who shall be entitled to remain within the polling-place during the casting and the counting of the ballots. (Act 1906, Sec. 13, P. L. 43.)

POLICE OFFICERS NOT TO BE WITHIN 100 FEET OF POLLING PLACE.

115. No police officer in commission, whether in uniform or in citizen clothes, shall be within one hundred feet of a polling-place during the conduct of a primary election, unless in the exercise of his privilege of voting, or for the purpose of the serving of warrants or the preserving of the peace. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 43.)

B. NOMINATIONS BY CONVENTIONS AND BY NOMINATION PAPERS.

NOMINATION BY CONVENTION.

116. Any convention of delegates, or primary meeting of electors, or caucus held under the rules of a political party, or any board authorized to certify nominations representing a political party which, at the election next preceding, polled at least two per centum of the largest entire vote for any office cast in the State, or in the electorial district or division thereof for which such primary meeting, caucus, convention or board, desires to make or certify nominations, may nominate one candidate for each office other than offices for which nominations are regulated by Sections 78 to 155 of this Code, which is to be filled in the State, or in the said district or division, at the next ensuing election by causing a certificate of nomination to be drawn up and filed as hereinafter provided. Every such certificate of nomination shall be signed by the presiding officer and the secretary or secretaries of the convention, or primary meeting, or caucus, or board, who shall add thereto their places of residence, and shall be sworn or affirmed to by them before an officer qualified to administer oaths, to be true to the best of their knowledge and belief, and a certificate of the oath shall be annexed to the certificate of nomination: Provided, That if any political party has by its rules provided for a registration of candidates for nominations, and at the time limited for such registration, or at any subsequent time, by reason of withdrawal or other cause there shall be no more candidates for any office registered or remaining than are to be elected to such office, the person or persons so registered or remaining shall be deemed the nominee or nominees, with the same effect as if he or they had been nominated by a convention or primary meeting, or caucus, or board. And one or more or all the officers of the committee of such political party with which such registration shall be made, or the officer with whom it is made, shall make a certificate of such nomination in the same manner and with the same effects as if there had been a nomination by a convention or primary meeting or caucus or board. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 179.)

BY NOMINATION PAPERS. ADOPTION OF PARTY NAME.

117. Nominations of candidates for any public office other than candidates of political parties for offices for which nominations are regulated by Sections 78 to 115 of this Code, may also be made by nomination papers, signed by qualified electors of the State, or of the electoral district or division thereof for which the nomination is made, and filed in the proper office as provided in Section 119 of this Code. Blank forms for making such nomination shall be furnished by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and no other form than the ones so prescribed shall be used for such purpose. Where the nomination is for any office to be filled by the voters of the State-at-large, the number of qualified electors of the State signing such nomination paper, shall be at least one-half of one per centum of the largest vote for any officer elected in the State at the last preceding election at which a State officer was voted for. In the case of all other nominations the number of qualified electors of the electoral district or division, signing such nomination paper, shall be at least two per centum of the largest entire vote for any officer elected at the last preceding election in the said electorial district or division for which said nomination papers are designed to be made. Each elector signing a nomination paper shall add to his signature his place of residence and occupation, and no person may subscribe to more than one nomination for each office to be filled. The signature to each nomination paper and the qualification of the signers shall be vouched for by the affidavit of at least five of the signers thereof, which affidavit shall accompany the nomination paper: Provided, That if five of the electors composing any political body making a nomination by nomination papers shall file with the prothonotary of the county in which the nomination paper or papers are to be filed an affidavit setting forth that they have adopted a certain political appellation to designate their policy, subject to the limitations of this act regarding the selection of names, that thereafter such political body shall have the exclusive right to use the said name or appellation for the election for which such nomination or nominations are made, provided that a certificate from the prothonotary setting forth such a compliance with the act be filed with the nomination papers filed by such political body. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 223.)

CONTENTS OF NOMINATION PAPERS. RESTRICTIONS ON USE OF PARTY NAME.

118. All certificates of nomination and nomination papers shall specify: One (1). The party of policy which such candidate represents, expressed in not more than three words; in the case of electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President shall be added to the party or political appellation. Two (2). The name of each candidate nominated therein, his profession, business or occupation, if any, and his place of residence, with the street and number thereon, if any. Three (3). The office for which such candidate is nominated: Provided, That no wards shall be used in any nomination papers, to describe or designate the party or policy, or political appellation, represented by the candidate named in such nomination papers as aforesaid, identical with the words used for the like purposes in certificates of nominations made by a convention of delegates, or primary meeting of electors, or caucus held under the rules of a political party, or any board authorized to certify nominations, representing a political party which, at the last preceding election, polled two per centum of the largest vote cast: And provided further, That any objections filed to a nomination certificate or paper on account of the party or political appellation used therein, or involving the right as defined by Sections 116 and 117 of this Code, to file such certificate or paper, shall be decided by the court of common pleas on hearing as hereinafter provided. (Act 1897, Sec. 2, P. L. 224.)

FILING CERTIFICATES OF NOMINATION AND NOMINATION PAPERS.

119. Certificates of nomination for candidates for the offices of presidential electors and members of the House of Representatives of the United States and for State offices in cases where nominations to such offices may by law be made by certificate of nomination or nomination papers, including those of judges, Senators and Representatives, shall be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth at least forty-two days before the day of election for which the candidates are nominated, and nomination papers for candidates for the said offices shall be filed with the said Secretary at least thirty-five days before the day of such election. Certificates of nomination and nomination papers for candidates for all other offices in cases where nominations to such offices may by law be made by certificate of nomination or nomination papers, except township and borough offices, shall be filed with the county commissioners of the respective counties at least twenty-eight and twenty-one days, respectively, before the day of election. Certificates of nomination and nomination papers for candidates for township and borough offices, and election officers and school directors in the same, shall be filed with the county commissioners at least eighteen and fifteen days, respectively, before the day of election. In determining or reckoning any period of time mentioned in this act, the day upon which the act is done, paper filed or notice given, shall be excluded from, and the day of election shall be included in the calculation or reckoning. (Act 1897, Sec. 3, P. L. 225.)

OBJECTIONS. AMENDMENTS.

120. It shall be the duty of the officer or officers to whom any nomination certificate or paper is brought for the purpose of filing, to examine the said certificate or paper, and if it lack sufficient signatures or be otherwise manifestly defective, it shall not be filed, but the action of said officer or officers in refusing to receive a certificate or paper, may be reviewed by the court of common pleas of the county upon an application for a mandamus to compel its reception as of the date when it was brought to the office. All nominations, certificates and papers which have been filed shall be deemed valid, unless objections thereto are duly made, by writing filed in the court of common pleas of the county in which the certificate or paper objected has been filed, and with the officer or officers with whom such certificates have been filed, and within the following periods:

First. In the case of certificates and papers filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, at least thirty-five days before the day of election, in the case of certificates of nomination, and at least twenty-eight days before the day of election, in the case of nomination papers.

Second. In case of other certificates and papers, except those designed for borough and township officers, at least eighteen days before the day of election.

Third. In the case of other certificates and papers, designed for borough and township officers, at least twelve days before the day of election. In case the court is in session, one or more judges thereof shall proceed to hear such objections, without unnecessary adjournment or delay, and shall give such hearing precedence over all other business before him or them. With respect to certificates and papers filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, such objections shall be heard, and finally determined, at least sixteen days before the day of election. In case the court is not in session, any judge thereof, on the presentation to him of the certificate of the prothonotary that such objections have been filed, as aforesaid, shall proceed to hear such objections as aforesaid. No objection, of any nature whatever, shall be filed unless accompanied by proper proof of service of notice of the proposed objection upon at least one of the candidates named in the certificate or paper objected to, nor shall any objections be heard in the absence of any of the said candidates without proof of service or notice of the hearing upon them. If the court decide that the certificate or paper objected to was not filed by parties entitled, under this act, to file the same, it shall be wholly void; but if it be adjudged defective only, the court shall indicate the matters as to which it requires amendment, and the time within which such amendment must be made; and every certificate or paper, amended after the time when the names therein contained have been sent to the sheriff, shall be subject to the provisions of this act concerning substituted nominations. In case the objections filed to any nomination are not sustained by the court, the petitioner or petitioners shall be liable for and shall pay the whole of the costs of such proceedings, including all witness fees. The officers with whom nomination certificates and papers have been filed shall permit the political parties, or bodies, who have filed them, to amend them of their own motion, at any time prior to the printing of the ballot. (Act 1903, Sec. 1, P. L. 224.)

WITHDRAWAL.

121. Any person whose name has been presented as a candidate may cause his name to be withdrawn from nomination, by request in writing signed by him and acknowledged before an officer qualified to take acknowledgements of deeds, and filed in the office where his nomination certificate or paper is on file fifteen days, or in the case of township and borough elections twelve days, previous to the day of the election; and no name so withdrawn shall be printed upon the ballots. (Act 1893, Sec. 7, P. L. 421.)

VACANCIES OCCURRING AFTER LAST DAY FOR NOMINATION.

122. Where any office not in court of record shall for any cause become vacant after the time for making nominations for such office shall have elapsed, or when a writ for a special election to supply a vacancy shall direct such election to be held at a date which would prevent the making of nominations in time to comply with Section 119 of this Code, nominations for the office to be filled may still be made in accordance with Sections 116 and 117 of this Code, but in other respects the provisions of Section 126 of this Code shall apply to such nominations. (Act 1893, Sec. 7, P. L. 421.)

PAPERS TO BE OPEN FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION.

123. All certificates of nomination and nomination papers when filed shall be open under proper regulations to public inspection, and shall be preserved not less than two years in the offices where they have been filed. (Act 1893, Sec. 8, P. L. 421.)

LIST OF NOMINEES TO BE CERTIFIED TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS AND SHERIFF.

124. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall, fourteen days at least previous to the day of any election of United States or State officers, or for the adoption of amendments to the Constitution of this Commonwealth, transmit to the county commissioners and the sheriff in each county, in which such election is to be held, duplicate official lists, stating the names and residences of, and parties or policies represented by, all candidates whose nomination certificates or papers have been filed with him as herein provided for such election, and have not been found and declared to be invalid as provided in Section six, and to be voted for at each voting place in each county, respectively, substantially in the form of the ballots to be used therein; duplicate copies of the text of all proposed constitutional amendments to be voted upon at such election. The county commissioners of each county shall also send to the sheriff of their county, at least ten days prior to the day of any general election, an official list, containing the names and party or political appellations of all candidates whose nomination certificates or papers have been filed with the said commissioners, as herein provided for such election, and to be voted for at each voting place in the county, substantially in the form of the ballots to be used therein. (Act 1903, Sec. 1, P. L. 338.)

NOMINATION IN CASE OF DEATH OR WITHDRAWAL OF CANDIDATE.

125. In case of the death or withdrawal of any candidate nominated as herein provided, the party convention, primary meeting, caucus, or board, or the citizens who nominated such candidate, may nominate a substitute in his place, by filing in the proper office at any time before the day of election, a nomination certificate or paper which shall conform to all the requirements of this act in regard to original certificates or papers: Provided, That if the said convention or citizen shall have authorized any committee, or if any executive committee of any political party be authorized by the rules of said party, to make nominations in the event of the death or withdrawal of candidates, the said convention shall not be required to reconvene nor the said citizens to sign a new nomination paper, but the said committee shall have power to file the requisite nomination certificate or paper, which shall recite the facts of the appointment and powers of the said committee, (naming all its members), of the death, or withdrawal of the candidate, and of the action of the committee thereon, and the truth of these facts shall be verified by the affidavit annexed to the certificate or paper of two members of the committee, and also of at least two of the officers of the convention who made affidavit in support of the original certificate, or two of the citizens who made affidavit to the original paper: And provided also, That in case of a substituted nomination paper not filed by a committee, but signed by citizens, it shall only be necessary that two-thirds of the signers of the said paper shall have been signers of the original paper. (Act 1893, Sec. 11, P. L. 424.)

OBJECTIONS TO SUBSTITUTE NOMINATIONS.

126. All substituted nomination certificates or papers may be objected to as provided in Section 120 of this Code, and if a substituted certificate or paper be filed after the last day for filing the original certificate or paper, objections must be made within four days after the filing, and no objections as to form and conformity to law shall be received after the time set for printing the ballots. (Act 1893, Sec. 12, P. L. 424.)

PLACING NAME OF SUBSTITUTE ON BALLOT.

127. As soon as any substituted candidate shall have been duly nominated, his name shall be substituted by the proper officers in the place of that of the candidate who has died or withdrawn so far as time may allow, and in case a substituted nomination be filed with or transmitted to the county commissioners after the ballots have been printed, the said commissioners shall prepare and distribute with the ballots suitable slips of paper bearing the substituted name, together with the title of the office, and having adhesive paste upon the reverse side, which shall be offered to each voter with the regular ballot and may be affixed thereto. (Act 1893, Sec. 12, P. L. 424.)

III. FORM OF BALLOT.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

128. When Presidential electors are to be voted for, the names of candidates for Presidential electors shall be arranged in party groups, as presented in the several certificates of party nomination and nomination papers, and the groups shall be printed upon the ballot in order of the vote obtained in the State, at the last Presidential election, by the parties nominating, beginning with the party which obtained the highest vote: Provided, That in the case of political parties not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the order of arrangement shall be alphabetically. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

PARTY NAME.

129. At the head of each group of candidates shall be printed the appropriate party name or political appellation, together with the surnames of the candidates of such party for President and Vice-President, underneath which shall be printed the names of the appropriate candidates for Presidential electors. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

PRESIDENTIAL SQUARE.

130. At the right of the space containing the surnames of the candidates for President and Vice-President, and their party name or political appellation, there shall be a square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X), and at the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector, there shall be a similar, but smaller, square. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

CANDIDATES FOR OTHER OFFICES.

131. The names of candidates for all other offices shall, in all cases, be arranged under the title of the office for which they are candidates, and be printed in the order of the votes obtained for the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating at the last Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the higest vote: Provided, That in the case of parties not represented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, the name of the nominees of such parties shall be arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. At the right of the name of each nominee, or candidate, shall be printed the name or appellation of the political party presenting or nominating him, and at the right of such party name, or political appellation, there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

CANDIDATES RECEIVING MORE THAN ONE NOMINATION.

132. Whenever any candidate shall receive more than one nomination for the same office, his name shall be printed once, and the names of each political party, so nominating him, shall be printed to the right of the name of such candidate, arranged in the same order as candidates' names are grouped, that is to say, in the order of the votes obtained by such party at the last preceding Presidential election, beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote. If such candidate shall be nominated by any political party not represented on the ballot in the last Presidential election, the name of such party shall follow the other names, and be arranged alphabetically, accordingly to the party name or appellation. At the right of every party name, or political appellation, shall be a square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

BLANKS FOR INSERTION OF OTHER NAMES.

133. There shall be left, at the end of the groups of candidates for Presidential electors, and of the list of candidates for each different office (or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held, in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefore), as many blank spaces as there are persons to be voted for, for such office, in which space the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot as a candidate for such office, and such insertion shall count as a vote, without the cross-mark as hereinafter mentioned. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS AND OTHER QUESTIONS.

134. Whenever the approval of a constitutional amendment, or other question, is submitted to the vote of the people, such question shall be printed upon the ballot in brief form, and followed by the words, "yes" and "no," and if such question be submitted at an election of public officers, it shall be printed after the list of candidates. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

METHOD OF MARKING. PARTY SQUARE.

135. The ballots shall be so printed as to give to each voter a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates by a cross-mark (X), in a square of sufficient size at the right of the name of each candidate, and inside the line enclosing the column, and, in like manner, answers to questions submitted, by similar marks, in squares at the right of the words "yes" and "no," and on the ballot may be printed instructions how to mark, and such words as will aid the voter to do this, as "mark one," "mark two," and the like. Provided, That a voter may designate his choice of an entire group of candidates for Presidential electors by one cross-mark (X), in a large square, which shall be placed at the right of the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President, at the head of such group, and such mark shall be equivalent to a mark against every name in the group: Provided further, That each voter may have the opportunity of designating his choice for all candidates, as nominated by one political party, there shall be printed on the extreme left of the ballot, and separated from the rest of the ballot by a space of at least one-half inch, a list of the names of all the political parties or groups of nominees, represented on such ballot and presenting candidates to be voted for at such election. Such names shall be arranged in the order of the votes obtained, at the last Presidential election, by the candidate at the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating, beginning with the party that received the highest vote cast. Following the names of such political parties, shall be the names of the parties or principles not presented on the ballot at the last Presidential election, arranged alphabetically, according to the party name or political appellation. A square, of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark, shall be placed at the right of each party name or appellation. Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that political appellation, or party name, including candidates nominated by more than one party, or group of citizens. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

INSTRUCTIONS.

136. At the head of every ballot shall be printed the following instructions:

To vote a straight party ticket, mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice, in the first column. A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate, indicates a vote for that candidate. (Act 1903, Sec. 2, P. L. 340.)

BALLOTS TO BE UNIFORM.

137. All the ballots used at the same voting place at any election shall be alike, and shall be at least six inches long and four inches wide. They shall be printed with the same kind or kinds of type, (which shall not be smaller than the size known as "brevier" or "eight-point body"), upon white paper without any impression or mark to distinguish one from another, and of sufficient thickness to prevent the printed matter from showing through. Each ballot shall be attached to a stub or counterfoil, and all the ballots for the same voting place shall be bound together in convenient numbers in books in such manner that each ballot may be detached and removed separately. (Act 1893, Sec. 15, P. P. 426.)

CORRECTION OF MISTAKES.

138. On the back of each ballot, or on the right hand side of the back, if the ballot is printed in two columns, there shall be printed as a caption, "official ballot for," followed by the designation of the voting place for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the election and a fac-simile of the signatures of the county commissioners of the respective counties who have caused the ballots to be printed. When it is shown by affidavit that mistake or omission has occurred in the publication of names or description of candidates, or in the printing of the ballots, the court of common pleas of the district or county, or any judge thereof, may upon the application of any qualified elector of the district or county require the county commissioners to correct the mistake or omission, or to show cause why they should not. (Act 1893, Sec. 15, P. L. 426.)

IV. CONDUCT OF ELECTIONS.

A. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SPECIAL AND LOCAL ELECTIONS TO BE CONDUCTED IN SAME MANNER AS GENERAL ELECTIONS.

139. Special elections, and all elections for city, ward, borough and township officers, for regular terms of service, shall be regulated and conducted in like manner as general elections, and by the same officers, who shall perform the same duties and be subject to the same penalties as are provided for general elections, unless otherwise provided for in this act. (Act 1874, Sec. 23, P. L. 42.)

ELECTION DAY TO BE A LEGAL HOLIDAY.

140. The first Tuesday after the first Monday of November of each year is hereby designated as a legal holdiday, and shall, for all purposes whatever as regards the presenting for payment or acceptance, and as regards the protesting and giving notice of dishonor of bills of exchange, checks, drafts and promissory notes, made after the passage of this act, be treated and considered as the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, and as public holidays, and all such bills, checks, drafts and notes, otherwise presentable for acceptance or payment on said day shall be deemed to be payable and be presentable for acceptance or payment on the secular or business day next succeeding such holiday. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 188.)

VOTERS TO VOTE ONLY IN DISTRICT OF DOMICILE.

141. From and after the passage of this act it shall not be lawful for any voter in this Commonwealth, except when in actual military service of this State or the United States, at any election authorized by law, to cast his ballot at any polling-place outside the lawfully designated election district in which he is domiciled. (Act 1893, Sec. 1, P. L. 107.)

TROOPS NOT TO BE PRESENT AT ELECTIONS.

142. No body of troops in the army of the United States or of this Commonwealth shall be present, either armed or unarmed, at any place of election within this Commonwealth, during the time of such election, Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent any officer or soldier from exercising the right of suffrage in the election district to which he may belong, if otherwise qualified according to law. (Act 1839, Sec. 95, P. L. 541.)

SHERIFF'S PROCLAMATION.

143. It shall be the duty of the sheriff of every county, at least ten days before any general election to be held therein, except borough and township elections, to give notice of the same by advertisements in at least three newspapers, if there be so many published in the county, two of said newspapers representing so far as practicable the political party which at the preceding November election cast the largest number of votes, and the other one of said newspapers representing so far as practicable the political party which at the preceding November election cast the next largest number of votes, and in addition thereto the sheriff of every county shall, at least ten days before any general election to be held in cities of the first, second and third classes, give notice of the same by proclamation posted up in the most conspicious places in every election district in said cities of the first, second and third classes and in every such advertisement or proclamation.

I. Enumerate the officers to be elected and give a list of all the nominations made as provided in this act and to be voted for in such county, and the full text of all constitutional amendments submitted to a vote of the people, but the proclamation posted in each election district need not contain the names of any candidates but those to be voted for in such district.

II. Designate the place at which the election is to be held.

III. He shall give notice that every person, excepting justices of the peace, who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the government of the United States, or of this State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise, a subordinate officer or agent who is or shall be employed under the Legislature, Executive or Judiciary Department of this State, or of the United States, or of any city or incorporated district, and also that every member of Congress and of the State Legislature, and of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district, is, by law, incapable of holding or exercising at the same time the office or appointment of judge, inspector or clerk of any election of this Commonwealth, and that no inspector, judge or other officer of any such election shall be eligible to any office to be then voted for except that of an election officer. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 392.)

TO BE PUBLISHED IN GERMAN NEWSPAPER.

144. It shall be the duty of the sheriff of every county in this Commonwealth to give notice of the general election by publication of the same once a week in not more than four weekly or daily newspapers, published in the county, one of said newspapers to be published in the German language in counties where such newspaper is published, the first insertion to be at least twenty days before the time such election is to be held; in counties of the Commonwealth where no newspapers are published, the sheriff of any such county shall give notice of such general election by posters, to be posted in at least three public places in each election district and at the place where such election is to be held. (Act 1885, Sec. 1, P. L. 144.)

CORONER TO GIVE NOTICE WHEN SHERIFF UNABLE TO.

145. In all cases where a sheriff is directed to perform any duty by the provisions of this act, and said sheriff is absent from the district, or there is any vacancy in said office, the duty directed to be performed by the sheriff shall be done and performed by the coronor of the proper county, who shall be entitled to the same fees and subject to like penalties. (Act 1839, Sec. 96, P. L. 541.)

CONSTABLE TO GIVE NOTICE OF TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS.

146. The constable or constables of every township within this Commonwealth, shall give public notice of the township elections, by ten or more printed or written advertisements, affixed at as many of the most public places therein, at least ten days before the election, and in every such advertisement they shall enumerate, designate and give notice as sheriffs of counties in cases of general elections are directed, by Section 143 of this Code, and in case of the neglect, refusal, death or absence of the aforesaid constable or constables, the duties herein enjoined on them shall be performed by the supervisors or assessors of the proper township, but said supervisors or assessor of the proper township shall not be required to give more than five days' notice. (Act 1840, Sec. 2, P. L. 684.)

HIGH CONSTABLE TO GIVE NOTICE OF BOROUGH ELECTIONS.

147. It shall be the duty of the high constable of each borough to give notice of the annual elections of said borough, by setting up six advertisements in the most public places in said borough ten days previous thereto. (Act 1834, Sec. 14, P. L. 167.)

NOTICE OF INCREASE OF MUNICIPAL INDEBTEDNESS.

147½. Whenever the corporate authorities of any county, city borough, township, school or other municipality or incorporated district by their ordinance or vote shall have signified a desire to make such increase of indebtedness (as requires submission of the same to the electors), they shall give notice, during at least thirty days, by weekly advertisements in the newspapers, not exceeding three, in said district, and, if no newspaper be published therein, by at least twenty printed handbills posted in the most public parts thereof, of an election to be held at the place or places of holding the municipal elections in said district or municipality on the day to be by them fixed, for the purpose of obtaining the assent of the electors thereof to such increase of indebtedness. Said notice shall contain a statement of the amount of the last assessed valuation, the amount of the existing debt, of the amount and percentage of the proposed increase, and the purpose for which the indebtedness is to be increased. Such election shall be held at the place, time and under the same regulations as provided by law for the holding of municipal elections. The corporate authorities of such municipality shall in all cases fix the time of holding such election on the day of the municipal or of the general election, unless more than ninety days elapse between the date of the ordinance or vote desiring such increase and the date of holding said municipal or general election. If any other day be fixed for such election the expense of holding the same shall be paid by the municipality for the benefit of which it shall be held. (Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 317.)

B. ELECTION DISTRICTS.

DIVISION OF TOWNSHIPS.

148. The several courts of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth shall have authority, within their respective counties, to divide townships into two or more election districts, so as to suit the convenience of the inhabitants thereof. (Act 1876, Sec. 1, P. L. 178.)

APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSIONERS.

149. Upon application by petition of twenty electors of the township, to said court of quarter sessions, for the purpose of dividing any township into election districts, said court shall appoint three impartial men to inquire into the propriety of granting the prayer of the petition, and it shall be the duty of the commissioners so appointed, or any two of them, to make a plot or draft of the proposed new election district or districts, if the same cannot be fully designated by natural lines or boundaries, all of which they or any two of them shall report to the next court of quarter sessions, together with their opinion of the same. (Act 1885, Sec. 1, P. L. 149.)

CONFIRMATION OF REPORT.

150. When a report has been made by said commissioners, it shall be confirmed nisi by said court, which confirmation shall become absolute, unless exceptions be filed to the same, not later than the third day of the next term of said court; and should exceptions be filed as aforesaid, they shall be disposed of, on evidence, as said court shall deem just: Provided, That if desired, a review may be had, if, in the opinion of the court, it may be necessary to secure a fair adjudication of the same; said review to be asked for before the report has been absolutely confirmed, however. (Act 1876, Sec, 3, P. L. 178.)

CONSOLIDATION OF ADJOINING DISTRICTS.

151. Upon the petition of a majority of the qualified electors voting at the last general election in each of two or more adjoining election districts in any township, borough or city, the same may be consolidated into one election district by the court of quarter sessions of the city or county in which they are located. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 377.)

PROCEDURE.

152. Upon application by petition of freeholders, as provided for in Section 151 of this Code, for the purpose of annexing one election district or township to another, the court of quarter sessions shall appoint viewers or commissioners, as provided for in Section 149 of this Code, whose duty it shall be to view the premises and make a draft of the townships or election districts proposed to be consolidated or annexed, and make their report at the next court of quarter sessions after their appointment; and if the said commissioners or a majority of them shall report in favor of the annexation or consolidation of the two townships or election districts, the said court shall confirm the same nisi, and order a special election to be held in each of the townships or election districts, at a time to be fixed by said court, not more than sixty days from the confirmation nisi, to vote upon the question of annexation; and if a majority of the qualified voters of each of said townships or election districts shall vote in favor of the annexation or consolidation of the said townships or election districts, the said court shall order and decree such consolidation or annexation of the said townships or election districts; and the place of holding elections of the townships or election districts so consolidated shall be at the usual place of holding elections in the more populous of the two townships or election districts so consolidated: Provided, That the court of common pleas shall have power to adjust the indebtedness of the said townships incurred prior to their consolidation, in such a manner that only the property within the old territorial limits of each township shall be liable for such indebtedness: And provided further, That in any case where a majority of voters in each of any two townships have heretofore voted in favor of annexation or consolidation of such townships, such annexation shall be legal and valid, as if done under the provisions of this act. (Act 1876, Sec. 5, P. L. 179.)

COMPENSATION OF COMMISSIONERS.

153. The compensation of said commissioners shall be the same as that now paid to road viewers, and to be paid in the same manner. (Act 1876, Sec. 6, P. L. 179.)

COSTS TO BE PAID BY COUNTY.

154. In all cases of the division or creation of election districts by the court of quarter sessions of any county in this Commonwealth, the said court shall order the costs and expenses thereof to be paid from the treasury of the proper county; and on such order being made, the county commissioners shall draw their warrant for the payment of the same. (Act 1875, Sec. 1, P. L. 29.)

COURTS TO FIX PLACE FOR HOLDING ELECTIONS AND APPOINT ELECTION OFFICERS.

155. In all cases in which new townships, boroughs or election districts shall be erected, or two or more election districts consolidated, or the bounds of any election district changed the court of quarter sessions erecting or changing the same shall fix the places for holding the elections, which shall continue to be the place for holding elections until the same shall be changed according to the provisions of said act; and the said courts shall also appoint the officers for holding the first election in any township, borough or election district so erected. (Act 1855, Sec. 1, P. L. 5; Act 1893, Sec. 2, P. L. 107; Act 1895, Sec. 2, P. L. 377.)

METHOD OF CHANGING POLLING PLACE. BY COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.

156. It shall be lawful for the court of quarter sessions of the proper county at any time for any reason that may seem proper to the court upon a petition of at least ten qualified electors of any election district, and upon such notice to the county commissioners as the court may direct, to change the polling-place of said district: Provided, however, That the court may, in its discretion, direct that an election shall be held to settle the question as to where said polling-place shall be located. (Act 1893, Sec. 1, P. L. 106.)

BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

157. It shall be lawful for the county commissioners of any county of this Commonwealth, at any time at least three weeks prior to any general, municipal, township or special election, for any reason that may seem proper to the county commissioners, upon a petition of at least ten qualified electors of any township election division, to change the polling-place of said township or election division: Provided, however, That the said county commissioners may, in their discretion, direct that an election he held to settle the question as to where the said polling-place shall be located. (Act 1903, Sec. 1, P. L. 187.)

BY JUDGE IN CHAMBERS.

158. In cases where five (5) responsible citizens of any election district shall appear before any law judge, of any county in this Commonwealth, in chambers, there being no court sitting, and state on oath, that owing to fire or impossibility to obtain the room, or any other unavoidable cause, the election cannot be held in their district, at the place designated by the sheriff's proclamation, the judge shall have power to designate some other convenient place, and shall at once notify the constable of the district, who shall notify the election board and the citizens of the district and he shall receive for the same the like fee as for notifying the voters of an election: Provided, That this change shall not be made within less than three days of the election, except in cases where the building in which the election was to be held is destroyed by fire: Provided further, That this act shall not apply to cities of the first class. (Act 1883, Sec. 1, P. L. 124.)

BY GOVERNOR.

159. It shall be lawful for the Governor of this Commonwealth, on the representation of the board of health, or of the municipal authority of any city, borough, town or incorporated district in this Commonwealth, that from the prevalence of any malignant or contagious disease, in such city, borough, town or district, the lives of the electors may be in danger by attending at the places fixed by law for holding elections within the same, to direct the sheriff of the proper county to give notice that the election for such city, borough, town or district, will be held at such place within the limits, or in the neighborhood of the same, as he, the Governor, may judge most safe and convenient; and it shall be the duty of such sheriff to give public notice of such place, in the manner hereinbefore required, at least seven days before the day of election, under the same penalty as is hereinafter provided. (Act 1839, Sec. 94, P. L. 540.)

ELECTIONS NOT TO BE HELD IN SALOONS.

160. No public election shall be held in any room any part of which is used for the sale of liquors, if it be possible to obtain another room for that purpose in the vicinity, and it shall be the duty of the court of quarter sessions, or any law judge thereof, to inquire, upon the petition of five or more citizens resident in the election district, whether any such rooms are now designated as polling-places, and in such cases to select other places for holding the election. (Act 1887, Sec. 2, P. L. 126.)

C. ELECTION OFFICERS.

ALL ELECTIONS TO BE CONDUCTED BY ELECTION OFFICERS.

161. The general, special, city, incorporated district and township elections, and all elections for electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, shall be held and conducted by the inspectors and judges elected and by clerks appointed as hereinafter provided. (Act 1839, Sec. 14, P. L. 522.)

MAY BE RE-ELECTED IN PHILADELPHIA.

162. All persons acting as judges and inspectors of the general election in the city and county of Philadelphia may be re-elected, any law to the contrary notwithstanding. (Act 1851, Sec. 6, P. L. 726.)

TERMS OF OFFICE.

163. There shall be elected in each election district in the State, one person as judge and two inspectors, to conduct the elections for two years. (Act 1874, Sec. 15, P. L. 39.)

EACH VOTER TO VOTE FOR ONE JUDGE AND ONE INSPECTOR.

164. Each of such qualified citizens shall vote for one person as judge, and also for one person as inspector of elections, and the person having the greatest number of votes for judge shall be publicly declared to be elected judge, and the two persons having the greatest number of votes for inspectors shall, in like manner, be declared to be elected inspectors of elections. (Act 1839, Sec. 4, P. L. 519.)

VACANCIES.

165. In all election districts where a vacancy exists by reason of the disqualification of the officer, or by removal, resignation, death or other cause, in an election board heretofore elected or appointed, or that may hereafter be elected or appointed, the judge or judges of the court of common pleas of the proper county, upon proof furnished that such vacancy or vacancies exist, shall at any time before any general, municipal or special election, appoint competent persons, who shall be of good character and known in the district where the vacancy occurs, to fill said vacancies to conduct the election in said districts; and in the appointment of the inspectors in any election district both shall not be of the same political party, and the judge of election shall in all cases be of the political party having the majority of votes in said district as nearly as the said judge or judges can ascertain the fact, and in case of the failure of said judges of the courts to act on the selection of inspectors, the political majority of the judges shall select one of such inspectors and the minority judge or judges select the other. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 38.)

TIE VOTE.

166. In all township elections of this Commonwealth for judges of the general and township elections where a tie shall exist in said election for judges, the inspector who shall have the highest number of votes in said election shall appoint a judge for that purpose. And where ties shall exist in said election for two inspectors, the two candidates who received the same number of votes for inspector shall determine by lot which of them shall be the majority inspector, and the other candidate shall be the minority inspector, and the person so determined to be the majority inspector shall appoint a judge of elections in case of a tie vote for judges. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 78.)

ORGANIZATION OF BOARD.

167. The inspectors and judges, chosen as aforesaid, shall meet at the respective places appointed for holding the election in the district to which they respectively belong, before seven o'clock in the morning of the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each and every year; and each of said inspectors shall appoint one clerk, who shall be a qualified voter of such district. (Act 1839, Sec. 15, P. L. 522.)

APPOINTMENT IN CASE OF FAILURE TO ATTEND.

168. In case the person who shall have received the second highest number of votes for inspector shall not attend on the day of any election, then the person who shall have received the second highest number of votes for judge at the next preceding election, shall act as inspector in his place; and in case the person who shall have received the highest number of votes for inspector shall not attend, the person elected judge shall appoint an inspector in his place; and in case the person elected a judge shall not attend, then the inspector who received the highest number of votes shall appoint a judge in his place; and if any vacancy shall continue in the board for the space of one hour after the time fixed by law for the opening of the election, the qualified voters of the township, ward or district, for which such officer shall have been elected, present at the place of election, shall elect one of their number to fill the vacancy. (Act 1839, Sec. 16, P. L. 522.)

169. In case any clerk appointed under the provisions of this act, shall neglect to attend at any election during said year, it shall be the duty of the inspector who appointed said clerk (or the person filling the place of such inspector) to forthwith appoint a suitable person as clerk, qualified as aforesaid, who shall perform said duties for the year. (Act 1839, Sec. 17, P. L. 522.)

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES BETWEEN ELECTION OFFICERS.

170. The court of common pleas of Philadelphia county is hereby vested with power to settle summarily any question that may arise concerning the officers to conduct said elections, and also to direct, according to the true intent and spirit of this act, which set of election officers shall act as aforesaid in any case of exigency which may arise or exist, not provided for by this act; and any vacancy that shall exist and continue for half an hour after the earliest time fixed by law for opening polls shall be filled in the manner now provided by law. (Act 1854, Sec. 31, P. L. 38.)

WHEN INSPECTORS ARE OF SAME PARTY.

171. Whenever thirty citizens of any ward, in the City of Philadelphia, shall present a petition to the court of common pleas of the said city, setting forth that in any election division of said ward the inspectors of election are of the same political party, and have been chosen or elected in violation of the spirit and intention of the several acts of Assembly regulating elections, verified by the oath or affirmation of any two of them, it shall be the duty of the said court to grant a rule on the officers returned, chosen or elected for such division to show cause, if any they have, why the selection of such election officers should not be set aside; and if, upon the investigation of the matters set forth in the said petition, they shall be found to be true, it shall be the duty of said court to set aside the selection of such officers, and to appoint a judge, and two inspectors to serve in such election division for the next election and until others are duly elected or chosen; said appointments may be made from any part of the ward in which such election division is located; and the officers so appointed shall have and exercise the same powers and duties, and be liable to the same penalties as officers elected by the qualified voters now are. (Act 1866, Sec. 1, P. L. 969.)

ELECTION OFFICERS TO BE SWORN.

172. All judges, inspectors, clerks and overseers of any election shall, before entering upon their duties, be duly sworn or affirmed in the presence of each other. The judge shall be sworn by the minority inspector, if there shall be such minority inspector, and in case there be no minority inspector, then by a justice of the peace or alderman; and the inspectors, overseers and clerks shall be sworn by the judge. Certificates of such swearing or affirming shall be duly made out and signed by the officers so sworn, and attested by the officer who administered the oath. If any judge or minority inspector refuses or fails to swear the officers of election in the manner required by this act, or if any officer of election shall act without being first duly sworn, or if any officer of election shall sign the form of oath, without being duly sworn, or if any judge or minority inspector shall certify that any officer was sworn, when he was not, it shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, the officer or officers so offending shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 9, P. L. 34.)

FORM OF INSPECTORS' OATH.

173. The following shall be the form of the oath or affirmation to be taken by each inspector, viz: "I, (A. B.) do——— that I will duly attend to the ensuing election during the continuance thereof, as an inspector, and that I will not receive any ticket or vote from any person, other than such as I shall firmly believe to be, according to the provisions of the Constitution and the laws of this Commonwealth, entitled to vote at such election, without requiring such evidence of the right to vote as is directed by law, nor will I vexatiously delay or refuse to receive any vote from any person who I shall believe to be entitled to vote as aforesaid, but that I will in all things truly, impartially and faithfully perform my duty therein, to the best of my judgment and abilities; and that I am not, directly not indirectly, interested in any bet or wager on the result of this election." (Act 1839, Sec. 19, P. L. 523.)

FORM OF JUDGES' OATH.

174. The following shall be the oath or affirmation of each judge, viz: "I, (A. B.) do———that I will as judge duly attend the ensuing election during the continuance thereof, and faithfully assist the inspectors in carrying on the same; that I will not give my consent that any vote or ticket shall be received from any person other than such as I firmly believe to be, according to the provisions of the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, entitled to vote at such election, without requiring such evidence of the right to vote as is directed by law, and that I will use my best endeavors to prevent any fraud, deceit or abuse, in carrying on the same by citizens qualified to vote, or others, and that I will make a true and perfect return of the said election, and will in all things truly, impartially and faithfully perform my duty respecting the same, to the best of my judgment and abilities; and that I am not, directly or indirectly, interested in any bet or wager on the result of this election." (Act 1839, Sec. 20, P. L. 523.)

FORM OF CLERKS' OATH.

175. The following shall be the form of the oath or affirmation to be taken by each clerk, viz: "I, (A. B.) do———that I will impartially and truly write down the name of each elector who shall vote at the ensuing election, which shall be given me in charge, and also the name of the township, ward or district wherein such elector resides, and carefully and truly write down the number of votes that shall be given for each candidate at the election, as often as his name shall be read to me by the inspectors thereof, and in all things truly and faithfully perform my duty respecting the same to the best of my judgment and ability; and that I am not, directly or indirectly, interested in any bet or wager on the result of this election." (Act 1839, Sec. 21, P. L. 523.)

ADDITIONAL OATH.

176. In addition to the oath now prescribed by law to be taken and subscribed by election officers, they shall severally be sworn or affirmed not to disclose how any elector shall have voted, unless required to do so as witnesses in a judicial proceeding. (Act 1874, Sec. 9, P. L. 34.)

TO BE EXECUTED IN DUPLICATE.

177. It shall be the duty of the said clerks forthwith to make out two copies of the forms of each of the said oaths or affirmations, which shall be severally subscribed by each of the inspectors, judges and clerks, and the said oaths or affirmations shall be certified under the hands of the persons by whom they shall be administered. (Act 1839, Sec. 22, P. L. 524.)

POWER TO ADMINISTER OATHS.

178. Every inspector and judge of an election shall have full power and authority to administer oaths or affirmations to any and all persons requiring, or offering to be sworn or affirmed, in relation to the right of any person to vote at any election, authorized to be held under any law of this Commonwealth, and generally, shall in the exercise of the duties of their office as inspectors or judge, have the same power to administer oaths or affirmations required, or authorized to be administered by the provisions of this act, as justices of the peace have by the laws of this Commonwealth, and a violation of such oath or affirmation shall be subject to the same fines and penalties which are or may be inflicted by law, for a violation of such oath or affirmation, when administered by a justice of the peace. (Act 1840, Sec. 14, P. L. 687.)

DETERMINATION OF QUALIFICATION OF VOTERS.

179. The judges of the elections, within the limits of their respective wards, districts or townships, shall have power, and are hereby required to decide on the qualifications of any person claiming to vote at any election, whenever the inspectors thereof shall disagree upon the right of such person to vote, but not otherwise; and the inspectors thereof shall, upon such decision, forthwith receive or reject the vote of such person, as the case may be. (Act 1839, Sec. 6, P. L. 520.)

OVERSEERS.

180. On the petition of five or more citizens of any election district, setting forth that the appointment of overseers is a reasonable precaution to secure the purity and fairness of the election in said district, it shall be the duty of the court of common pleas of the proper county, all the law judges of the said court, able to act at the time, concurring, to appoint two judicious, sober and intelligent citizens of the said district, belonging to different political parties, overseers of election to supervise the proceedings of election officers thereof, and to make report of the same as they may be required by such court. Said overseers shall be persons qualified to serve upon election boards, and shall have the right to be present with the officers of such election, during the whole time the same is held, the votes counted, and the returns made out and signed by the election officers; to keep a list of the voters, if they see proper; to challenge any person offering to vote, and interrogate him and his witnesses, under oath, in regard to his right of suffrage at said election, and to examine his papers produced; and the officers of said election are required to afford to said overseers so selected and appointed, every convenience and facility for the discharge of their duties. And if said election officers shall refuse to permit said overseers to be present, and perform their duties as aforesaid, such officer or officers shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. Or, if the overseers shall be driven away from the polls by violence or intimidation, all the votes polled in such election district may be rejected by the proper tribunal trying a contest under said election, or a part or portion of such votes aforesaid may be counted, as such tribunal may deem necessary to a just and proper disposition of the case. (Act 1874, Sec. 4, P. L. 33.)

COMPENSATION OF ELECTION OFFICERS.

181. The pay of the judges and inspectors, and several clerks to each election board, at all elections hereafter to be held within this Commonwealth, for the conduction of the same, shall be three dollars and fifty cents, at each election so held, without regard to time, to be paid by the treasurer of the proper county on orders to be drawn upon him by the commissioners which allowance shall be in full for their services and expenses other than the mileage hereinafter allowed, and in lieu of all kinds of refreshment which may have been customary to provide, and no such expense for refreshment shall be paid or allowed by the commissioners of any county. Provided, That the provisions of this section shall not repeal any special act now in force in any of the counties of this Commonwealth, and shall not apply to any city co-extensive with a county, and shall not alter or affect in any manner the compensation of return judges as fixed by existing laws. (Act 1903, Sec. 1, P. L. 220; Act 1839, Sec. 92, P. L. 540.)

COMPENSATION OF CONSTABLES, ETC., FOR ADVERTISING AND ATTENDING ELECTION.

182. Constables, supervisors or assessors as the case may be, of any ward, township, incorporated district or borough, shall be allowed and paid out of the county treasury, upon orders drawn by the county commissioners, two dollars for advertising ward, township, district and borough elections; and for attending general, special, township, ward or borough elections in addition to the mileage allowed by law, three dollars; which sum shall include pay for serving notices in writing to the persons elected at such special, township, ward or borough elections: Provided, That where any such election be held in any township, ward or borough, in which there are more than one election district or precinct, and a deputy constable is appointed to attend elections held at each of such districts or precincts, said deputy constables shall each receive the sum of three dollars. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 32; Act 1840, Sec. 11, P. L. 687; Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 3.)

D. DISTRIBUTION OF BALLOTS AND VOTING.

COST OF PRINTING, ETC., TO BE COUNTY CHARGE.

183. All ballots cast in elections for public officers within this Commonwealth shall be printed and distributed at public expense as hereinafter provided. The printing of the ballots and of the cards of instruction for the elections in each county, and the delivery of the same to the election officers as hereinafter provided, and all other expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be a county charge, unless herein otherwise provided, the payment of which shall be provided for in the same manner as the payment of other election expenses. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to prepare forms for all the blanks made necessary or advisable by this act, and to furnish copies of the same to the county commissioners of each county, who shall procure further copies of the same at the cost of the county and furnish them to the election officers or other persons by whom they are to be used, in such quantities as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act. (Act 1893, Sec. 1, P. L. 419.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO PRINT BALLOTS.

184. The county commissioners of each county shall cause all the ballots to be used therein to be printed. The said commissioners shall ascertain the office to be filled and shall be responsible for the accurate printing of the ballots in accordance with this act, and for the safe-keeping of the same while in their possession, or that of their subordinates or agents. (Act 1893, Sec. 13, P. L. 424.)

RECORD OF NUMBER OF BALLOTS.

185. A record of the number of ballots printed and furnished to each voting place shall be kept and preserved by the county commissioners of the several counties. (Act 1893, Sec. 15, P. L. 426.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO FURNISH BALLOTS AND ELECTION SUPPLIES.

186. The county commissioners of each county shall provide for each election district in which an election is to be held, one set of such ballots of not less than seventy-five for every fifty and fraction of fifty voters therein, as contained upon the assessor's list. They shall also prepare full instructions for the guidance of voters, as to obtaining ballots, as to the manner of marking them and the method of gaining assistance, and as to obtaining new ballots in place of those accidentally spoiled; and they shall respectively cause the same, together with copies of Sections 271, 272, 280, 296, 299, 311 inclusive of this Code, to be printed in large clear type on separate cards to be called Cards of Instruction. They shall also, in addition to the number of tickets required to be printed for general distribution, have printed five hundred official and one hundred sample ballots for every five thousand voters within the county, which tickets shall be kept at the office of the commissioners for the use of any district or districts, the tickets for which may be lost or destroyed. They shall also cause to be printed on tinted paper and without the facsimile endorsements, copies of the form of the ballot provided for each voting place at each election therein, which shall be called Specimen Ballots, and at each election they shall furnish to each voting place, together with the ballots to be used there, a sufficient number of cards of instruction and specimen ballots for use as required in Section 198 of this Code. They shall also provide for each election district other than districts in cities of the first, second and third class, at every election therein, two copies of the assessor's list of voters, and shall deliver the same as such lists are now delivered, one copy to be called the "ballot check-list," for the inspectors in charge of the ballots, and the other copy to be called the "voting check-list," to be used in marking the name of those who have voted. (Act 1893, Sec. 16, P. L. 427.)

187. They shall also cause to be delivered to one of the inspectors of every election district, within their respective counties, a sufficient number of boxes to contain the tickets (unless the same has already been provided for said township), blank forms of election oaths, tally-papers, and returns made out in a proper manner, and headed as the nature of the election may require. (Act 1840, Sec 7, P. L. 686.)

188. At township elections, they shall, in addition to the foregoing, deliver to the aforesaid inspectors a sufficient number of blank forms of certificates of election, for each person elected to any office voted for at township elections. (Act 1840, Sec. 7, P. L. 686.)

CITY COMMISSIONERS IN PHILADELPHIA.

189. All the duties imposed by this act upon county commissioners shall be performed, in the City of Philadelphia, by the city commissioners. (Act 1874, Sec. 24, P. L. 42.)

HOW BALLOTS TO BE PACKED.

190. The ballots, together with the specimen ballots and cards of instruction printed by the county commissioners as herein provided, shall be packed by them in separate sealed packages with marks on the outside clearly designating the election districts for which they are intended and the number of ballots of each kind enclosed. (Act 1893, Sec. 17, P. L. 427.)

DELIVERY TO JUDGES OF ELECTION.

191. They shall then be sent by the county commissioners of the respective counties to the judges of election at the several voting places so as to be received by them on the Saturday or Monday before the day of election. The respective judges of election shall on delivery to them of such packages, return receipts therefor to the commissioners, who shall keep a record of the time when and the manner in which the several packages are sent, and shall preserve for the period of one year, the receipts of the said judges of election. (Act 1893, Sec. 17, P. L. 427.)

JUDGES MAY BE REQUIRED TO CALL FOR BALLOTS.

192. The commissioners of any county may, if they prefer, instead of sending the packages to the judges or any number of them in the manner aforesaid, notify the judges of the election districts for which the said commissioners are required to provide ballots, to come to the said commissioners' office on the day before the election, at a time specified, and it shall be the duty of each of the said judges to come to the said office at that time, and there on precentation of his certificate of election as judge, to receive and receipt for one package of ballots, specimen ballots and cards of instruction, for use in his election district. He shall keep the said package sealed and shall be responsible for the safe-keeping thereof until the ballots are used at the election. In case a judge of the election is prevented by illness from performing the duties aforesaid, he shall depute one of the inspectors to act in his place. (Act 1893, Sec. 17, P. L. 427.)

IN CASE BALLOTS ARE LOST.

193. In case the ballots to be furnished to any voting place in accordance with the provisions of this act shall fail for any reason to be duly delivered, or in case after delivery they shall be destroyed or stolen, it shall be the duty of the judge of election of such voting-place to cause other ballots to be prepared substantially in the form of the ballots so wanting, and upon receipt of such other ballots from him accompanied by a statement under oath that the same have been so prepared and furnished by him, and that the original ballots have so failed to be received, or have been so destroyed or stolen, the election officers shall cause the ballots so substituted to be used in lieu of the ballots wanting as above. It shall be the duty of the county commissioners of each county to mail complete specimens of the ballots and other necessary papers by registered letter to the judge of elections of each election district, at least four days before the election, to enable him to comply with the directions of this section. (Act 1893, Sec. 18, P. L. 427.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO PROVIDE VOTING ROOMS. ARRANGEMENT.

194. The county commissioners of each county shall provide for each election district therein, at each election, a room large enough to be fitted up with voting shelves and a guard-rail as hereinafter provided. If in any district no such room can be rented or otherwise obtained, the said commissioners shall cause to be constructed for such district a temporary room of adequate size to be used as a voting room. They shall also cause all the said rooms to be suitably provided with heat and light, and with a sufficient number of voting shelves or compartments at or in which voters may conveniently mark their ballots, with a curtain, screen or door at the upper part of the front of each compartment, so that in the marking thereof they may be screened from the observation of others, and a guard-rail shall be so constructed and placed that only such persons as are inside said rail can approach within six feet of the ballot-box and of such voting shelves or compartments. The arrangement shall be such that neither the ballot-box nor the voting-booths shall be hidden from view of those just outside the said guard-rail. The number of such voting shelves or compartments shall not be less than one for every seventy-five names on the assessor's lists; but shall not in any case be less than three for the voters qualified to vote at such voting place. No person other than the election officers and voters admitted as hereinafter provided, shall be permitted within the said rail, except by authority of the election officers for the purpose of keeping order and enforcing the law. Each voting shelf or compartment shall be kept provided with proper supplies and conveniences for marking the ballots. (Act 1893, Sec. 19, P. L. 428.)

TOWNSHIPS MAY ERECT BUILDING FOR HOLDING ELECTIONS.

195. The supervisors, road commissioners or other officers having in charge the constructing and keeping in repair the public roads in any township in this Commonwealth, are hereby authorized, at their option, to cause a suitable lot of ground to be procured and cause a suitable building to be erected thereon for a town house in which to hold elections, store road machinery, hold meetings of township officers, and for other township uses. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 324.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO FIX COMPENSATION FOR USE OF ROOM, ETC.

196. The commissioners of the several counties of this Commonwealth, are hereby authorized and empowered to fix the compensation for lights, rent and fuel for election purposes, in each and every township, borough, ward and election district in the respective counties, which said compensation shall be fixed and established at least once every three years, by resolution duly entered upon the minutes of said commissioners; and the said expenses shall be paid (on bills certified by election officers) by said respective counties, according to the compensation so ascertained and entered upon said minutes, and not otherwise. (Act 1876, Sec. 1, P. L. 136.)

POLLING HOURS.

197. At the elections held under the laws of this Commonwealth the polls shall be open at seven o'clock a. m., and closed at seven o'clock p. m. (Act 1874, Sec. 5, P. L. 34.)

CARDS OF INSTRUCTION AND SPECIMEN BALLOTS.

198. At the opening of the polls in each voting place the seals of the packages shall be publicly broken and the said package shall be opened by the judge of elections. The cards of instruction shall be immediately posted at or in each voting shelf or compartment provided in accordance with this act for the marking of the ballots, and not less than three such cards and not less than five specimen ballots shall be immediately posted in or about the voting room outside the guard-rail; and such cards and specimen ballots shall be given to any voter at his request. (Act 1893, Sec. 20, P. L. 429.)

ONE INSPECTOR TO HAVE CHARGE OF BALLOT CHECK LIST AND OTHER OF VOTING CHECK LIST.

199. At the opening of the polls it shall be the duty of the judge of election to designate one of the inspectors whose duty it shall be to have charge of the ballot check-list, and the other inspector shall have charge of the voting check-list. (Act 1874, Sec. 8, P. L. 34.)

METHOD OF VOTING.

200. Any person desiring to vote shall give his name and residence to one of the election officers in charge of the ballots, who shall thereupon announce the same in a loud and distinct tone of voice, and if such name is found upon the ballot check-list by the inspector or clerks in charge thereof, he shall likewise repeat the said name, and the voter shall be allowed to enter the space enclosed by the guard-rail, unless his right to vote be challenged. No person whose name is not on the said list, or whose right to vote shall be challenged by a qualified citizen, shall be admitted within said guard-rail until he has established his right to vote in the manner now provided by law, and his name, if not on the check-lists, shall then be added to both lists except in cities of the first, second and third classes, where, if his name is not on registry list, he shall not be entitled to vote. As soon as a voter is admitted within the rail the election officer having charge of the ballot shall detach a ballot from the stub and give it to the said voter, but shall first fold it so that the words printed on the back and outside, as provided in Section 138 of this Code, shall be the only wording visible and no ballot shall be voted unless folded in the same manner. Not more than one ballot shall be given to a voter except as provided in Section 208 of this Code. As soon as a voter receives a ballot the letter "B" shall be marked against his name on the margin of the ballot check-list; but no record of the number of the ballots shall be made on the said lists. Besides the election officers and such supervisors as are authorized by the laws of the United States or overseers appointed by the courts of this Commonwealth, not more than four voters in excess of the number of voting shelves or compartments provided, shall be allowed in said enclosed space at one time. (Act 1893, Sec. 21, P. L. 429.)

201. On receipt of his ballot, the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the space enclosed by the guard-rail, retire to one of the voting shelves or compartments, and draw a curtain, or shut the screen or door, and shall then prepare his ballot as follows: (Act 1903, Sec. 3, P. L. 343.)

202. If he desires to vote for every candidate of a political party, he may make a cross-mark in the appropriate square, opposite the name of the party of his choice, in the straight party column on the left of the ballot, and every such cross-mark shall be equivalent to a vote for every candidate for the party so marked. (Act 1903, Sec. 3, P. L. 343.)

203. If he desires to vote for an eitire group of Presidential electors, he may place a cross-mark in the appropriate square, at the right of the name of the party of his choice. If he desires to divide his vote among candidates from different groups of Presidential electors, he shall make a cross-mark in the appropriate square, to the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector for whom he desires to vote: Provided, That a mark in the straight party column, opposite the name of the party of his choice, shall also be counted as a mark for each Presidential elector nominated by such party. (Act 1903, Sec. 3, P. L. 343.)

204. He may vote, according to the above provisions, for the candidate of his choice for each office to be filled, according to the number of persons to be voted for by him for each office, or he may insert in the blank space provided therefor, in accordance with Section 133 of this Code, any name not already on the ballot. And in case of a question submitted to the vote of the people, he may mark in the appropriate margin or space a cross (X), opposite the answer which he desires to give. In all cases where, by existing laws, a voter is entitled to cast more than one vote for a single candidate, he shall place in the appropriate square, instead of a cross (X), a number, which shall indicate the number of votes to be counted for the candidate whose name is so marked. (Act 1903, Sec. 3, P. L. 343.)

205. Before leaving the voting shelf or compartment the voter shall fold his ballot, without displaying the markings thereon, in the same way it was folded when received by him, and he shall keep the same so folded and deposit it in the ballot-box without undue delay, and shall quit the enclosed space immediately thereafter. (Act 1903, Sec. 3, P. L. 343.)

ASSISTANCE OF VOTERS.

206. If any voter declares to the judge of election that by reason of any disability he desires assistance in the preparation of his ballot, he shall be permitted by the judge of election to select a qualified voter of the election district to aid him in the preparation of his ballot, such preparation being made in the voting compartment. (Act 1893, Sec. 26, P. L. 432.)

RECORD OF PERSONS VOTING.

207. It shall be the duty of each inspector who shall receive the ticket of an elector to call out aloud the name of such elector, which shall be entered by the clerks in separate lists, and the name shall be repeated by each of them, and the inspector shall insert the letter V in the margin of the alphabetical list, opposite the name of such elector, and if such elector shall have been sworn or affirmed, or produced a certificate or other evidence as before provided, of having been naturalized, the inspector shall also note the same on the margin of such list; and where proof of residence is made, shall also note the name of the person making such proof. (Act 1839, Sec. 70, P. L. 534.)

SPOILED BALLOTS.

208. No person other than the election officers shall take or remove any ballot from the voting place. If any voter inadvertently spoils a ballot he may obtain another upon returning the spoiled one. The ballots thus returned shall be immediately canceled and at the close of the polls shall be secured in an envelope, sealed and sent to the proper office, as required by law in the case of the ballots cast. (Act 1893, Sec. 25, P. L. 432.)

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

209. No voter shall be allowed to occupy a voting shelf or compartment already occupied by another, except when giving the help allowed by Section 206 of this Code, nor to remain within said compartment more than three minutes in case all of such compartments are in use, and other voters are waiting to occupy the same. No voter not an election officer shall be allowed to re-enter the enclosed space after he has once left it, except to give help as hereinafter described. Each voter's name shall be checked on the voting check-list by the officer having charge thereof, as soon as he has cast his vote in the manner provided in Section 207. It shall be the duty of the judge of election to secure the observation of the provisions of this section, to keep order in the room in which the voting is held and to see that no more eprsons are admitted within the enclosed space than are allowed by this act. Each party which has by its primary meeting, caucus, convention or board, sent to the proper office a certificate of nomination, and each group of citizens which has sent to the proper office a nomination paper shall be allowed to appoint three qualified electors who must be three electors resident of the division in which they are authorized to act as watchers in each voting place without expense to the county, one of whom shall be allowed to remain in the room outside of the enclosed space. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, stating his name, the names of the persons who have appointed him and the party or policy he represents; and no party or policy shall be represented by more than one watcher in the same voting room at any one time. Watchers shall be required to show their certificates when required to do so. Until the polls are closed, no persons shall be allowed in the room outside of the said enclosed space except these watchers, voters not exceeding ten at any time who are waiting their turn to prepare their ballots, and peace officers when necessary for the preservation of the peace. No person when within the voting room shall electioneer or solicit votes for any party or candidate, nor shall any written or printed matter be posted up within said room except as required by law. When the hour for closing the polls shall arrive all persons within the enclosed space who have received ballots but have not yet deposited them, shall be required to mark and deposit their ballots forthwith, but no other person shall be allowed to vote. (Act 1903, Sec. 1, P. L. 213.)

IMPROPERLY MARKED BALLOTS.

DISPOSITION OF DEFECTIVE OR IMPROPERLY MARKED BALLOTS.

211. No ballot without the official endorsement shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be allowed to be deposited in the ballot-box, and none but ballots provided in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be counted. Ballots not marked, or improperly or defectively marked, shall be endorsed as defective, but shall be preserved with the other ballots. If any ballots appears to have been obtained otherwise than as provided in this act, the judge of elections shall transmit such ballot to the district attorney, without delay, together with whatever information he may have tending to the detection of the person who deposited the same. (Act 1903, Sec. 4, P. L. 345.)

WHAT MEMORANDA MAY BE KEPT IN POLLING PLACE.

212. No list or memorandum of the names of voters, except such lists as are expressly authorized by law, shall be made within the voting-room by any person or officer but watchers may keep their poll-books and challenge lists.

E. CANVASSING THE VOTE.

LISTS OF VOTERS, BALLOT STUBS AND UNUSED BALLOTS TO BE SEALED.

213. After the closing of the polls and before the ballot-boxes are opened, all the lists of voters shall be placed in separate sealed covers properly marked, and the stubs of all the ballots used, together with all unused ballots and the ballot check-list, shall also be enclosed in a sealed package properly designating the voting place, which package shall be sent to the proper office as required by law in the case of the ballots cast, and neither the said package, nor the said lists of voters shall thereafter be opened except by the return judges, or in the case of a contest, or upon the order of a court of a competent jurisdiction. (Act 1893, Sec. 24, P. L. 431.)

METHOD OF COUNTING.

214. The election officers only shall remain in the voting-room within the guard-rail, and shall there at once proceed to count the votes. Such counting shall not be adjourned or postponed until it shall have been fully completed.

The officers in charge of the voting check-list shall, in the presence of the other officers and watchers, count in a distinct and audible voice the names checked on the said list, and announce the whole number thereof; and the list of voters, the stubs of ballots used, and all unused ballots, shall then be sealed up, as required by Section 213. The ballot-box shall then be opened by the inspectors, the ballots taken therefrom, and audibly counted, one by one, by them, and when the count is completed, the whole number of ballots cast shall be announced; and the counting of the number of votes received by each person voted for shall then proceed. The judge, in the presence of the inspectors, shall read aloud the name or names marked or inserted upon each ballot, together with the party name, or political appellation, under which each vote was cast, and the answers marked thereon to the questions submitted, if any; and the clerks shall each carefully enter each vote as read, and keep account of the same in tally-papers prepared for the purpose. It shall be unlawful for either judge or inspectors while counting the ballots or the votes thereon, to have in his hand any pen, pencil, or stamp for marking ballots. (Act 1903, Sec. 5, P. L. 346.)

COUNT TO BE PUBLIC.

215. All ballots, after being removed from the box, shall be kept within the unobstructed view of those present in the voting-room, so that they may be able to see all the marks on each ballot, but out of their reach, until they are placed in the ballot-box as required by law. The total vote, as soon as counted, shall be publicly announced. (Act 1903, Sec. 5, P. L. 346.)

PEACE OFFICERS TO REMAIN IN ROOM DURING COUNT.

216. It shall be the duty of the police officers, constables and deputy constables, now required by law to be present at the polls, to remain in the voting-room, but outside of the guard-rail, while the votes are being counted, and preserve order therein. No person, except the said peace officers, when necessary for the preservation of the peace, or persons acting by their authority, shall enter into the space within the guard-rail, or converse with any election officer, in any way after the polls are closed and until the counting of the votes has been completed. (Act 1903, Sec. 5, P. L. 346.)

BALLOT BOX TO BE DEPOSITED WITH NEAREST JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

217. As soon as the count shall be finished, the tickets, list of taxables, one the lists of voters, one of the tally-papers and one of the certificates of the oath or affirmation taken and subscribed by the inspectors, judges and clerks, and one of the triplicate returns, shall all be carefully collected and deposited in one or more of the ballot-boxes; and such box or boxes, being closely bound round with tape, shall be sealed by the inspectors and judge of the election, and together with the remaining ballot-boxes, shall within one day thereafter be delivered by one of the inspectors to the nearest justice of the peace, who shall keep such boxes containing the tickets and other documents, (said justice of the peace to receive the sum of three dollars per year, for all services rendered in the care of the ballot-box or boxes placed in his custody, said sum to be paid by the county treasurer upon an order drawn by the county commissioners), to answer the call of any persons or tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election. (Act 1903, Sec. 1, P. L. 217; Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425.)

PENALTY FOR REFUSAL OF JUSTICE OF PEACE TO RECEIVE BALLOT BOX.

218. If any justice of the peace shall refuse to receive any ballot-box delivered to him, as is hereinbefore provided, or having received the same, shall neglect the safe-keeping thereof, he shall, on conviction of any such refusal or neglect, be fined in any sum not less than one hundred, nor more than one thousand dollars. (Act 1839, Sec. 127, P. L. 547.)

DISPOSITION OF BALLOT BOXES WHERE PLACE IS PROVIDED FOR SAFE KEEPING.

219. Whenever a place has been or shall be provided by the authorities of any city, county, township or borough, for the safe-keeping of ballot-boxes, the judge and minority inspector shall, after the election shall be finished, and the ballot-box or boxes containing the tickets, list of voters and other papers, have been securely bound with tape and sealed, and the signatures of the judge and inspectors affixed thereto, forthwith deliver the same, together with the remaining boxes, to the mayor and recorder of such city, or in counties, townships or boroughs, to such person or persons as the court of common pleas of the proper county may designate at the place provided, as aforesaid, who shall then deposit the said boxes and keep the same to answer the call of any court or tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election. Whenever the election officers of any election district shall require the election boxes of such district to hold any election which, by law, they are or shall be required to hold, they shall keep the same securely in their possession without opening, until the morning of such election, and until they shall severally be sworn or affirmed not to disclose how any elector shall have voted, and after being so sworn or affirmed, they shall open the said boxes and burn and totally destroy all the ballots and other papers which they shall find therein, before proceeding to hold such election. (Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425.)

FIRE PROOF VAULT TO BE PROVIDED IN PHILADELPHIA.

220. The commissioners for the City of Philadelphia shall provide a fire proof room, or vault, in the public buildings of the said city, or some other suitable place, at which the judge of the elections, after the closing of the polls and the requirements of the law have been complied with, shall forthwith there deliver to the mayor and prothonotary of the City of Philadelphia the said ballot-boxes; the said room or vault shall not be accessible to any other person than the mayor and prothonotary aforesaid, who shall be present and receive, at the said room, or vault, the ballot-boxes from the judges as aforesaid. The mayor and prothonotary aforesaid shall not take or open, nor permit to be taken, or opened, any ballot-box deposited as aforesaid, for the space of one year after the same has been therein deposited, except when they shall be called upon by some court or other tribunal authorized to try the merits of such election; and after such trial or investigation, it shall be the duty of the mayor and prothonotary aforesaid to have said box or boxes returned and deposited as aforesaid. (Act 1861, Sec. 11, P. L. 577.

RETURNS TO BE FILED WITH PROTHONOTARY, AND LAID BEFORE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

221. The officers of election shall make a full return of the votes cast in triplicate, with a return sheet in addition in all of which the votes cast for each candidate by each political party or body of which such candidate is the nominee, as the same shall appear upon the ballots cast, shall be given after his or her name, first in words and again in figures, and shall be signed by all of said officers and certified by overseers, if any, or if not so certified, the overseers and any officer refusing to sign or certify, or either of them, shall write upon each of the returns his or their reasons for not signing or certifying them. The vote, as soon as counted, shall also be publicly and fully declared from the window to the citizens present, and a brief statement showing the votes received by each candidate shall be made and signed by the election officers as soon as the vote is counted, and the same shall be immediately posted up on the door of the election house for information of the public. The triplicate returns shall be enclosed in envelopes and be sealed in presence of the officers, and one envelope, with the unsealed return-sheet, given to the judge, which envelope shall contain also one list of voters, tally-paper, and oaths of officers, and another of said envelopes shall be given to the minority inspector, and the third of said triplicite returns shall be placed in the box and sealed up with the ballots as hereinbefore provided. All judges living within twelve miles of the prothonotary's office, or within twenty-four miles, if their residence be in a town, village or city upon the line of a railroad leading to the county seat, shall, before two o'clock post meridian of the day after the election, and all other judges shall, before twelve o'clock meridian of the second day after the election, deliver said return, together with the return-sheet, to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county, which said return-sheet shall be filed, and the day and hour or filing marked thereon, and shall be preserved by the prothonotary for public inspection. At twelve o'clock on the said second day following any election, the prothonotary of the court of common pleas shall present the said returns to the said court. In counties where there is no resident president judge, the associate judges shall perform the duties imposed upon the court of common pleas, which shall convene for said purpose; the returns presented by the prothonotary shall be opened by said court and computed by such of its officers and such sworn assistants as the court shall appoint, in the presence of the judge or judges of said court and the returns certified and certificates of election issued under the seal of the court as hereinafter provided; and the vote as so computed and certified shall be made a matter of record in said court. The sessions of the said court shall be open to the public. And in case the returns of any election district shall be missing when the returns are presented, or in case of complaint of a qualified elector under oath, charging palpable fraud or mistake, and particularly specifying the alleged fraud or mitsake, or where fraud or mistake is apparent on the return, the court shall examine the return, and if in the judgment of the court it shall be necessary to a just return, said court shall issue summary process against the election officers and overseers, if any, of the election district complained of, to bring them forthwith into the court, with all election papers in their possession; and if palpable mistake or fraud shall be discovered, it shall, upon such hearing as may be deemed necessary to enlighten the court, be corrected by the court, and so certified; but all allegations of palpable fraud or mistake shall be decided by the said court within three days after the day the returns are brought into court for computation; and the said inquiry shall be directed only to palpable fraud or mistake, and shall not be deemed a judicial adjudication to conclude any contest now or hereafter to be provided by law. Nothing in this act shall require the returns of elections of township or borough officers to be made to the court as directed in this section; but all returns of the election of township and borough officers shall be made as hereinafter provided. In counties where there are three or more judges of said court learned in the law, at least two judges shall sit to compute and certify returns, unless unavoidably prevented. If any of the said judges shall himself be a candidate for any office at any election, he shall not sit with the court, or act in counting the returns of such election, and in such cases the other judges, if any, shall act; and if in any county there shall be no judge qualified to hold the said court, under the provisions of this act, present and able to act, then, and in every such case, the register of wills, the sheriff and the county commissioners of the proper county shall be and constitute a board who, or a majority of whom, shall have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties vested in, or required to be performed by the court of common pleas of such county, by and under the provisions of this section; but none of the said officers shall act as a member of such board when himself a candidate for any office at the election, the returns of which the said board is required to count under the provisions of this section. The returns required by this act to be presented by the prothonotary of the courts of common pleas of Philadelphia and Allegheny, respectively, shall be presented to such two or more of the judges of the several courts of common pleas of said counties, respectively, as the judges of said courts, or a majority of them, may designate to perform the duty of receiving, computing and certifying said returns. (Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425; Act 1903, Sec. 5, P. L. 346.)

RETURN OF ELECTION FOR INCREASE OF MUNICIPAL INDEBTEDNESS.

221½. It shall be the duty of the inspectors of such election (held for the increase of municipal indebtedness) to receive tickets and to deposit said tickets in a box provided for that purpose, as is provided by law in regard to other tickets received at said election, and the tickets so received shall be counted and a return made to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the proper county, duly certified, as is required by law, together with a certified copy of the ordinance and the advertisement, and the said clerk shall make a record of the same and furnish a certified copy thereof, under seal, showing the result, to the corporate authorities of such municipality, and the same shall be placed of record in the minutes thereof.

In receiving and counting, and in making returns of the votes cast, the inspectors, judges, and clerks of said election shall be governed by the laws of this Commonwealth regulating municipal elections; and the vote shall be counted by the court, as is now provided by general laws governing municipal elections, and all the penalties of the said election laws for the violation thereof are hereby extended to, and shall apply to the voters, inspectors, judges, and clerks voting at and in attendance upon, the elections held under the provisions of this act. (Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 317.)

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS TO MAKE UP RETURNS FOR COUNTY.

222. The officers and assistants appointed by the court shall, in the presence of the judges, make out returns in the manner hereinafter directed, which shall be signed by all the judges present, and attested by said clerks; and it shall not be lawful for said judges or clerks, in casting up the votes which shall appear to have been given, to omit or reject any part thereof, except where, in the opinion of said judges, such certificates is so defective as to prevent the same from being understood and computed in adding together the number of votes; in which case, it shall be the duty of said clerks to make out a true and exact copy of said paper or certificate, to be signed by said judges, and attested by said clerks, and attached to, and transmitted with said return (where the same is directed to be transmitted) to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and the original paper shall be deposited in the prothonotary's office, and by said officer copied and transmitted, with the return of said election, to the Secretary aforesaid.

I. Duplicate returns of all the votes given for every person and persons, who shall have been voted for, for any office or station, which the electors of the county are entitled to choose of themselves, unconnected with any other county or district.

II. Like returns of all the votes given in the county, for every person voted for as Governor.

III. Triplicate returns of all the votes given for any person voted for in the county, as electors of President and Vice-President of the United States. (Act 1839, Sec. 79, P. L. 537.)

Said returns shall in every case state the number of votes cast for each candidate by each political party of which such candidate is a nominee. (Act 1903, Sec. 5, P. L. 346.)

AND SEND CERTIFICATE OF ELECTION TO PERSONS ELECTED.

223. It shall also be the duty of the return judges, in every case, to transmit to each of the persons elected to serve in Congress, or in the Senate, or in the House of Representatives of this Commonwealth, a certificate of his election, within five days after the day of making up such return. (Act 1839, Sec. 83, P. L. 539.)

DISPOSITION OF RETURNS.

224. When the returns shall be completed, the president of the board of judges aforesaid shall forthwith lodge one of each of such returns in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county; and in the case of an election of electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, one other of the returns in the same office; and the other duplicates shall be transmitted as follows, viz:

I. In case of a Governor, the remaining duplicate shall be inclosed in an envelope, directed to the (President) of the Senate, and indorsed according to the fact, which having been sealed, shall be inclosed in another envelope, sealed and directed to the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and the same shall forthwith be placed, by the said president in the nearest post office.

II. In case of electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, and of members of the House of Representatives of the United States, and of county officers to be commissioned by the Governor, the remaining duplicate shall be inclosed in an envelope, sealed and directed to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in like manner placed, by the said president in the nearest post office.

III. In case of the election of a Senator or Senators of this Commonwealth, the same shall be inclosed in an envelope, sealed and directed "To the Senate of Pennsylvania;" and in case of the election of a member or members of the House of Representatives of this Commonwealth, the same shall, in like manner, be inclosed in an envelope, sealed and directed "To the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania;" and each of said returns shall be inclosed in an envelope, and directed to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in like manner placed, by said president, in the nearest post office. (Act 1839, Sec. 80, P. L. 537.)

In case of election of county commissioners and county auditors, one copy of the return of election shall be inclosed in an envelope, sealed and directed "To the Commissioners" of the proper county. (Act 1840, Sec. 8, P. L. 686.)

COMPUTATION OF RETURNS WHERE TWO OR MORE COUNTIES COMPOSE A DISTRICT.

225. When two or more counties, or parts of two or more counties, are connected for the election of any officer, the courts of such counties or parts of counties, comprising the district, shall each appoint a return judge, resident within such district, to meet within seven days after the day of the election of such officer, at such place as is required by law, or if no place of meeting is designated by law, at such place within such district where the returns of the election of such officer shall, by law, be directed to be filed, to compute and certify the vote of such district, and it shall be the duty of the return judges, in such case, to transmit to the person elected, one of the triplicate returns as such officer's certificate of his election, within five days, after the day of making up such return. All officers provided for by this section shall be compensated as like officers are paid by existing laws. (Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425; Act 1903, Sec. 5, P. L. 346.)

The judges of the several counties having met as aforesaid, shall cast up the several county returns, and make triplicate returns of all the votes given for such office, in said district, and of the name of the person or persons elected, and one of said returns for each office shall be deposited in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county in which they shall meet, and another shall be, by said judges, deposited in the nearest post office, sealed and directed to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in the manner directed in Section 224 and the third shall be transmitted to the person elected as his certificate of election. (Act 1839, Sec. 82, P. L. 538; Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425.)

RETURNS OF TOWNSHIP AND BOROUGH ELECTIONS.

226. All returns of the election of township and borough officers shall be enclosed in a sealed cover, directed to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the proper county and shall by some one of the election officers be delivered into his office within three days of such elections and filed therein. (Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425.)

WHERE TOWNSHIP OR BOROUGH IS DIVIDED.

227. The judge, inspectors and clerks of each election district of any borough, ward or township in the counties of this Commonwealth, which shall have been divided by the court into separate election districts, shall make out a complete return of all the votes given at any borough, ward or township election, designating the number of votes each person received; and the judge and inspectors shall appoint one of their number for return judge, to meet the other return judge or judges of the said borough, ward or township in said county, at the oldest election place on the third day after any borough, ward or township election, and then add together the number of votes given for each person voted for, and make out the returns, as the nature of the election may require, complying in all respects with the provisions of existing election laws; and, after the performance of said duties, appoint one of their number, by consent or lot, to deliver the full returns to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the said county. (Act 1860, Sec. 1, P. L. 609; Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425.)

CERTIFICATES OF ELECTION.

228. As soon as the election for inspectors and judges of election shall be finished, the inspectors and judges of such election shall make out a certificate of election, for each person chosen as an inspector, judge or township officer, which certificate shall be delivered to the person so chosen, or left at his usual place of abode by the constable of the proper ward, township, district or borough within five days after such election. (Act 1840, Sec. 1, P. L. 683.)

MILEAGE ALLOWED ELECTION JUDGES FOR DELIVERING RETURNS.

229. Every judge of election shall be allowed six cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled in delivering the return of the township election of his proper township, to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas; said mileage to be computed circular, and paid out of the County Treasury on orders drawn by the commissioners in the usual manner; Provided, That no compensation shall be paid where the return is not delivered within the time prescribed by law; And provided further, That return judges shall be allowed daily pay at the rate of two dollars per day for making returns of township elections. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 290; Act 1909, Sec. 1, P. L. 425.)

MILEAGE ALLOWED RETURN JUDGES.

230. Every return judge shall be allowed out of the treasury of his proper county the sum of ten cents for every mile he shall necessarily have traveled in going to the place appointed by law for the meeting of return judges, and in returning thence to his own house. (Act 1839, Sec. 93, P. L. 540.)

RETURNS NOT RECEIVED IN TIME TO BE VOID.

231. Whenever the returns of an election for Governor shall not be received from any county by the Secretary of the Commonwealth before the election of Governor shall be published, every such return so delayed shall be considered as void, unless the election be contested, in which case such returns shall be allowed to be of the same validity, and liable to the same exceptions, as other returns received in due time. (Act 1839, Sec. 91, P. L. 540.)

PROTHONOTARY TO TRANSMIT RETURNS TO SECRETARY OF COMMONWEALTH.

232. It shall be the duty of the prothonotary of every county to whom the return of any election shall be delivered by the judges as aforesaid, where said judges are required to send a copy of said return to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, to make out a copy of such return, certified under his hand and official seal, and forthwith to transmit such copy, under a sealed cover, to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, by placing the same in the nearest post office. It shall also be the duty of the prothonotary of every county to record all the election returns in a book to be procured for that purpose; and to lay the returns of the election of county commissioners and county auditors, and of all township officers, before the court of quarter sessions of such county. (Act 1839, Sec. 84, P. L. 539.)

PROTHONOTARY TO CERTIFY LIST OF VOTERS AND OTHER PAPERS ON PAYMENT OF FEES.

233. It shall also be the duty of every prothonotary to give a certified copy of the list of voters and other papers deposited in his office by the judges of an election, to any person applying for the same, on payment of the usual fees, as in other cases. (Act 1839, Sec. 85, P. L. 539.)

SECRETARY OF COMMONWEALTH TO NOTIFY PROTHONOTARY IF RETURNS NOT RECEIVED.

234. If the returns of any elections, which by this law are directed to be transmitted to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, shall not be received within fifteen days after the same are required to be deposited in the post office, it shall be the duty of said Secretary to forthwith notify the prothonotary of the proper county to transmit, without delay, a certified copy of such returns. (Act 1839, Sec. 86, P. L. 539.)

RETURNS FOR TOWNSHIP AND COUNTY OFFICERS TO BE LAID BEFORE GOVERNOR AND RETURNS FOR SENATORS BEFORE SENATE.

235. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, on the receipt of the returns of the election of any township or county officer, who is by law to be commissioned by the Governor, to forthwith lay the same before him; and on the first Tuesday in January, in each and every year, as soon as the Senate shall convene, all returns of the election of Senators for that year to the President of the Senate. (Act 1839, Sec. 87, P. L. 539.)

RETURNS FOR REPRESENTATIVES TO BE LAID BEFORE HOUSE.

236. It shall be the duty of the said Secretary, between the hours of eleven o'clock a. m., and one o'clock p. m., of the first Tuesday in January, of each and every year, to take into the hall of the House of Representatives, the several returns of the elections of members of said House. (Act 1839, Sec. 88, P. L. 539.)

RETURNS FOR GOVERNOR TO BE LAID BEFORE SENATE.

237. It shall be the duty of the said Secretary, within five days after the meeting of the General Assembly, to deliver to the President of the Senate the returns of the election of Governor received by him from the several counties of this Commonwealth. (Act 1839, Sec. 90, P. L. 540.)

COMPUTATION OF RETURNS FOR TREASURER AND AUDITOR GENERAL WHEN LEGISLATURE NOT IN SESSION.

238. Whenever the Legislature shall not be assembled, and a State Treasurer or Auditor General shall have been elected at the preceding annual election, the Governor, the president judge of the twelfth judicial district, the President pro tem. of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, four members of the Senate, and six members of the House of Representatives, to be selected in the manner hereinafter provided, shall meet in the Senate chamber, at Harrisburg, at twelve o'clock noon, on the third Tuesday of January, succeeding each election of a State Treasurer or Auditor General, and they, or a majority of them, being so convened, shall proceed to open, compute and publish the returns of the election for State Treasurer and Auditor General, and shall file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth a certificate, signed by each of them, setting forth the aggregate number of votes received by each person voted for at such election; the Governor shall, within ten days thereafter, declare by proclamation the name of the person elected to each of said offices. (Act 1879, Sec. 1, P. L. 51.)

239. The four members of the Senate and six members of the House of Representatives aforesaid, shall be selected by each House proceeding, at twelve o'clock noon on the last Tuesday of the regular session preceding the annual election at which any State Treasurer or Auditor General is to be selected, to choose by viva voce vote, the number of members aforesaid, each Senator being entitled to vote for but two members, and each member of the House entitled to vote for three members, and the four Senators and six Representatives receiving the highest number of votes shall be the persons named in the first section of this act. (Act 1879, Sec. 2, P. L. 51.)

RETURNS FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

240. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, on receiving the returns of the election of electors, to lay them before the Governor; who shall enumerate and ascertain the number of votes given for each person so voted for, and shall thereupon declare, by proclamation, the names of the persons duly elected; and shall cause a notification of his election to be delivered to each person so chosen, on or before the last Wednesday in the month of November next after such election. (Act 1839, Sec. 29, P. L. 525.)

MEETING OF PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS. FILLING VACANCIES.

241. The electors chosen as aforesaid shall assemble at the seat of government of this Commonwealth, at twelve o'clock of the day, which is or may be directed by the Congress of the United States, and shall then and there perform the duties enjoined upon them by the Constitution and laws of the United States. (Act 1839, Sec. 30, P. L. 525.)

If any such elector shall die, or from any cause fail to attend at the seat of government at the time appointed by law the electors present shall proceed to choose viva voce a person to fill the vacancy occasioned thereby, and immediately after said choice the name of the person so chosen shall be transmitted by the presiding officer of the college to the Governor, whose duty it shall be forthwith to cause notice in writing to be given to such person, and the person so elected (and not the person in whose place he shall have been chosen) shall be an elector, and shall with the other electors perform the dutiets enjoined on them as aforesaid. (Act 1839, Sec. 31, P. L. 525.)

COMPENSATION.

242. Every elector aforesaid shall receive from the State Treasury the sum of three dollars for every day spent in traveling to, remaining at, and returning from the place of meeting aforesaid, and shall be entitled to mileage at the rate of three cents per mile to and from their homes, to be computed by the ordinary mail route between their homes and the place of meeting aforesaid. And the contingent expenses of the electoral college, not exceeding one hundred dollars in amount, shall likewise be paid by the State Treasurer, in both cases upon warrants drawn by the presiding officer of the college. (Act 1893, Sec. 1, P. L. 129.)

RETURNS FOR REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

243. It shall be the duty of the Governor, on the receipt of the returns of the election of members of the House of Representatives of the United States as aforesaid, by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, to declare by proclamation the names of the persons so returned as elected in the respective districts; and he shall also, as soon as conveniently may be thereafter, transmit the returns so made to the House of Representatives of the United States. (Act 1839, Sec. 25, P. L. 524.)

F. DUTIES OF PEACE OFFICERS.

TO PRESERVE PEACE AT POLLS.

244. It shall be the duty of every mayor, sheriff, deputy sheriff, alderman, justice of the peace and constable or deputy constable of every city, county and township or district within this Commonwealth, whenever called upon by any officer of an election, or by any three qualified electors thereof, to clear any window, or avenue to any window, at the place of the genreal election, which shall be obstructed in such a way as to prevent voters from approaching the same, and on neglect or refusel (so) to do, on such requisition, said officer shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred and not more than one thousand dollars. And it shall be the duty of the respective constables of each ward, district or township within this Commonwealth to be present in person, or by deputy, at the place of holding such elections in said ward, district or township, for the purpose of preserving the peace, as aforesaid. (Act 1839, Sec. 111, P. L. 543.)

TO REPORT DISORDER TO COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.

245. It shall be the duty of every peace officer, as aforesaid, who shall be present at any such disturbance at an election as is described in this act, to report the same to the next court of quarter sessions, and also the names of the witnesses who can prove the same; and it shall be the duty of the said court to cause indictments to be preferred before the grand jury against the persons so offending. (Act 1839, Sec. 112, P. L. 544.)

COURT TO EXAMINE CONSTABLES UNDER OATH.

246. It shall be the duty of the several courts of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, at the next term of said court after any election shall have been held under this act, to cause the respective constables in said county to be examined on oath, as to whether any breaches of the peace took place at the election within their respective townships, wards or districts; and it shall be the duty of said constables respectively to make return thereof as part of their official return at said court. (Act 1839, Sec. 114, P. L. 544.)

SHERIFF OF PHILADELPHIA NOT TO APPOINT DEPUTIES AT ELECTIONS.

247. It shall not be lawful for the sheriff of any county co-extensive in boundaries with any city of the first class, to appoint any deputies to be present and act as such, for preserving the peace, or for any other purpose, at any election polls within said cities of the first class. (Act 1877, Sec. 1, P. L. 36.)

V. ELECTION CRIMES AND PENALTIES.

A. OFFENSES AGAINST PERSONAL REGISTRATION LAWS.

DISOBEYING ORDER OF REGISTRATION COMMISSIONERS.

248. Any person who wilfully disobeys a lawful order of the registration commissioners shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61.)

PERMITTING FALSE REGISTRATION OR PREVENTING LAWFUL REGISTRATION.

249. A registrar who intentionally registers or permits to be registered, a person not lawfully entitled to be registered, or who intentionally refuses to register a person lawfully entitled to be registered, or who intentionally assists in preventing such person from being registered, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61; Sec. 14, P. L. 73.)

ATTEMPTING FALSE REGISTRATION.

250. A person who applies for registration knowing that he is not entitled to be registered, or who falsely personates another in an application for registration, or who knowingly offers false naturalization papers or a fraudulent tax receipt to establish his claim to be registered, or who personates another, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be sentenced for every such offense to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding three years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61; Sec. 14, P. L. 73.)

ALTERING REGISTER.

251. A registrar who inserts, or intentionally permits to be inserted, a name on the registry list without a proper application in person, during the hours of registration, on a registration day, on the part of the person registered, or without requiring the proper evidence of the right of the applicant to be registered; or who alters any registry list after the entry has been duly made, except upon an order of the court or of the commissioners; or who makes any entry therein at any time other than during the hours of registration, and in the presence of the other registrars; shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61; Sec. 14, P. L. 73.)

REFUSING VOTE OF REGISTERED VOTER OR RECEIVING VOTE OF UNREGISTERED VOTER.

252. Any election officer who refuses the vote of a registered elector, except on satisfactory evidence that he has since registration become disqualified under the laws of this Commonwealth, or who knowingly accepts the vote of a person not registered in accordance with the provisions of this act, or who knowingly receives a vote from a person falsely claiming to be a registered voter, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61; Sec. 14, P. L. 73.)

FAILURE TO PERFORM DUTIES IMPOSED BY PERSONAL REGISTRATION ACT.

253. Any commissioner, registrar, or other officer, upon whom a duty is laid by this act, who shall wilfully refuse to perform his said duty shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61; Sec. 14, P. L. 73.)

PERJURY.

254. Any wilfull false statements made, under oath, by any person, in relation to any matter or thing concerning which he shall be lawfully interrogated by the registrars, shall be perjury, and any persons, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or to under imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 18, P. L. 61; Sec. 14, P. L. 73.)

B. OFFENSES AGAINST THE UNIFORM PRIMARY LAW.

FRAUDULENT VOTING AT PRIMARY.

255. Any person who votes or attempts to vote at a primary, knowing that he does not possess the qualifications of a voter at such primary, as indicated by this act, or who shall vote or attempt to vote more than once at a primary, or who shall have unlawfully in his possession an official ballot, outside the polling-place, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 43.)

RECEIVING FRAUDULENT VOTE OR REFUSING LAWFUL VOTE.

256. Any election officer who permits a person to vote at any primary, with the knowledge that such person is not so entitled to vote, or refuses to permit any lawfully entitled elector to vote at such primary, with the knowledge that such person is so entitled to vote, or who refuses to permit him to receive the party ballot for which he asks, after having executed the affidavit herein provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 43.)

FRAUD.

257. Any election officer or clerk who shall be guilty of any wilful fraud in the conduct of his duties at a primary, or who shall make a false return of the votes cast at such primary, or who shall deposit fraudulent ballots in the ballot-box, or who shall certify as correct a return of ballots in the ballot-box which he knows to have been fraudulently deposited therein, or who shall write false names in the lists of voters for the purpose of concealing the deposit of such fraudulent ballots or of aiding in the perpetration of such fraud, or who shall conspire with others to commit any of the offenses herein mentioned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or to undergo imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 43.)

OFFENSES UNDER GENERAL ELECTION LAWS.

258. Except as modified by the terms of this act, election officers shall be subject to the same pains and penalties for violation or neglect of their duties at a primary as they are or hereafter may be subject to for violation or neglect of such duties at elections. In all respects, officers officiating at primaries shall be subject to the pains and penalties provided by law for offenses committed at primaries. The existing laws relating to bribery at primaries shall continue in force, and shall apply to bribery at primaries as provided by this act. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 43.)

C. OFFENSES OF ELECTION OFFICERS.

FAILURE TO ATTEND ELECTION.

259. If any person elected to serve as inspector or judge as aforesaid, and having received due notice thereof, shall neglect or, without good cause, refuse to attend on the day of election at the time appointed by law, he shall in every such case forfeit the sum of twenty dollars. (Act 1839, Sec. 99, P. L. 541.)

REFUSAL TO SERVE.

260. If any inspector, judge or clerk, as aforesaid, shall neglect or refuse to take upon himself the duties of such office, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty dollars; or having entered upon the same, shall afterwards neglect or refuse to perform the duties thereof according to law, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred dollars for every such offense. (Act 1839, Sec. 100, P. L. 541.)

FAILURE TO TAKE OATH.

261. If any clerk of an election shall presume to act in such capacity before taking and subscribing the oath required by this act, he shall, on conviction, be fined in any sum not less than fifty, nor more than two hundred dollars. (Act 1839, Sec. 101, P. L. 541.)

262. If any judge or minority inspector refuses or fails to swear the officers of election in the manner required by this act, or if any officer of election shall act without being first duly sworn, or if any officer of election shall sign the form of oath, without being duly sworn, or if any judge or minority inspector shall certify that any officer was sworn, when he was not, it shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, the officer or officers so offending shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 9, P. L. 34.)

FRAUD.

263. If any inspector, judge or clerk, as aforesaid, shall be convicted of any wilful fraud in the discharge of his duties, as aforesaid, he shall undergo an imprisonment for any term not less than three, nor more than twelve months, and be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, and shall be for seven years thereafter, disabled from holding any office of honor, trust or profit in this Commonwealth, and shall moreover be disabled, for the term aforesaid, from giving his vote at any general or special election within this Commonwealth. (Act 1839, Sec. 102, P. L. 541.)

FAILURE TO REQUIRE PROOF OF QUALIFICATION OF UNREGISTERED OR CHALLENGED VOTERS.

264. If any election officer shall refuse or neglect to require such proof of the right of suffrage as is prescribed by this law, from any person offering to vote, whose name is not on the list of assessed voters, or whose right to vote is challenged by any qualified voter present, and shall admit such person to vote, without requiring such proof, every person so offending shall, upon conviction, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be sentenced, for every such offense, to pay a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 12, P. L. 37.)

REJECTING LEGAL VOTE OR RECEIVING FRAUDULENT VOTE.

265. If any inspector or judge of an election shall knowingly reject the vote of any qualified citizen, or knowingly receive the vote of any person not qualified, or conceal from his fellow-officers any fact in the knowledge of which such vote should by law be received or rejected, each of the persons so offending, shall, on conviction, be punished in the manner prescribed in Section 282 of this Code. (Act 1839, Sec. 103, P. L. 542.)

UNFOLDING BALLOTS.

266. If any judge of an election, inspector, clerk or other person, before the poll shall be closed, shall unfold, open or pry into any ticket, with a design to discover the name of any candidate therein, every person so offending shall, on conviction, be fined in any sum not less than fifty, nor more than one hundred dollars, and imprisoned for any time not less than one, nor more than three months. (Act 1839, Sec. 105, P. L. 542.)

DISCLOSING HOW VOTER VOTED.

267. Any clerk, overseer or election officer, who shall disclose how any elector shall have voted, unless required to do so as a witness in a judicial proceeding, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 19, P. L. 40.)

MISCELLANEOUS OFFENSES.

268. Any assessor, election officer or person appointed as an overseer, who shall neglect or refuse to perform any duty enjoined by this Code, without reasonable or legal cause, shall be subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars; and if any assessor shall knowingly assess any person as a voter who is not qualified, or shall wilfully refuse to assess any one who is qualified, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, at the discretion of the court, and also be subject to an action for damages by the party aggrieved. (Act 1874, Sec. 19, P. L. 40.)

INTOXICATION.

269. If any election officer or assessor of poll taxes shall become intoxicated during any of the time in which he shall be engaged in the performance of his duties, he shall, on conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be sentenced to an imprisonment of thirty days, and to pay a fine of twenty dollars and the costs of prosecution, both or either, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1887, Sec. 1, P. L. 126.)

D. MISCELLANEOUS OFFENSES.

DEFACING LIST OF VOTERS. INTERFERING WITH OVERSEERS.

270. If any person shall fraudulently alter, add to, deface or destroy any list of voters made out as directed by this Code, or tear down or remove the same from the place where it has been fixed, with fraudulent or mischevious intent, or for any improper purpose, the person so offending shall be guilty or a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, at the discretion of the court. And if any person shall, by violence or intimidation, drive, or attempt to drive from the polls any person or persons appointed by the court to act as overseers of an election, or in any way wilfully prevent said overseers from performing the duties enjoined upon them by this act, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 19, P. L. 40.)

STEALING OFFICIAL BALLOT OR PRINTING FALSE BALLOT.

271. Any printer employed by the commissioners of any county to print any official ballot, or any person engaged in printing the same, who shall appropriate to himself, or give or deliver or knowingly permit to be taken any of said ballots by any other person than such commissioners, or their duly authorized agent, or shall wilfully print, or cause to be printed any official ballot in any other form than that prescribed by such commissioners, or with any other names thereon, or with the names spelled otherwise than as directed by them, or the names of printing thereon arranged in any other way than that authorized and directed by this Code, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than five years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1893, Sec. 34, P. L. 435.)

HAVING OFFICIAL BALLOT OUTSIDE VOTING ROOM.

272. Any person other than an officer charged by law with the care of ballots, or a person entrusted by any such officer with the care of the same for a purpose required by law, who shall have in his possession outside the voting room any official ballot, or any person who shall make or have in possession any counterfeit of an official ballot, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1893, Sec. 35, P. L. 435.)

PAYMENT OF FEES FOR NATURALIZATION.

273. It shall be unlawful for any officer or any member of any committee or organization of any political party or any candidate for office nominated by any political party or nomination papers or for any person in behalf of said committee, organization or candidate to pay or furnish the money to pay, or in any way to become responsible for the payment of the fees and expenses directly or indirectly incurred by an alien in attending upon any court for the purpose of and in obtaining his naturalization papers. (Act 1893, Sec. 1, P. L. 36.)

274. Any person violating the provisions of the preceding section of this Code shall, upon conviction in a summary proceeding before any city magistrate, alderman or justice of the peace, who are hereby given jurisdiction to try said offenders in a summary way, for each offense, pay a fine of fifty dollars, which, when collected, shall be paid into the county treasury of the county wherein the offense was committed. (Act 1893, Sec. 2, P. L. 36.)

275. If any person convicted in the manner prescribed in the preceding section of this Code and sentenced to pay a fine or fines shall refuse or fail to forthwith pay said fine or fines and costs to the city magistrate, alderman or justice of the peace before whom he is convicted, or give satisfactory security to be approved by said magistrate, alderman or justice of the peace to pay the same within ten days, he shall be committed to county jail, there to be held one day for every five dollars of the fine or fines which he has been sentenced to pay: Provided, however, That said imprisonment shall not prevent the collection of said fine or fines and costs by legal process. (Act 1893, Sec. 3, P. L. 36.)

ISSUING FALSE NATURALIZATION CERTIFICATE.

276. If any prothonotary, clerk, or the deputy of either, or any other person, shall affix the seal of any court to any naturalization paper, or permit the same to be affixed, or give out, or cause or permit such naturalization paper to be given out, in blank, whereby it may be fraudulently used, or furnish a naturalization certificate to any person who shall not have been duly examined and sworn in open court, in the presence of some of the judges thereof, according to the act of Congress, or shall aid in, connive at, or in any way permit the issue of any fraudulent naturalization certificate, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; or if any one shall fraudulently use any such certificate of naturalization, knowingly that it was fraudulently issued, or shall vote or attempt to vote thereon, or if any one shall vote or attempt to vote on any certificate of naturalization not issued to him, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and either or any of the persons, their aiders or abettors, found guilty of either of the misdemeanors aforesaid, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the proper penitentiary for a period not exceeding three years. (Act 1874, Sec. 20, P. L. 41.)

OBTAINING NATURALIZATION CERTIFICATE BY FALSE OATH.

277. Any person who, on oath or affirmation, in or before any court in this State, or officer authorized to administer oaths, shall, to procure a certificate of naturalization for himself or any other person, wilfully depose, declare or affirm any matter to be fact, knowing the same to be false, or shall in like manner deny any matter to be fact, knowing the same to be true, shall be deemed guilty of perjury; and any certificate of naturalization issued in pursuance of any such deposition, declaration or affirmation, shall be null and void; and it shall be the duty of the court issuing the same, upon proof being made before it that it was fraudulently obtained, to take immediate measures for recalling the same for cancellation. And any person who shall vote or attempt to vote on any paper so obtained, or who shall in any way aid in, connive at, or have any agency whatever in the issue, circulation or use of any fraudulent naturalization certificate, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall undergo an imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than two years, and pay a fine not more than one thousand dollars, for every such offense, or either, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 21, P. L. 41.)

USE OF FALSE CERTIFICATE.

278. If any person, upon any false representation, or by the production of any forged, false or spurious naturalization certificate, or upon any such certificate not duly issued according to the act of Congress, shall cause his name to be placed, or shall attempt to have his name placed, upon any extra asessment list for election purposes, or upon any list of qualified electors authorized or required to be made by any law of this Commonwealth, or shall vote or attempt to vote at any general or presidential election, every such person, on conviction thereof, shall be adjudged guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be sentenced to imprisonment in the jail of the proper county for a term not less than twelve months, and every person who shall aid or abet any other person in any such false representation or attempt shall, on conviction thereof, be adjudged guilty of a high misdemeanor, and suffer the like penalty. (Act 1869, Sec. 38, P. L. 64.)

ASSESSING TAX WITHIN SIXTY-ONE DAYS OF NOVEMBER ELECTION.

279. It shall not be lawful for any assessor to assess a tax against any person whatever, within sixty-one days next preceding the annual election in November; any violation of this provision shall be a misdemanor, and subject the officer so offending to a fine, on conviction, not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to imprisonment, not exceeding three months, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1874, Sec. 18, P. L. 40.)

VIOLATING SECRECY OF BALLOT. FALSE DECLARATION OF INABILITY.

280. A voter who shall allow his ballot to be seen by any person, with the apparent intention of letting it be known how he is about to vote, or shall cast or attempt to cast any other than the official ballot which has been given him by the proper election officer, or shall falsely declare to a judge of election that, by reason of any disability, he is unable to mark his ballot, and on that account desires assistance in marking it, or shall wilfully violate any other provision of this Code; or any person who shall interfere with any voter when inside said enclosed space or when marking his ballot, or who shall endeavor to induce any voter before depositing his ballot to show how he marks or has marked his ballot; or any helper who shall attempt to influence the vote of the voter whom he is assisting, or who shall mark a ballot in any other way than that requested by the voter whom he is assisting, or who shall disclose to any one the contents of any ballot, which has been marked with his help, except when required so to do in any legal proceedings; shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than three months, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1903, Sec. 6, P. L. 348.)

OMITTING NAMES FROM LIST OF TAXABLES.

281. If the commissioners of any county shall wilfully omit to insert in the list of taxables, delivered by them to the inspectors, as before directed, the name of any person duly assessed and returned to them by the assessor, they shall, on conviction thereof, be fined and severally pay any sum not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars. (Act 1839, Sec. 98, P. L. 541.)

ADDING NAMES.

282. If the commissioners of any county shall add or knowingly permit to be added, the name of any person to the list of taxable inhabitants furnished them by the assessor, and shall return such name to the inspectors of election each commissioner concerned therein shall, on conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. (Act 1839, Sec. 107, P. L. 542.)

FAILURE OF CONSTABLES OR SUPERVISORS TO PERFORM DUTIES.

283. If the constables or supervisors of any township, ward or district, shall neglect or refuse to perform the duties herein required of him or them, they shall respectively, on conviction, be fined in any sum not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars. (Act 1829, Sec. 97, P. L. 541.)

PAYMENT OF TAX FOR OTHERS WITHOUT WRITTEN ORDER.

284. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to pay or cause to be paid any occupation or poll tax assessed against any elector, except on the written and signed order of such elector authorizing such payment to be made, which written and signed order must be presented at least thirty days prior to the date of holding the election at which such elector desires to vote. It shall be unlawful for any officer, clerk or other person authorized to collect taxes and receipt therefor, to receive payment of or receipt for any occupation or poll tax assessed for State or county purposes from any person other than the elector against whom such tax shall have been assessed, except upon his written and signed order authorizing such payment to be made. It shall be unlawful for any person to vote or attempt to vote at any election upon a tax receipt obtained in violation of this act. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the court of quarter sessions of the proper county, be punished by imprisonment in the county prison for a term of not less than twenty days nor more than six months, in the discretion of the court, or by such fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, as said court shall impose. (Act 1897, Secs. 1, 2, 3, 4, P. L. 276.)

ASSESSMENT OF OFFICE HOLDERS FOR POLITICAL PURPOSES BY COMMITTEES.

285. It shall be unlawful for any committee, or member thereof, directly or indirectly, to demand any public officer, subordinate or employee, holding any office or position of honor, trust or profit in this Commonwealth, or otherwise engaged or employed in the service of this State, or from any officer, subordinate or employee, in any way engaged or employed in the service of any city or county of this State, any assessment or percentage of any money, property or their equivalent in anything of value, with the understanding, either expressed or implied, that the same may or shall be used for any political purpose whatsoever.

Any person or persons violating any of the foregoing provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars. (Act 1883, Secs. 1 and 2, P. L. 96.)

BY OFFICERS OR HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS.

286. It shall be unlawful for any officer of this Commonwealth or of any county thereof, or for any mayor or head of department or other officer of any city of this Commonwealth, to make or cause or knowingly permit to be made any assessment upon the pay, wages or salary of any officer or employee appointed by or holding office or employment under him for any political or party purpose whatsoever, or to make or cause or knowingly permit to be made any demand for the payment or gift of any money or other valuable thing to any committee, organization or person for use in any manner for any political or party purpose: Provided, however, That nothing in this act contained shall prevent any officer, or other employee appointed as aforesaid, from making a voluntary contribution to any committee or organization for legitimate political and campaign purposes.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the court of quarter sessions of the proper county, be punished by imprisonment in the county prison for a term of not more than one year, and by fine of not more than one thousand dollars, either or both, as the said court shall impose. (Act 1897, Secs. 1 and 2, P. L. 275.)

BY OFFICE HOLDERS IN CITIES OF FIRST CLASS.

287. No officer, clerk or employee, under the government of any city of the first class within this Commonwealth, shall, directly or indirectly, demand, solicit, collect or receive or be in any manner concerned in demanding, soliciting, collecting or receiving, any assessment, subscription or contribution, whether voluntary or involuntary, intended for any political purpose whatever.

Any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and forfeit his office. (Act 1906, Secs. 1 and 2, P. L. 29.)

BRIBERY BY CANDIDATE TO PROCURE NOMINATION.

288. If a candidate for any office within this Commonwealth shall, directly or indirectly, give, offer or promise to give, or procure any other person to give, offer or promise to give, to any elector, any gift or reward in money, goods or other valuable thing, or any security for the payment or the delivery of money, goods or other valuable thing, or any office, emolument or employment, on condition, express or implied, that such elector shall cast, give, retain or withhold his vote, or use his influence at a nominating election or delegate election, or cast, give or substitute another to cast or give, his vote or use his influence at a nominating convention, for or against the nomination of any particular candidate for nomination, so as to procure such person to be voted for, at any election to take place, the person so hiring, procuring, influencing, abetting, endeavoring or offering, either directly, or indirectly through others, their aiders or abettors, to procure the person to be voted for by such electors, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and be imprisoned for a period not exceeding three months. (Act 1831, Sec. 1, P. L. 70.)

RECEIVING BRIBE AT PRIMARY.

289. If any elector, authorized to vote at any public election afterwards to take place within this Commonwealth, for any office, shall, directly or indirectly, accept or receive from any person desiring to be nominated as a candidate for office, or from the friends of any such person, any gift or reward in money, goods or other valuable thing, or any office or employment, under an agreement or promise, express or implied, that such elector shall give or withhold his vote for the nomination of such a person as a candidate for office at such election, or shall accept or receive the promise of any person, that he shall thereafter receive any gift or reward in money, goods, position or other valuable thing, if he will vote for the nomination of such a person as a candidate for office, and shall thereafter vote for the nomination of such person, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall pay a fine, not exceeding three hundred dollars, and be imprisoned for a term of time not exceeding three months. (Act 1881, Sec. 2, P. L. 71.)

SOLICITATION BY VOTER.

290. If any elector shall, directly or indirectly, offer to give his vote or his influence, at any nominating election, delegate election or nominating convention, to any person desiring to be nominated as a candidate for office, or to the friends of any such person, in consideration, that for such vote or influence, he is to receive any gift or reward in money, goods or other valuable thing or any office or employment, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall pay a fine, not exceeding three hundred dollars, and undergo a period of imprisonment not exceeding three months. (Act 1881, Sec. 3, P. L. 71.)

BY DELEGATES.

291. In all cases where a person is elected or chosen or shall act as a delegate to a convention to make nominations for offices, and shall receive, accept or solicit any bribe in money, goods or thing of value, or any office or position, as an inducement to make or join in any nomination for any person to be voted for as an officer or candidate for office, or shall in like manner and for like reason, agree to abstain from voting for any paticular person, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, and be imprisoned not exceeding three months. (Act 1881, Sec. 5, P. L. 71.)

BY MEMBERS OF PARTY COMMITTEE OR OF RETURN BOARD AT PRIMARY.

292. Any person, elected, chosen or acting as a member of the county or executive committee of any party, or as a judge of a return-board to count up and cast the vote polled at a primary election, held to make nominations for office, or any person appointed a clerk of such return-board, who shall directly or indirectly accept, receive or solicit money, office, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward or other thing of value, or the promise of all or either of them, to influence his vote or action in the discharge, performance or non-performance of any act, duty or obligation pertaining to such office, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, and be imprisoned for a time not exceeding three months. (Act 1881, Sec. 6, P. L. 72.)

BRIBING MEMBER OF COMMITTEE OR OF RETURN BOARD AT PRIMARY.

293. Any person or persons who shall directly or indiectly by offer or promise of money, office, appointment, employment, testimonial, reward or other thing of value, or who shall, by threats or intimidation, endeavor to influence a member of a county or executive committee of any party, a judge or clerk of any return-board, in the discharge, performance or non-performance of any act, duty or obligation pertaining to such office, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of two hundred dollars and to undergo an imprisonment not exceeding six months. Act 1881, Sec. 6, P. L. 72.)

OFFERING OR RECEIVING BRIBE AT ELECTION.

294. Any person who shall give or promise or offer to give to an elector any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at any election held for the purpose of voting on an amendment to the Constitution, or any other public purpose, or for withholding the same, or who shall give or promise to give such consideration to any other person or party for such elector's vote, or for the withholding thereof, and any elector who shall receive or agree to receive, for himself or for another, any money, reward or other valuable consideration for his vote at such election or for withholding the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and undergo imprisonment not exceeding one year. (Act 1889, Sec. 1, P. L. 162.)

INTIMIDATION AND THREATS.

295. Any person who shall, directly or indirectly, give, or offer to give any such gift or reward to any such elector, with the intent to induce him to vote for any particular candidate or candidates at such election, or shall, directly or indirectly, procure or agree to give any such gift or reward to such elector, with the intent aforesaid, or shall, with the intent to influence or intimidate such elector to give his vote for any particular candidate or candidates at such election, give, offer or promise to give to such elector, any office, place, appointment or employment, or threaten such elector with dismissal or discharge from any office, place, appointment or employment, public or private, then held by him, in case of his refusal to vote for any particular candidate or candidates at such election, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and undergo an imprisonment not exceeding two years. (Act 1860, Sec. 51, P. L. 396.)

(Act 1870, Sec. 9, P. L. 55.)

FRAUDULENT VOTING AT PRIMARIES.

304. If any person not qualified to vote at a general election, shall vote at a nominating election held by any political party, or if any person shall procure, advise or induce such disqualified person to so vote, or if any person shall vote at more than one election district, or otherwise vote more than once on the same day for the nomination of a candidate, or shall fraudulently vote more than one ticket for the same candidate at the same time, or if any person shall advise or procure another so to do, he or they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction, shall be fined, not exceeding the sum of two hundred dollars, and imprisoned for a term of time not exceeding three months. (Act 1881, Sec. 4, P. L. 71.)

FURNISHING FALSE BALLOTS.

305. Any person who shall furnish or supply to any elector of this Commonwealth, at any of the polls or voting places, any ballot or ticket falsely representing it to contain names not thereon, with the intent and purpose of defrauding said voter out of his express choice, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and on conviction, shall pay a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed one year, one or both, or either, at the discretion of the court: Provided, This section shall apply to both general and primary elections. (Act 1883, Sec. 1, P. L. 92.)

ATTEMPT TO VOTE BY PERSON NOT A CITIZEN.

306. If any person not a citizen of this Commonwealth, shall vote or attempt to vote, at any special, general or presidential election, held in this Commonwealth, he shall be guilty of felony, and on conviction, be sentenced to pay a fine, not exceeding five hundred dollars, and undergo an imprisonment by separate or solitary confinement at labor, not less than two, nor more than five years. (Act 1870, Sec. 6, P. L. 54.)

PERSUADING SUCH PERSON TO VOTE.

307. If any person shall, through solicitation, invitation or device, persuade or prevail on any person, not a citizen of this Commonwealth, to vote, or attempt to vote, at any special, general or presidential election in this Commonwealth, or shall, by any means, aid, encourage or abet any such attempt, the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction, shall be sentenced to pay a fine, not exceeding five hundred dollars, and undergo an imprisonment, by separate and solitary confinement at labor, not less than two, nor more than five years. (Act 1870, Sec. 7, P. L. 54.)

VOTING BY UNQUALIFIED PERSON, OR PROCURING SUCH PERSON TO VOTE.

308. If any person, not by law qualified, shall fraudulently vote at any election within this Commonwealth, or being otherwise qualified, shall vote out of his proper district, or if any person, knowing the want of such qualification, shall aid or procure such person to vote, the person or persons so offending shall, on conviction, be fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and be imprisoned for any term not exceeding five years. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 261.)

REPEATING.

309. If any person shall vote at more than one election district, or otherwise fraudulently vote more than once on the same day, or shall fraudulently fold and deliver to the inspector two tickets together, with the intent to illegally vote, or shall vote the same, or if any person shall advise and procure another so to do, he or they so offending, shall, on conviction, be fined in any sum not less than fifty, nor more than five hundred dollars, and be imprisoned for any term not exceeding five years. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 257.)

ISSUING FALSE RECEIPT OR CERTIFICATES.

310. If any person shall knowingly publish, utter or make use of any forged or false receipt or certificate, with intent to impose the same upon or deceive any inspector or judge, at any election as aforesaid, such person shall, on conviction, be fined in any sum not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, and suffer imprisonment not less than six months, nor more than two years. (Act 1839, Sec. 125, P. L. 546.)

FAILURE OF PUBLIC OFFICER TO PERFORM DUTY.

311. Any public officer upon whom a duty is imposed by this Code, who shall negligently or wilfully fail to perform such duty, or who shall negligently or wilfully perform it in such a way as to hinder the objects of this act, or who shall negligently or wilfully violate any of the provisions thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1893, Sec. 33, P. L. 434.)

FAILURE OF CONSTABLE TO REPORT DISORDER.

312. If it shall be made appear to any court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, that any riot or disturbance occurred at the time and place of holding any election under this act, and the constables who are enjoined by law to attend such elections have not given information thereof, according to the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of said court to cause the officer or officers, so neglecting the duty aforesaid, to be proceeded against by indictment for a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction thereof, the said officer shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. (Act 1839, Sec. 113, P. L. 544.)

SELLING LIQUOR ON ELECTION DAY.

313. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons keeping a public house or drinking place, either licensed or unlicensed to sell spirituous or malt liquors as a drink, to sell, furnish or give away, to be used as a drink, any spirituous or malt liquors, wine or any other intoxicating beverage, on any part of any day set apart, or to be set apart for any general or special election, by the citizens in any election district or division within this Commonwealth, where an election is in progress during the hours when, by law, in said district the election polls are required to be kept open.

Any person violating any of the provisions in this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be subject to imprisonment in the jail of the proper county, for a term of not more than one hundred days, and in addition to the above, shall also be subject to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and costs, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1872, Secs. 1 and 2, P. L. 24.)

CONSTABLE TO REPORT VIOLATIONS.

314 It shall be the duty of the constables of the several townships, wards and boroughs of this Commonwealth, under the same penalties as mentioned in the preceding section, to make return to the next court of quarter sessions of the proper county of the name or names of any person or persons offending under said section; Provided, Nothing herein shall prevent any other person or persons from prosecuting for such offense. Act 1872, Sec. 3, P. L. 24.)

WAGERING ON ELECTIONS.

315. If any person shall lay any wager or bet, or make any promise or engagement for the payment of money or the transfer of any other valuable thing, dependent on the event of such election (held under the Constitution or laws of the United States or Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth), or on the success of any candidate or candidates nominated for public office, he shall, on conviction thereof in any court of quarter sessions or other court having similar jurisdiction, be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding the whole amount of the sum betted by all parties to the wager, nor less sum than twenty dollars. (Act 1817, Sec. 2, P. L. 204.)

316. If any person or persons shall make any bet or wager upon the result of any election within this Commonwealth, or shall offer to make such bet or wager, either by verbal proclamation thereof, or by any written or printed advertisement, challenge or invite any person or persons to make such bet or wager, upon conviction thereof, he or they shall forfeit and pay three times the amount so bet or offered to be bet. (Act 1839, Sec. 115, P. L. 544.)

SUIT BY OVERSEERS OF THE POOR.

317. It shall be the duty of the several constituted authorities having care and charge of the poor in the respective counties, districts and townships of this Commonwealth, knowing or being informed, under oath, of any person or persons having made any bet or wager of any land, goods, money or thing of value, on the result of any election within this Commonwealth, or deposited the same in the hands of any person within their respective counties, districts or townships, to bring suit in the name of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; for the use of the poor of such county, district or township against such depositee or stakeholder, where said bet is deposited in the hands of a third person; or against the party winning said bet, when the same is not deposited, for the recovery of the amount so bet; and if, on the trial, it shall be made appear, that said lands, goods, money or thing of value was bet on the result of any election within this Commonwealth, said guardians., directors or overseers of the poor shall be entitled to recover the amount or value thereof for the use of the poor, from said stakeholder, or person winning said bet, where there is no stakeholder: Provided, Said suit is brought within two years from the time of making said bet. And the stakeholder is hereby prohibited, during said time, to pay over the amount so bet to either of the parties, and shall be liable for the same, whether such bet is paid over or delivered to the parties, or either of them, or not, and the party winning shall in like manner be liable to the payment of the whole amount so bet, where the same is received by him; and said bet, or the value thereof, may be recovered as debts of like amount are by law recoverable. And if said guardians, directors or overseers of the poor shall neglect or refuse to bring such suit, they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction, shall be fined in any sum not less than the amount so bet, nor more than double the amount. (Act 1839, Sec. 118, P. L. 545.)

LIBEL OF CANDIDATES.

318. Whoever writes, prints, posts or distributes, or causes to be written, printed, posted or distributed, a circular or poster, cartoon or other written or printed paper which is designed or tends to injure or defeat any candidate for nomination or election to public office, by reflecting upon his personal character or political action, unless the same shall be published in a newspaper avowedly responsible therefor, or unless there appears upon such circular, poster or paper, in a conspicuous place, either the names of the chairman and secretary, or at least the names of two officers of the political or other organization issuing the same, or the name of some duly registered elector with description of his election district, as responsible therefor, shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in jail not exceeding six months, or both, and if the statements are untrue the person so offending shall also be deemed guilty of libel and may be prosecuted in the civil or criminal courts, or both, thereof. (Act 1895, Sec. 1, P. L. 389.)

PARADING AFTER DARK IN PHILADELPHIA WITHIN TEN DAYS OF ELECTION.

319. It shall not be lawful for any political organization to parade through the streets of the City of Philadelphia after dark, within ten days next preceding any general election.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, and an imprisonment not exceeding sixty days. (Act 1867, Secs. 1 and 2, P. L. 1129.)

CITY EMPLOYEES IN CITIES OF FIRST CLASS TAKING ACTIVE PART IN CAMPAIGN.

320. No officer, clerk or employee of any city of the first class, or of any department, trust or commission thereof, shall be a member of, or delegate or alternate to, any political convention, nor shall he be present at any such convention except in the performance of his official duty. No officer, clerk or employee of any city of the first class, or of any department, trust or commission thereof, shall serve as a member of, or attend the meetings of, any committee of any political party, or take any active part in political management or in political campaigns, or use his office to influence political movements, or influence the political action of any other officer, clerk or employee of any such city, department, trust or commission. No officer, clerk or employee of any city of the first class shall in any way or manner interfere with the conduct of any election, or the preparation therefor, at the polling-place, or with the election officers while counting the vote or returning the ballot-boxes, books and papers to the place provided by law for that purpose, save only for the purpose of marking and depositing his ballot as speedily as it reasonably can be done or be within any polling-place, or within fifty feet thereof, except for purposes of ordinary travel or residence, during the period of time beginning with one hour preceding the opening of the polls for holding such election and ending with the time when the election officers shall have finished counting the votes, and have left the polling-place for the purpose of depositing the ballot-boxes and papers in the place provided by law for that purpose, excepting only officers of the Bureau of Police, who may temporarily approach or enter the polling-place in order to make any arrest permitted by law, or for the purpose of preserving order, and in such case only long enough to accomplish the duties aforesaid, after which the said officers shall at once withdraw. Any officer, clerk, or employee of any city of the first class, or any department, trust or commission thereof, violating any of the provisions of this section shall be immediately dismissed by the mayor, or by the head of the department, trust or commission in which he is employed. (Act 1906, Sec. 2, P. L. 20.)

VI. REGULATION OF ELECTION EXPENSES.

DEFINITIONS.

321. The term "candidate for nomination," as used herein, shall include all persons whose names are presented for nomination to public office at any primary meeting, caucus, or convention, whether or not such persons are actually nominated thereat.

The term "candidate for election," as used herein, shall include all persons whose names are printed as candidates on the official ballots, or on any official sticker, used at any election; and also all persons voted for, for any public office, who shall receive at least ten per cent. of the highest vote received by the successful candidate for such office, but whose names were not printed on the official ballots.

The term "candidate," as used herein, shall, unless especially restricted therein, include both candidates for nomination and candidates for election.

The term "public office," as used herein, shall include every public office to which persons can be elected by vote of the people, under the laws of this Commonwealth.

The term "political committee," as used herein, shall include every two or more persons who shall be elected, appointed or chosen, or who shall have associated themselves or co-operated, for the purpose, wholly or in part, of raising, collecting or disbursing money, or of controlling or directing the raising, collection or disbursement of money, for election expenses.

The term "election expenses," as used herein, shall include all expenditures of money or other valuable things in furtherance of the nomination of any person or persons as candidates for public office, or in furtherance of the election of any person or persons to public office, or to defeat the nomination or election to public office of any person or persons. (Act 1906, Sec. 1, P. L. 78.)

MONEYS TO BE RECEIVED AND DISBURSED ONLY THROUGH TREASURER.

322. Every political committee shall appoint and constantly maintain a treasurer, to receive, keep and disburse all sums of money which may be collected or received by such committee, or by any of its members, for election expenses; and unless such treasurer is first appointed, and thereafter maintained, it shall be unlawful for a political committee or any of its members to collect, receive or disburse money for any such purpose. All money collected or received by any political committee or by any of its members, for election expenses, shall be paid over and pass through the hands of the treasurer of such committee, and shall be disbursed by him; and it shall be unlawful for any political committee or any of its members to disburse any money for election expenses, unless such money shall have passed through the hands of the treasurer. (Act 1906, Sec. 2, P. L. 78.)

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.

323. No person who is not a candidate, or the treasurer of a political committee, shall pay, give or lend, or agree to pay, give or lend, any money or other valuable thing, whether contributed by himself or by any other person for any election expenses whatever, except to a candidate or to a political committee; and no officer of any corporation, whether incorporated under the laws of this or any other State or any foreign country, except corporations formed for political purposes, shall pay, give or lend, or authorize to be paid, given or lent, any money or other valuable thing belonging to such corporation to any candidate or to any political committee, for the payment of any election expenses whatever. (Act 1906, Sec. 3, P. L. 79.)

LAWFUL EXPENSES.

324. No candidate, and no treasurer of any political committee, shall pay, give or lend, or agree to pay, give or lend, either directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing for any nomination or election expenses whatever, except for the following purposes:

First. For printing and traveling expenses, and personal expenses incident thereto, stationery, advertising, postage, expressage, freight, telegraph, telephone, and public

Second. For dissemination of information to the public. messenger services.

Third. For political meetings, demonstrations and conventions, and for the pay and transportation of speakers.

Fourth. For the rent, maintenance and furnishing of offices.

Fifth. For the payment of clerks, typewriters, stenographers, janitors, and messengers, actually employed.

Sixth. For the employment of watchers at primary meetings and elections, to the number allowed by law.

Seventh. For the transportation of voters to and from the polls.

Eighth. For legal expenses, bona fide incurred, in connection with any nomination or election. (Act 1906, Sec. 4, P. L. 79.)

ACCOUNTS.

325. Every candidate for nomination at any primary election, caucus, or convention, whether nominated thereat or not, shall, within fifteen days after the same was held, if the amount received or expended shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars, and every candidate for election, and every treasurer of a political committee, or person acting as such treasurer, shall, within thirty days after every election at which such candidate was voted for, or with which such political committee was concerned, if the amount received or expended shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars,—file with the officers hereinafter specified a full, true and detailed account, subscribed and sworn or affirmed to by him, before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth each and every sum of money contributed, received or disbursed by him for election expenses, the date of each contribution, receipt and disbursement, the name of the person from whom received or to whom paid, and the object or purpose for which the same was disbursed. Such account shall also set forth the unpaid debts and obligations of any such candidate or committee for election expenses, with the nature and amount of each, and to whom owing. In the case of candidates for election, who have previously filed accounts as candidates for nomination, the accounts shall only include contributions, receipts and disbursements subsequent to the date of such prior accounts. If the aggregate receipts or disbursements of a candidate or political committee, in connection with any nomination or election, shall not exceed fifty dollars, the treasurer of the committee or candidate shall, within thirty days after the election, certify that fact, under oath, to the officer with whom the statement is filed, as hereinafter provided. (Act 1906, Sec. 5, P. L. 79.)

VOUCHERS.

326. Every such account shall be accompanied by vouchers for all sums expended exceeding ten dollars in amount. It shall be unlawful for any candidate, or treasurer of a political committee, or person acting as such treasurer, to disburse any money received from any anonymous source. (Act 1906, Sec. 6, P. L. 80.)

FILING.

327. Every such account, concerning expenses incurred by, or in regard to, candidates for offices to be voted for by the electors of the State at large, shall be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and every such account, concerning expenses incurred by, or in regard to, candidates for other offices, shall be filed with the clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the several counties where such candidates may respectively reside: Provided, That if any account concerns expenses in regard to candidates who do not all reside in the same county, such accounts shall be filed in each county in which any such candidate (not being a candidate for an office to be voted for by the electors of the State at large), resides. (Act 1906, Sec. 6, P. L. 80.)

OATH OF OFFICE NOT TO BE ADMINISTERED UNTIL ACCOUNT FILED.

328. It shall be unlawful to administer the oath of office to any person elected to any public office, until he has filed an account as herein required, and no such person shall enter upon the duties of his office until he has filed such account, nor shall he receive any salary for any period prior to the filing of the same. (Act 1906, Sec. 7, P. L. 80.)

ACCOUNTS TO BE OPEN TO PUBLIC INSPECTION.

329. All such accounts shall be open to public inspection in the offices where they are filed, and shall be carefully preserved there for a period of two years. (Act 1906, Sec. 8, P. L. 81.)

AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS.

330. Within twenty days after the last day for the filing of any account required by this act, any five electors of the State, or of the political division thereof concerning which any such account has been filed, may present a petition to the court of quarter sessions of the county in which the office where such account has been filed is situated, praying for an audit of such account. The court shall thereupon direct the officer or officers with whom such account has been filed to certify the same to the court for audit, and may, in its discretion, require security to be entered for costs. The court may, in its discretion, appoint an auditor to audit said account; but the fees of such auditor shall not exceed the sum of ten dollars a day for each day actually engaged. The court or auditor shall fix a date, as early as may be convenient, for the audit; at which time the person by whom such account has been filed shall be required to be present in person, to vouch his account, and answer, on oath or affirmation, all such relevant questions concerning same as may be put to him by the petitioners or their counsel. The auditor shall issue subpoenas to all parties whom the petitioner or the accountant may require to give evidence concerning such account, and he shall determine, subject to exception, all questions as to the admissibility of evidence, and shall file a copy of the evidence with his report. If, upon the audit, the court shall decide that the account was false in any substantial manner, or that any illegal election expenses were incurred, the costs of said audit shall be paid by the accountant; but otherwise, by the petitioners. (Act 1906, Sec. 9, P. L. 81.)

APPEAL. QUO WARRANTO.

331. The decision of the court upon the audit shall be subject to appeal; but if the court shall decide that any candidate who has been elected has incurred any illegal election expenses, or has consented to the incurring of any illegal election expenses by any person or committee, the court shall certify its decision to the Attorney General, who shall thereupon cause a writ of quo warranto to be issued; and if, be decided that the candidate in question has incurred any illegal election expenses, or has consented to the incurring of illegal election expenses by any person or committee, his election shall be declared void and his office vacant: Provided That in the case of candidates elected to the office of Senator or Representative in the General Assembly, the decision of the court shall be certified to the President of the Senate or to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as the case may be: And provided further, That in the case of any candidate elected to the office of member of the House of Representatives of the United States, the decision of the court shall be certified to the Governor of this Commonwealth who shall transmit the same to the Speaker of the said House of Representatives. (Act 1906, Sec. 10, P. L. 81.)

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

332. If the court shall decide, upon the audit, that any person, whether a candidate or not, has incurred illegal election expenses, or has otherwise violated any of the provisions of this act, it shall certify its decision to the district attorney of the county in which such person may reside, and it shall thereupon be the duty of such district attorney to institute crimial proceedings against such person. (Act 1906, Sec. 11, P. L. 82.)

COMPELLING TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES.

333. No person shall be excused from answering any question, in any proceedings under this act, on the ground that such answer would tend to incriminate him; but no such answer shall be used as evidence against such person in any criminal action or prosecution whatever, except in an action for perjury in giving such testimony. (Act 1906, Sec. 12, P. L. 82.)

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS TO FURNISH NECESSARY BLANK FORMS.

334. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall, at the expense of the Commonwealth, furnish to the county commissioners blanks, in the form approved by the Secretary and Attorney General, suitable for the statements hereinbefore required. On the receipt of the list of candidates for public offices, before a caucus or primary, or upon the filing of a nomination, before a municipal election, the county commissioners shall transmit to the candidate or candidates put in nomination, or at said primaries, and to the treasurers of political committes, the blanks above described. Upon the filing of a nomination for a State or National election, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall transmit to the candidate or candidates put in nomination, and to the treasurer of the political committees, the blanks above described. To any person required to file a statement, such blank shall be furnished upon application therefor. (Act 1906, Sec. 13, P. L. 82.)

PENALTY FOR VIOLATION OF ACT.

335. Any person who shall incur any illegal election expenses, or otherwise violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars or more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than one month or more than two years, either or both, at the discretion of the court. (Act 1906, Sec. 14, P. L. 82.)

VII. ELECTION CONTESTS.

CLASSIFICATION OF CONTESTS.

336. The several classes of election which may be contested in this Commonwealth are hereby distinguished and designated as follows, to wit:

I. The Governor and Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth.

II. Electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, and all officers of this Commonwealth (except Governor and Lieutenant Governor), who now are or hereafter shall be required to be elected by the qualified voters of the State at large.

III. The judges of the several courts of record, to be learned in the law, other than judges of the Supreme Court.

IV. All other officers (excepting members of the General Assembly), whether elected by the qualified voters of counties, cities, townships, boroughs, wards, school districts or any other division of the State. (Act 1874, Sec. 1, P. L. 208.)

CONTESTS OF FIRST CLASS.

337. Contested elections of Governor and Lieutenant-Governor shall be tried and determined by a committee to be selected from houses of the General Assembly, and formed and regulated in the following manner: (Act 1874, Sec. 20, P. L. 213).

PETITION TO PRESIDENT OF SENATE.

338. Upon the petition, in writing, of at least one hundred qualified electors of the Commonwealth, accompanied by the affidavit, taken and subscribed by at least twenty of the petitioners, before some person having authority to administer oaths, that the facts set forth are true to the best of their knowledge and belief, and a certificate from the prothonotary of the county or counties where the petitioners reside, that they are all qualified electors, being presented to the President of the Senate, within ten days from the organization of the Legislature next succeeding the election complained of, he shall immediately give information thereof to both houses; such petition being read in each house, shall be laid on the table, without any question taken thereon, until the two houses shall proceed thereon, in manner following: (Act 1874, Sec. 21, P. L. 214.)

SELECTION OF COMMITTEE.

339. The Senate and House of Representatives shall, on a day and hour to be agreed on between them, which day shall be within five days of the reception of the petition, as aforesaid, convene in the hall of the House of Representatives, where the petition shall be read by the clerk of the Senate; the names of the members of each house shall then be called over by the respective clerks, and a quorum of each house being present, a joint committee shall be formed as follows:

I. The names of all the Senators present, except the President pro tempore, shall be written on distinct pieces of paper, as nearly alike as may be, each of which shall be rolled up and put into a box by the clerk of the House of Representatives, and placed on the Speaker's table.

II. The Clerk of the Senate having shaken and intermixed the said papers, shall draw them out one by one, and put them alternately into three boxes, also placed on the Speaker's table.

III. When the whole number shall be thus distributed, the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall shake and intermix the papers in each box, and shall draw alternately from each box the papers so rolled up, and shall deliver them singly to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

IV. The Speaker of the House of Representatives shall open the said papers singly, and read aloud the name on each, and then deliver the papers singly to the President of the Senate, who shall place them openly on the table.

V. A member of each house, to be designated by the respective presiding officers, shall take down in writing the name so called, and each of them repeat aloud the name so written, until the number of twelve names be drawn out and written down. (Act 1874, Sec. 22, P. L. 214.)

340. The like proceedings shall then be had for drawing twenty-five members of the House of Representatives for the purpose: Provided,

I. That the duties herein enjoined upon the Clerk of the House of Representatives, shall be performed by the Clerk of the Senate.

II. That the duties enjoined upon the Clerk of the Senate shall be performed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives.

III. That the duties hereinbefore enjoined upon the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall be performed by the presiding officer of the Senate.

IV. That the duties hereinbefore enjoined upon the President of the Senate shall be performed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, whose name shall not be placed in the box. (Act 1874, Sec. 23, P. L. 214.)

CHALLENGES.

341. If any objection be made by either of the parties to any member so drawn by lot, such member shall be discharged, and another name be drawn to supply the place, and so on until the whole number of twelve Senators and twenty-five members of the House of Representatives shall be completed; and in all cases the members drawn in place of those objected to, shall be in like manner liable to be set aside, and others shall be drawn in their places; but if so many be set aside by reason of objections, as aforesaid, that there shall not remain more than the number aforesaid, then no further objection shall be admitted. (Act 1874, Sec. 24, P. L. 215.)

REMAINING NAMES TO BE DRAWN AND READ.

342. When the number aforesaid shall be completed, the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall draw out, one by one, the names of the remaining members of the Senate, and deliver them singly to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, who shall unfold and read them aloud; and the Clerk of the Senate shall, in like manner, draw out the names of the remaining members of the House of Representatives, and deliver them singly to the Speaker of the Senate, who shall unfold them and read them aloud; and if any unfairness or mistake shall then be discovered therein, the whole proceedings shall be set aside, and the same shall be renewed in manner and form hereinbefore directed; but after the committee is sworn, no objection for such cause shall be received. (Act 1874, Sec. 25, P. L. 215.)

STRIKING NAMES.

343. When the proceedings aforesaid shall be concluded, a list of the twelve members of the Senate and a separate list of the twenty-five members of the House of Representatives, so drawn, shall be given to each of the parties, who shall immediately withdraw to some adjoining room, with a clerk or member appointed by the joint vote of members present, where they shall proceed to strike off alternately the names upon such list, until the number shall be reduced to four members of the Senate and nine of the House of Representatives. (Act 1874, Sec. 26, P. L. 215.)

MEMBERS NOT TO LEAVE CONFERENCE.

344. On the parties withdrawing to form such select committee, the members of both houses shall continue convened and the members whose names shall have been drawn out of the boxes shall not depart the conference room without leave, until the time and place for the meeting of the select committee shall be fixed as hereinafter provided. (Act 1874, Sec. 27, P. L. 215.)

NAMES OF COMMITTEE TO BE DELIVERED TO PRESIDENT OF SENATE.

345. Within one hour from the time of withdrawing as aforesaid, the parties shall deliver to the presiding officer of the Senate the names of the said four members of the Senate and nine of the House of Representatives remaining on the list, who shall then respectively take an oath or affirmation, to be administered by the presiding officer of the Senate, to try the matter of the petition and to give a true judgment thereon, according to the evidence, unless the committee shall be dissolved. (Act 1874, Sec. 28, P. L. 215.)

TIME AND PLACE OF MEETING OF COMMITTEE.

346. The time and place for the meeting of the select committee so appointed, shall then be directed by the joint vote of the members of both houses, which time shall be within forty-eight hours of the appointment. (Act 1874, Sec. 29, P. L. 216.)

WHEN MEMBERS MAY BE EXCUSED FROM SERVING.

347. If any person appointed a member of such select committee shall, at the time of such appointment, swear or affirm that he cannot, without great inconvenience, serve on such committee, he shall be excused, and in such case another shall be substituted. But if any member of such committee shall neglect to attend upon the committee, his name shall be reported in writing to the house of which he shall be a member, and unless satisfactory reasons be given for his non-attendance, he shall be reprimanded by the presiding officer of the house of which he is a member. (Act 1874, Sec. 30, P. L. 216.)

CHIEF JUSTICE TO PRESIDE.

348. The select committee so chosen shall be presided over by the chief justice of the Supreme Court, who shall decide questions regarding the admissibility of evidence, and he shall, upon request of the committee, pronounce his opinion upon other questions of law involved in the trial; but he shall not have a vote on the final determination of the case. Immediately after the appointment of the select committee aforesaid, the presiding officer of the Senate shall notify the chief justice of the Supreme Court thereof, and he shall immediately attend the meetings of the committee, as the presiding officer thereof. (Act 1874, Sec. 31, P. L. 216.)

SITTINGS OF COMMITTEE.

349. The select committee shall sit from day today, Sundays excepted, at such hours as shall not interfere with their attendance in the Legislature; but, unless nine of their number be present, the committee after waiting one hour, shall adjourn to the next day; and if the number of the committee shall unvoidably be reduced to less than nine members, and shall so continue for the space of three days, Sundays excepted, the committee shall be dissolved, and there shall be another chosen in manner aforesaid: Provided, That when the two houses shall stand adjourned for more than three days, the committee may adjourn to the same time. (Act 1874, Sec. 32, P. L. 216.)

ATTENDANCE AND EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

350. The select committee shall have power to send for persons, papers and records, and to compel the attendance of and examine all witnesses who may come before them, upon oath or affirmation, which the chief justice of the supreme court, or clerk of the committee, may administer in their presence, and to decide not only on the validity of such contested election, but also which of the candidates had the greatest number of legal votes. (Act 1874, Sec. 33, P. L. 216.)

MAY COMPEL UNQUALIFIED VOTER TO DISCLOSE HOW HE VOTED.

351. When it is proven to the satisfaction of said committee, that any person, not a legally qualified voter, voted at any such contested election, it shall be lawful for said committee to compel said voter to disclose, under oath, for which of the respective candidates he voted; but when the committee examines the witness on oath as to the person or persons for whom he voted, and said witness, on such examination, discloses the names of the persons for whom he voted at such election, he shall not afterwards be presented for having illegally voted at such election. (Act 1874, Sec. 34, P. L. 216.)

PROCEEDINGS OF COMMITTEE.

352. The doors of the room in which the select committee shall meet shall remain open during the examination of witnesses, but may be shut at any other time; all determinations required to be made by such committees shall be by a majority of the whole number appointed; and as soon as the committee shall have agreed upon the same, two reports thereof shall be made in writing, one of which shall be delivered to the presiding officer of the Senate, and the other to the Speaker of the House of Representatives; which reports shall be entered on the Journals of the respective houses, and shall be final and conclusive. (Act 1874, Sec. 35, P. L. 217.)

REPORT TO BE CONCLUSIVE.

353. If the committee, or a majority thereof as aforesaid, shall report that either or the candidates had the greatest number of legal votes, and ought to be admitted to the office, such candidate shall thereupon be entitled to such office. (Act 1874, Sec. 36, P. L. 217.)

IN CASE OF INVALID ELECTION NEW ELECTION TO TAKE PLACE.

354. If the committee, or a majority thereof as aforesaid, shall report that such election or return is invalid, a new election shall take place on the day of the general election ensuing, agreeably to the Constitution, of which the presiding officer of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives shall immediately give notice, by their joint writ directed to the sheriffs of the respective counties; and the sheriffs of the respective counties shall give due notice thereof according to law. (Act 1874, Sec. 37, P. L. 217.)

CONTESTS OF SECOND CLASS TO BE DECIDED BY COMMON PLEAS OF DAUPHIN COUNTY.

355. Cases of the second class shall be tried and determined by the court of common pleas of Dauphin county; and for the purpose of hearing and determining the complaint in the petition in such cases, the court of common pleas of the twelfth judicial district shall notify to sit with it, on the hearing of such complaint, two president judges, learned in the law, residing nearest to the court house of the said judicial district; and the judges so notified shall appear and sit as part of the said court on the hearing, trial and determination of such petition. (Act 1874, Sec. 3, P. L. 209.)

DECISION OF COURT.

356. After the hearing of the said case, the said judges shall without unnecessary delay, decide which of the candidates voted for received the greatest number of legal votes, and is entitled to the office; which decision shall be entered of record to the case in the said court, and a certified copy thereof shall, within five days from the rendering thereof, be delivered to the Secretary of the Commonwealth; whereupon the person who, by the decision of the court, shall appear to have received the largest number of votes, shall be entitled to the office, and be commissioned accordingly. (Act 1874, Sec. 4, P. L. 209.)

CONTESTS OF THIRD CLASS.

357. Contested elections of president or addition law judges of any of the judicial districts of this Commonwealth, shall be tried and determined before the court of common pleas of the county where the person returned as elected shall reside in manner following. (Act 1874, Sec. 5, P. L. 209.)

PETITION TO ATTORNEY GENERAL. COMPOSITION OF COURT.

358. Upon the petition in writing of at least fifty qualified electors, of the district for which the person whose election is contested was returned as elected, accompanied by the affidavit of not less than ten of such petitioners, being presented in due form to the Attorney General of the Commonwealth, complaining of an undue election or false return of any president or additional law judge of any judicial district of the Commonwealth, the Attorney General shall immediately notify the Governor thereof, who shall, without delay, direct the three president judges residing nearest to the court house of the county composing the district, or if more than one county composes the judicial district, then those nearest the court house of the most populous county of the district, to convene, without delay, the court of common pleas of such county, and proceed to hear and determine the complaint of the said petition; and after such hearing the said judges shall, with no unnecessary delay, decide which of the candidates voted for received the greatest number of legal votes, and is entitled to the office; which decision shall be entered of record to the case in said court, and a certified copy thereof shall, within five days from the rendering of such decision, be transmitted to the Secretary of the Commonwealth; whereupon the person, who, by the said decision, shall appear to have received the largest number of votes, shall be entitled to the office, and commissioned accordingly: Provided, No order shall be taken on such petition, unless it shall be presented to the Attorney General within thirty days after the election complained of. (Act 1874, Sec. 6, P. L. 209.)

WHEN DISTRICT CONTAINS MORE THAN ONE COMMON PLEAS COURT.

359. In any contested election of any president or additional law judge in any judicial district, where there is more than one court of common pleas, the court of the next highest number to the court for which the person whose election is contested is returned as elected, if there be one higher, and if not, the one next lower, shall perform all the duties required of the three president judges, as prescribed in the forgoing section. (Act 1874, Sec. 7, P. L. 210.)

APPEALS TO SUPREME COURT.

360. When the election of a judge of the supreme court, or a judge of any subordinate court of record, required to be learned in the law, shall be contested, if the trial and determination of such election contest shall involve the true construction of any provision of the Constitution, or if the decision shall depend on any question arising upon the Constitution, an appeal shall lie from the decision of the court or judges empowered to try such contested election to the Supreme Court. (Act 1878, Sec. 1, P. L. 204.)

HOW TAKEN.

361. Such appeal may be taken by any person whose right to the office was tried and determined, or by any person aggrieved by the decision, within thirty days after the decision of the judges shall have been entered of record to the case in the court of common pleas. The appeal shall be filed in the prothonotary's office of the proper district, but may be heard by the said Supreme Court in any district; and it shall be the duty of said court to hear and decide the same, without delay. (Act 1878, Sec. 2, P. L. 205.)

COURT BELOW TO STATE FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW.

362. To the end, it is hereby made the duty of the judges in the court of common pleas trying such election contest to, first, find separately and explicitly the facts deemed by them material to the decision, and also such other facts as any party to the contest may request them in writing to ascertain; and to, second, answer such points of law as may be submitted to them. (Act 1878, Sec. 3, P. L. 205.)

JUDGMENT OF SUPREME COURT.

363. The said Supreme Court, having decided the constitutional question involved in such election contest, shall thereupon proceed to decide and declare which of the candidates voted for received the greatest number of legal votes and is entitled to the office, and shall cause their decision to be certified to the Secretary of the Commonwealth; whereupon, the person who, by the decision of the said Supreme Court, shall appear to have received the largest number of legal votes, shall be entitled to the office and be commissioned accordingly. (Act 1878, Sec. 4, P. L. 205.)

CONTESTED ELECTIONS OF SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES.

364. Contested elections of Senators and members of the House of Representatives shall be tried and determined by the court of common pleas of the county where the person returned as such shall reside, in the manner following: (Act 1874, Sec. 11, P. L. 211.)

PETITION TO COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

365. Upon petition in writing of at least twenty qualified electors of the Senatorial district, in case of a Senator, and of the county, in case of a member of the House of Representatives, complaining of an undue election or false return of any Senator or Representative, the court, if in session, or the president judge thereof, if in vacation, shall immediately appoint a suitable time for the hearing in open court of such complaint; and if the court is not in session, the president judge to whom such complaint is made, shall direct the court to convene for that purpose, notice of which shall be given to the person returned, at least ten days before such hearing; but no order shall be taken on such petition, unless it be accompanied by the affidavit of at least five of the petitioners, taken before a person qualified to administer oaths or affirmations, setting forth that the facts there stated are true to the best of their knowledge and belief, and unless such petition shall be presented within thirty days of the election complained of. On the trial of contested elections of Senators and members of the House of Representatives, the petitioners complaining of the election, and the person returned as elected, shall be the parties thereto. (Act 1874, Sec. 12, P. L. 211.)

ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES AND PRODUCTION OF PAPERS.

366. The court of common pleas to which a petition shall be presented, as aforesaid, contesting the right of a Senator or member of the House of Representatives to the seat for which he may have been returned as elected, shall have authority to compel the attendance of any officer of the election complained of, and of any person capable of testifying concerning the same; and also to compel the production of all books, papers, tally-lists, tickets, ballot-boxes and all other documents which may be required at such hearing, in like manner and to the same extent as in other cases litigated before such court; to appoint commissioners to take testimony, and to proceed without delay, postponing for the purpose, if necessary, all other business, to the hearing and determination of such case. (Act 1874, Sec. 13, P. L. 211.)

JUDGMENT OF THE COURT.

367. After the hearing, as aforesaid, the court shall, without unnecessary delay, decide which of the candidates voted for received the greatest number of legal votes, and is entitled to the certificate of election. (Act 1874, Sec. 14, P. L. 212.)

REVISION BY SENATE OR HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

368. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall, on the day of the meeting of the next General Assembly, or, if in session, then immediately upon its reception, deliver to the Speaker of the proper house the certified copy of the decision of the court aforesaid; any claimant to a seat in either branch of the Legislature, who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of the court in his case, may present his petition to the proper house, within ten days after the meeting of the Legislature, or within ten days after the decision shall have been made in his case, if the Legislature shall then be in session, setting forth his claim to the seat; which petition shall have appended thereto the affidavit of the petitioner, setting forth that he verily believes that he was duly elected to the seat, and that the statements set forth in his petition are just and true, to the best of his knowledge and belief; and said petition shall also be signed by at least twenty qualified electors, of the proper county or district, at least five of whom shall make affidavit that the facts set forth in said petition are true, to the best of their knowledge and belief; such petition when presented, shall be referred to a standing committee on elections, which committee shall proceed to hear the claims of the contestants and respondent, and report the facts and a resolution expressing the decision of the committee for the consideration of the house; and the vote of the proper house on the claims of the contestants and respondent shall be final: Provided, That no resolution deciding such question shall be adopted unless it shall receive the votes of a majority of all the members elected to the house considering the same. (Act 1874, Sec. 15, P. L. 212.)

CONTESTS OF FOURTH CLASS TO BE TRIED BY QUARTER SESSIONS.

369. Cases of the fourth class shall be tried and determined by the court of quarter sessions of the peace of the county in which the election contested shall be held. (Act 1874, Sec. 16, P. L. 212.)

ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES AND PRODUCTION OF PAPERS.

370. The proper court or judge shall have power to compel the attendance of any election officer, or other person, as a witness, and may also compel the production of all books, papers, tally-lists, returns of election, other documentary or record evidence, at discretion, for use on the trial, and may issue subpoenas and attachments, for these purposes, as in other cases of proceedings in the courts of this Commonwealth; and all such books, papers, documents, ballots, boxes and records shall be returned to the proper custody. Certified copies of all election papers, assessments, registers of votes and records, duly authenticated by the person having custody thereof, shall be competent evidence, and prima facie proof of their contents; but the party against whom the same shall be produced, shall have the right to compel the attendance of the person who certifies them, for cross-examination. Examiners, to take and report evidence, may be appointed; and reasonable notice of the time and place of taking the same shall be prescribed by the court, or judge, and served upon the opposite party. (Act 1874, Sec. 8, P. L. 210.)

TIME FOR TAKING TESTIMONY.

371. Hereafter in all contested elections, except of Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, and all other officers of this Commonwealth who now are or hereafter shall be required to be elected by the qualified voters of the State at large, the time to be consumed in taking testimony in court or before an examiner or examiners appointed for that purpose shall not exceed ninety days in any one case, no matter whether such testimony be taken in court or before an examiner or examiners, or partly in court and partly before an examiner or examiners, and said testimony shall be taken in the following order, to wit: A period of time not exceeding forty days shall be allowed the contestant for this purpose; a succeeding period of time, not exceeding forty days, shall be allowed for said purpose to the person returned as elected; and the contestant may take testimony in rebuttal during ten days, immediately succeeding the time allowed the person returned as elected for taking testimony; and for any testimony taken after the limit of time herein fixed, no contest court shall have the power to charge any costs to any district, county, city, township, borough, ward, school district, or municipality, nor shall they be under any liability for the payment of the same, but the said court may order the contestant, petitioners, or person returned elected, to pay the costs, as in its discretion it is deemed just and proper. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 103.)

PAYMENT OF COSTS ACCRUING AFTER EXPIRATION OF TIME LIMIT.

372. Provided, That no costs shall be paid out of the treasury of any district, county, city, township, borough, ward, school district or municipality in any such contest until the same has been finally determined; and no costs, accuring or chargeable in any case after the limit of time herein fixed, shall be paid by the proper district, county, city, township, borough, ward, school district, or municipality, nor shall they be under any liability for the payment of the same. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 103.)

COMPENSATION OF WITNESSES AND OFFICERS.

373. Witnesses and officers shall be paid the same fees as are now or hereafter shall be fixed by law for similar serivces in the county in which the trial shall be held, but witnesses whose votes are shown to be illegal shall receive no witness fees or mileage. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 118.)

LIABILITY FOR COSTS.

374. In contested elections of president or additional law judges, and of county, borough, township, municipal officers, or school directors, or school controllers, if the contestant or contestants fail to establish his or their right to the office to which he or they claimed to have been elected, the petitioners and each and every of them shall be jointly and severally liable for all the costs, and the same may be collected as debts of like amount are by law collectable, or payment thereof may be enforced by attachment. In case the contestant or contestants establish his or their right to the office in either of the above named cases, the costs shall be paid by the proper district, county, borough, township, municipality or school district. Whenever a petition to contest an election in any of said cases shall be presented to the court, it shall be the duty of said petitioners, within ten days thereafter, to file a bond signed by at least five of the said petitioners in such sum as the said court, or any judge thereof during vacation, shall designate, with sureties to be approved by the said court or judge, conditioned for the payment of all costs which may accrue in said contested election proceeding, in case the said petitioners by decree of said court shall be adjudged liable to pay said costs, and if the said bonds shall not be filed, as herein provided, the said petition to contest the election shall be dismissed. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 118.)

375. In contested elections of electors of President and Vice-President, and State officers whose jurisdiction extends over the State, and Senators and members of the House of Representatives, if the court or judge shall decide that the complaint is without probable cause, the petitioners and every of them shall be jointly and severally liable for all the costs, and the same may be collected as debts of like amount are by law collectible, or payment thereof may be enforced by attachment. In contested elections of electors of President and Vice-President, and State officers whose jurisdiction extends over the State, and Senators and members of the House of Representatives, as aforesaid, in which the court or judge shall not decide that the complaint is without probable cause, the Commonwealth shall be liable for all costs, and the same shall be paid by the State Treasurer out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, on bills certified to be correct by the proper court or judge, upon examination and approval of the Auditor General. (Act 1899, Sec. 1, P. L. 118.)

APPORTIONMENT OF COSTS.

376. Whenever, in contested elections of president or additional law judges, and of county, borough, township or municipal officers, if any court or judge shall have heretofore decided, or shall hereafter decide, that the complaint was not, or is not, without probable cause, the said court or judge is hereby authorized, and shall apportion all the costs among the proper districts, counties, cities townships, boroughs, wards, school districts or municipalities of the whole district in which contest is had, in such way as said court or judge shall think just; and to compel by order the payment of such amounts so apportioned to each by the properly constituted authorities of each other of the proper districts, counties, cities, townships, boroughs, wards, school districts or municipalities, as the payment of debts by the same can now be enforced. (Act 1876, Sec. 1, P. L. 148.)

STENOGRAPHY AND PRINTING.

377. The proper court or judge shall have power to appoint phonographic reporters, if necessary, to take the testimony, and may order printing of such matters as may be necessary during the trial; and all bills for such reports and printing, certified to be reasonable and correct by the court or judge, shall be a part of the costs, and collectible as other costs in the case: Provided, That all printing required in cases of the second and third classes, shall be done by the State printer, at contract prices; and in all other cases, the prices to be paid for such reporting and printing shall be fixed in the order providing therefor, and no more than the amount thus fixed shall be paid in any case. (Act 1874, Sec. 10, P. L. 211.)

WHEN JUDGE INCOMPETENT. POWER OF COURT.

378. No judge shall sit on the trial of a case in which he shall be a party. In any case where, by reason of incompetency or any disability to act, there shall be no law judge of the district in which any contest shall arise present, and able as well as qualified to act, the judge, learned in the law, residing nearest the court house of the county in which, by the provisions of this act, the trial in any such case is required to be had, except in cases otherwise provided in this act, shall preside on the trial, and shall have and exercise all the powers and authority, and discharge all the duties, granted to or imposed upon the regular judges of the said courts, in cases wherein they are qualified and required to act by the provisions of this law. Any law judge, who is hereby authorized to preside in any such case, and any president or other judge, learned in the law, of the proper court, shall have full power to hold any of the said courts, by this act required to try any such contested election case, without the assistance of the associate justices, or either of them, of such courts, not learned in the law. And all of the said courts and judges, hereby required to try any contested election case, shall have plenary power to make, issue and enforce all necessary orders, rules, process and decrees, for a full and proper understanding and final determination and enforcement of the decision of every such case, according to the course of practice in similar cases, under the laws of this Commonwealth, or which may be necessary and proper to carry out the provisions of this act. (Act 1874, Sec. 17, P. L. 212.)

PROCEDURE.

379. The commencement of proceedings, in every case, shall be by petition, which shall be made and filed, as herein required, within thirty days after the day of election;

the petition shall concisely set forth the cause of complaint, showing wherein it is claimed the election is undue or illegal, and after filing, shall not be amended, unless such amendment shall be allowed by the proper court or judge, after notice to the other party and hearing; and if allowed, reasonable time shall be given to answer. In cases of the second class, the petition shall be signed by at least one hundred qualified electors who voted at the election contested; in cases of the third class, by at least fifty such electors; and in cases of the fourth class, by at least twenty-five; and shall be verified by at least five of the petitioners, by affidavit taken and subscribed before some person authorized by the laws of this Commonwealth to administer oaths, setting forth that they verily believe the facts stated therein are true, that according to the best of their knowledge and belief. the election was undue or illegal, and the return thereof not correct, and that the petition to contest the same is made in good faith. The petition shall be presented to the court or law judge having jurisdiction, except where otherwise provided in this act; and, if it shall be adjudged sufficient it shall be filed of record in the proper court, and thereupon a time shall be fixed for hearing. Notice of the filing of the petition, with a copy thereof, shall be served upon the person whose right of office shall be contested, together with a rule to answer at the time fixed for hearing; which notice, copy and rule shall be served such length of time before the day fixed for hearing, as the said court or judge shall require, not exceeding forty days, in cases of the second and third classes, and in all other cases not exceeding thirty days. (Act 1874, Sec. 18, P. L. 213.)

COMPELLING TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES.

380. In trials of contested elections, and in all proceedings for the investigation of elections, no person shall be permitted to withhold his testimony upon the ground that he may incriminate himself, or subject him to public infamy; but such testimony shall not afterwards be used against him in any judicial proceeding, except for perjury in giving such testimony. (Act 1874, Sec. 19, P. L. 213.)

COMMISSION TO ISSUE PENDING CONTEST.

381. Whenever it shall appear by the returns of election laid before the Governor, by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, as now required by law, that any person has been duly elected to the office of prothonotary, clerk of the courts, recorder of deeds or register of wills, judge, or any other officer receiving a commission from the Governor, in any of the several counties of this Commonwealth, it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue a commission to such person, notwithstanding that the election of such person to any or either of said offices may be contested, in the manner now provided by law: Provided, That whenever it shall appear by the decision of the proper tribunal having jurisdiction of said contested election, that the person to whom said commission shall have issued, has not been legally elected to the office for which he has been commissioned, then a commission shall issue to the person who shall appear legally elected to said office; the issuing of which commission shall nullify and make void the commission already issued, and all power and authority under said commission first issued, shall thereupon cease and determine: Provided further, That this act shall not in any manner affect any contest now pending. (Act 1889, Sec. 1, P. L. 60.)

FILLING VACANCY IN CASE OF INVALID ELECTION.

382. Whenever in any contested election the tribunal trying the case shall decide that the ballots used in one or more election districts were, by reason of the omission, addition, misplacing, misspelling or misstatement of one or more titles of offices, or names of candidates, or parties or policies represented by them, so defective as to the office in contest as to be calculated to mislead the voters in regard to any of the candidates nominated for said office, and that the defective condition of the said ballots may have affected the result of the entire election for said office, the said tribunal shall declare the election to be invalid as regards the said office, and shall report their decision to the proper officer or officers who are now by law authorized to fill vacancies occurring in such office, who, upon receipt of such notice, shall without delay proceed to appoint a suitable person or persons to fill the vacancies thus created, and the person or persons so appointed, shall continue in office until the next election succeeding his appointment at which such office is now by law required to be filled. (Act 1897, Sec. 1, P. L. 23.)

IN PHILADELPHIA COURT MAY APPOINT RECEIVER.

383. Whenever the election of any officer shall hereafter be contested before the court of common pleas of the City and County of Philadelphia, the court shall upon the application of any citizen, appoint a receiver, to take, receive and hold, during said contested election, and until the final determination thereof, all the fees, perquisites and emoluments of the office so contested; and the said court shall require security to be entered by him, in such sums as they shall deem proper, conditioned for the faithful performance of all orders and decrees of said court; and they may, at any time, order additional security to be entered, or remove said receiver, and from time to time appoint another receiver, as may be necessary. (Act 1867, Sec. 1, P. L. 1123.)

RECEIVER'S ACCOUNT.

384. Upon the final determination of said contested election, or sooner, if thereto required by said court, the receiver or receivers so appointed, shall file his or their accounts, and the same may be examined and settled by said court, or be referred to an auditor or master, for that purpose; and the amount ascertained to be in the hands of said receiver or receivers, shall, after deducting such charges as may be allowed by said court, be paid over to the person or persons, and in the proportion said court shall decree: Provided, That any (person) aggrieved by the final decree upon said receiver's account may appeal therefrom, as in other equity proceedings. (Act 1867, Sec. 2, P. L. 1123.)

INVESTMENTS.

385. The court shall, for the purpose of carrying this act into execution, have all the power of a court of equity, in cases where receivers are appointed by said courts, and may, in their discretion, order investments to be made of any funds in the hands of said receiver or receivers in the debt of the United States, of this State, or of the City of Philadelphia. (Act 1867, Sec. 3, P. L. 1123.)

COURT MAY ISSUE COMMISSION AND APPOINT EXAMINERS.

386. The said court of common pleas for the City and County of Philadelphia shall have power, whenever necessary for the determination of the same, to issue commissions to places outside of the State, and to appoint an examiner or examiners to take testimony within the State, and to make all needful rules relative to the examination of witnesses, the closing of the testimony and other matters, as in equity proceedings; and the examiner and examiners, so appointed, shall have power to issue subpoenas, and to compel the attendance of witnesses by attachments, and upon failure of any witness to testify as required by said examiner or examiners, the court may attach for contempt, as in other cases. (Act 1867, Sec. 4, P. L. 1123.)

COSTS.

387. The said court of common pleas of the City and County of Philadelphia may, upon final decree, enter a judgment for costs, either in whole or part, against the county, the petitioners or the respondent; or they may apportion the said costs, in equal or unequal parts, between the county, the petitioners and the respondent, as to them may seem just. (Act 1867, Sec. 5, P. L. 1123.)

ENFORCEMENT OF DECREE.

388. The final decrees of the said court, upon contested elections, may be enforced by injunction, attachment and sequestration; and their judgments as to costs may be enforced, if against the county, by mandamus execution, and if against parties, by execution and attachment. (Act 1867, Sec. 6, P. L. 1123.)

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly:

Having had the honor to be appointed a member of the Commission to Codify and Revise the Election Laws of Pennsylvania, by the Governor of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of a joint resolution approved the thirteenth day of May A. D. 1909, I herewith present the following report, dissenting herein from some of the views expressed in the one presented by my colleagues.

Attached to this report are three bills, which I present, trusting for the favorable action thereon of your honorable bodies, providing for:

1. Commission Form of Government for cities, boroughs and towns, including Initiative, Referendum and Recall.

2. The abolition of State conventions by the extension of the method of nomination by the direct vote of the people so as to include the offices of Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, State Treasurer, Auditor General and Secretary of Internal Affairs.

(a). A direct vote by the elector for his preference of the candidates for the office of United States Senator, is also provided by this bill.

(b). A requirement that candidates for the office of State Senator, or member of the State House of Representatives, shall sign an anti-election statement that he will, or will not, if elected, vote for that candidate for United States Senator who receives the highest number of votes, is also provided by this bill.

3. Presidential Preference Primary, which provides for the direct expression of the choice of the people for a candidate for the office of President of the United States.

EXTENSION OF DIRECT PRIMARY SYSTEM.

Nation-wide changes in the election laws of the various Commonwealths have been made in recent years. But in no time have the revisions been so numerous and so marked as during the past two years, when nearly one-half of the States have radically altered their election laws. The new acts in every instance, including other improvements, were evidently drawn for the main purpose of placing the function of naming candidates for elective public place in the hands of the people by means of the direct primary system.

Many have been led to suppose by its opponents that the direct primary system is a fad, an experiment. As a matter of fact the method is as old as the history of our government, and the "town-hall meetings" as conducted by our grandsires was the first expression of the direct primary.

Thirty-four States now nominate by means of the direct primary. Twenty-eight of these States have extended the system to nomination of candidates for United States Senator and twelve have included Presidential preference primaries. New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Illinois, Ohio, Nebraska, Oregon, Colorado, New Mexico, South Dakota, Wyoming, Kansas, Washington, Wisconsin and California are among the States that have made changes in their election laws within the past two years.

The rapid spread of the direct primary system, its great favor with the people, I submit, is a verdict in confirming my felief that the direct primary should not only be extended to all of the elective offices in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, but to the naming of the United States Senators, and as a means of giving the people of the Commonwealth an opportunity for the individual expression of their preference for a candidate for President, hence the bill that I have prepared and made a part of this report.

GOVERNMENT OF CITIES BY A COMMISSION.

Recognizing a widespread desire on the part of a number of cities in this Commonwealth to adopt commission government, after studying the various laws of other States on the subject, I instructed the Secretary of the Commission, William H. Hay, to draft a bill on the lines of the New Jersey Act. This bill, through its provisions, permits cities to adopt commission government by the vote of the people.

The success of commission government in the rebuilding of Galveston, Texas, attracted the attention of the country to the possibilities of the system of governing cities by a commission. Des Moines, Iowa, was one of the first to apply it to the admiistration of its civic affairs. Boston, Massachusetts, soon followed, and it is now in force in over two hundred cities in the country.

In regard to the question of the Initiative, Referendum and Recall, these institutions are provided for in the accompanying bill for commission form of government for cities. Provision has been made therein that every city having a population of one million or above shall be governed by a board of seven commissioners; over one hundred thousand, by five, and under one hundred thousand, by three Commissioners. After their election the members elect one of their number "Mayor." The Board of Commissioners shall have and possess all administrative, judicial and legislative powers and duties now exercised by the mayor, the directors and the City Council. The duties, according to the number of Commissioners, are divided into departments, as follows:

In cities governed by a Board of Seven Comissioners:

1. Department of Public Affairs.
2. Department of Revenue and Finance.
3. Department of Public Safety.
4. Department of Public Works and Highways.
5. Department of Parks and Public Property.
6. Department of Health, Sanitation and Charities.
7. Department of Supplies.

In cities governed by a Board of Five Commissioners:

1. Department of Public Affairs.
2. Department of Revenue, Finance and Supplies.
3. Department of Public Safety and Public Property.
4. Department of Public Works and Highways.
5. Department of Health, Sanitation and Charities.

In cities governed by a Board of Three Commissioners:

1. Department of Public Affairs, Public Safety, Public Health and Sanitation.
2. Department of Revenue, Finance and Supplies.
3. Department of Public Works, Highways and Public Property.

Believing, as I do, in the short ballot and in the concentration of responsibility in the government of municipalities, I am constrained to strongly urge the passage of an act which will enable its adoption by cities in this Commonwealth which desire government by commission.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

I cannot concur in the action of my colleagues in returning with a negative recommendation a bill to amend the Constitution to provide for equal suffrage. This bill was referred to the Commission by the State Senate Committee on Judiciary General.

Twenty-eight States have legislated the right to vote to woman, nine of the States having equal suffrage. There is sufficient demand for this legislation as to justify a doubt as to the desires of the people of this Commonwealth. The question of equal suffrage is one of such importance that I feel we have no right to deny the people the privilege of voting upon it.

States having equal suffrage, including the date of such legislation, are: Wyoming, 1869; Colorado, 1893; Idaho, 1896; Utah, 1896; California, 1911; Arizona, 1912; Kansas, 1912; Oregon 1912, and Washington, 1910.

I therefore recommend the passage of a Constitutional Amendment permitting the people of Pennsylvania to vote upon this measure. In making this recommendation, I wish to emphasize the fact that it is not to be taken as an expression of my personal views upon Woman Suffrage. I am prompted to assume this position by a sense of fair play, and a desire to see this question settled by the people.

SHORT BALLOT.

In many instances the ballot can be shortened only by means of Constitutional Amendment, but the demand is so widespread that it seems proper to call attention to some of the things that could be thus accomplished.

State officers, such as State Treasurer, Auditor General and Secretary of Internal Affairs, are business officers, requiring chiefly business experience coupled with honesty. Popular interest in these offices is at a minimum. Nor are the people of the entire State in a position to judge of the business qualifications of the candidates by their appearance on the stump. How can a voter in an eastern county be expected to pass upon the qualifications of a candidate for State Treasurer from Pittsburgh, for example. Political considerations enter too much into the selection of men to fill State offices of a business character—often to the detriment of the people.

The Constitution should be so altered as to provide for the appointment by the Governor of the Auditor General, State Treasurer, and Secretary of Internal Affairs. With this added power in the hands of the Governor, the people would be even more careful in selecting the best candidate for this position. I am convinced that the more important the office of Governor is made, and the greater the power bestowed, the more care will be exercised in filling this office. And in the event of poor appointments, the people may know just where to place the responsibility.

If the power to appoint State officers was vested in the Governor, a safeguard could be provided, if desired, through a provision for their recall by the Legislature at its biennial session, or by popular vote. If by the latter, I would favor the system of Party Recall. For my part, I do not believe in recall except as applied to Commission Form of Government for cities, where it is a necessary safeguard.

ASSISTANCE OF VOTERS.

Under the General Election Laws of this State, "if any voter declares to the judge of election that by reason of any disability he desires assistance in the preparation of his ballot, he shall be permitted by the judge of election to select a qualified voter of the election district to aid him in the preparation of his ballot, such preparation being made in the voting compartment." Under the laws of this State regulating Uniform Primaries * * * no elector shall be permitted to receive any assistance in marking his ballot, unless he shall first make an affidavit that he cannot read the names on the ballot, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot." Gross abuses have grown up under the provisions of the former law, and I am heartily in favor of regulating the assistance of voters at General Eelections in a manner now applying at Uniform Primaries. It has been urged that it would be too difficult to enforce such limitations in assistance at General Elections but if separate ballot systems, which the Commission has recommended shall be adopted, there can be no good reason why voters should not be thus limited in their assistance to cast their ballots. During the session of the Legislature of 1907, I spoke in favor of a bill, then proposed, applying these provisions to the General Election, and in accordance with my position then taken, I urgently recommend the enactment into a law of this additional safeguard to honest elections.

Since then I have joined by collegues on the Commission in recommending the enactment of a similar provision contained in the report of the Commission to the Legislature of 1911, and I earnestly concur in the same recommendation which is repeated in the majority report.

LIMITATION OF CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES.

I have not prepared a bill covering this subject, but I desire to bring this matter to the attention of the Legislature in the hope that some law will be enacted which will limit the amount of money a candidate for public office may lawfully expend. Public office is not a chattel, to be purchased by the highest bidder. It is a public trust. Too often have men attained office, not by reason of their ability, but only because of the lavish expenditure of money. And while the Corrupt Practice Act defines the purposes for which money may be spent, it places no limit upon the amount. The amount to which a candidate should be limited should be based upon a consideration of the salary, and the size of the constituency. The recent act of Congress, limiting the amount which candidates for the United States Senate and the House of Representatives may lawfully expend, is a step in the right direction, which should enable the candidate of moderate means to compete with his more wealthy rival. It now remains for the State to continue the good work by placing proper restrictions upon the expenditures of candidates for State, county and municipal offices.

CONDENSED MEMORANDUM OF THE ELECTION LAWS OF THE VARIOUS STATES.

There will accompany the majority report, as a part of the same, a comprehensive digest of the election laws of the various States. I commend this digest to the members of your honorable bodies as a ready means of obtaining valuable information in re the election laws of our sister States. The data for this digest was collected and arranged by Mr. William H. Hay, the Secretary of the Commission.

A recapitulation of this digest shows the following interesting facts:

I concurred in and voted in favor of the bills which will be submitted with the report of my colleagues providing for a State-wide party enrollment; a system of selling poll taxes at the polls on registration days; the separate ballot system; designating a single court for filing applications for pre-empting party names and increasing the number of signers to the petition for the same; and providing for the payment of mileage to the inspector in country districts for returning ballot-boxes after the election.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM COLEMAN FREEMAN.

UNIFORM PRIMARIES.

AN ACT

To amend an amendment approved April sixth, nineteen hundred and eleven, of an act "Providing a unform method of electing certain party officers, and delegates to the State and National conventions, and of making nomination to certain public offices; providing for the payment of the expenses of the same; making certain violations thereof misdemeanors, and prescribing penalties for the violations of its provisions," approved the seventeenth day of February, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six, by providing that all candidates for elective public offices now nominated by delegates to State conventions shall be nominated by direct vote or as otherwise specified; providing that the names of candidates for the office of United States Senator shall be placed on the official primary election ballots of their respective parties; providing that candidates for the Legislature shall make and sign statements regarding vote on United States Senator; providing for the number of signers to the nominating petition for candidates for the office of Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, State Treasurer, Auditor General, and Secretary of Internal Affairs; providing that the signed consent of the candidates shall accompany every petition to place his name upon the primary ballot; providing that no candidate's name shall be printed upon the ballot of more than one party, except with the consent of every such party, and providing for the withdrawal of candidates.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That section two of an act, entitled "An Act providing a uniform method of electing certain party officers and delegates to the State and National conventions, and of making nominations for certain public offices; providing for the payment of the expenses of the same; making certain violations thereof misdemeanors, and prescribing penalties for the violations of its provisions," approved February seventeenth, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and six, which reads as follows, to wit:

Section 2. From and after the approval of this act one primary shall be held each year, in every election district of this Commonwealth in which nominations are to be made or delegates or party officers elected as herein provided. The said primaries shall be held on the last Saturday of September in all odd-numbered years, and on the second Saturday of April in all even-numbered years. The primary held on the last Saturday of September shall be known as the Fall primary, and the primary held on the second Saturday of April shall be known as the Spring primary.

Delegates to State and National conventions, except delegates-at-large to National conventions, which shall be elected by the State convention, shall be elected at the Spring primary, throughout the Commonwealth, by any party or body of electors one of whose candidates, at either the general or municipal election preceding polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the State for any candidate at the last general election. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the general election with the exception of those nominated by National or State conventions, shall be nominated at the Spring primary. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the municipal election shall be nominated at the Fall primary; and such party officers as are provided for by the rules of the several political parties, to be elected by vote of the party electors, shall be elected at the Spring primary, by any political party or body of electors one of whose candidates, at either the general or municipal election preceding such primary, polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the political district, in which nominations are to be made or candidates elected, for any candidate at the last general election.

No delegates to State or National conventions, or officers of parties, shall be elected, or candidates for the public offices herein specified, be nominated, in any other manner than as set forth in this act; Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent the nomination of candidates for borough or township offices, or other offices not herein specifically enumerated, in the manner provided by existing laws; or any association of electors, not constituting a party, from nominating candidates by nomination papers, as is provided by existing laws.

This act shall not apply to the nomination of candidates for Presidential electors, or to the nomination of candidates to be voted for at special elections to fill the vacancies; but it shall not be construed to prevent the nomination of Presidential electors at primaries, if the rules of the respective parties so provide," be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 2. From and after the approval of this act one primary shall be held each year, in every election district of this Commonwealth in which nominations are to be made or delegates or party officers elected as herein provided. The said primaries shall be held on the last Saturday of September in all odd-numbered years, and on the second Saturday of April in all even-numbered years. The primary held on the last Saturday of September shall be known as the Fall primary, and the primary held on the second Saturday in April shall be known as the Spring primary.

Delegates to National conventions, shall be elected at the Spring primary, throughout the Commonwealth, by any party or body of electors, one of whose candidates at either the general or municipal election preceding polled two per centum of the largest entire vote cast in the State for any candidates at the last general election. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the general election, with the exception of those nominated by National conventions, shall be nominated at the Spring primary. Candidates for all offices to be filled at the municipal election shall be nominated at the Fall primary; and such party officers as are provided for by the rules of the several political parties, to be elected by vote of the party electors, shall be elected at the Spring primary, by any political party or body of electors one of whose candidates at either the general or municipal election preceding such primary, polled two per centum on the largest entire vote cast in the political district, in which nominations are to be made or candidates elected, for any candidates at the last general election.

No delegates to National conventions, or officers of parties, shall be elected, or candidates for the public offices herein specified be nominated, in any other manner than as set forth in this act: Provided, That party candidates for the office of United States Senator shall have their names placed in the official primary election ballots of their respective parties, in the manner provided in this act for State officers; and also provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent the nomination of candidates for borough or township offices, or other offices not herein specifically enumerated, in the manner provided by existing laws; or any association of electors, not constituting a party, from nominating candidates by nomination papers, as is provided by existing laws.

This act shall not apply to the nomination of candidates for Presidential electors, or to the nomination of candidates to be voted for at special elections to fill the vacancies, but it shall not be construed to prevent the nomination of Presidential electors at primaries, if the rules of the respective parties so provide.

Section 2. That section three of said act, which reads as follows:

"Section 3. On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the primary, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send to the county commissioners in each county a written notice, setting forth the number of Congressmen and officers of the Commonwealth not nominated by State conventions, to be elected or voted for therein at the next succeeding election.

On or before the same date, in even numbered years, the chairman of the State Committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners a written notice, settin forth the number of delegates to be elected in such county to the State and National conventions of such party.

On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Spring primary the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice, setting forth the names of all party officers to be filled by election at the enusing primary.

On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Fall primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party, shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice, setting forth the names of all county and city offices to be filled by the election at the ensuing primary.

Upon receipt of such notices, and beginning within one week thereafter, such county commissioners shall publish the number of delegates to be elected to the State and National conventions of each party, together with the names of all offices for which nominations are to be made or candidates for the party offices to be elected, within the county, at the ensuing primary, at least one week for three successive weeks, in two newspapers of general circulation published within the county, wherever such course is possible. Such newspapers, so far as practicable, shall be representative of different political parties," be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 3. On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the primary, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send to the county commissioners in each county, a written notice, setting forth the number of Congressmen and officers of the Commonwealth to be elected or voted for therein at the next succeeding election; this notice in a year preceding the election of a United States Senator in Congress shall include that office.

On or before the same date, in even numbered years, the chairman of the State Committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners a written notice, setting forth the number of delegates to be elected in such county to the National conventions of such party.

On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Spring primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice setting forth the name of all party offices to be filled by election at the ensuing primary.

On or before the ninth Saturday preceding the Fall primary, the chairman of the county committee of each party shall send to the county commissioners of such county a written notice, setting forth the names of all county and city offices to be filled by the election of the ensuing primary.

Upon receipt of such notices, and beginning within one week thereafter, such county commissioners shall publish the number of delegates to be elected to the National conventions of each party together with the names of all offices for which nominations are to be made or candidates for the party offices to be elected, within the county, at the ensuing primary at least once each week for three successive weeks in two newspapers of general circulation published within the county, wherever such course is possible. Such newspapers, so far as practicable, shall be representative of different political parties.

Section 3. That section five of said act which reads as follows:

Section 5. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party, upon the filing of petitions, signed by qualified electors of the political district division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated.

The said petition, in the case of candidates for Congress or for State offices, shall be filed at least four weeks prior to the primary, with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and in all other cases shall be filed, at least three weeks prior to the primary, with the county commissioners of the respective counties.

The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for members of Congress, Judges of the various courts, and State Senator, two hundred qualified electors.

2. Candidates for nomination for members of the State House of Representatives, and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

3. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to State and National conventions, and for party offices, ten qualified electors," be amended to read as follows:

"Section 5. The names of candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party upon the filing of petitions signed by qualified electors of the political district or division within which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated and accompanied by the signed consent of the candidate, duly acknowledged in the manner provided for the acknowledgement of deeds: Provided, That after a petition has been filed to place the name of a candidate upon the ballot of any party, no petition shall be filed to place his name upon the ballot of any other party unless he shall first withdraw as a candidate of such party, or unless such petition shall be accompanied by the written consent of every party whose nomination he seeks, signified by the certificate of the chairman of the respective party committees for the political district for which said nomination is to be made, that such committee consents thereto.

The said petition in the case of candidates for United States Senate, Congress, or for State offices, shall be filed at least four weeks prior to the primary with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and in all other cases shall be filed at least three weeks prior to the primary with the county commissioners of the respective counties.

The number of signers shall be as follows:

1. Candidates for nomination for Governor and United States Senator, 100 qualified electors in each county in the Commonwealth.

2. Candidates for nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of the Commonwealth, State Treasurer, Auditor-General and Secretary of Internal Affairs, fifty qualified electors in each county of the Commonwealth.

3. Candidates for nomination for members of Congress, Judges of the various courts and State Senators, two hundred qualified electors.

4. Candidates for nomination for members of the State House of Representatives and for offices to be voted for by the entire county, fifty qualified electors.

5. Candidates for nomination for all other offices, for delegates to conventions and for party offices, ten qualified electors.

Candidates for the office of State Senator, or member of the State House of Representatives, or for election to either of such offices at any primary election next preceding the election of a United States Senator in Congress, shall include with his affidavit, one of the two statements hereinafter set forth in this section and subdivision, and his failure to include either of such statements shall be a valid ground on the part of the Secretary of State for refusal to receive and file his nomination paper or papers. Such statements shall be in substantially the following form:

Statement No. 1.

I further declare to the people of Pennsylvania and to the people of the .....(senatorial or assembly) district that during my term of office, without regard to any individual preference, I will always vote for that candidate for United States Senator in Congress, who shall have received for that office the highest number of votes cast for that position at the general election next preceding the election of a Senator in Congress.

.....

Statement No. 2.

I further declare to the people of Pennsylvania and to the people of the .....(senatorial or assembly) district, that during my term of office, I shall consider the vote of the people for United States Senator in Congress as nothing more than a recommendation, which I shall be at liberty wholly to disregard, if the reasons for so doing seem to me sufficient.

.....

On the ballot used at the primary election, after or under the name of each candidate for State Senator, or Assemblyman shall appear the words, "Signed statement No. 1" or "Signed statement No. 2" according as the candidate included with his affidavit "Statement No. 1" or "Statement No. 2." And the wording of both "Statement No. 1" and "Statement No. 2" shall appear at length on the face of the ballot in a convenient and conspicuous place.

Any person for whom a petition has been filed as aforesaid may, at any time up to ten days before the primary, withdraw his name with the same effect as if such petition had never been filed, by filing in the office in which such petition was filed his written withdrawal, duly acknowledged in the manner provided for the acknowledgement of deeds.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FOR CITIES, ETC.

AN ACT

Relating to, regulating and providing for the government of cities, towns, boroughs and other municipalities within this State.

Be it enacted, etc.

1. All cities, towns, boroughs and other municipalities of this State that hereinafter adopt the provisions of this act shall be governed as herein set forth, and wherever the word "city" or "cities" appears in this act, it shall be construed to mean "town" or "towns," "borough" or "boroughs," or other "municipality" or "municipalities."

2. At the first election held in such city next after the adoption of the provisions of this act as herein provided, there shall be elected in such cities, by the duly authorized voters therein, the number of persons as hereinafter provided to be commissioners of such city, each of whom shall have been a citizen and resident of such city for at least two years immediately preceding his election as such commissioner, who shall serve as such commissioner until the third Tuesday in May in the fourth year following such election and until their successors are elected and shall have duly qualified and every fourth year thereafter, at the regular municipal election in such city, there shall be elected the number of persons as hereinafter provided as commissioners with like qualifications to serve for the term of four years and until their successors have been elected and duly qualified. Should any vacancy occur among such commissioners the remaining commissioners shall, within thirty days thereafter, elect a properly qualified person to fill such vacancy to serve for the unexpired term. The term of office of such commissioners first elected under the provisions of this act shall commence on the first Tuesday following such election, and the term of office of all succeeding commissioners shall commence on the third Tuesday of May next ensuing after their election, at twelve o'clock, noon, and, upon the organizing of the commissioners in any such city, elected under this act, the City Council or other governing body or bodies theretofore acting as governing body or bodies in such city and having any other function shall be ipso facto abolished, and the terms of all councilmen, civil service commissioners, and all other officers, whether elective or appointive, whose offices shall conflict with the provisions of this act, shall immediately cease and determine, providing, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to effect in any way, the term of office of any policeman, fireman, or other employe of any police or fire department, veteran of any war, or other official or employe now protected by any tenure of office act.

Section 3. Every city, having by the last preceding State or National census, one million population or above, shall be governed by a board of commissioners consisting of seven commissioners, and every city having, by the last census, one hundred thousand or over population, shall be governed by a board of commissioners consisting of five commissioners, and every city, borough or town, having, by the last preceding census, under one hundred thousand population, shall be governed by a board of commissioners consisting of three commissioners chosen as provided by this act, each of whom shall have the right to vote on all questions coming before the board of commissioners; provided, however, that the number of the commissioners in any city may be increased from three to five or decreased from five to three by an ordinance adopted by the board of commissioners in accordance with all the provisions of this act. A majority of the members of the board of commissioners shall constitute a quorum and the affirmative vote of a majority of all the members shall be necessary to adopt any motion, resolution or ordinance, or pass any measure unless otherwise provided for in this act. Every resolution or ordinance shall be reduced to writing and read before the vote is taken thereon, and the vote upon every such motion, resolution or ordinance shall be by yeas and nays, and shall be recorded. At the first meeting, after their election, the said commissioners shall choose one of their number to preside at all meetings of the board of commissioners, and he shall be designated "Mayor," but he shall have no power to veto any measure. Every resolution or ordinance passed by the board of commissioners must be in writing and signed by a majority of all the commissioners.

Section 4. The board of commissioners shall have and possess all administrative, judicial and legislative powers and duties now had and possessed and exercised by the Mayor and City Council and all other executive or legislative bodies in said city, and have complete control over the affairs of the city adopting the provisions of this act. The executive, administrative and legislative powers, authority and duties in such city shall be distributed according to census requirements enumerated in Section 3 of this act as follows: The executive, administrative and legislative powers, authority and duties in such city allotted seven commissioners into seven departments; in cities allotted five commissioners, into five departments ,and in cities allotted three commissioners, three departments, in order as follows:

1. Department of Public Affairs.
2. Department of Revenue and Finance.
3. Department of Public Safety.
4. Department of Public Works and Highways.
5. Department of Parks and Public Property.
6. Department of Health, Sanitation and Charities.
7. Department of Supplies.

In cities governed by a board of five commissioners:

1. Department of Public Affairs.
2. Department of Revenue, Finance and Supplies.
3. Department of Public Safety and Public Property.
4. Department of Public Works and Highways.
5. Department of Health, Sanitation and Charities.

In cities governed by a board of three commissioners:

1. Department of Public Affairs, Public Safety, Public Health and Sanitation.
2. Department of Revenue, Finance and Supplies.
3. Department of Public Works, Highways and Public Property.

Section 5. The board of commissioners shall determine the powers and duties to be performed by each department and assign such powers and duties to the appropriate departments, and they shall prescribe the powers and duties of all officers and employes and they may assign particular officers and employes to one or more departments and may require any officer or employe to perform duties in two or more departments and make such other rules and regulations as may be necessary or proper for the efficient and economical conduct of the business of the city.

The Mayor shall be the director of the Department of Public Affairs, and the board of commissioners shall, at the first regular meeting, after the election of its members designate by majority vote one commissioner to be director of the Department of Revenue and Finance, one to be director of the Department of Public Safety, one to be director of the Department of Public Works and Highways, one to be director of the Department of Parks and Public Property, one to be director of the Department of Health, Sanitation and Charities, one to be director of the Department of Supplies, except that upon the organization of a board of five or three commissioners, but five or three departments shall be designated as above provided, and, but five or three directors voted for, and such designation may be changed whenever it appears that the public service would be benefited thereby.

The board of commissioners shall, at the first meeting, or as soon as may be after organization, create such subordinate boards and appoint such officers as it may deem necessary for the proper and efficient conduct of the affairs of the city. Any board created may be abated, or any officer or employe appointed by the board of commissioners may be removed from office at any time for cause, after public hearing, and such board of commissioners shall be the sole judge of the sufficiency of the cause of such removal.

The Mayor and board of commissioners shall have suitable offices and their total compensation shall be as follows: In such cities having by the last preceding State or national census, more than one million population, the Mayor's salary shall be not more than fifteen thousand dollars, annually, and that of each commissioner shall be not more than twelve thousand dollars annually; in cities having, by the last census, a population of over five hundred thousand, and not exceeding one million, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than twelve thousand dollars, and that of each commissioner shall not be more than ten thousand dollars; in cities having from one hundred thousand to five hundred thousand population, the Mayor's annual salary shall be not more than eight thousand dollars and that of each commissioner shall be not more than six thousand dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having from fifty to one hundred thousand population, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than four thousand dollars and that of each commissioner shall not be more than twenty-five hundred dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having twenty-five to fifty thousand population, the Mayor's annual salary shall not exceed twenty-five hundred dollars, and that of each commissioner shall not be more than two thousand dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having a population from twelve to twenty-five thousand, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than two thousand dollars and that of each commissioner shall not be more than fifteen hundred dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having a population of from five to twelve thousand, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than fifteen hundred dollars and that of each commissioner shall not be more than one thousand dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having a population of from twenty-five to fifty hundred, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than one thousand dollars and that of each commissioner shall not be more than seven hundred and fifty dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having a population of one thousand to two thousand five hundred, the Mayor's annual salary shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty dollars and that of each commissioner shall not exceed more than five hundred dollars; in cities boroughs and towns having a population from five hundred to one thousand, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than five hundred dollars and that of each commissioner shall be not more than two hundred and fifty dollars; in cities, boroughs and towns having a population from one hundred to five hundred, the Mayor's annual salary shall not be more than one hundred dollars and that of each commissioner not more than seventy-five dollars.

The salary and compensation of all other officers and employes of the city shall be fixed by the board of commissioners and shall be payable monthly or at shorter periods, as they shall determine; provided, however, that the compensation of the commissioners shall be fixed by an ordinance adopted by the board of commissioners immediately after the organization of the board, in accordance with all the provisions of this act. The compensation so fixed shall not be increased during the term for which such commissioners are elected.

Section 6. The board of commissioners shall designate the time of holding regular meetings, which shall be at least once a week, and special meetings may be called from time to time by the mayor or by two commissioners. All meetings of the commissioners, whether regular or special, shall be open to the public, and any citizen may have access to the minutes upon application to the city clerk.

The Mayor shall be President of the board and shall preside at its meetings and supervise all departments and report to the board for its action all matters requiring the attention of the board on any department. Director of the Department of Revenue and Finance shall be Vice-President of the board, and, in case of vacancy in the office of Mayor, shall perform the duties of that office.

Section 7. Every ordinance or resolution appropriating money, ordering any street improvement, or sewer, or authorizing the making of any contract or granting any franchises, or the right to occupy or use the streets, highways, bridges or public places of the city for any purpose, shall be complete in the form in which it is finally passed and remain on file with the Mayor, for public inspection at least two weeks before the final passage or adoption thereof. No franchise, or right to occupy or use the streets, highways, bridges or public places in any city shall be granted, renewed or extended except by ordinance; and every ordinance shall be published in said city before being finally passed upon and must receive the approval, by vote, of one or more than a majority of all the members before being finally adopted.

Section 8. No officer or employe elected or appointed in any such city shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract or job for work or materials, or the profits thereof, or services to be furnished or performed for the city, and no such officer or employe shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract or job for work or materials, or the profits thereof, or services to be furnished or performed, for any person, firm or corporation, operating interurban railway, street railway, gas works, water works, electric light or power plant, heating plant, telegraph line, telephone exchange, or other public utility within the territorial limits of said city. No such officers or employes shall accept or receive, directly or indirectly, from any person, firm or corporation operating within the territorial limits of said city, any interurban railway, street railway, gas works, electric light or power plant, heating plant, telegraph line, telephone exchange or other business using or operating under a public franchise, any frank, free pass, free tickets, or free service, or accept or receive, directly or indirectly, from any such person, firm or corporation, any other service upon terms more favorable than is granted to the public generally. And for the violation of these provisions the offender shall be punished as now provided, or may be provided hereafter by law or ordinance.

Such prohibition of free transportation shall not apply to policemen or firemen in uniform, nor shall any free service to city officials heretofore provided by any franchise or ordinance be affected by this section.

Section 9. All cities adopting the provisions of this act shall be and are hereby vested with the general powers and authority to enact and enforce by imposition of reasonable fines or by imprisonment or both, all ordinances necessary for the protection of life, health and property; to declare and prevent and summarily to abate nuisances to preserve and enforce the good government and general welfare, order and security of such city, and shall have all powers necessary for its government not in conflict with the laws applicable to all cities of this State or the provisions of the Constitution.

All ordinances or resolutions heretofore passed in any such cities, not inconsistent with the rights and powers herein granted, shall remain in full force and effect until altered or repealed by the commissioners in the manner herein provided.

Section 10. All officers and employes in any such city shall be elected or appointed with reference to their qualifications and fitness, and for the good of the public service, and without reference to their political faith or party affiliations. It shall be unlawful for any candidate for office, or any officer in any such city, directly or indirectly, to give or promise any person or persons any offices, position, employment, benefit or anything of value for the purpose of influencing or obtaining the political support, aid or vote of any person or persons under the penalty of being disqualified to hold the office to which he may have been elected or appointed.

Every elective officer, in any such city, shall, within ten days after qualifying, file with the county councilman, and publish at least once in a newspaper printed and published in such city, and if no newspaper is printed or published in such city, then in a newspaper of general circulation in such city, his sworn statement of all his election and campaign expenses, and by whom such funds were contributed. Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor and a ground for removal from office.

Section 11. The board of commissioners shall, each month, publish in at least one newspaper in such city, or print in pamphlet form, a detailed itemized statement of all the receipts and expenses of the city and a summary of its proceedings during the preceding month, and shall file and furnish printed copies thereof to all persons who shall apply therefor at the office of the Mayor. At the end of each year the board of commissioners shall cause a full and complete examination of all the books and accounts of the city to be made by competent accountants, and shall publish the result of this examination in the manner above provided for the publication of monthly expenditures.

Section 12. If, at the beginning of the term of office of the first board of commissioners elected in such city under the provisions of this act, the appropriations for the expenditures of the city government for the then current fiscal year have been made, the said board of commissioners shall have power, by ordinance, to revise, repeal or change such appropriations, and to make additional appropriations.

Section 13. The system of public instruction in any city adopting the provisions of this act shall in no way be affected by this act.

Section 14. In every such city there shall be held a primary election for nomination for commissioners to be elected under the provisions of this act, and the first primary election for such nominations shall be held on the fourth Saturday following the election at which the voters shall have voted to adopt the provisions of this act, and thereafter the primary election for such nomination shall be held on the second Saturday in April in the fourth succeeding year and on the second Saturday in April in the fourth year thereafter.

The election officers conducting the last general annual election shall be the officers of the primary election as well as the officers of the general municipal election, and the primary and municipal elections shall be held at the same places and conducted in the same manner, so far as possible, and the polls shall be opened and closed at the same hours as provided by the general primary and election laws.

The names of candidates for commissioners shall, at least ten days prior to the primary election, be filed with the county commissioners in the manner and form and under the conditions hereafter set forth and the petition of nominations shall consist of individual certificates equal in number to at least one-half of one per centum of the entire vote at the last preceding general election, but in no event less than twenty-five, and said petition shall read substantially as follows:

I, the undersigned, a qualified elector of the city of ....., residing at ....., certify that I do hereby join in a petition for the nomination of ...., whose residence is at ..... for the office of commissioner, to be voted for at the primary election to be held in such city on the ....., 19.., and I further certify that I know this candidate to be a qualified elector of said city and a man of good moral character, and qualified, in my judgment, for the duties of such office, and I further certify that I have not signed more petitions or certificates of nominations than there are places to be filled in the above office.

(Signed) .....

Being duly sworn, deposes and says, that he is the person that signed the foregoing certificate; that the statements contained therein are true and correct.

(Signed) .....

Subscribed and sworn to before me .....

It shall be the duty of the county commissioners to furnish, upon application, a reasonable number of forms of individual certificates of the above character.

Each certificate must be a separate paper and must contain the name of but one signer thereto, and no more, and shall contain the name of but one candidate, and no more. Each signer must not, at the time of signing the certificate, have signed more certificates for candidates for that office than there are places to be filled in such office, and in case an elector has signed two or more conflicting certificates, all such certificates shall be rejected.

When such a petition of nomination is presented for file to the county commissioners, they shall forthwith examine the same and ascertain whether it conforms to the provisions of this section, and if not found in conformity thereto, they shall designate the defect and return the petition to the person signing it, which may again be presented when properly amended.

Immediately upon the expiration of the time of filing certificates, statements and petitions for candidates, the county commissioners shall cause to be published for three successive days in all the daily newspapers published in such city, in proper form, the names of the persons as they are to appear upon the primary ballots, and if there be no daily newspapers, then in two issues of any other newspapers that may be published in said city; and the county commissioners shall thereupon cause the primary ballots to be printed, authenticated with a facsimile of their signature. Upon the said ballot, arranged in alphabetical order, shall appear the names of the candidates for commissioners with a square at the left of each name, and below the names of such candidates in cities of one million population or over shall appear the words "Vote for seven," and in cities of less than one million population shall appear the words "Vote for five," and in cities of less than one hundred thousand population, shall appear the words "Vote for three." The ballots shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper, and shall be headed:

Candidate for Nomination for Commissioners of City at the primary election, but shall have no party designation indicative of the source of the candidacy or of the support of any candidate or mark whatever. Place a cross in the square preceding the names of the persons you favor as candidates for the respective positions.

Having caused said ballot to be printed, the county commissioners shall cause to be delivered at each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general election. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general municipal election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election, and challenges can be made by not more than two persons, to be appointed at the time of opening the polls by the judges of election; and the law applicable to challenges made at a general or municipal election shall be applicable to challenges at such primary election. Judges of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the county commissioners upon proper blanks, to be furnished by the county commissioners within six hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said primary election the county commissioners shall canvass said returns so received from all the polling precincts, and shall immediately make and file in the office of the county commissioners the result thereof. Said canvass of the county commissioners shall be publicly made.

Section 15. And in every city of one million population or more, seven commissioners, and in cities of less than one million population, five commissioners, and in cities less than one hundred thousand population, three commissioners shall be elected, at an election to be held on the fourth Tuesday following the primary election, following the election at which the voters shall have voted to adopt the provisions of this act, and on the second Tuesday in April in each fourth year thereafter. The number of candidates equal to twice the number of places to be filled, receiving the highest number of votes at the primary election, shall be the candidates, and the only candidates whose names shall be placed upon the ballot at the succeeding municipal election, and the number of candidates equal to twice the number of places to be filled, receiving the highest number of votes for commissioners, or all such candidates, if less than twice the number of places to be filled shall be the candidates, and the only candidates, whose names shall be placed upon the ballot for commissioners at such municipal election, and the ballot at such municipal election shall be in the same general form as for said primary election, so far as possible, and at all elections in such city the election precincts, voting places, method of conducting election, canvassing the votes and announcing the results, shall be the same as herein provided for the selection of candidates at the primary election, and the number of candidates equal to the number of places to be filled receiving the highest number of votes shall be elected as commissioners as herein provided.

RECALL.

Section 16. The holder of any elective office may be removed at any time by the electors qualified to vote for a successor of such incumbent. The procedure to affect the removal of an incumbent of an elective office shall be as follows: A petition signed by the electors entitled to vote for a successor to the incumbent sought to be removed, equal in number to at least twenty-five per cent. of the entire vote at the last preceding general election demanding an election of a successor of the person sought to be removed, shall be filed with the county commissioners which petition shall contain a general statement of the grounds for which the removal is sought.

The signatures to the petition need not all be appended to one paper, but each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number. One of the signers of each such paper shall make an oath before an officer competent to administer oaths that the statement therein made is true as he believes, and that each signature to the paper appended is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be. Within ten days from the date of filing such petition the county commissioners shall examine, ascertain whether or not said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and he shall attach to said petition his certificate, showing the result of said examination. If, by the county commissioner's certificate, the petition is shown to be insufficient, it may be amended within ten days from the date of said certificate.

The county commissioner shall, within ten days after such amendment, make like examination of the amended petition, and if this certificate shall show the same to be insufficient, it shall be returned to the person filing the same, without prejudice to the filing of a new petition to the same effect. If the petition shall be deemed to be sufficient, the county commissioner shall submit the same to the board of commissioners without delay.

If the petition shall be found to be sufficient the board of commissioners shall, if the officer sought to be removed shall not resign within five days after the date on the county commissioner's certificate, order and fix a date for holding the said election, not less than thirty days or more than forty days from the date on the county commissioner's certificate to the board of commissioners that a sufficient petition is filed.

The board of commissioners shall make, or cause to be made, publication of notice and all arrangements for holding such election, and the same shall be conducted, returned and the result thereof declared in all respects as are other city elections. The successor of any officer so removed shall hold office during the unexpired term of his predecessor. Any person sought to be removed may be a candidate to succeed himself, and unless he requests otherwise in writing, the county commissioner shall place his name on the official ballot without nomination. In any such removal election, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. At such election, if some other person than the incumbent receives the highest number of votes, the incumbent shall thereupon be deemed removed from the office upon the qualification of his successor. In case the person who receives the highest number of votes should fail to qualify within ten days after receiving notification of election, the office shall be deemed vacant. If the incumbent receives the highest number of votes, he shall continue in office. The same method of removal shall be cumulative and additional to the methods heretofore provided by law. No person who has been recalled from an elective office, or who has resigned from such office while recall proceedings were pending against him shall be appointed to any office within one year after such recall or resignation.

No recall petition shall be filed against any officer until he has actually held his office for at least twelve months, and but one recall petition shall be filed against the same officer during his term of office.

INITIATIVE.

Section 17. Any proposed ordinance may be submitted to the board of commissioners by petition signed by electors of the city equal in number to the percentage hereinafter required. The signatures, verification, authentication, inspection, certification, amendment and submission of such petition shall be the same as provided for petitions under the last section.

If the petition accompanying the proposed ordinance be signed by electors equal in number to fifteen per centum of the votes cast at the last preceding general election, and contains a request that the said ordinance be submitted to a vote of the people if not passed by the board of commissioners, such board of commissioners shall either:

(a). Pass said ordinance without alteration within twenty days after attachment of the county commissioner's certificate to the accompanying petition, or,

(b). Forthwith, after the county commissioner shall attach to the petition accompanying such ordinance, his certificate of sufficiency, the board of commissioners shall call a special election, unless a general municipal election is fixed within ninety days thereafter, and at such special or general municipal election, if one is so fixed, such ordinance shall be submitted without alteration to the vote of the electors of the city.

But if the petition is signed by not less than ten nor more than fifteen per centum of the electors, as above defined, then the board of commissioners shall, within twenty days, pass said ordinance without change, or submit the same at the next general city election occurring not more than thirty days after the county commissioner's certificate of sufficiency is attached to said petition.

The ballots used when voting upon said ordinance shall contain these words: "For the ordinance" (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance) and "Against the ordinance" (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance). If a majority of the qualified electors voting on the proposed ordinance shall vote in favor thereof, such ordinance shall thereupon become a valid and binding ordinance of the city; and any ordinance proposed by petition, or which shall be adopted by a vote of the people, cannot be repealed or amended except by a vote of the people.

Any number of proposed ordinances may be voted upon at the same election in accordance with the provisions of this section, but there shall not be more than one special election in any period of six months for such purpose.

The board of commissioners may submit a proposition for the repeal of any such ordinance or for amendment therto, to be voted upon at any succeeding general city election, and should such proposition so submitted receive a majority of the votes cast thereon at such election, such ordinances shall thereby be repealed or amended accordingly. Whenever any ordinance or proposition is required by this act to be submitted to the voters of the city at any election, the county commissioner shall cause such ordinance or proposition to be published once in at least one of the newspapers published in said city; such publication to be not more than twenty nor less than five days before the submission of such proposition or ordinance to be voted on.

REFERENDUM.

Section 18. No ordinance passed by the board of commissioners except when otherwise required by the general laws of the State or by the provisions of this act, except an ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by a two-thirds vote of the board of commissioners, shall go into effect before ten days from the time of its final passage; and if during said ten days, a petition signed by electors of the city equal in number to at least fifteen per centum of the entire vote cast at the last preceding general municipal election, protesting against the passage of such ordinance, be presented to the board of commissioners, the same shall thereupon be suspended from going into operation, and it shall be the duty of the board of commissioners to reconsider such ordinance; and if the same is not entirely repealed, the board of commissioners shall submit the ordinance, as is provided by sub-section B of section seventeen of this act, to the vote of the electors of the city, either at the general election or at a special municipal election to be called for that purpose; and such ordinance shall not go into effect or become operative unless a majority of the qualified electors voting on the same shall vote in favor thereof. Said petition shall be in all respects in accordance with the provisions of said section seventeen, except as to the percentage of signers, and be examined and certified to by the county commissioner in all respects as therein provided. Any ordinance or measure that the board of commissioners or the qualified electors of the city shall have authority to enact, the board of commissioners may of its own motion submit to the electors for adoption or rejection at a general or special municipal election, in the same manner and with the same force and effect as is provided in this act for ordinances or measures submitted on petition. At any special election called under the provisions of this act, there shall be no bar to the submission of other questions to a vote of the electors in addition to the ordinances or measures herein provided for, if said other questions are such as may legally be submitted to such election. If the provisions of two or more measures approved at the same election conflict, then the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote shall control.

ADOPTION REQUIREMENTS.

Section 19. This act shall take effect immediately, but its provision shall remain inoperative in any city of this State until assented to by a majority of the legal voters thereof voting at an election to be held in such city, which election shall be called by the county commissioner upon the request or petition in writing of twenty per centum of the legal voters voting at the last general election. Upon such petition or request in writing being filed with the county commissioner, the said county commissioner shall forthwith call an election to be held on the third Tuesday following the date of the filing of such petition with him, and shall cause public notice of the time and place of holding the same to be given by advertisement signed by himself and set up in at least twenty different places in such cities and published in at least one newspaper printed and published in such city, and if no newspaper is printed or published in such city, then in a newspaper circulated therein, for at least six days previous to the time of such election; and said county commissioner shall provide ballots for each voter at such election, to be printed upon plain, substantial white paper, which shall contain thes ewords:

"For the adoption or the rejection of the city of (here name of city) of the provisions of an act of one thousand nine hundred and eleven, entitled, 'An act relating to, regulating and providing for the government of cities, towns, boroughs and other municipalities within this State.'" Upon said ballots shall appear the phrase "For the adoption," and the phrase "Against the adoption," with a square at the left of each phrase, and below shall appear the words "Vote for or against"; "Place a cross in one square."

Such election shall be held at the usual places of holding the annual election in such city. The polls shall remain open during the usual hours, and every such election shall be conducted by the same election officers for the time being in the manner prescribed by law regulating elections, and such officers shall report to the county commission of such city a true and correct statement in writing under their hands of the results of such election, and it shall be the duty of the county commissioner to certify and report the same to the city council, or other legislative body, of such city or municipality, at its first meeting thereafter, and the same shall be entered at large in the minutes of said body. Whereupon, if it is found that the majority of the votes cast are in favor of the adoption of this act, this act shall in all respects become and be operative in such city, and binding upon the inhabitants thereof and upon all persons and property to be affected thereby; provided, however, that the votes cast in favor of the adoption of this act is equal to at least thirty per centum of the votes cast for members of the General Assembly at the last general election immediately preceding the submission of this act as aforesaid; and immediately after the election and organization of the board of commissioners provided herein, it shall abrogate, repeal and annull all acts or parts of acts then existing, whether general or special, in anywise affecting the government of such cities which are contrary to or inconsistent with the provisions of this act.

If a majority of the votes cast are not in favor of the adoption of this act, then the provisions of this act shall remain inoperative and no further proceedings shall be taken until after the beginning of the last year of the term of the Mayor, or equivalent officer, elected at the election following the rejection of this act, after which date, upon the presentation of another petition or request, as provided for herein, the same procedure shall be had and the question of the adoption or rejection of the provisions of this act again submitted in the manner herein set forth, and with the same force and effect.

REVERSION TO THE CHARTER.

Section 20. Any city which shall have operated for more than six years under the provisions of this act, may abandon such organization hereunder and may resume its charter by proceeding as follows:

Upon the petition of not less than twenty-five per centum of the electors of such city, a special election shall be called at which the following proposition shall be submitted: "Shall the city of (name of city) abandon its organization under the provisions of an act of one thousand nine hundred and eleven, entitled, 'An act relating to, regulating and providing for the government of cities within this State,' and resume or adopt a charter under another act?"

If a majority of the votes cast at such special election be in favor of such proposition, the officers elected at the next succeeding regular municipal election shall be those prescribed by the charter, and upon the qualification of such officers such city shall become a city under the charter, but such change shall not in any manner or degree effect the property, right or liability of any nature of such city, but shall merely extend to such change in its form of government.

Section 21. If any proviso, clause or section of this act shall be attacked in any court and shall be declared invalid or unconstitutional, the rest of this act shall stand, and the proviso, clause or section declared invalid or unconstitutional shall be exscinded from this act.

PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCE PRIMARY.

AN ACT

To provide for the expression by the qualified electors of the several political parties of their choice for nomination by their party for President of the United States and to provide for the election of the delegates of said political parties to their respective National conventions, and to call an election in conformity with the provisions of this act.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That on the second Saturday of April, 1916, and of every fourth year thereafter, there shall be held a primary nominating election to be known as the April presidential primary election, at which the qualified electors of the several political parties shall have opportunity, on separate party ballots provided for that purpose, to express their preference as to the nominees of their respective parties for president of the United States, and also to elect the delegates of their respective parties to their respective National conventions for the nomination of their party candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States.

Section 2. The names of the candidates for nomination as President of the United States shall be printed upon the ballots, upon the filing of nomination papers substantially as provided in an act providing a uniform method of electing certain party officers, etc., approved 1906 and hereinafter referred to in this act as the "uniform primary act"; provided that nomination papers for each of the said candidates must be signed by not less than one per centum of the voters of his party in each congressional district of the State; and further provided, that no candidate for nomination for president need sign or file any petition, affidavit, declaration, statement or paper of any kind to get his name upon the ballot but that in the event that any person who is presented as a candidate for nomination for president by filing of nomination papers as herein provided for, shall, on or before the thirty-fifth day before the date of the presidential primary election, announce by an affidavit, declaration, or statement filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth that he is not a candidate for nomination for president, and that he does not wish his name to be printed upon the ballot for said election, the said Secretary of the Commonwealth shall not certify or transmit the name of such candidate to the respective county commissioner, and such name shall not be printed upon the ballots. The names of the several candidates for nomination for president together with the blank space for writing the name of such a candidate, and the headings for the same shall appear at the top and center of the ballot immediately below the instructions to voters, and shall be printed in heavy face eight point, capital type. The order in which the names of the candidates for presidential nominees shall be printed upon the ballot, shall be the order in which the nomination papers of such candidates are filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and such names shall be printed one after the other in a horizontal line, each name being followed by a voting square, the space for the name and voting square together being headed by the words "For Presidential Nominee," printed in heavy face ten point gothic type, and occupying no less than two and a half inches of horizontal space. This space shall be left blank above the "No Preference Column" provided for in section 5 of this act. Below the words "For Presidential Nominee" heading the blank space hereinbefore provided for, shall be the words "Blank Space" in six point gothic type. Above the words and spaces herein described shall be printed in heavy face twelve point gothic type the words "vote for One as Your Choice for Presidential Nominee."

Section 3. The chairman of the State Central Committee of each of the political parties qualified to participate in the election provided for in this act shall notify the Secretary of the Commonwealth on or before the first day of March of each bissextile or leap year as to the number of delegates to represent the State in the next National convention of his said party. If the State chairman, or any of them, fail to file such notice, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to ascertain the said number of delegates from the call for said National convention issued by the National Committee of each party whose chairman has failed to notify him as aforesaid. The delegates who shall represent each political party at its National convention shall all be elected by the voters of the State at large. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall, on or before the tenth day of March of the year of the April presidential primary election, certify to the county commissioner of each county, or city and county, the number of delegates to be so elected by each of the political parties qualified to participate in the said election. Any political party shall be qualified to participate in the April presidential primary election which is qualified to participate in the September primary election according to the provisions of the "direct primary law."

Section 4. The names of persons to be voted upon as delegates to the respective National conventions of the several political parties shall be printed upon the ballots of their respective parties upon the filing of nomination papers substantially in the form provided in uniform primary act; provided, that in the case of each party, nomination papers for candidates for delegates must be signed by not less than one per centum of the voters of said party in each congressional district of the State; and provided, also, that when the number of names of candidates printed upon the same nomination paper exceeds the number of congressional districts in the State, but is less than twice the number of such districts, the names of such candidates, thus grouped together shall be so selected that not more than three and not less than one of such candidates shall reside in any one congressional district, and that when the number of names of candidates printed upon the same nomination paper exceeds twice the number of congressional districts in the State, the names of such candidates thus grouped together shall be so selected that not more than four and not less than two of such candidates shall reside in any one congressional district; and if so selected said names shall not be grouped together on the ballot, but shall appear as individuals.

Candidates for delegate grouped together on the same nomination paper and selected as aforesaid shall be similarly grouped, in the same order of names, upon the ballots of their party; provided, that such group of candidates for delegate has the endorsement of that candidate for presidential nominee for whom the members of said group have filed a preference, or the endorsement of such a State political organization created in support of the candidacy of said presidential nominee as shall not be repudiated by him as lacking authority to make such endorsement; said endorsement, either of the candidate or the organization supporting him, to be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. No candidates for delegates thus endorsed shall have their names printed upon the ballot in a group, but such candidates must appear as individuals; and further provided, that the name of no candidate shall appear more than once on the ballot, and that any candidate whose nomination paper is filed in more than one group, or in the same group differently arranged, shall have his name printed on the ballot as a part of the group which has received the endorsement as herein recited; provided, that one of the groups in which his name occurs has received such endorsement.

Each candidate for election as delegate to his National party convention must file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth not later than the time of filing of nomination papers containing his name, an affidavit substantially as provided in the "uniform primary act," and may also include with his affidavit the statement "I personally prefer ———— as nominee of my party for President of the United States" (filling in the blank by inserting his choice for such nominee). But his failure to include such statement shall not be a valid ground on the part of the Secretary of the Commonwealth for refusal to receive and file the nomination papers containing his name.

Section 5. The names of the candidates for delegate in any political party shall be arranged upon the ballots of such party in parallel columns each column standing directly underneath the space headed by the words, "For Presidential Nominee," and the various candidates for delegate appearing in these columns as determined by their preference for President, according to the provisions of section 4 of this act. The left-hand column shall be headed in heavy face ten point gothic type, "Candidate Preferring ————" (the blank being filled out by the surname of the first candidate for presidential nominee on the ballot, as determined by section 2 of this act). The second column shall be similarly headed, except that the surname of the candidate for presidential nominee shall be for the name second in the list of candidates for presidential nominee, and so on for as many candidates for presidential nominee as are printed at the top of the ballot in the list of such candidates. To the right of the last column headed by the surname of a candidate for presidential nominee shall be a column headed "No Preference Column," in which shall appear the names of all candidates for delegate who have expressed no preference for presidential nominee or who have expressed a preference for a candidate for presidential nominee other than the candidate for presidential nominee printed at the top of the ballot. Above this "No Preference Column," neither the words "For Presidential Nominee" nor the space for the name of such nominee shall appear. To the right of this last column shall be a column headed "Blank Column," which shall contain as many blank spaces as there are delegates to be elected by the political party concerned. In case there are no names of candidates for delegate to be placed in a "No Preference Column," such "No Preference Column" shall be omitted from the ballot, and the "Blank Column" as herein provided for shall be placed to the right of and contiguous to the last column headed by the surname of a candidate for presidential nominee. In the event that two or more candidates for Presidential nominee whose names are printed upon the same ballot have the same surname, the distinguishing names or initials of such candidates shall be prefixed to their respective surnames on said ballot, following the words "Candidates Preferring."

The names of the various candidates for delegates shall be printed in eight point roman capital type, under their resepective preference for presidential nominee or in the no preference column, as heretofore provided in this act. The names of each group on the ballot shall be numbered in heavy face eight point type, the order of names for each column upon the ballot shall be the same as the order in which such names were filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth; provided, that above the individual names in each column shall appear the group of names, if any, which has received the endorsement referred to in section 4 of this act.

A blank column one-half inch wide shall be left upon the ballot opposite each group of names and to the right of the column of voting squares for the individual names and separated from it by a light dotted line, which blank column shall contain a square in which may be stamped a cross (X) which shall be counted as a vote for each and every name in the group opposite. Lengthwise along this blank column shall be printed "A cross (X) stamped in this square shall be counted for each name of the group to the left." The line separating any name from any other name not in a group or from any group of names shall be heavier thany any line separating the individual names in such group, and shall extend across the blank column provided for in this paragraph. Below the top line of this extension shall be printed in small heavy face type the words "top of group" and above the bottom line of the extension, the words "end of group."

Section 6. Each candidate for election as delegate to his National party convention may include with his affidavit the statement hereinafter set forth in this section; but his failure to include such statement shall not be valid ground on the part of the Secretary of the Commonwealth for refusal to receive and file his nomination paper or papers. Such statement, if any be made, shall be substantially the following form:

DELEGATE'S STATEMENT.

I hereby declare to the voters of my political party in the State of Pennsylvania that if elected as delegate to their National party convention, I shall, to the best of my judgment and ability, support that candidate for President of the United States who shall have received the highest number of votes cast throughout the entire State by the voters of my party for said office, at the April presidential primary election.

Signature of candidate for delegate.

Section 7. The delegates to each National party convention elected at the April presidential primary election, shall, before leaving the State to attend the convention, meet together and select alternates to the convention. The number of alternates to be selected shall be no greater than one for each delegate, and each alternate must be selected from the congressional district of the delegate for whom he is an alternate; and the method of selection shall be as determined upon by majority of the whole number of delegates who have been elected to the convention. The duties of an alternate shall be those usually appertaining to that position, and as prescribed by each party in the call for its National convention. The alternate of any such delegate as may be unable to attend the convention, shall attend the convention in its place, and shall otherwise discharge the duties of said delegate.

Section 8. For purposes of the April presidential primary election, the original affidavits of registration used in the last general election in any county or city and county in this State, shall be qualified to vote at such election, and shall receive the ticket of that political party only with which he has declared himself affiliated. Any person qualified by the provisions of this section to vote at any April presidential primary election shall also be qualified to sign the nomination papers of any person to be voted upon at such primary election.

Section 9. The ballot to be used at the April presidential primary election shall be prepared according to the provisions of sections 2, 4 and 5 of this act, and also according to such provisions of the "uniform primary act" as are applicable to this act and not in conflict with its provisions; providing, that the words at the tap of the ballot shall be "Official Presidential Primary Election Ballot," and that the instructions to voters shall be as follows: "To vote for a person whose name appears on the ballot, stamp a cross (X) in the right square of the person for whom you desire to vote; or if you wish to vote for all of a group of persons, stamp a cross (X) in the square opposite such group, which shall be counted for each name of the group. A group consists of candidates for delegate nominated on the same nomination paper. To vote for a person whose name is not printed on the ballot ,write his name in the blank space provided for that purpose." There shall be printed in heavy face, twelve point, gothic type, across the page above the column of candidates for delegates, the words, "For Delegates to National Convention Vote for ————, either as individuals or by group, but do not vote for more than ————" (the blanks being filled in by the number of delegates to be elected by the political party concerned).

Section 10. The provisions of the "Uniform Primary Law" shall govern the April presidential primary election in so far as said provisions are applicable to said election and are not inconsistent with or in conflict with the provisions of this act.

Section 11. This act shall be known as the Presidential Primary Act.

Section 12. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with or in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE THE METHOD OF INFLICTING THE DEATH PENALTY.

Harrisburg, Pa., December 23, 1912.

Dear Sir:—The Commission you appointed in accordance with the Act of Assembly approved the twentieth day of June, A. D. 1911, "to investigate the method of inflicting the death penalty in this and in other States and countries; to investigate the expediency of selecting a site centrally located and of easy access, where all criminals sentenced to death in this Commonwealth may be executed; to select, approximately, such a site, if it shall seem proper to said Commission; to investigate the expediency and propriety of making any change in the present method of inflicting the death penalty in this Commonwealth, and to recommend such new method or methods as to the Commission shall seem proper,"—beg to report that the Commission held meetings in the Cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, after the public had received ample notice of the same, not only through the press, but a number of invitations were mailed to physicians and others, supposedly interested in the question.

After having listened to the arguments and testimony given at the hearings by doctors, surgeons, ministers and laymen, and taking into consideration the wide difference of opinion expressed on the subject, your Committee would, without any desire to prejudice future consideration of the subject, most respectfully report, that everything considered, they would not recommend a change in the present "method of inflicting the death penalty."

Yours very truly,

ROBERT J. McKENTY,
JOHN FRANCIES,
Committee.

To the Honorable John K. Tener, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pa.

Sir:—The Commission appointed by you, in accordance with the provisions of a Concurrrent Resolution approved the 20th day of June, A. D. 1911, "to investigate the method of inflicting the death penalty in this and other States and countries; to investigate the expediency of selecting a site, centrally located and of easy access, where all criminals sentenced to death in this Commonwealth may be executed; to select, approximately, such a site, if it shall seem proper to said Commission; to investigate the expediency and propriety of making any change in the present method of inflicting the death penalty in this Commonwealth, and to recommend such new method or methods as the Commission shall seem proper," beg leave to report as follows:

The Commission held its first meeting in the Daniel Baugh Institute of Anatomy in the City of Philadelphia on April 11, 1912, the following members being present at that time —John Francies, Robert J. McKenty and John F. L. Morris. An organization was effected by the election of John F. L. Morris as chairman and Robert Haight as secretary. Immediately following the organization of the Commission, the first public hearings was held in the Institute Assembly Hall, due notice of this meeting having been announced by the daily newspapers. After the purpose of the meeting was announced by the chairman, the discussion was continued by Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka, Professor of General Anatomy in the Jefferson Medical College. Dr. Spitzka's talk was illustrated by stereoptican views touching on the subject of electrocution. Dr. Spitzka spoke as follows:

"A great variety of methods of inflicting the death penalty has been devised by the inventive mind of man. The earlier forms are chiefly characterized by cruelty, by an intense and passionate desire to wreck vengeance and inflict pain upon the condemned and to instill terror in the minds of the onlookers. I will not review the ancient methods in detail. There is the burning at the stake by the Romans, Jews, Ancient Britons, Chinese, by the Spanish Inquisition; beating with clubs in Greece and many African countries; beheading by axe and block, the sword and guillotine; blowing from a cannon, either by lashing the condemned to the muzzle or by thrusting him into it as a part of the charge; boiling in water, oil, melted sulphur, melted lead; breaking on the wheel, burial alive, in a ditch or in a cell; crucifixion, a lingering method in which death was sometimes hastened by a thrust of the spear or a blow with a club; crucifrangium inflicted on Roman slaves and Christian martyrs by laying the legs of the condemned upon an anvil and fracturing the bones with a heavy hammer; decimation, used upon mutinous regiments by shooting every tenth man; dichotomy, or bisecting the body with a saw; dismemberment, drawing and quartering, drowning; exposure to wild beasts; flaying alive; flogging; knouting, garroting, impalement upon a spear or sharp post; the 'Iron Maiden;' 'peine forte et dure'—the superimposing a heavy weight upon the chest; poisoning; pounding in a mortar; precipitation from a great height; the rack; running the gauntlet; shooting; stabbing, stoning, strangling, suffocating—in short, men have exercised their utmost ingenuity in devising means for inflicting cruel torture and horrible mutilation upon their victims.

"As is well known, more than 200 offenses were punishable with death in England not so very long ago. In modern times the penalty is now universally limited to murder, treason, piracy and military offenses. To the credit of William Penn and his companions it may be recorded that in 1675, when he founded Pennsylvania, the sttutes prescribing death for all sorts of offenses, grave and trivial, were left behind in darkest England with its Newgate and London Tower, and the only one retained was that of death for aggravated cases of murder.

"The death penalty is now inflicted in the following ways in various countries: The guillotine is employed publicly in France, Belgium, Denmark, Hanover and two cantons of Switzerland. The gallows comes next and is favored publicly in Austria, Portugal and Turkey and privately in Great Britain and the United States. Electrocution has been adopted in seven States. Death by the sword obtains in 15 cantons in Switzerland, in China and Russia publicly and in Prussia privately. Ecquador, Oldenburg, and Russia have adopted the musket, all publicly. In china, too, they have strangulation by the cord and in Spain and its colonies the garrots, both public. In Brunswick there is death by the axe.

"Capital punishment is in vogue in Japan, but no one, not even the executioner, witnesses the actual dispatch of the condemned man, who is placed in a kind of box and left to himself as soon as the noose is adjusted. The floor of the box falls when the signal is given and the murderer drops into eternity unseen. One of the many Chinese methods is to imprison the condemned in a vertical cage with his neck in a yoke-like board, while one after another of the floor boards are taken from under the condemned man's feet each day until he hangs by the neck.

"A grewsome form of punishment is still practised in Afghanistan. The criminal is imprisoned in an iron cage suspended from a pole and is allowed to die of thirst and hunger.

"In Italy, Holland, Roumania and Portugal capital punishment has been abolished. The penalty was practically abolished in Belgium because King Leopold would not sign a death warrant in consequence of his mother's wish. It was likewise abolished de facto but not de jure in France, only to be re-established after years of appalling increase in murders.

"To particularize for the United States: Maine, Michigan and Wisconsin have abolished capital punishment. New York, Colorado, Iowa, Rhode Island, Kansas and several other States deemed it wise to re-enact the death penalty after it had once been abolished, owing to the increase of crime. Kansas restored the death penalty after a negro was burned at the stake for an outrage upon a woman. Minnesota restored the death penalty after one murderer sentenced to life imprisonment, had killed four keepers.

"In Louisiana the death penalty is inflicted for assault with intent to kill, arson, burglary and administering poison. In Delaware and North Carolina, arson and burglary are capital crimes.

"In Missouri seven crimes are punishable by death; among them are murder, train robbery, arson, perjury in a capital case and mayhem.

"In Connecticut the law also prescribes the death penalty for placing obstructions upon a railroad track.

"In Nebraska, Missouri, New Hampshire and South Dakota, the jury has the right to determine whether the punishment shall be death or life imprisonment.

"In Rhode Island the penalty for murder was life imprisonment with capital punishment reserved for prisoners who, while serving life sentence, committed another murder. I believe that the death penalty has since been restored in that State.

"In Utah the condemned may choose between shooting and hanging; while in Nevada he may have as alternatives, shooting, hanging or poisoning by hydrocyanic acid. This statute has been strongly criticized as follows (See Journal of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, July, 1911, p. 286).

"If he elects poison, he is supplied with hydrocyanic acid sufficient in quantity to cause instantaneous death. If he makes no choice he is hanged. It is well known that hanging may not produce instantaneous death. Indeed it has been known to prove abortive and always it has been the custom for experts to say when death has supervened before the body is cut down. Therefore when a State which looks upon hanging as a civilized mode of execution and invites one sentenced to death, to kill himself more expeditiously than the State will kill him, it invites him to self-murder. Suppose that the State extended choice in this matter by providing death by torture, slow but absolutely certain to the end intended. Would not a man having the liberty of choice be taking his own life if he forestalls the appreciable period he would live during the torture?

"While most States still employ the gallows, the electrocution method is rapidly being adopted as the following list will show:

New York,	1889
Massachusetts,	1898
New Jersey,	1907
Virginia,	1908
North Carolina,	1910
Kentucky,	1911

The adoption of the method is contemplated in several other States of the Union, notably Maryland, California, Georgia and Florida.

1. OBSERVATIONS ON HANGING.

"Through the courtesy of Messrs. Wilson H. Brown and Joseph Gilfillan, Sheriffs of Philadelphia, I was permitted to witness a number of hangings and was thus enabled to compare the new method with the old. My experiences in the grim corridor of Moyamensing have led me to read well into the meaning of a stanza in the 'Ballad of Reading Gaol.'

"'It is sweet to dance to violins
When life and love are fair.
To dance to flutes, to dance to lutes
Is delicate and rare;
But it is not so sweet with nimble feet
To dance upon the air.'

And there is an Irish poem about the Dublin Jail in which the final struggles are termed Kilmainham Minuet.

"The preparations for the execution were always swiftly conducted. Upon this point comparison favors neither method. But after the drop through the trap-door the ensuing seconds and even minutes bear a different tale. In nearly all cases the heart beats for about thirteen minutes. In no case could fracture of a cervical vertebra or rupture of ligaments be determined in the ordinary examination and strangulation is the only cause of death.

"In one case only was there no movement of the body after the drop, although the heart beat the usual length of time. This prisoner, a Chinaman, died in syncope or of apoplexy. In others the unconsciousness produced by the first shock of the drop appeared to abate and in several instances there were conscious—or at least semi-conscious efforts at respiration, efforts to reach the neck where the choking sensation was unbearable, efforts at reaching for a support for the feet manifested by such vigorous efforts that several witnesses fainted at the sight. They veritably 'danced upon the air' until the asphyxia became so profound as to blot out consciousness apparently after 1 to 1½ minutes in some cases.

"The anatomy of hanging has been frequently discussed. A recent publication (British Medical Journal) by Dr. Frederic Wood Jones give the results of the examination of the bodies of 102 men executed in Nubia in Roman and Byzantine times. Sixty-two were in one trench, 40 in another. They were all adult males, with cords binding the legs and arms trussed to the sides. The hanging rope was still in situ on one.

"Not a single case of damage to the cervical vertebrae was found. The most commonly found lesion was an oblique opening of the sutures of the skull, so that one portion of the skull, represented by the occipital and temporal bones becomes pulled aside from the other portion, represented by the facial part of the skull and the other temporal bone. The basilar suture in most cases was also disunited. The skulls all gave evidence of blood staining.

"This remarkable finding of evidence dating about 2000 years back, prompted me to examine the head and neck bones of five individuals executed by hanging and sent to the Jefferson Medical College for dissection. In not a single instance could I find a fractured cervical vertebrae or a separation of any cranial suture. Death had ensued through strangulation.

HANGMAN'S BUNGLINGS, A FEW EXAMPLES.

"Joseph Myers, hanged at Leeds, Sept. 10th, 1864, attempted suicide by cutting his throat shortly before the day set for his execution. The fall did not dislocate his neck, but was sufficient to tear open the wound and he was enabled to breathe through it as it was situated below the rope. Twenty minutes elapsed before he died.

"At the execution of Heald and Terry, at Newgate, Terry had to be overpowered by five or six men and dragged to the drop. He tore off his cap at the moment the platform sank, made a spring and threw himself at the rail of the scaffold, got his foot over the edge of a beam and caught the corner post with his arm. He had to be forced from this position by the executioner.

"Boyington went to the scaffold with firm and unwavering step, but gave way to despair when the fatal noose was fixed. When at last suspended, in his great agony he freed his arms and clutched at the rope. He succeeded in thrusting his hands between the rope and his throat, and this, resisting and struggling to the last, died despairing.

"When William Bonsfield was hanged at Newgate, March 31, 1856, he hung motionless for a second or two, then with a strength that astonished the attendant officials, he slowly drew himself up and rested his heel on the right side of the drop. One of the turnkeys rushed forward and pushed him off. He repeated this four times, until at last, the executioner threw himself upon the suspended body and by main force strangled him.

"The Newgate Calendar is full of instances in which the rope broke and the man had to be rehanged and even of cases where the head was severed from the body.

"Then there are not a few of authentic cases of resuscitation and total recovery after hanging. I cite merely the cases of Margaret Dickson, who lived 25 years after, of John Green, and of a member of a company in the New Jersey Volunteers, who, while acting as one of "Sherman's Bummers" in Georgia was hanged by Shelby's guerillas, was later discovered, cut down and revived, to live more than 20 years after. His six companions were dead.

"A report dated April 26th, 1903, states that a negro named Tom Barth was hanged for murder in Randolph County, Ala., and later revived.

"On June 16th, 1905, three negroes were hanged together at Decatur, Ala. When the drop fell, the knot slipped off the neck of one of them, Harvey Smith, and he dropped to the ground, crying out: "Thank God I am free; yes, I am free." He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition and hanged a second time.

"When Moses Robertson was hanged at Jacksonville, Fla., on April 5, —?, the drop was not sufficient to break his neck and he choked to death. He managed to get one arm free from the straps, and pulling off the black cap waved it in the air several times.

"In the hanging of C. U. Sparks at Opelika, Ala., on March 5, 1905, the first drop was unsuccessful on account of the rope being too long and it was necessary for the murderer to mount the scaffold again. The rope was shortened and this time the hanging succeeded.

"Frank Raisinger was to be hanged on Feb. 15, 1905, at Bridgeton, New Jersey. The rope broke just as he dropped through the trap and he fell to the ground, showing evidence of life which caused the spectators to cry out and turn away their faces. Five deputy sheriffs grasped the rope and hauled the murderer from his feet, holding him suspended thus for ten minutes when the physicians pronounced life extinct.

"In February, 1885, John Lee was convicted of the murder of Miss Keys. Two weeks later three attempts were made to carry the sentence into effect, but the machinery of the scaffold failed to act. After an hour's work, the executioner gave up in disgust and he was taken back to his cell. A conference of the legal advisers of the government was called and in consideration of the mental tortures which the prisoner had undergone, the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. He died nine years later.

ROPE BREAKS AT HANGING. MURDERER FALLS TO EARTH AND GREWSOME SCENE IS REPEATED.

"In Indiana, August 27, 1907. For the first time in more than 20 years a murder was expiated on the gallows here today, and a hideous mishap made the scene one of horror. When the trap was sprung, the rope broke and the murderer fell to the ground, necessitating a repetition of the hanging.

"The victim was Carmine Renzo, weighing 175 lbs. This weight and the drop of five feet proved too much for the strength of the rope which snapped, precipitating Renzo to the earth.

"The jail attendants hurriedly loosened the rope around his neck, while others adjusted a new rope to the scaffold, and the man, already half dead, was carried to the platform and the lever again sprung. This time the execution was successful.

"The crime which Renzo expiated today was the murder of his sweetheart, Marian Bearno, aged fifteen years, at her home in Ernest, two years ago.

"On March 23, 1905, William J. Byers was to be hanged at Pittsburgh. The noose became loose, however, tearing the skin from the murderer's neck and precipitating him to the ground. He showed more nerve than the sheriff or any of the bystanders and calmly remounted the scaffold steps without any assistance. The noose was again adjusted and this time the hanging was successful, as hangings go.

"Garrotte. The perpetuation of an old Spanish custom resulted in the death of the executioner during the execution at Belchite Aragon on January 12, 1905. This old custom is that the executioner before placing the black cap over the victim, apalogizes to the latter. The condemned man usually forgives him and in token of his forgiveness embraces the executioner. This particular murderer, named Gomez, embraced the executioner so effectively that he strangled him. Gendarmes immediately shot Gomez.

"Electrocution (more properly 'electro-thanasia') compounded from 'electro-execution,' is the popular name for the infliction of the death penalty by passing through the body of the condemned a current of electricity of sufficient intensity to cause death. The method was first adopted by New York State in 1888 by a law which became effective on January 1st, 1889, and which provides how many persons may witness the execution; that a postmortem examination of the body of the convict be performed, and that the body, unless claimed by relatives, be interred in the prison cemetery with a sufficient quantity of quicklime to consume it. This enactment embodied in Sections 505-509 Laws of New York, as amended to and in force at the present time, was the outcome of a report of the Commission (Elbridge R. Gerry, Alfred P. Southwick and Matthew Hale) 'to investigate and report the most humane and practical method of carrying into effect the sentence of death in capital cases,' and transmitted to the Legislature of the State of New York, January 17, 1888.

"Among the recommendations of this Commission is to be noted the following, quoting the Hon. Lucius N. Bangs, of Buffalo:

"As the life of the criminal is forfeited to the State, the body should be also, the State to make such use of it for scientific purposes as would be decent and proper. Such use, while considered as no part of the punishment would be deterrent in its tendency on criminals. Generally, I would say, the duty that falls upon the State is to deprive the criminal of life for the safety of the public. It is not to torture the criminal by way of punishment. The duty of the State is, therefore, best performed when it applies the speediest method of extinguishing life. All criminals for execution should be sent to one place where the most perfect methods could be made available. After final sentence, intercourse with the criminal should be absolutely prohibited, except by those having a duty to perform in relation to him. The time of execution should be indefinite, except that it should be between two fixed dates, and the public should never be advised of such actual time of execution. After final sentence the criminal should drop absolutely out of public sight and consciousness.

"The first criminal to be executed by electricity was William Kemler, on August 6th, 1890, at Auburn Prison. Since that time nearly 170 murderers have been executed in New York State and the method has been adopted by Ohio (1896), North Carolina (1910) and Kentucky (1911).

"My own observations are based upon 66 electrocutions (in the last 12 years) at Sing Sing Prison, Auburn Prison, Dannemora Prison, Trenton (State Penitentiary). Of these the majority came to autopsy at my hands.

"The appartus consists of a stationary engine, a 60 cycle alternating dynamo, capable of generating 2000 volts, a 'death chair' with adjustable head-rest, binding straps and adjustable electrodes. (At Trenton a 2,400 volt current is taken from the public service wire and lowered to the desired tension by a rheostat.)

"The voltmeter, ammeter and switch-board controlling the current is located in the execution-room; the dynamo-room is communicated with by electric signals. Before each execution the appartus is thoroughly tested. When everything is in readiness, the criminal is brought in unfettered and usually unassisted and seats himself in the chair. His head, chest, arms and legs are secured by broad straps and electrodes thoroughly moistened with saturated salt-solution is affixed to the head, another to the calf of one leg, both electrodes being molded so as to assure good contact.

"The application of the current is usually as follows: The contact is made with a high potential (1800 volts) for 5-7 seconds, reduced to 200-250 volts until a half a minute has elapsed, raised to a high voltage for 3-5 seconds, again reduced to low voltage until one minute has elapsed, when it is again raised to the high voltage for a few seconds and the contact is broken. The ammeter usually shows that from 7-10 amperes have passed through the criminal's body.

"A second or even a third brief contact is sometimes made, partly as a precautionary measure, but more to completely abolish reflexes in the dead body.

"The time consumed by the strapping in process is usually about forty-five seconds and the first contact is made a few seconds later. In all about 60-70 seconds elapse from the moment the convict leaves his cell until he is shocked to death.

"The convicts that I have seen thus dealt with have usually slept soundly the night before, they have entered the room calmly and stolidly, often with a half smile on their lips, some without uttering a word, others repeating a brief prayer, still others with a cheerful good-bye to those present. They usually seated themselves without betraying any signs of fear or trembling, curiously watching the strapping process for a while, then sitting erect, looking straight ahead at nothing in particular.

"The physician in charge observes the respiratory movements of the prisoner and signals to the electrician at a moment when the lungs contain a minimum quantity of air. At the moment that the contact is made, the criminal's body stiffens in a state of tonic muscular spasm, restrained by the straps. This spasm abates somewhat as the voltage is reduced to again attain its maximum with each raise of voltage. When the current is interrupted, the body collapses completely. An examination by the physicians usually fails to elicit any signs of life. Occasionally, there is heard a turbulent incoordinate accelerated heart-beat, but apparently limited to the auricular chambers of the heart (Venous Pulse). In only two cases was there any respiratory effort and this was limited to a single contraction of the thoracic respiratory muscle. An additional brief contact or two regularly abolished these reflex phenomena.

"The reason for making the contact at the time that the convict has expired air from his lungs in the natural course of his breathing is this—and it will explain why certain witnesses of the first electrocution thought that life still existed in Kemmler's body. It must be recalled that there is created a terrifically powerful spasmodic contraction of all muscles, including the sphincters and the glottis. The closure of the glottis confines whatever air there may be in the lungs; upon interrupting the current the body becomes entirely limp, the glottis partly relaxes, the thorax collapses and the contained air rushes through the partly closed glottis. A sound resembling a sigh or groan may be thus produced upon the body of any dead animal. A little mucus present augments the sound into a gurgle. It is no wonder that inexperienced persons then believe life to be still present.

"The death is undoubtedly painless and instantaneous. The vital mechanisms of life, circulation and respiration, cease with the first contact. Consciousness is blotted out instantly and the prolonged application of the current as it is usually practiced by Mr. E. F. Davis, the State Electrician of New York, ensures the permanent derangement of the vital functions so that there could be no recovery of these. Occasionally the drying of the sponges through undue generation of heat causes desquamanation or superficial blistering of the skin at the site of the electrodes, but not often. Postmortem discoloration, or lividity often appears during the first contact. The pupils of the eye dilate instantly and remain dilated in death.

"The postmortem examination of 'electrocuted' criminals reveals a number of interesting phenomena.

"The temperature of the body rises promptly and reads as high as 120 to 129½ degrees Fahrenheit within twenty minutes in many cases. After the removal of the brain the temperature recorded in the vertebral canal was often over 120 degrees Fahrenheit. The development of this high temperature is to be regarded as resulting from the active metabolism of tissues not (somatically) dead within a body where all vital mechanisms have been abolished, there being no circulation to carry off the generated heat. The maximum heat is generated at the site of the leg electrodes, where muscle (myosin) coagulation is most extensive. Furthermore, the release of from 10-20 horsepower of energy within the body must contribute materially to the coloric increase.

"The heart, at first flaccid when exposed after death, soon contracts and assumes a tetanized condition. This is particularly marked in the left ventricle; on the whole the organ assumes the form of a heart systole. In three cases, Koenig, Wood and Brown, the right ventricular wall of the heart had ruptured in several places. In one case I was able to elicit slight fibrillary contraction limited to the small area stimulated, by touching the wall of the heart with a cold instrument. In several instances mechanical irritation of the atrio-ventricular bundle elicited slight contractions limited to columnae carneae and the papillary muscles of the left ventricle. In experiments conducted by Professor Coplin upon one of these bodies, this mode of contraction could be called forth by faradaic stimulation. In the same individual it was impossible to elicit any response via the nerve system, either through stimulation of the cortex (exposed within about ten minutes), the spinal cord or peripheral nerves, although muscular reflexes could always be called forth by directly stimulating the muscles. Involuntary muscle strictures remained unresponsive.

"The lungs are usually devoid of blood and weigh only seven or eight ounces avoirdupoise each.

"The blood is profoundly altered bio-chemically. It is of a very dark brownish hue, and it rarely coagulates. Either the fibrin-ogen or the fibrin-feremtn, or both, are destroyed.

"The maximum change is undoubtedly wrought in the nerve system, though this is not always manifested. Regarding the histologic changes, reports from various sources vary. There is a general agreement as to the frequent occurrence of capillary hemorrhages disruptive and destructive for adjacent tissues. In the nerve cells themselves there appears to be no apparent change although there must have resulted terrific molecular change. P. A. Fish found vacnoles in one case, but no visible changes in another. Aside from the capillary hemorrhages and the arterial asemia with venous congestion, the brain shows no gross changes of appearance. In a case of accidental death from contact with an alternating current of 1000 volts for about a half minute Jellinek found extensive streaks of capillary hemorrhages in the gray substance of brain and spinal cord together with more or less destruction of the nerve cells, extrusion of the cell nucleus, &c.

"In 5 cases I have had sections made of the pons, oblongata and spinal cord by my colleague, Dr. Radasch, and these have revealed curious circular areas with a peripheral zone of condensation which fades off into the surrounding unaffected areas. The bulk of the central rarefied portion shows a delicate network of loose fibrillae which in all probability are glia fibres. The cellular elements in the rarefied area are few in number though apparently free nuclei are scattered in this portion. These areas follow more or less closely the course of the finer vessels. Many of them contain an unruptured vessel centrally located, while others contain longitudinal sections with the areas arranged in a bead-like manner along such vessels. These areas are larger and more numerous in the pons than in the oblongata and spinal cord and are apparently distributed in the longitudinal directions more frequently than in other directions. They seem to resemble gaseous emphysema and are possibly due to electrolytic liberation of gas in the peri-vascular spaces. Some areas remind one of the punctures in a piece of paper interposed in the path of the sparks of a static machine.

"Compared with hanging as well as other methods, electrocution is the most humane, decent and scientific method of inflicting the death penalty because of its efficiency, quickness and painlessness, and it should be adopted by Pennsylvania as well as every other State in the Union.

LANTERN SLIDES.

"Death by electricity is not like ordinary death. In the ordinary kind of death a weakness in some part of the animal machine throws the whole out of gear; either the circulatory appartus or the respiratory mechanism or the nerve centers controlling these vital powers break down and life ceases. The interruption of any of these vital activities (maintenance of the circulation, oxygenation of the blood and the nervous control of respiration) means inevitable death. Whatever be the mode of death the cessation of the heart's beat may be taken as the actual moment of death, since there can be no recovery from this. To be precise, however, this is the moment of bodily death. It does not mean that the individual tissues are dead. Life is the body mechanism in action. The tissues are not mecanisma, their death is not a sudden phenomenon, it is rather a gradual loss of vital power. Thus the death of the muscular tissue is not characterized by the gradual onset of the 'rigor mortis,' in other tissues we can only be guided by certain chemical signs.

"In death by electricity as it is conducted in eltrocutions, we unquestionably have an instantaneous interruption of all the vital mechanisms. Consciousness and all the functions of the brain are blotted out; the heart ceases in one last violent contraction, and respiration is checked instantly. More than this, the nature of the blood is changed so profoundly that even though the cardiac and respiratory powers were revived, the altered blood were worse than useless, for the bodily economy and life would be impossible on this ground alone. Of course, it is only prudent to admit the possibility of recovery from a shock which lasts only a very small fraction of a second. Plenty of cases are recorded annually of persons receiving a part of a bolt of lightning from which they recover, either spontaneously or after being treated by artificial respiration methods. But such is not the nature of the current employed in the legal execution of criminals in this State. Here the lethal charge relentlessly courses through the body of the condemned for many seconds, more than sufficient to effect the damage of which I spoke.

"With regard to other methods of killing the condemned, permit me to read the following:

Abstract from a letter to the Hon. J. F. L. Morris, House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Penna.:

"At a public hearing on February second, 1911, I said: "At the time when objections to the hangman's bungling were most strongly urged in favor of some better method, poisoning by prussic acid as well as choloroforming were suggested. With regard to the injection of prussic acid by means of the hyperdermic syringe, the Gerry Commission Report says: 'This is open to the very serious objection that the use of that instrument is so associated with the practice of medicine, and as a legitimate means of alleviating human suffering, that it is hardly advisable to urge its application for the purpose of legal execution against the almost unanimous protest of the medical profession.' It seems to me that the use of chloroform as suggested by Wilder in 1870, cheap and efficient as it would be, is open to the same objections. There should be a lively sense of violence of mysteriously overwhelming destructive power of potent and destructive energy attached to the means employed in putting the murderous ruffian out of existence. If any sentimentality is to obtain in relation with capital punishment methods, it should not be in favor of the 'plug ugly' wielder of the stilleto, blackjack and the ever ready revolver."

With regard to your inquiry concerning the use of gas in the infliction of the death penalty, I can only offer the following remarks:

1. To the best of my knowledge I have not known gas to be used in legal procedures.

2. Death by gas poisoning and I presume the use of illuminating gas, is far from quick, so far as I have known. Of course, not much can be learned from the deaths of persons overcome with gas during sleep. So far as is known, they do not regain consciousness, with those that were awake while inhaling the noxious gas, complaint has been made of headache, vertigo, weakness, drowsiness, then a blank through coma. If death ensues, it is practically through suffocation, though deprivation of oxygen quite as much as through intoxication by carbon monoxide. I presume that placing the condemned in a chamber charged with pure carbon monoxide would result in death more quickly, but even then a certain amount or time would elapse before unconsciousness and death would have been accomplished.

"Demarquay is quoted by E. R. Von Hoffman in his "Lehrbuch der gerichtlichen Medezin" as having breathed, without damage to himself for ten minutes in an atmosphere containing 12.5 per cent. carbon dioxide."

"In my opinion the electrocution should be conducted in one central plant, central in the sense that it be at or near the geographical center of the prison population of the State, not connected with any existing prison and therefore remote from convicts not capital criminals and perhaps susceptible to reform. Such a central plant should be composed of a cell-chamber, a death-chamber, a postmortem room and a dynamo-room either adjacent to or at a short distance from the main building.

"The cost of an electrocution should be assessed against the counties from which the condemned are received or at least should bear a share of the burden of cost as they are obliged to do now when hangings take place in county prisons.

"I would also urge the incorporation of an amendment directing the immediate performance of a postmortem examination of the convict as provided by the New York law. The public of this more enlightened day cannot but appreciate the value to the medical profession of the examination of the human body so soon after death as is legally afforded, for instance, in New York State. Our knowledge of the structure of the human body, of the brain, of the heart and lungs, of the stomach, liver, ductless glands and, in fact, of all the organs of the body, has been greatly enhanced by such autopsies. Surely, if the convict's life is forfeit to the State, his body should be likewise, for then only may it prove to be useful to Society at Large. The London Lancet," Dr. Pasteur, Dr. Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute and others have urged the employment of the bodies of condemned criminals,—be it for obtainment of serums or other substances for the good of humanity at large. With this view what objection can there be to a simple postmortem examination, including, of course, the preservation of some of the tissues for leisure and comparative study?"

The discussion was continued by Dr. William J. Dugan of Philadelphia, who spoke in part as follows:

"After the very able speech of Prof. Spitzka and the thorough way in which he discussed the subject, he leaves practically nothing for me to say. I have talked with and corresponded with many people to get their views on the matter, and a great number are strongly in favor of electrocution and some are not in favor of it. The question then is, if the laws of the State prescribe capital punishment, what is the best method by which it should be inflicted. I am a physician, but I have no desire to witness another hanging. I saw one and that was enough. In the New Jersey State Prison I saw a man electrocuted. It was necessary to drag him into the room, place him in the chair and the current was then turned on, and it did not seem possible he was dead. There was no noise, no struggle, and death was painless. The man's consciousness was blotted out instantly. I believe that the electrocutions should take place at some central point."

Rev. Joseph Welch, Chaplain of the Eastern State Penitentiary, gave the Commission his views of capital punishment, and spoke at length of the fearful effects an execution has on the other prisoners confined within hearing distance. For this reason he strongly argued against the enactment of any law by which capital punishment would be inflicted in any penal institutions where prisoners are confined for offenses other than murder. He strongly favored the installation of a central death chamber.

Dr. W. S. Warsworth, Coroner's physician of Philadelphia, declared that he was not sure that death by asphyxiation was not more painless than either hanging or electrocution, but he declared that unusual care would have to be used in the use of gas. Furthermore, he feared that death by gas would not prove effective, and therefore was inclined to favor the substitution of electrocution for that of hanging. He, however, placed himself squarely on record as being opposed to inflicting the death penalty in a central death house, and spoke at length in favor of executing a condemned criminal in the county where he had been convicted.

H. C. Wells, Sheriff of Dauphin County, expressed the opinion he had never observed that other prisoners become unduly alarmed when an execution was about to take place; but on the other hand he believed that it had a beneficial or corrective effect on the other prisoners. Mr. Wells was in favor of a central death chamber.

Fred A. Cooke, Superintendent of the Philadelphia County Prison, spoke in favor of the location of a central death house for the reason that an execution had a demoralizing effect on the other prisoners, who become aware of the preparations for inflicting the death penalty. He said that they become excited, frightened and distressed, and often express regret that they cannot witness the hanging. In all his experience he has never observed any great suffering on the part of condemned prisoners when the death penalty was being inflicted, and declared that in his opinion a condemned criminal suffers more while preparations for the death penalty are being made. He said that some objection might be made to the establishment of a central death house on the ground that it would remove the condemned away from his family, and spiritual adviser. On the whole, the witness declared in favor of substituting electrocution for hanging as the method of inflicting the death penalty.

Another public hearing was held June 12, 1912, 1.30 P. M., at the City Hall, Smithfield street, Pittsburgh, Pa. The following members of the Commission were present: John Francies, Robert J. McKenty and John F. L. Morris, Chairman. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Morris, who explained the object of the meeting and invited public discussion on the matter.

Dr. C. H. Henninger was called upon to give his opinion, and said in part: "The manner of taking the human life is a question deserving most thoughtful consideration, and I believe that electrocution is much preferable to our present method. Poisonous gas is not justified, nor should we recommended it. I believe that a central prison for the care of condemned criminals and for their execution would be preferable to county executions. While I have no feeling against the newspapers, it seems to me that sensational reports have a bad influence on the weak and young. I would suggest that the present method be changed to electrocution."

Mr. Francies asked Dr. Henninger about the use of prussic acid, to which the doctor replied, "I am opposed to the use of poison on account of the danger, etc. Hanging is not painful even by strangulation."

Mr. Francies: "You are not favorable to acids?"

Dr. Henninger: "No. I think it has hardly reached that stage."

Mr. McKenty: "Would you object to gas?"

Dr. Henninger: "Practically the same conditions exist in this. I think the same of gas as of the acid."

Mr. Francies: "You do think electrocution is preferable to hanging?"

Dr. Henninger: "Very much."

H. H. Rowan, Assistant District Attorney, was next called upon, and replied: "I have never seen an execution and know only what I have read. To hang a man it requires about 90 seconds from the time he is taken from his cell until he is hanged. Death is instantaneous. My idea of the death penalty would be something that would be inflicted without suffering. It takes some time to seat a man in a chair, adjust straps, turn on the current, and then the awful burning. In hanging he sees nothing, the noose is put on his neck, and he is gone very quickly, and suffers less mental anguish than any other method. I think there should be a place other than counties for executions."

Mr. Francies: "Do you think it has a good effect to hang a man where the crime is committed?"

Mr. Rowan: "If you hang a man for a crime, no difference where you hang him, people will know of it. We have no class of people who keep better in touch with such things than the criminal class. People are getting more opposed to capital punishment."

Dr. Charles E. Ellis, Physician of Allegheny County Jail, expressed himself by saying: "I know nothing about electrocution, but in hanging, aside from the time of hanging, the consciousness of the man who is being hanged is lost with the trap, even though his neck is not broken, although the heart beats for a short time after. Suffering from hanging —there is nothing to that. As to the different methods, I know nothing."

Mr. Morris: "Do you believe executions should take place at a central location?"

Dr. Ellis: "I have not given that any consideration."

Mr. McKenty: "What effect does it have on the prisoners confined when the scaffold is being built?"

Dr. Ellis: "The scaffold is permanent, but on the day of the hanging there is some difference, the prisoners are depressed."

Mr. Fancies: "Supposing there was a central prison and prisoners from all over the State are taken there to be executed, and an execution is in close proximity to the inmates, would that not have a bad effect?"

Dr. Ellis: "Yes, sir. Better to have it where the other prisoners know nothing of it."

Dr. Henninger: "I expressed my idea that a central prison is desirable, but it should be away from the main prison."

R. G. Lutton, Sheriff, Washington County, Pa., expressed himself as being in favor of a "central place" for executions. Mr. Lutton had had personal charge of a hanging the day before this meeting.

Mr. Morris: "What effect did this hanging have on the people?"

Mr. Lutton: "It always creates excitement. The newspapers were full of it. It took three days to get the scaffold ready. The man was on the scaffold about nineteen minutes. Three or four hundred people were outside the jail."

E. R. Walter, M. D., Director of the Department of Health, City of Pittsburgh, when asked for his opinion, responded by saying "Between hanging and electrocution, I really think hanging is more humane. I believe that a person is immediately unconscious after the trap is sprung. I have had two cases of attempted suicide in my practice, and they inform me that they were immediately unconscious. I approve of a 'central place' for executions. I am in favor of using gas. I feel that the mental suffering would not be so great,—they merely become drowsy and sleepy and that is the end."

R. L. Anderson, M. D., Resident Physician, Western Penitentiary, gave his ideas favoring electrocutions. He referred to the report of Dr. Spitzka in which he says that during the last thirty-five years thirteen cases of hanging were not very successful. The chances for bungling electrocution are less than in hanging.

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, of Pittsburgh, said in part: "I believe we need capital punishment. Humanity has not advanced sufficiently high that some force and dread should not be held over the degenerate. I believe that gas is the best way to execute the criminals, and I do not believe in 'centering' the criminals. You decide on the day of execution, and when the man is sound asleep that night, you quietly turn on the gas. You have done the best for the man and you have not permitted the agonizing moments. The warden would immediately and quietly give out the facts, thereby limiting the newspaper details. You do not even tell the man the time of his execution, thereby sparing him the agony of even the 90 seconds. Newspapers do not care for these details and society should not care."

Rev. C. M. Miller, Chaplain, Western Penitentiary, said in part: "I have been called twice as spiritual adviser for men to be executed, and as the time approached for the execution the quietude in the jail was oppressive. Executions should be done with despatch and decency. We must prevent publicity. As to the manner of taking life, it appears to me that electrocution would be preferable to hanging. As to the question of giving men gas when they are unconscious of it, men would not sleep, and it would be Hell to the man who would not know when he was to pass away."

Dr. George C. Johnson of Pittsburgh, expressed his opinion on the subject by saying: "I do not believe in capital punishment, but it seems to me that where executions are carried on, the ones in charge should be thoroughly conversant with the subject. The old fashioned hanging is about as good as we know anything about, but there are very few people in this country who know how to hang a man. If you drop him too far, you pull off his head; if you don't drop him far enough you don't break his neck. Strangulation is not painful. If electricity is employed and properly applied, and if the electrodes are properly moistened, the first effect is the immediate loss of consciousness. He is dead in a fraction of a second after the current is turned on. Electricity, if properly carried out in executions, is about the most decent way of doing it at the present time."

Dr. Amelia A. Dranga of Pittsburgh, gave a brief talk on the effect of executions on humanity, expressing a preference for electrocution as the mode. She also said: "If we could use gas, which seems almost feasible, the prison physician should first give the man a hyperdermic."

Dr. Oskar Klotz of Pittsburgh, gave his opinion by saying in part: "I think that hanging has been more successful because it has been longer used. The uncertainty of gas is an objection. Individuals have a different susceptibility to gas. The body is burned in electrocution."

Mr. McKenty: "Have you ever attended anyone who has been asphyxiated.

Dr. Klotz: "No, sir. My work has been mostly autopsy."

Dr. Johnston: "Dry electrodes will burn. If the electrodes are moistened and the man's skin washed with ether to get out the fat, there will be no burning, it need not make a mark."

Mr. Rowand: "Do they shave a part of his head before electrocution?"

Dr. Johnson: "Yes, sir."

The meeting was then adjourned by the chairman.

Concerning the use of poisonous gas in the infliction of the death penalty, Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka expressed the opinion that: "To the best of my knowledge I have not known gas to be employed in legal procedures. Death by gas-poisoning (illuminating gas, carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide) is not rapid, so far as I know. Not much can be learned from the deaths of persons overcome during sleep. Those overcome while awake have complained of headache, vertigo, weakness and drowsiness while inhaling the gas, and then a blank (coma). When death ensues it is practically through suffocation, though deprivation of oxygen, quite as much as through intoxication by carbon monoxide, etc. Demarquay is quoted by E. R. Van Hoffman (Lehrbuch der gerichylichen Medizin) as having breathed, without damage to himself, for ten minutes in an atmosphere containing 12.5 per cent. of carbon dioxide. Of course a greater concentration would prove fatal more rapidly, but a certain amount of time must elapse before suffication and charging of the blood with the noxious gas ensues. In the electric chair unconsciousness is produced in an infintesimally small fraction of a second."

In connection with the same subject, Dr. William J. Dugan of Philadelphia, wrote as follows: "This is such an unscientific and uncertain method that I sincerely hope it will not receive serious consideration. In order to employ such method, it would be necessary to place the condemned man in an all-tight glass compartment of some kind so the man might be watched by the attending physician. The physician would be unable to tell, before the compartment was opened, whether the man was dead or not. There would be no means of examining the heart until the man had been removed, or, at least, not until the compartment had been opened, when more or less air would of necessity enter the same. Suppose when the heart was examined the physician finds the man still alive, though unconscious, what is to be done? All that could be done would be to place the criminal in the gas-filled compartment a second time. The physician would be unable to state whether the condemned man should be kept in the gas-filled chamber for ten minutes of for a couple of hours. Some men are more susceptible to poisonous gases than are others, although all were exposed to the gases under identical conditions. A woman—30 years of age—who attempted suicide by inhaling gas was successful. A second woman—38 years of age—was found unconscious by neighbors who broke into the house. She was found lying in a room in which all the gas jets were wide open. She had turned the gas on some time during the night and was not found until the next morning. She was taken to a hospital, revived, and recovered in spite of the fact that she had lain in that gas-filled room for several hours. Everyone, perhaps, knows the feeling of languor, headache, nausea and sense of suffocation experienced when one is in a room from this the oxygen of the air has been replaced by carbonic acid gas expelled from the lungs of those present. If this be true in this case, how much more terrible must it be to have this suffocation produced legally. Persons have been accidentally asphyxiated by leakage of gas from the rubber tube attached to a gas stove. Usually they are awakend by the sense of suffocation, and although partly unconscious make a vain attempt to reach a door or window. To my mind, the infliction of the death penalty by the administration of gas would be more brutal, more uncertain and more unscientific than the present method of hanging. There can be no doubt that the condemned man would struggle most violently at first—just as many patients do during the first stage of etherization in the hospitals. It would be a most horrible spectacle, to say the least. Another great objection to the method of using gas would be the great suggestibility of the method to the unfortunate contemplating suicide. If it were my unfortunate lot to be compelled to choose between hanging and being put to death by gas, I would unhesitatingly choose hanging, as the quicker, surer, and less painful method. Electrocution is to my mind the quickest, surest, least painful, most humane, and most scientific form of administering the death penalty that is known at the present time. If I were asked to arrange the methods according to preference, this would be my classification: 1. Electrocution; 2. The Guillotine; 3. Hanging; 4. Asphyxiation by means of gas.

The Commission learned that electrocution had been substituted for hanging in a number of States, among them being New York, Ohio, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky. In Oklahoma, hanging is retained, but under the direction of the Governor, life may be taken by electricity if the court so orders.

We quote the following from the New Jersey State Prison Report for 1910:

"Since the completion of the electrocution plant, seventeen have been electrocuted during the past fiscal year; every one of those electrocutions was successfully conducted, and clearly demonstrated the fact that in case of capital punishment electrocution is infinitely more humane then the previous methods of execution."

Mr. A. E. Kennelly, professor of electrical engineering in Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, was unable to attend the hearing, but submitted the following:

"I have made during the past twenty-five years a considerable number of experiments on the effects of electricity on animals, and have witnessed many others. My standpoint in such experiments has been that of the electrical engineer, as I am not a physician, although I was for a year on the Faculty of the Medico Chirurgical College of Philadelphia. I have witnessed two electrocutions at Sing Sing, N. Y., as well as severally accidentally received electric shocks. I have also seen men hanged in Egypt and have likewise attended military executions in which the victims were executed by shooting. I am at present a member of the Resuscitation Commission, under the auspicies of the American Medical Society, the National Electric Light Association and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. I have no hesitation in saying that of all the methods of execution with which I am cognizant, the electrical method as practiced in New York State and elsewhere in this country is much the surest, simplest, most instantaneous and least revolting. There is nothing horrible about a properly conducted electrocution, although it is of course always an awful sight to see life extinguished instantly in a vigorous human being. In my opinion, nothing can justify the retention of the horrible process of hanging as a means of carrying out capital punishment, except possibly, the deterrent effect of its horrors upon the criminal mind. In my opinion, death by electrocution as conducted in New York State, is absolutely instantaneous and absolutely painless. It does not mar or injure the body superficially, when properly carried out. At the same time it should be understood that I am not qualified to give this opinion from the medical or physiological points of view. I speak only as a layman in these matters."

Mr. Elihu Thompson of the General Electric Company at West Lynn, Mass., presented the following brief statement embodying his views in regard to the infliction of the death penalty.

"It has always seemed to me to be something of an error to establish a large lighting plant with power plant to drive it, which plant is only at rare intervals to be put in motion for the purpose of causing death to a criminal. In the first place the machinery in not suited to the purpose, inasmuch as it is designed to carry a definite and large load for a long period, whereas if death by electric shock is sought, an apparatus capable of working at the very highest output for a short time should be used, since the time of use is so brief a period—a few minutes at the most. This means that the emergency value of the plant should be as high as possible, as it is not called upon to do continuous work. It means also that the size and weight of the apparatus can be reduced very greatly. Motive power, of course, can be obtained either from an electric motor attached to a power line or an ordinary automobile engine can be used. This arrangement is far more reasonable than the establishment of a steam plant such as has sometimes been done. But personally, I am forced to think it is a question whether electrocution is by any means the best method to be used in causing death, it being assumed that the law demands that the criminal shall be extinguished and thereby he and his like eliminated in a greater or less degree from the race. It seems to me far simpler methods of causing death with practically no machinery might more rationally be selected. The simple process—asphyxiation by gas, such as nitrogen or carbolic acid, preceded by a narcotic dose—seems to me to have fully as much to recommend it as the establishment of a special electric plant. The mere placing of a subject in a chamber to put into communication with a larger chamber which has been exhausted of air is quite sufficient, and is a method of asphyxiation which perhaps involves the least complexity, while the rapidity of the process is probably sufficient. I have never been able to see why etherization or chloroforming with subsequent etherization is not a perfectly practicable method requiring a minimum of machinery for its practice. If, however, electrocution be decided upon, then it does seem that the apparatus should be more special for the purpose than that which has ordinarily been employed. In reality, the electrical output to cause death, if properly developed, is very small, and the apparatus required also small. The ordinary lighting plant which has generally been employed for electrocution is designed, of course, for an entirely different nature, and is built to carry a large continuous load over an indefinite number of hours, a condition which is quite the reverse existing in the case of electrocution."

Mr. Jesse D. Frost, agent and warden at Sing Sing Prison, New York, writes as follows:

"Where death is the punishment prescribed by law, permit me to say that in my opinion electrocution is the most humane method yet devised for executing the laws mandate. As to whom shall be invited as witnesses, that perhaps is a matter of judgment, but as a prison official I can see nothing to be gained by permitting the relatives of the condemned to be present. Were they permitted to do so, it would result in a scene that would, to say the last, be embarrassing to the officials in charge."

Mr. T. H. B. Jones, warden of the Ohio State Penitentiary, Columbus, says:

"As long as there must be executions, I think that by electricity by far the most humane means. We have inaugurated a scheme here whereby the warden, deputy warden, and a third party, the electrician, are screened from the view of those present at an electrocution, and leaves them in doubt as to who the real executioner is. This we believe is best for all concerned."

Mr. George O. Osborne, keeper of the New Jersey State Prison, in a letter in reference to the subject of electrocution says:

"We have been using this means of inflicting the death penalty in this State since 1907. I do not believe in capital punishment. I do not think it is right, but as long as the laws demand that the death penalty be inflicted, it is my opinion that the most humane method is by electrocution. In this State we have had seventeen electrocutions, and each has been perfectly successful, and has passed off without any 'scenes.' All the condemned men have been able to walk unaided to the chair, and the first shock of a few seconds duration has caused death, practically instantaneous death."

As a result of an extended investigation of the subject under consideration, our conclusions are as follows:

(1). That all executions should be conducted at a central place, and not in any county prison, nor in either of the present Eastern or Western State Penitentiaries.

(2). That the method of electrocution is nearly instantaneous, is less painful, and less revolting than hanging, and eventually should be substituted for the present method of inflicting capital punishment.

We are confident that the humane and enlightened thought of the people of this Commonwealth will endorse legislative action, having that purpose in view.

In view of the fact that the State of Pennsylvania recently acquired possession of a large tract of ground in Centre county as a site for a new State penitentiary, the Commission would recommend the erection of a death-house on part of said tract, or on land immediately adjacent thereto. However, since the preliminary plans for the development of this recently acquired land are still under consideration, the Commission believes it unnecessary and inexpendient, at this time, to recommend any specific legislation relating to the matter referred to us for investigation.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN F. L. MORRIS,
Chairman.

Philadelphia, January 6th, 1913.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION ON THE SEGREGATION, CARE AND TREATMENT OF FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTIC PERSONS IN THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Made to the Legislature Pursuant to Joint Resolution of June 14, 1911, with an appendix containing certain acts recommended by the Commission.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION.

To the Honorable the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:—The Commission on the Segregation, Care and Treatment of the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic Persons within the Commonwealth, constituted by a joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly met, and approved by the Governor of the Commonwealth on the 14th day of June, 1911, respectfully submits the following report:

In obedience to instructions it has prepared and also included in this report for the consideration of the Legislature, plans for the segregation, care and treatment of the several classes of defectives coming within the scope of the investigation embodied in specific Acts hereto appended, in accordance with the terms of the joint resolution, which reads as follows (P. L. 1911, p. 927):

"A JOINT RESOLUTION

Constituting a Commission to investigate and report to the General Assembly a plan for the segregation, care and treatment of feeble-minded and epileptic persons within the Commonwealth, and making an appropriation thereto.

"Whereas, It is estimated by a Committee of the recent Pennsylvania Conference of Charities and Corrections and by the Board of Public Charities that there are now at large in this Commonwealth more than 15,000 feeble-minded and epileptic persons, which number, by reason of the unrestrained propagation of such defectives, is rapidly increasing; and,

"Whereas, A proper regard for the public welfare requires that some action be taken looking to the segregation of such feeble-minded and epileptic persons, with a view as far as possible to provide some remedy; therefore,

"Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly met, That there is hereby constituted a Commission to consist of the Commissioner of Health, the Director of Health and Charities of Philadelphia, and the members of the Lunacy Committee of the Board of Public Charities; the duty of which Commission shall be to take into consideration the number and status of feeble-minded and epileptic persons in the Commonwealth and the increase of such persons, and to report to the General Assembly at its next session a plan or plans for the segregation, care and treatment of such defectives; to which end the said Commission is hereby authorized and empowered to send for persons and papers, examine witnesses under oath, and to employ such technical and skilled assistance as may be necessary.

"The members of said Commission shall serve without other compensation than their actual and necessary expenses while actually engaged in the work of the Commission.

"The sum of fifteen hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated for defraying the expenses of the Commission out of any moneys in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended on vouchers duly certified to the Auditor General by the President of the Commission.

"Approved the fourteenth day of June, A. D. 1911.

JOHN K. TENER."

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMISSION.

In proceeding to perform the duties assigned to it, the members assembled at Philadelphia, October 27, 1911, in the office of the Committee on Lunacy, 717-718 Bulletin Building. Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, the Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania, being unable to attend this meeting on account of public duties at Harrisburg, was excused. The following members were present: Dr. Joseph S. Neff, Director of Health and Charities of Philadelphia; and the following members of the Lunacy Committee of the State Board of Public Charities: Messrs. George W. Ryon, of Shamokin; Patrick C. Boyle, of Oil City, and Edward K. Rowland, of Philadelphia. Judge Isaac Johnson, of Media, the Chairman of the Committee on Lunacy, being detained in court, was represented by Mr. Bromley Wharton, General Agent and Secretary of the Board of Public Charities, who was recorded as his substitute. The Commission at once organized by electing Dr. Joseph S. Neff, President, and Dr. Frank Woodbury, Secretary, both of Philadelphia.

The President, in opening reviewed the events which had led to the appointment of the Commission, and defined the scope of the investigation to be "to ascertain the actual or approximate number of the class described in the joint resolution as 'feeble-minded and epileptic persons' in the State, and the provision now made for their segregation, care and treatment, and, if additional accommodations should be found to be advisable and necessary, to submit plans for the same."

The term "feeble-minded" was declared to include every demonstrable mental defect which is not insanity.

The subsequent proceedings of the Commission may be condensed and summarized briefly in the following statements: It has held twelve sessions in Philadelphia, three in Harrisburg, one in Polk, Venango county; one in Vineland, New Jersey, and one in Boston, Massachusetts.

Visits were made to institutions for the feeble-minded and epileptic within the Commonwealth and situated in neighboring States. By personal interviews and correspondence with persons having technical knowledge and experience in the subjects under investigation, the Commission has gathered much practical information, and has obtained many valuable suggestions in relation to the classification and segregation of mental defectives and their institutional care.

THE NUMBER OF FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTICS.

The first effort of the Commission was directed to the determination of the number ond status of the mental defectives, belonging to the classes under consideration, living within the borders of the Commonwealth.

It has been ascertained by alienists that, wherever these statistics have been complied among civilized communities all over the world, the proportion of the mental defectives is remarkably uniform. This proposition averages about five in one thousand of the general population of different countries. It is divided as follows: The insane a little less than two per thousand, the feeble-minded, imbeciles and idiots a little more than two, and the epileptics are estimated to be about one in a thousand, although a large portion of those who are committed to insane and feeble-minded institutions are also epileptics.

This ratio of one in two hundred (5 in 1,000) is affected in special localities by extraneous or accidental causes. For instance, the opening of a new State hospital in Vermont and an increase of the county care institutions in Wisconsin have been noted in the United States Census Bureau Report as the explanation of an apparent increase in the number of the insane in these States, in the period extending from June, 1890, to December 31, 1903. The following comment seems quite pertinent to the present inquiry. "The fact remains that the differences between ratios, and they are all in the direction of an increase, show primarily the extent to which hospitals are being utilized in the different communities, and not how many insane there are found in the population. The circumstance, for example, that New York and New Jersey each shows an increase in the ratio more than twice as large as that for Pennsylvania cannot be taken as an indication of the relative rapidity with which insanity advances in these Commonwealths."*

The inquiry with reference to the number of the feeble-minded in this State was pursued in two principal directions: (1) The number of the feeble-minded now receiving institutional care, and (2) the number who are at large in the community.

FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTIC PERSONS IN PENNSYLVANIA NOT RECEIVING INSTITUTIONAL CARE.

Upon taking up the problem of ascertaining the number of mental defectives at large in the community, the Commission first set to work to obtain the number of applications for admission into the existing institutions of this class, viz., Polk, Spring City and Elwyn. The arrangement of the table according to counties will illustrate the distribution according to locality of the class of feeble-minded believed to be suitable for institutional care.

The total number on all the waiting lists amounts to 966.

In the effort to obtain definite information as to the other mental defectives, who are not now in institutions, but who may require institutional care, the Committee visited the office of the Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania, and afterwards that of the Superintendent of Public Instruction at the Capitol, but in each interview it was discovered that no statistics relating to the mental defectives had been gathered or reported by either the Health or the School Department of the State, and in only a few school districts had any attempt at such investigation been made. It was then decided to make a systematic effort to ascertain, if possible, the number of the feeble-minded and epileptic by correspondence directly with the Superintendents of School Districts and the County Medical Societies throughout the State. It was found that this inquiry also was barren of results. With the exception of Philadelphia, Allegheny, Chester and one or two other counties, there had been scarcely any attention given to the subject. It became evident that no accurate estimate of the number of these defectives, not already receiving institutional care, could be made with the resources and time at the command of the Commission. The lack of response containing statistical information from the physicians was a disappointment. It may be remarked, in this connection, that the United States Census Act of March 6, 1902, provided that the statistics of special classes, including the insane and the feeble-minded, should be hereafter restricted to institutions. The enumerations of all mental defectives in the community, including those not receiving institutional care, attempted by the United States Census authorities in the two preceding reports, were acknowledged to have been so incomplete and unsatisfactory as to be practically useless; and the effort to obtain the reports of defectives outside of the institutions had to be definitely abandoned. On the other hand, an investigation previously directed by the President of this Commission had already shown that the special group of "backward children" at school, who are commonly regarded as weak-minded, necessarily includes a large number of children suffering from adenoids, myopia, astigmatism and similar physical or neurasthenic conditions, as well as others who are merely stupid or dull, rather than weak-minded.

It seems proper that special mention should be made in this place of the valuable statistical and educational work already done in Philadelphia by the municipal authorities upon this subject of the feeble-minded of school age in connection with the medical inspection of schools. The pamphlets issued by the Department of Public Health and Charities, bearing the following titles: "The Number of the Feeble-Minded," "The Fate of the Feeble-Minded Woman," "The Degenerate Children of Feeble-Minded Women," "The Transmission of Feeble-Mind," "Public Provision for the Feeble-Minded" (published in 1910), and the "Report of the Committee on Backward Children Investigation" (published in 1911), are all valuable contributions to the literature, and have unquestionably had a powerful influence in creating a strong public sentiment in this State upon the subject of mental hygiene.

A Royal Commission which was appointed a few years Ago in England to investigate this subject and to report on the care and control of the feeble-minded in England, in view of the great difficulties encountered in making a complete census, was forced to abandon the attempt to obtain accurate returns. It was compelled to call in the aid of the medical profession to collect the information in certain selected districts which were considered typical. The returns varied from different areas from 1.1 to 4.54 per thousand of population, or an average of 3.28 per thousand of idiots, imbeciles and feeble-minded grouped under the head of Aments. One noteworthy result was that the urban population of six cities gave an average of 2.85 per thousand, while five agricultural districts gave a proportion of 4.38 per thousand. It is possible that an explanation of this sociological phenomenon may be found in the lure of the city, which is felt more by the capable, ambitious and enterprising than it is by the dull and plodding in rural population. On the other hand, the incompetents also may be driven from the city, where they are in danger of starvation, and go to the country, where living is cheaper or charity more open-handed.

Among the numerous reports which have been received for the consideration and use of the Commission and from which much assistance was derived, special mention must be made of the Report on the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic of Pennsylvania, which was made to the Pennsylvania Conference of Charities and Correction. In fact it was the incentive furnished by the association named and the great interest in the subject shown by the Board of Public Charities that caused the present Commission to be created by the Assembly. Former investigations had clearly demonstrated the impossibility of obtaining definite information with regard to the numbers of the feeble-minded and epileptics at large in the community through the charity organizations, from which source substantial aid had been anticipated. Instances are not wanting in the records of these great charity organizations of isolated cases, or of families, of feeble-minded persons in dire need of material help, or of weak girls leading immoral lives, for whom custodial care is demanded; but the machinery, of these charities is inadequate to the task of obtaining a complete record of the number of those who could be properly classed as feeble-minded and epileptic, and who are not already receiving institutional care, or whose names are not on the registry of applicants for admission to State institutions. The experience of failure, which the present Commission had with the medical and school authorities, was also reported by the Committee. Nevertheless the results of its prior investigation brought very clearly to light the importance of this problem and the necessity of legislative action.

The great influence of heredity in producing mental defect, and the relations of this to pauperism, vagrancy, drunkenness and illegitimacy of children, has been insisted upon by all the correspondents. A large percentage of criminals and incorrigibles are mentally defective and sometimes epileptic. An estimate of the number of feeble-minded at large in the community, given by that Committee, was based upon the proportion of one mental defective to every three hundred and fifty (350) persons, or one in four hundred (400) as a conservative estimate, and one epileptic in 2,000 persons, the report stating that this "means more than 18,000 in the State of Pennsylvania, 7000, at least, of whom are girls and women of the child-bearing age, who are not receiving institutional care of the right kind."

Further references to this question of the number of the feeble-minded will be found under the General Summary and Findings and Recommendations.

THE FEEBLE-MINDED IN OTHER STATES.

The following tabulated statement gives the results of a circular letter directed to each State in the Union requesting information. Responses were received from nearly every State, and the Commission here takes the opportunity of making full acknowledgment to the authorities of all the States who responded, and, indeed, to thank all its correspondents who have kindly supplied information and have materially aided in the present investigation.

COPY OF LETTER TO OTHER STATES.

"Dear Sir:—Has your State recently enacted any Special Legislation in relation to the subjects of feeble-mindedness and epilepsy? Or has your Legislature recently appointed a Commission upon these subjects? Or have reports of charitable organizations been made giving the results of systematic investigations carried on in your State upon feeble-mindedness or epilepsy?

"An early reply to these queries, with references, will be greatly appreciated by

"Yours, very respectfully,"

PROVISION FOR THE FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTIC BY OTHER STATES.

REPLIES TO CIRCULARS SENT JUNE 20, 1912, MAKING INQUIRY WITH REGARD TO RECENT LEGISLATION. (44 replies.)

Alabama. In 1907 the Legislature passed an Act to establish an epileptic colony, but no appropriation was made. A board has been appointed, however, and the necessary legislation may be secured this year (1912).

California. The Sonoma State Home for the Care and Training for Feeble-Minded Children, at Eldridge, Sonoma county, which admits epileptics; capacity, 600.

Colorado. In 1909 the Legislature appropriated $70,000 for a school and home for mental defectives. The last Legislature appropriated $117,000 to finish this institution. This institution was expected to begin operations July, 1912.

Connecticut. The General Assembly of 1909 passed an Act for the establishment of a colony for epileptics, which is now in operation. There is also an institution to which the State sends imbecile children—the Connecticut School for Imbeciles, at Lakeville, Litchfield county; capacity, 340.

North Dakota. Has an institution for the feeble-minded at Grafton, Walsh county; capacity, 85.

South Dakota. Has a school for the feeble-minded at Redfield, Spink county, operating in connection with the Northern Hospital for the Insane.

Georgia. Has a State Sanitarium for Insane Epileptics, Milledgeville, Baldwin county.

Idaho. An instiution for the feeble-minded was established by the last Legislature, to be located at Nampa.

Illinois. Has an asylum for feeble-minded children at Lincoln, Logan county; capacity, 1,400. Some years ago an Act was passed by the Legislature to create an epileptic colony, but no appropriation has been made to carry this into effect. It was hoped that the means would be provided by the General Assembly at the next session.

Indiana. A school for feeble-minded youth at Fort Wayne, Allen county; capacity, 1,000.

Iowa. Institution for feeble-minded children, at Glenwood, Mills county; capacity, 200.

Kansas. Home for feeble-minded youth, at Winfield, Cowley county; capacity, 500; and also a State Hospital for Epileptics, at Parsons, Labette county.

Kentucky. Institution for feeble-minded children, at Frankfort; capacity, 200.

Maine. School for feeble-minded, at West Pownal, Cumberland county.

Maryland. Asylum and training school for feeble-minded, Owings Mills, Baltimore; capacity, 150.

Massachusetts. The Massachusetts School for the Feeble-Minded, situated at Waverly, Middlesex county, with colony farm at Templeton; capacity, 1,300. It has a State school, at Wrentham, for children; capacity, 400, and also a State hospital for epileptics, at Monson, Hampden county.

Delinquent women and girls are sent to Sherborne reformatory, boys to Concord reformatory, and men to State farm, at Bridgewater.

Michigan. The Michigan Home for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, at Lapeer, was established by the Legislature in 1893; capacity, 600. All classes of feeble-minded and epileptic persons above the age of six years are received upon commitment by the Probate Court. A special commission has been investigating feeble-mindedness in this State, for the State Board of Health, for a year.

Minnesota. School for Feeble-Minded, at Faribault, Rice county; capacity, 1,000. Also cares for feeble-minded epileptics in a special colony.

Missouri. Has a special colony for feeble-minded and epileptics at Marshall, Saline county, Mo., operating under the State Board of Charities and Correction; capacity, 200.

Montana. Training School for Backward Children, at Boulder, Jefferson county.

Nebraska. Institution for Feeble-Minded Youth, at Beatrice, Gage county; capacity, 360. Also takes epileptics.

New Hampshire. Has a school for feeble-minded children, at Laconia, Belknap county; capacity, 70. An attempt to provide for the epileptics failed at the last session of the Legislature, but will be renewed this year.

New Jersey. In 1909 the Governor appointed a Commission which is still in operation and has published three reports. There is a State institution for feeble-minded women at Vineland; capacity, 150; and a State village for epileptics and feeble-minded at Skillman. Also a private institution for children, known as "The Training School," at Vineland, with a capacity of 500, at which the State maintains about 300 children.

New York. At the recent session of the Legislature a Commission was authoried to pass upon the sterilization of the mentally defective, dependents and others (Chapter 445, Laws of 1912). The subject of epilepsy has been recently investigated at the Carnegie Laboratory. The State of New York has in all five institutions for the feeble-minded and epileptic classes: (1) the State Custodial Asylum for Feeble-Minded Women, at Newark, Wayne county; capacity, 788. (2) Institution for Feeble-Minded Children, at Syracuse; capacity, 548. (3) State Custodial Asylum, at Rome, for Feeble-Minded Persons and Idiots; capacity, 1,300. (4) Letchworth Village, at Theils, for Epileptics and Feeble-Minded Persons; capacity, 60; and (5) Craig Colony for Epileptics, Sonyea; capacity, 1,400. The City of New York has a School for Feeble-Minded Children (capacity, 500) and a Custodial Institution (capacity, 1,300) on Randall's Island, in connection with the Children's Hospital. The State, however, contributes towards the support of the alien poor patients in these institutions.

North Carolina. The last Legislature appropriated $60,000 for a training school for the feeble-minded, to be located at Washington, N. C. Two years ago an epileptic village was instituted in connection with the insane hospital, at Raleigh, known as Dix Hill State Hospital.

Ohio. The Institution for Feeble- Minded Youth, at Columbus, Franklin county (capacity, 1,215), was originally intended only for children, but has been enlarged so as to include a custodial department for adults of both sexes. A farm colony of about 1,200 acres, located about fourteen miles from the original institution, is now in operation for the care and employment of feeble-minded men. There is an institution for the exclusive treatment and care of epileptics.

"The institutions for both classes do not have sufficient capacity to care for all who should be in custody."

Oklahoma. An Institution for Feeble-Minded and Idiotic Children was established at Enid in 1909 by the Legislature, and has barely gotten in operation.

Pennsylvania. (See provision for the feeble-minded and epileptics in this report.)

Rhode Island. Has a school for the feeble-minded at Exeter, instituted by the State in 1907. Capacity, 50 boys and 60 girls (when completed). The United States Census report also gives a similar institution at Slocum, Washington county.

Texas. Has an institution for epileptics at Abilene.

Utah. Four years ago the Legislature made provision for a separate department in the State Mental Hospital, at Provo, Utah county, for the care and treatment of feeble-minded, and sane, epileptics. It has a school and manual training department for inmates and also for day pupils.

Virginia. The General Assembly, in 1910, appointed a Commission to investigate the number and condition of the feeble-minded in Virginia, other than the insane and epileptic. This investigation was continued by the Legislature of 1912. This Commission has published two annual reports. The Legislature, by its recommendation, appropriated $15,000 to build and equip a custodial home on the grounds of the Virginia Epileptic Colony for fifty feeble-minded women of child-bearing age. This institution is situated at Madison Heights and was opened in 1910.

Washington. An Institution for Feeble-Minded and Epileptics, at Medical Lake, Spokane county. School for Defective Children, at Vancouver; capacity, 100.

West Virginia. Has an asylum for insane, feeble-minded and epileptics at Huntingdon, Cabell county; capacity, 150.

Wisconsin. The Legislature of 1907 created a Commission to investigate insanity, feeble-mindedness and epilepsy, but its report has not yet appeared.

The Winconsin Home for the Feeble-Minded, at Chippewa Falls, was established in 1896. No separate institution has yet been created for epileptics, although probably one-third of the inmates are epileptic. "There are 1,100 inmates in this home, and there are probably 3,000 altogether in the State who should have institutional care."

Wyoming. The Legislature, in 1911, appropriated money to finish an institution for feeble-minded and epileptic persons at Lander, and it was opened June 20, 1912.

The following States report no recent legislation on the subject: New Mexico, Arizona, Delaware, Montana, Mississippi, Vermont, Nebraska, Florida, Tennessee.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

Definition of Terms. Feebleness of mind, imbecility, idiocy, constitutional inferiority, and amentia, are terms used to indicate a notable and permanent deficiency of intelligence characterizing certain individuals. "It is a state of mental defect from birth, or from an early age, due to incomplete cerebral development, in consequence of which the person affected is unable to perform his duties as a member of society in the position in life to which he was born." On the moral plane also there is frequently marked deficiency.

By the laws of Pennsylvania this condition is held to be a form of mental unsoundness. It differs from insanity, which is a loss, or aberration, of the mind due to disease or neurotic degeneration, whereas amentia always implies defect or imperfection. It is a stunted condition, and an imbecile is a "mental dwarf."

A moron is a high grade imbecile. Delinquent feeble-minded persons are those who have committed some offense against the law. The dependent feeble-minded are those who are unable to provide for themselves and are dependent upon others for their support. Indigent persons are those who are supported in whole or in part by the poor authorities. The term idiot is now generally restricted to the lowest class of the feeble-minded, although it formerly was used in a much more comprehensive application. The term feeble-minded is a general title applied to all mental defectives, but it has been used occasionally in a restricted sense by some authorities as if referring only to the highest grade, or morons.

Epilepsy is a pathological condition manifested by sudden paroxysms, recurring at variable intervals of time, usually characterized by either local or general muscular twitchings or convlusions of a few moments' duration, followed by stupor, mental disorder, or suspension of consciousness, during which deeds of violence may be committed.

Psychic epilepsy is where the muscular convulsions are suppressed, and the paroxysm is limited to mental symptoms. Epilepsy has been termed the "falling sickness," because when the fit comes on the person usually falls to the ground. Mild attacks are known as Epileptiform Convulsions or Petit Mal. The mental affections following the paroxysms are called by alienists "Epileptic Psychoses." Individuals subject to these attacks are classed as epileptics, no matter what may be the special character which they illustrate.

The tendency of repeated epileptic attacks is to cause mental deterioration of the nature of dementia. On the other hand, cases of feebleness of mind, and also of insanity, are very liable to have epilepsy as a complication. In the case of young, feeble-minded individuals, there is a special tendency to the development of the form of insanity known as "dementia precox." The feeble-minded subject may lose the small amount of mind that he has and become insane, and therefore a proper subject for detention in an institution where the insane are received for care and treatment. In the same manner the epileptic may be received into institutions of this class for the treatment of a temporary psychosis, or he may require permanent detention, owing to persistent mental disorder, or to an uncontrollable tendency to commit deeds of violence.

The sane epileptic is one in whom mental disturbance is not evident, or is limited to somnolency, or dullness, for a short period after the attack. However, cases of this kind were classed among the mental defectives, by the English Royal Commission on the Care and Control of the Feeble-Minded.

CLASSIFICATION OF AMENTS.

The United States Government, in its immigrant legislation, recognizes three groups of mental defectives as distinct from insanity; namely, idiots, imbeciles, and feeble-minded persons. For instance: Section 13 of the Immigration Act (passed February 20, 1907), makes the captain of the steamer certify > "to the effect that he has caused the surgeon of said vessel sailing therewith to make a physical and oral examination of each of said aliens, and that from the report of said surgeon and from his own investigation, he believes that no one of said aliens is an idiot, or imbecile, or a feeble-minded person, or insane person."

This classification, which was adopted by the English Parlimentary Commission of 1908, is that which has been favored by the great majority of the correspondents. Three grades of amentia or feebleness of mind are recognized:

(1) Idiots constitute the lowest grade of aments. An idiot is a person so defective in mind from birth, or from an early age, that he is unable to guard himself from common physical dangers.

*The definition of Amentia here quoted is that which is generally accepted by writers on the subject, and is taken from Dr. A. F. Tredgold's recent work on "Mental Deficiency."

(2) Imbeciles make up an intermediate group of aments between the lowest and the highest grade. An imbecile is one who by reason of mental defect existing from birth, or an early age, is incapable of earning his living, but is capable of guarding himself against common physical dangers.

The idio-imbecile is on the border line, or just above ordinary idiots in intelligence.

(3) Morons constitute the highest grade of the feeble-minded or aments. A defective of this type is defined as one who is capable of earning a living under favorable circumstances, but who, owing to mental defect from birth or from an early age, is not capable of competing on equal terms with his normal associates, or of managing himself or his property with ordinary prudence. A few morons present a one-sided development, exhibiting extraordinary ability in some special field, or aptitude for acquiring certain accomplishments, but possessing very limited capacity in all other directions of effort. A small group known as "moral imbeciles" or "perverts" are remarkably deficient in perception of ethical duties. The delinquent feeble-minded frequently come from this group, which is not so much immoral as it is unmoral, possessing merely the animal type of mind. These make up the "hard cases" and the so-called "born criminals," and are more frequently found in jails and reformatories than in institutions for the feeble-minded. Even in the latter class of institutions, the delinquents cannot with propriety be kept with the ordinary feeble-minded children, but need special custodial institutions.

The feeble-minded girl of child-bearing age, to whom so much attention is now being directed by social workers and charity organizations, is usually of the moron class. Backward children at school may be either imbeciles or morons; but they also may be suffering from some physical conditions, such as deafness, optical defects, or adenoids. In some cases, the arrest of mental development may not be permanent, and such children, when placed under better conditions, in one of our training schools, or even in a special class for backward children at the public school, may recover mental power to a sufficient extent to develop into self-supporting and useful members of society. These cases, however, are of comparatively rare occurrence, and in the overwhelming majority of instances the arrest of development is permanent, and the child-type of mind continues through the remainder of life.

All the preceding forms are included under amentia, or feeble-mindedness, which covers every form of mental defect except insanity.

Mental unsoundness, therefore, is of two kinds:

(1) Amentia:	Arrested development of brain.....	Idiocy Imbecility Feeble-mindedness of the moron type

(2) Insanity: Loss of reason from accident or disease.

Nota bene: All forms of mental unsoundness, of brain abnormalities, are liable to be complicated by epilepsy, and convulsions may also occur in cases where the brain is apparently normal.

THE NUMBER OF AMENTS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

As regards the number of the feeble-minded of the three classes, it was found that comparatively little trouble was experienced in obtaining a census of the first group. Idiots are so helpless, they require so much personal care, and they are such an unpleasant burden, that parents usually are more than willing to part with them. They, therefore, are found almost exclusively among the inmates of the various custodial institutions. In the present investigation, there were reported in State Hospitals for the insane, 58 idiots; in feeble-minded institutions, 268 idiots; in county insane hospitals, 74; and in poor farms and almshouses there were 56, making a total of 456 idiots in these institutions.

Of those who are living in the community, outside of institutions, no estimate is here made, but they are believed to be comparatively few. Letters written to physicians in all parts of the State only succeeded in obtaining reports of sixty-eight unclassified cases of no value for statistical purposes.

The present standard of treatment for idiots in this Commonwealth may be regarded as being fairly satisfactory, as they require, generally speaking, only humane, custodial care, which they are now receiving. Nevertheless, if the State shall accept our recommendation to provide accommodations for all of these low-grade feeble-minded in properly classified institutions, it will afford great relief to the hospitals for the insane, by removing a class of mental defectives who are not insane, and who should not be sent to hospitals for the insane, but always to institutions for the feeble-minded. It will also remove them from the almshouses, where they are likewise out of place, and where they are not as well cared for as if they were in appropriate institutions, designed and conducted with special view to their necessities and comfort.

2. With regard to the imbecile group, or intermediate class, of aments, it is also the fact that a very large majority are already placed in institutions; and of those at large probably nearly all are applicants for custodial care. Although imbeciles require less personal service than do idiots, as they are able to guard themselves against common physical dangers, they still are not able to earn their own living. They are therefore doomed to lead a parasitic existence, and are a burden to their relatives, if they have any, and a nuisance to the community at large, although not very prone to propagation. The aggregate number of these in Pennsylvania, either in custodial institutions or seeking admission, cannot be exactly stated, as in the returns from some of the hospitals, and in the correspondence generally, they are grouped either with the idiots, as idoimbeciles, or with the moron class. They constitute, probably on account of their demand for custodial care, a large proportion of the 4,858 enumerated as "feeble-minded" in the reports which appeared in a preceding section.

3. Regarding the group of morons, or high grade feeble-minded, they are able not only to care for themselves, but also to acquire more or less education and technical training, and, under favorable circumstances, they are able to earn their own living. The difficulty of accurate enumeration of those existing at large in the community is therefore very great, and it is greater among adults than children. In fact, the only reliable information obtainable is that derived from the systematic medical examination of children of school age, and particularly of those now attending the public schools of Philadelphia. At present this system has not been sufficiently developed to be of any practical service in the collection of statistics for this investigation, although in Philadelphia and in Chester county much work has already been performed in this field. Reference has already been made to the work done in Philadelphia, where there are 187,405 children of school age. There are 1,600 now in the special classes for backward children in the public schools of Philadelphia, and more classes should be formed. These classes include truant, incorrigible and backward children, and all are regarded as being mentally defective in a greater or less degree.

From West Chester it was reported that out of 210 children who had repeatedly failed, 44 were probably mentally defective and should receive special medical attention. The reporter insisted that backward children, who do not pass examinations, should be subjected to psychological tests to determine whether or not the cause of the failure is feebleness of mind; and advised that every child found to be defective should be subject to visitation and supervision, and reports made from time to time as to its proper care. Imbeciles should be reported to the health authorities, and not be allowed to marry. Legislation is needed to compel the segregation of feeble-minded and epileptic persons and to forbid the marriage of all mental defectives. The proportion of the feeble-minded among children of school age (between six and sixteen years) is given by this reporter as being between one and seven-eighths and two per cent. of the whole number of attendants.

If the proportion of two per 100 should be adopted, then among the 1,448,000 children now in Pennsylvania, between six and sixteen years of age, there would be no less than 28,960 feeble-minded.

It is undoubtedly a fact that among this group or high grade feeble-minded persons of moron type some are delinquent, and these sooner or later generally find their way into the reformatories and jails. It is estimated that thirty per cent. or more of the inmates of penal institutions would be pronounced mentally defective if examined by alienists, and this proportion increases very decidedly among the old offenders who have had many convictions. The permanent population of the almshouses, unless crippled in body or dotards, consists almost entirely of mental defectives, and on this ground it is claimed, with some logical force, that almshouses should have medical superintendents.

A still larger proportion of delinquent children are mentally defective. Correspondence has revealed that, in the reformatories at Darlington and Glen Mills there are 140 inmates who are regarded as markedly deficient. In his report, the Superintendent of Glen Mills called attention to the difficulty of diagnosis and enumeration "because there are so many sub-normal and defective children who are not so pronouncedly feeble-minded that they would be considered fit subjects for an institution for those so afflicted." And yet, if these sub-normal children were found at large in the community, they would be among the backward children and probably classed as mental defectives. This illustrates the great difficulty of diagnosis of the different groups of the higher types of the feeble-minded.

Before a survey or census of the higher grade feeble-minded persons is seriously undertaken, therefore, it will first be necessary to clearly designate the limits of ordinary intelligence, so that we may assume that individuals possessing mental endowment demonstrably below this standard shall be authoriatively declared to be defective. In other words, a type of mind must be established as a normal standard for the age, race and social status of each individual, and he who falls below this to a recognizable degree is ipso facto feeble-minded.

As a matter of fact, no such standard has anywhere been established, and the borderline between soundness and unsoundness of minds is elusive and vague. As morons of the first class are, under favorable circumstances, able to earn their own support and to take care of themselves, they merge insensibly into the general population. Their pecularities and unconventional lapses attract very little attention, except where they are of the "moral imbecile" type, or illustrate criminal proclivities which bring them into notice as delinquents.

But, until these individuals become delinquents or dependents, they are a part of the general community, from which they cannot readily be distinguished. For this reason the exact number of the higher class of the moron type cannot be computed. It may be that there are 18,000 at large in Pennsylvania, or there may be 15,000 or only 10,000, but the number is probably much greater than those who are now reported as receiving institutional care. The stated number must necessarily vary with the degree of mentality which is taken as a standard, and also, undoubtedly, is affected by the personal equation of the observer. If all backward children, phychopathic personalities, cranks and degenerates are to be included in the group of feeble-minded, the aggregate in Pennsylvania may be greater than the highest estimate mentioned. Truly "a great multitude which no man could number."

There are, unfortunately, no obtainable data upon which to base even an approximate estimate of the number of feeble-minded women of the moron type and of child-bearing age, who are at alrge in the community, and for whom provision by the State might be demanded.

STATUS OF THE FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTIC.

The status of the mental defective classes may be considered from the legal, moral, industrial and social points of vitw.

(1) Legally, feeble-mindedness as a condition of mental unsoundness, is regarded as a disqualification in law, and in practice is universally accepted as a plea in extenuation for delinquency. Where the mental disability is of a degree which renders the afflicted individuals unfit for citizenship, or a menace to the peace, they are regarded and treated as anti-social beings, and may be permanently segregated in institutions especially constructed for their reception and care. The condition of mind in amentia is irremediable, the segregation as the rule should therefore be permanent. The condition could not be more tersely described than in the words of Blackstone: "An idiot, or natural fool, is one that hath had no understanding from his nativity, and, therefore, is by law presumed never likely to attain any."

For imbeciles and morons incompetent to manage their own affairs the courts appoint guardians or committees of the person and estate, thus recognizing the fact that, by perpetual infirmity, such persons are doomed to life-long childhood and dependency.

(2) The status of aments from the moral, industrial and social standpoint may be briefly comprehended in the term "inferiority." They are not only deficient in mind, but they are weak and unstable in will, lacking in self-control, and motivated by unconventional standards of conduct. As mentally unsound, they are universally acknowledged to be irresponsible for their actions in proportion to the degree of existing mental defect.

(3) Industrially the higher classes of morons in institutions may be made to be self-spporting, and even the middle class may perform useful farm and garden labor, or technical work of a simple kind if under institutional care.

(4) Socially, the feeble-minded at large in the community constitute a very grave and complex problem. The questions arising from poverty, degradation of body and mind, and delinquency are intimately related to, and inextricably commingled with, this condition of amentia. One thing is certain, however, and that is the fact that reckoning must be taken of this large class of irresponsible, defective citizens, who are a menace to the rest of the community. Mr. Thomas Holmes, Secretary of the Howard Association, has forcefully called attention to this fact in a work recently published, entitled "London's Underworld." He declares that "there exists a large class of persons who are utterly incapable of flulfilling the duties of decent citizenship. It may be that they are wicked, and it is certain that they are weak; but whether wicked or weak, they have descended by the law of moral gravitation and have found their level in the lowest depths of civilized life * * * * and are now quite content with their present conditions. Whether born of refined parents, or of rude and ignorant parents, whether coming from a tramping stock or from settled home life, they have one thing in common: it is this—the life they live has a powerful attraction for them; they could not, if they would, and would not, if they could, live lives that demand decency, discipline and industry. Nothing but compulsion will ever induce them to submit themselves to disciplined life."

The time appears to have come for society to take active steps to control vagrancy. If a man has no home, it is to the interest of the community and within the police powers of the State to inquire why he is homeless. Professional tramps and vagabonds are regarded as mental defectives and should be permanently detained and made to work. Provision should be made by society for all persons who are hopelessly crippled or disabled, so that they may not become criminals or vagrants. Reform schools are required for young delinquents, both for those who are known to be mentally defective and those not so classified. Finally, but of primary consequence—and here Mr. Holmes again is quoted—"provision should be made by competent authority for all of the feeble-minded, and especially of the women of child-bearing age who are mentally defective. As there does not seem to be any other constituted authority of sufficient power and means to undertake this work, it is clearly a function which can be and should be assumed by the State."

In the meantime a system of medical inspection of schools and the registration of imbeciles, the supervision of lodging houses, and co-ordination of charity organizations so as to form a State-wide society with branches in every poor district throughout the State, should be encouraged and approved by the authorities of the Commonwealth, as well as by all others who are interested in the progress of civilization and the preservation of proper standards or living.

PROVISION FOR THE FEEBLE-MINDED AND EPILEPTIC BY PENNSYLVANIA.

The State care of the class of indigent, mental defectives in Pennsylvania began with the Act which created the State Lunatic Hospital, at Harrisburg, which was approved April 14, 1845. At that time the term "lunatic" included both the insane and idiots. Up to the date of the establishment of the Institution for Feeble-Minded, at Polk, Venango county (which was approved June 3, 1893), the term "lunatic" was generally construed to "mean and include any person of unsound mind whether he may have been such from his nativity, as idiot, or have become such from any cause whatever." (Act relating to Lunatics and Habitual Drunkards, P. L. 1835-6, p. 589.) Consequently both the feeble-minded and insane who required custodial care could be legally committed to the institutions for the insane. The first provision for the training of feeble-minded children in this Commonwealth was by an appropriation which was made when the Pennsylvania Training School for Idiots and Feeble-Minded Children was established at Elwyn, Delaware county, in 1853. By the creation of the institutions at Polk and Spring City, especially designed for the care of the feeble-minded, the State has positively and finally established the distinction between the two classes of institutions: (1) those for the insane, and (2) those for the care of the feeble-minded.

Pennsylvania has the following institutions specifically devoted to the care of feeble-minded and epileptic persons:

(1) The Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded, situated at Polk, Venango county, which is especially designed for feeble-minded children, but also may accept adults of inoffensive habits. It also has some epileptics. Total capacity, 1,600.

(2) The Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for Feeble-Minded and Epileptics, at Spring City, Chester county. This institution is intended for both sexes, but is incomplete, and now has a capacity for 500 boys. The department for girls is on the unfinished plan (same capacity).

The Pennsylvania Training School for Idiotic and Feeble-Minded Children, at Elwyn (capacity, 1,100), is a State-aided, private institution. The State supports 700 inmates by special Act of Legislature ($280,000 for two years).

There are two colonies of epileptics under private management, but which are aided by the State by special appropriations:

(1) Pennsylvania Colony for Epileptics, Oakbourne, Delaware county; capacity, 90.

(2) The Passavant Memorial Home, Rochester, Beaver county; capacity, 65.

The Legislature of 1911 made an appropriation of $200,000 towards the Philadelphia Institution for Feeble-Minded, at Byberry, which is now under construction. It is, at least at its beginning, intended to be especially devoted to the imbecile and moron types of defective women. Its capacity will be 500.

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS.

FINDINGS.

AS TO THE NUMBER OF AMENTS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The ament class of mental defectives in this Commonwealth, on May 31, 1912, was composed of a certain number (over 5,000) of feeble-minded persons, who were receiving institutional care, and an uncertain number outside of institutions, distributed among the general community, estimated to be twice as many, therefore, the entire number may aggregate about 15,000 of all classes. Of those at large, 966, or nearly one thousand, are applicants for institutional care, and their names are to be found upon the waiting lists at Polk, Spring City, and Elwyn. Of the 9,000 assumed to be remaining in the community at large some are to be found in special classes for backward children at the public schools and also in the private schools. A larger number are in the reformatories, houses of refuge, jails and penitentiaries. Many are permanent residents of almshouses and work-houses; others are homeless vagrants. Probably, by far the largest number are more or less self-supporting at some form or unskilled labor. Of this group comparatively few become delinquents, and thus come under the notice of the police authorities, or become dependents and get their names on the lists of charity organizations. Probably, by far the majority of the morons at large in the community are neither dependents nor delinquents, and under existing legislation not subject to commitment for institutional care.

AS TO THE CAUSE OF AMENTIA.

It is a fact now universally accepted that the condition of feebleness of mind is almost entirely due to hereditary influence. Thus, the offspring of two feeble-minded parents is always feeble-minded; where only one parent is feeble-minded, this defect will appear in about half the children; but it may be latent in the remaining children, and may re-appear in subsequent generations. A feeble-minded child may thus be the offspring of apparently normal parents through an earlier defective ancestor. Alcoholism, immortality and poverty degrade body and mind, but in most instances it is probably true that they are the results of this condition rather than the cause. They are certainly contributory causes, and as such present in themselves serious social and medico-legal problems for consideration.

It is believed by some good authorities, however, that a more direct relation can be traced between inebriety and mental defect, especially in the offspring of drunken parents. It has been asserted, with much appearance of truth, that fathers suffering with alcoholism beget imbecile and epileptic children; but this teaching has not been universally established among alienists. If further investigation shall prove that this is true, the State will have an additional reason, and a greatly increased interest, in the movement for adopting stricter regulations controlling the sale to the public of all intoxicating drugs, but especially alcohol.

AS TO PREVENTIVE MEASURES.

On account of the hereditary character of mental defect, it is important for the State to take some effective steps toward limiting the increase of the number of feeble-minded. Two principal methods have been pursued to accomplish this important result: (1) Segregation of the feeble-minded in classified institutions, keeping the adults of the different sexes widely separated, and (2) sterilization or asexualization. The method of depriving individuals of procreative power by surgical procedure is approved by high authority among alienists. This expedient indeed has been legalized by several States of the Union for mental defectives and confirmed criminals: California, Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Nevada, New Jersey, New York and Washington. Bills are pending before the Legislatures of several other States, in which the operative procedure knows as "Vasectomy" is approved for chronic insane or defective male patients, with certain restrictions. At the last session of Legislature of New York a Commission was appointed to investigate this matter. Such an Act was also presented before the last session of the Assembly of Pennsylvania, but failed to become a law. This was entitled "An Act to prevent the procreation of idiots, imbeciles, and feeble-minded persons by the process of sterlization under certain circumstances, and prescribing the conditions under which it may be performed," and it has come up again for action at the present session. This appears to be a conservative measure, throwing every necessary safeguard around the individual, even requiring the authority of the courts before it can be done at all. The operation has been already performed with consent of parents or guardians in some institutions in Pennsylvania and it is believed it might well be legalized and practiced in selecting cases with benefit.

AS TO SEGREGATION.

Segregation of the feeble-minded of the institutional type, however, will continue to remain the principal means of protection which society can provide. Sterilization may be more effective and more economical than segregation, and yet, taking into consideration the comparatively small proportion of the whole number upon whom it could legally be performed, and also the rigor of the personal safeguards by which it would be surrounded, it must have but a limited degree of efficiency as compared with the older method of institutional care.

AS TO THE FEEBLE-MINDED WOMAN OF CHILD-BEARING AGE.

As this class constitutes a grave menace to society, the Commission is firmly convinced that sterilization, or compulsory, custodial provision of such character as to prevent further increase of mental defectives (or both) should be provided for. The time appears to have come when the State, for its own protection, is compelled to assume control over a class which is now spreading immorality and disease, and which is steadily increasing the number of defective delinquents and criminals. However, as the public, in our opinion, is not quite ready to endorse so drastic a measure, we do not present a bill covering this view at this time.

AS TO PLANS FOR INSTITUTIONS.

As regards the plans for institutions, it is the opinion of the Commission, speaking in a general way, that the buildings must admit of proper classification of the inmates, and therefore, must be comparatively large, so as to include a group of small, component colonies. Thus, an institution should primarily provide a large central group of buildings for a training school for children of teachable capacity under sixteen years of age. Provision must be also made for an asylum for idiots, and subsidiary institutions for male and female adults, widely separated. Buildings of distinctly custodial character should be constructed for delinquents. Or special provision might be made in other institutions as in Massachusetts.

AS TO GROUND SPACE REQUIRED.

Such an institution would require about one acre of ground for each inmate, and should be so situated as to be convenient of access by railroad, but necessarily somewhat remote from large cities, and in an agricultural neighborhood.

AS TO PRESENT PROVISION IN PENNSYLVANIA FOR FEEBLE-MINDED.

The Commission, by its correspondence with other States has brought to light an interesting fact, which is highly creditable to the liberality of the citizens of Pennsylvania. It appears that the provision of institutions for the feeble-minded by this State is actually larger than that by any other State in the Union, and no other State has as large a number of this class receiving State care as Pennsylvania. Thus, Polk has a present bed capacity of 1,600; Spring City, 500; Elwyn, 1,100; making an aggregate of 3,200 beds. When Spring City is finished, according to present plans, it will add 500 more to this total. These plans, however, will extend very much beyond the present capacity, so that Spring City will ultimately have room for 1,500 more. The Philadelphia Institution for the Feeble-Minded, now under construction, will provide accommodations for 500 additional aments, thus increasing the prospective bed capacity to 5,200 in State and semi-State institutions in Pennsylvania. In point of fact, the total number of feeble-minded persons of all grades now receiving institutional care of all kinds in this Commonwealth is actually 5,314 at the time of making this report.

AS TO THE PROVISION FOR EPILEPTICS.

There are at the present time 1,724 persons who are classed as epileptics in our institutions for the feeble-minded and the insane. The epileptics are regarded by good authorities as being out of place in these two classes of institutions, where they are a disturbing element. Special provision is needed of an institution for this unfortunate class, and preferably in a colony which can receive the sane epileptic for treatment as well as the defective, delinquent or insane epileptic. This Commonwealth has one State institution, the Eastern Pennsylvania Institution for Feeble-Minded and Epileptic (capacity, 500), and two State-aided colonies at Oakbourne and Rochester (capacity, 150).

AS TO THE PRESENCE OF INDIGENT ALIENS IN STATE INSTITUTIONS.

The attention of the Commission has been attracted to the presence in State institutions for the feeble-minded, as well as in hospitals for the insane, of a considerable number of persons of foreign birth, who are not American citizens and have been in this country only a few years. The authorities in charge of these institutions report an increasing number of indigent aliens among the population. From the statistics of hospitals for the insane, in a neighboring State, it has been ascertained that the increase in the proportion of insanity above that which would be accounted for by the normal increase of the population can be directly traced to the extraordinary increase during recent years in the number of immigrants from Europe. The attention of the United States Immigration authorities has been already directed to this condition, and the State of New York has appointed a Special Commission to investigate and report upon the alien insane, which has invited other States to take part in a conference. The Governor of Pennsylvania has appointed the Secretary of the Committee on Lunacy to represent Pennsylvania in the conference.

AS TO SUPERVISION.

In Pennsylvania the supervision of the feeble-minded is only a general one, and is now a function of the Board of Public Charities. In many other States the supervision of all classes of mental defect and disorder is vested in a Committee on Lunacy in those States in which such special organization has been established by the Legislature.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The passage of an Act increasing the scope of the Eastern Pennsylvania Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, at Spring City, so as to make it a general institution for all classes.

The passage of appropriation Acts to complete and enlarge the institution at Spring City, and to enlarge the institution at Polk, so as to provide accommodations, at the earliest possible moment, for at least 1,000 additional inmates in each institution.

The establishment of epileptic colonies at both of these institutions, to be located at a distance from the main group of buildings, but under the same administrative control, to take care of from 300 to 500 patients.

The establishment of custodial wards in both institutions for delinquent, dangerous, criminal imbeciles. When it shall be found that the number of these will warrant their being placed in a separate institution for the delinquent feeble-minded or epileptic, such institution should be constructed.

The passage of an Act providing a State institution for the custodial treatment of inebriates. Under the Act of 1903, amended May 28, 1907, the victims of drug addiction and alcoholism may be committed for a period not to exceed one year to a "proper hospital or asylum," but this institution, although repeatedly recommended by the Board of Public Charities, the State Medical Society of Pennsylvania and other organizations has not yet been provided by the State. The fact that alcoholism and feeble-mindedness are so intimately related brings this subject within the province of this Commission, which from its investigation feels warranted in making the declaration that alcoholism, next to heredity, is the most prominent contributory cause in producing mental defect, degeneration and disease.

The passage of an Act calling attention to the presence of an increasingly large number of mentally defective aliens in our public institutions and hospitals, and especially recommending a change in the law, or ruling, of the United State Immigration Bureau, so that aments who are found to be suffering with any form of feebleness of mind and epilepsy shall be deportable at any time, without regard to the three year limit established for the insane.

The passage of an Act defining insanity and feeble-mindedness as forms of mental unsoundness, and placing all indigent mental defectives under the care of the State, under the supervision of the Committee on Lunacy, especially requiring reports to be made of all persons committed by the courts and detained in these institutions.

The passage of an Act regulating marriage, by which any person who has been registered or committed as feeble-minded shall not be permitted to marry without consent of the court of the county in which the said person has been registered or committed, and making it a misdemeanor for any clergyman, or other authority, to conduct the ceremony of marriage for feeble-minded persons, imbeciles, or idiots, or to issue a license for marriage of such persons.

Finally, since at the present time great public interest has been aroused in all matters relating to the defective and dependent classes, and as the Governor of Pennsylvania, in his Annual Message, has directed the attention of the Assembly to this subject, and recommended the appointment of a Special Commission to investigate and report upon all questions arising from, or connected with, the subject of the dependent classes—this Commission respectfully approves this recommendation and urges that a Commission shall be created by your honorable bodies, charged with the special duty of inquiring into methods of commitment, detention, support, parole and discharge of all forms of mental unsoundness in Pennsylvania, and generally to investigate and make report upon all subjects related to the State provision for the dependent classes and the laws governing the same.

Respectfully submitted,

APPENDIX.

AN ACT

Supplementary to an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-Minded, to be called The Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded, and making an appropriation therefor," approved the third day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, amending the title and the Ninth, Tenth, Fourteenth and Eighteenth Sections of said Act, so as to extend the powers of the trustees of said institution and provide for the method of admission to said institution and of discharge therefrom; providing for the payment for the care and maintenance of indigent inmates of said institution by the Commonwealth, and the payment of the costs of all committals thereto by the several counties; authorizing transfers of the idiotic, feeble-minded and epileptic persons to and from said institution, and repealing the Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Sections of said Act.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the title of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-Minded, to be called The Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded, and making an appropriation therefor," approved the third day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, to be called The Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and making an appropriation therefor.

Section 2. That the Ninth Section of said Act, which reads as follows:

"Section 9. The said commissioners, upon the completion of the said institution, shall surrender their trust to a board of trustees to consist of nine members, who shall serve without compensation, and be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Said trustees shall be a body politic or corporate, of the name and style of The State Institution for the Feeble-Minded of Western Pennsylvania. They shall manage and direct the concerns of the institution, and make all necessary by-laws and regulations, not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the Commonwealth. Of the trustees first appointed three shall serve for one year, three for two years, and three for three years, and at the expiration of the respective periods the vacancies shall be filled by the Governor by appointment for three years as hereinbefore provided, and should any vacancy occur by death or resignation or otherwise, of any trustee, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment, as aforesaid, for the unexpired term of such manager," be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 9. The said commissioners, upon the completion of the said institution, shall surrender their trust to a board of trustees, to consist of nine members, who shall serve without compensation, and be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Said trustees shall be a body politic or corporate, of the name and style of The State Institution for the Feeble-Minded of Western Pennsylvania. They shall manage, control and direct all the affairs of the institution, appoint and remove at pleasure all officers and employees thereof, and make all necessary regulations not herein otherwise specifically provided and not contrary to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, for the detention, care, treatment, maintenance, employment and subsistence of the inmates of the institution, assign such duties as they may deem proper to the several officers and employees, and exercise such other powers as are elsewhere conferred upon them by this Act. Of the trustees first appointed three shall serve for one year, three for two years and three for three years, and at the expiration of the respective periods the vacancies shall be filled by the Governor, by appointment for three years as hereinbefore provided, and should any vacancy occur by death or resignation or otherwise of any trustee, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment as aforesaid for the unexpired term of said trustee.

Section 3. The Section Ten of said Act, which reads as follows:

"Section 10. That this institution shall be entirely and especially devoted to the reception, detention, care and training of idiotic and feeble-minded children, and shall be so planned in the beginning and construction as shall provide separate classification of the numerous groups embraced under the terms idiotic and imbecile or feeble-minded. Cases afflicted with either epilepsy or paralysis shall have a due proportion of space and care in the custodial department. It is specifically determined that the processes of an agricultural training shall be primarily considered in the educational department, and that the employment of the inmates in the care and raising of stock and the cultivation of small fruits, vegetables, roots, et cetera, shall be made largely tributary to the maintenance of the institution," be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 10. That this institution shall be entirely and specially devoted to the reception, segregation, detention, care and training of epileptics and idiotic and feeble-minded persons of either sex, and shall be so planned in the beginning and construction as shall provide separate classification of the numerous groups embraced under the terms idiotic, epileptic, and imbecile or feeble-minded. Cases afflicted with either epilepsy or paralysis shall have a due proportion of space and care in the custodial department. It is specifically determined that the processes of an agricultural training shall be primarily considered in the educational department, and that the employment of the inmates in the care and raising of stock, and the cultivation of small fruits, vegetables, roots, et cetera, shall be made tributary to the maintenance of the institution.

Section 4. That Section Fourteen of said Act, which reads as follows:

"Section 14. Said board shall receive as inmates of said institution feeble-minded children, residents of this State, under the age of twenty years, who shall be incapable of receiving instruction in the common schools of this State. Said board shall prescribe, and cause to be printed, instructions and forms of application for the admission of such, and shall include therein interrogatories to which they shall require answers, under oath, showing such facts as they may be needed for the information of the said trustees. Such printed instructions and forms shall be furnished to all applicants for the admission of any person or patient, in whole or in part as a State beneficiary, and shall be endorsed by the board of commissioners or directors of the poor of the county in which he or she resides at the time of the making of the application," be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 14. Said board of trustees shall receive as inmates of said institution only such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic persons as may be committed thereto in the manner hereinafter provided by any of the courts of quarter sessions of the following named counties in the Commonwealth, viz:

Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Blair, Butler, Cambria, Cameron, Centre, Clarion, Clearfield, Clinton, Crawford, Elk, Erie, Fayette, Forest, Fulton, Greene, Huntingdon, Indiana, Jefferson, Juniata, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer, Mifflin, Potter, Somerset, Venango, Warren, Washington and Westmoreland.

It shall be lawful for the husband, wife, parent, guardian or other person standing in loco parentis to such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, his or her next of kin, the county commissioners or the overseers of the poor, or the managers or trustees of any institution having such person in charge, or the district attorney of the county in which such person shall reside, to apply by petition to the court of quarter sesssins of the county in which said idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person shall be resident, setting forth in said petition the age, sex and residence of such person, the address of his or her parents and the address of the petitoner, praying for the commitment of such person to The Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, which said petition shall be accompanied by a certificate, made under oath, after a personal examination of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person by a reputable physician with an experience of at least five years in the actual practice of his profession, setting forth that such person is an idiot, of feeble mind or an epileptic, and a proper subject for commitment to said institution. Thereupon the said court or a judge thereof shall appoint a day for the hearing of the said petition, and shall cause notice thereof to be given to all parties in interest, and if at the said hearing it shall be made to appear that such person is an idiot, of feeble mind or an epileptic and a proper subject for commitment to said institution, and that the best interests of the said person or the welfare of society require such commitment, the court shall make an order committing such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person to the said Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and direct his or her removal thereto by a proper officer or person at the cost of the said county.

At the said hearing the said court or judge shall inquire as to the estate of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, and if the same be sufficient for the purpose, shall make an order directing the payment therefrom of the cost of maintaining such person in said institution; otherwise, that such payment be made by the husband or parent of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, if it appear that the circumstances of said husband or parent are such as to make such an order proper and advisable, and any such order shall be enforceable in the same manner in which orders in desertion cases are now enforceable by law. Where the estate of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person is insufficient, and the circumstances of her husband or his or her parent are not such as to warrant an order for maintenance or either of them, the said idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person shall be maintained and cared for in the said institution at the cost of the Commonwealth.

The costs of such hearing shall be paid by the county, and the court may, in its discretion, allow a fee of five (5) dollars to the physician making the examination, and a fee of ten (10) dollars to the attorney presenting the petition and appearing at the hearing, which fees shall be paid by the county.

The said board of trustees shall also receive all such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic persons as may be transferred to such institution from any other State institution by the Committee on Lunacy of the Board of Public Charities, and the said Committee on Lunacy shall have authority to transfer any inmate of said institution to any other proper State institution.

When, in the opinion of the board of trustees, it appears probable that the mental condition of any inmate of said institution has so improved that his or her release will be beneficial to such inmate and not incompatible with the welfare of society the said board may recommend the discharge of such inmate to the court committing him or her to said institution, which recommendation shall be accompanied by a record of the case of such inmate, setting forth the date of his or her commitment, the time of his or her detention, the history of his or her case in the institution, and the opinion of the superintendent and medical staff as to his or her present mental condition, whereupon the said court may, in its discretion, after hearing all persons desirous of being heard in the premises, issue an order, under the seal of the court, upon the said board to discharge the said inmate from the said institution.

Section 5. That Section Eighteen of said Act, which reads as follows:

"Section 18. The said board of trustees shall appoint a skillful physician, who shall be superintendent, and shall be competent to oversee and direct the medical, hygienic, educational and industrial interests of the institution, and shall have charge and supervision of the entire institution, both professional and otherwise. He shall name for appointment such and so many assistants, attendants and employees as may be considered necessary by the said board of trustees, and, with the approval of the trustees, shall appoint a steward who shall have charge, under the direction of such superintendent, of the employment of the inmates of said institution, and the purchase, production and distribution of all supplies, under such rules and regulations as may be established by such trustees.

"The salaries of the superintendent, matrons, teachers, assistants, and attendants, of the institution shall be fixed by the board of trustees," be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 18. The said board of trustees shall appoint a skilled physician, who shall be a graduate of a legally chartered medical college, with an experience of at least five years in the actual practice of his profession, who shall be the superintendent of said institution, with such powers as said board may confer upon him, and such board shall also appoint such instructors, assistants, matrons, stewards, attendants and employees as may be necessary for the proper maintenance, discipline and government of said institution, and remove the same from time to time at pleasure, and shall fix the compensation of all said officers and employees. The said board shall also have authority to employ legal counsel from time to time as occasion may require and as they may deem necessary."

Section 6. That Sections Eleven, Twelve, Thirteen, Fifteen and Sixteen of the said Act, entitled "An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State institution for the feeble-minded, to be called The Western Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-minded, and making an appropriation therefor," approved the third day of June, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, and all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent herewith, be, and the same are hereby repealed.

A FURTHER SUPPLEMENT

To an Act, entitled "An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, to be called the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and making an appropriation therefor," approved the fifteenth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and three, prescribing the purposes of said institution; amending the Ninth and Thirteenth Sections of said Act, so as to extend the powers of the trustees of said institution and provide for the method of admission to said institution and of discharge therefrom; providing for the payment for the care and maintenance of indigent inmates of said institution by the Commonwealth, and the payment of the costs of all committals thereto by the several counties; authorizing transfers of idiotic feeble-minded and epileptic persons to and from said institution, and repealing the Eleventh, Twelfth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Sections of said Act.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic shall be devoted to the segregation, care maintenance, treatment, training and education of epileptic, idiotic, imbecile or feeble-minded persons of both sexes, and shall provide separate classification for the various grades of patients. For male patients especial attention shall be given to providing an agricultural training and their employment in the cultivation of the land, raising stock, fruits, vegetables, et cetera, in accordance with such regulations as the Board may prescribe.

Section 2. That Section Nine of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-minded and Epileptic, to be called the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and making an appropriation therefor," approved the fifteenth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and three, which reads as follows:

"Section 9. The said commissioners, upon the completion of the said institution, shall surrender their trust to a board of trustees; to consist of nine members, who shall serve without compensation, and be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Said trustees shall be a body politic or corporate, of the name and style of the State Institution for Feeble-Minded of Eastern Pennsylvania. They shall manage and direct the concerns of the institution, and make all necessary by-laws and regulations, not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the Commonwealth. Of the trustees first appointed, three shall serve for one year, three for two years, and three for three years; and, at the expiration of their respective periods, the vacancies shall be filled by the Governor, by appointment for three years as hereinbefore provided, and should any vacancy occur, by death or resignation or otherwise, of any trustee, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment, as aforesaid, for the unexpired term of such manager," be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 9. The said commissioners, upon the completion of the said institution, shall surrender their trust to a board of trustees; to consist of nine members, who shall serve without compensation, and be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Said trustees shall be a body politic or corporate, of the name and style of the State Institution for Feeble-Minded of Eastern Pennsylvania. They shall manage, control and direct all the affairs of the institution, appoint and remove at pleasure all officers and employees thereof, make all necessary regulations not herein otherwise specifically provided and not contrary to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth, for the detention, care, treatment, maintenance, employment and subsistence of the inmates of the institution, assign such duties as they may deem proper to the several officers and employees, and exercise such other powers as are elsewhere conferred upon them by this Act. Of the trustees first appointed, three shall serve for one year, three for two years and three for three years; and, at the expiration of the respective periods, the vacancies shall be filled by the Governor, by appointment for three years as hereinbefore provided, and should any vacancy occur by death or resignation or otherwise of any trustee, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment as aforesaid for the unexpired term of said trustee.

Section 3. That Section Thirteen of said Act, which reads as follows:

"Section 13. Said board shall receive as inmates of said institution feeble-minded children, residents of this State, under the age of twenty years, who shall be incapable of receiving instruction in the common schools of this State. Said board shall prescribe, and cause to be printed, instructions and forms of application for the admission of such children; and shall include therein interrogatories to which they shall require answers, under oath, showing such facts as may be needed for the information of the said trustees. Such printed instructions and forms shall be furnished to all applicants for the admission of any person or patient, in whole or in part as a State beneficiary, and shall be endorsed by the Board of Commissioners or Directors of the Poor of the county in which he or she resides at the time of the making of the application," be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 13. Said board of trustees shall receive as inmates of said institution only such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic persons as may be committed thereto in the manner hereinafter provided by any of the Courts of Quarter Sessions of the following named counties in the Commonwealth, viz:

Adams, Berks, Bradford, Bucks, Carbon, Chester, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Franklin, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Perry, Philadelphia, Pike, Schuylkill, Snyder, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Union, Wayne, Wyoming and York.

It shall be lawful for the husband, wife, parent, guardian or other person standing in loco parentis to such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, his or her next of kin, the county commissioners or the overseers of the poor, or the managers or trustees of any institution having such person in charge, or the District Attorney of the county in which such person shall reside, to apply by petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions of the county in which said idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person shall be resident, setting forth in said petition the age, sex and residence of such person, the address of his or her parents and the address of the petitioner, praying for the commitment of such person to the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, which said petition shall be accompanied by a certificate, made under oath, after a personal examination of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, by a reputable physician with an experience of at least five years in the actual practice of his profession, setting forth that such person is an idiot, of feeble mind or an epileptic, and a proper subject for commitment to said institution. Thereupon the said court or a judge thereof shall appoint a day for the hearing of the said petition and shall cause notice thereof to be given to all parties in interest, and if at the said hearing it shall be made to appear that said person is an idiot, of feeble mind or an epileptic, and a proper subject for commitment to said institution, and that the best interests of the said person or the welfare of society require such commitment, the court shall make an order committing such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person to the said Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and direct his or her removal thereto by a proper officer or person at the cost of the said county.

At the said hearing the said court or judge shall inquire as to the estate of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, and if the same be sufficient for the purpose, shall make an order directing the payment therefrom of the cost of maintaining such person in said institution; otherwise that such payment be made by the husband or parent of such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person, if it appear that the circumstances of said husband or parent are such as to make such an order proper and advisable; and any such order shall be enforceable in the same manner in which orders in desertion cases are now enforceable by law. Where the estate of said idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person is insufficient, and the circumstances of her husband or his or her parent are not such as to warrant an order for maintenance, on either of them, the said idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic person shall be maintained and cared for in the said institution at the cost of the Commonwealth.

The costs of such hearing shall be paid by the county, and the court may, in its discretion, allow a fee of five (5) dollars to the physician making the examination and a fee of ten (10) dollars to the attorney presenting the petition and appearing at the hearing, which fees shall be paid by the county.

The said board of trustees shall also receive all such idiotic, feeble-minded or epileptic persons as may be transferred to such institution from any other State institution by the Committee on Lunacy of the Board of Public Charities, and the said Committee on Lunacy shall have authority to transfer any inmate of said institution to any other proper State Institution.

When, in the opinion of the board of trustees, it appears probable that the mental condition of any inmate of said institution has so improved that his or her release will be beneficial to such inmate and not incompatible with the welfare of society, the said board may recommend the discharge of such inmate to the court committing him or her to said institution, which recommendation shall be accompanied by a record of the case of such inmate, setting forth the date of his or her commitment, the time of his or her detention, the history of his or her case in the institution and the opinion of the superintendent and medical staff as to his or her present mental condition, whereupon the said court may, in its discretion, after hearing all persons desirous of being heard in the premises, issue an order under the seal of the court upon the said board to discharge the said inmate from the said institution.

Section 4. That Sections Eleven, Twelve, Fourteen and Fifteen of the said Act, entitled "An Act to provide for the selection of a site and erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, to be called the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and making an appropriation therefor," approved the fifteenth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and three, and Section Two of an Act entitled "An Act supplementing an Act, approved the fifteenth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and three, entitled 'An Act to provide for the selection of a site and the erection of a State Institution for the Feeble-minded and Epileptic, to be called the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institution for the Feeble-Minded and Epileptic, and making an appropriation therefor,' by abolishing the commission therein established; providing for the completion of said institution; regulating the powers of the board of trustees; and repealing the Tenth and Seventeenth sections thereof," approved the twentieth day of June, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven, and all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

REPORT OF PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION, MARCH 1, 1913.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION.

Scranton, Pa., March 1, 1913.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

To His Excellency, John K. Tener, and the Honorable the Senators and Representatives in the General Assembly of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:—The Pennsylvania State Anthracite Mine Cave Commission, created by the following joint resolution of the Legislature approved by the Governor March 24, 1911, has the honor to submit herewith its report.

CREATION OF COMMISSION.

A Joint Resolution for the appointment of a commission by the Governor of this Commonwealth, for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon both physical conditions and legal rights in the matter of surface support, where Anthracite coal has been removed, or the right to remove said coal is vested in others than the owner of the surface; and for the further purpose of suggesting new legislation relative to the same; and making an appropriation to meet the expenses of said commission

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the Governor of the Commonwealth be and is hereby authorized and required to appoint nine competent citizens,—of whom four shall be recognized mining experts, selected from among the large corporations interested in the mining of Anthracite coal, and five shall be disinterested citizens, selected from within the Anthracite regions,—to investigate and report upon both physical conditions and legal rights in the matter of surface support where coal has been removed, or the right to remove said coal is vested in others than the owners of the surface; and for the further purpose of suggesting new legislation relative to the same; and an appropriation to meet the expenses of said commission.

Section 2. That the duties of the said commission shall be to ascertain, from investigation, the legal rights of the owners of the surface and the coal beneath the same, and what precaution in the mining of said coal is necessary to properly support the surface, and prepare a bill to the Legislature, as they shall deem necessary, to protect the welfare and interests of both the owners of coal and surface.

Section 3. That said commission shall report the result of their labor to the Legislature that shall convene in one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, on or before the first day of February of said year, or at an earlier period, if in their judgment the situation should demand urgency. They shall serve without compensation, but shall be reimbursed for necessary expenses.

Section 4. That said commission shall meet and organize within thirty days of their appointment, and elect a president and secretary, and as promptly as possible proceed to perform their duties. The commissioners shall have authority to employ such experts and such other employes as are necessary to the proper transaction of the business of the commission. The said commission shall also have power to compel the attendance of witnesses, and the production of books, papers and other evidence, at any meeting of the commission; and for that purpose may issue suppoenas, signed by the president of the commission, and cause the same to be served and executed in any part of the Commonwealth; and if any witness shall refuse to testify as to any fact within his knowledge, or to produce any books or papers within his possession or under his control, the secretary of the commission shall forthwith report the facts relating to such refusal to one of the Courts of Common Pleas of the county wherein such witness resides; and all questions arising upon such refusal shall be at once heard by said court. If the Court determines that the testimony or evidence required by such witness is legal and properly competent, and ought to be given or produced by him, then said Court shall make an order commanding such witness to testify or produce books or papers, or both, as the same may be; and if such witness shall thereafter refuse to testify or to produce books or papers as aforesaid, in disobedience of such order of the Court, then the said Court shall have power to order the commitment of such witness to the county jail of the proper county, for contempt.

Section 5. That, for the purpose of the said commission, the sum of ten thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated.

Approved—The 24th day of March, A. D. 1911.

(Signed) JOHN K. TENER.

The foregoing is a true and correct copy of the Act of General Assembly No. 30.

(Signed) ROBERT McAFEE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

IN THE SENATE.

January 21, 1913.

Whereas, The Commission to investigate and report upon Surface Support in Mining Anthracite Coal, created by Joint Resolution, approved the 24th day of March, A. D. 1911, will be unable to make its report to the General Assembly on February 1st, 1913, the date specified in the resolution, because of insufficient time;

And whereas, This delay has been occasioned by the fact that the Commission has as yet been unable to secure certain maps and other valuable data now in course of preparation, and because of the fact that the testimony of a number of expert mining engineers and others is still to be taken by the Commission:

Therefore, be is resolved (if the House concur), that the Commission hereinbefore mentioned be granted an extension of time to make its report to the General Assembly, said report to be made on or before the first day of March, A. D. 1913.

(Signed) HARMON M. KEPHART,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.

Concurred in by the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, on the 4th day of February, A. D. 1913.

(Signed) THOS. H. GARVIN,
Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives.

Approved the 5th day of February, A. D. 1913.

(Signed) JOHN K. TENER,
Governor.

PERSONNEL OF THE COMMISSION.

The Act creating the Commission was approved by Governor Tener on March 24th, 1911.

The Commission originally consisted of Hon. J. Benj. Dimmick, Hon. W. L. Connell, Col R. A. Phillips and E. J. Lynett, of Scranton; W. A. Lathrop and Charles Enzian, of Wilkes-Barre; W. J. Richards and W. H. Lewis, of Pottsville, and G. M. Davies, of Lansford.

ORGANIZATION.

The Commission met for organization on June 12th, 1911; Commissioner W. J. Richards, of Pottsville, was elected President and Commissioner G. M. Davies, of Lansford, Secretary. The Commission elected as their clerk, Mr. Charles B. Stevens, of Scranton. The Commission was well under way with its investigations when it suffered the great loss through the death of Mr. W. A. Lathrop, who passed away following a surgical operation, on the morning of April 12th, 1912. Mr. Lathrop had taken a great interest in the work of the Commission, and although prevented from attending its sessions, due to pressure of official duties, his helpful suggestions and mature advice was manifested in shaping the work of the Commission. Governor Tener appointed Mr. S. D. Warriner, of Philadelphia, Pa., to the vacancy caused by Mr. Lathrop's death.

Respectfully,

W. J. RICHARDS, President.
G. M. DAVIES, Secretary.

SUMMARY STATEMENT.

THE SITUATION PRESENTED FOR CONSIDERATION.

In the coal regions of Pennsylvania, it is a matter of common occurance that land is divided by horizontal as well as vertical lines, so that the surafce is owned by one person and the coal under it by another. As the coal owner conducts his mining operation he is frequently confronted with the alternative, either of leaving unmined coal which he has a right to remove, or of mining it out at the risk of damaging the surafce. Whether the operator is legally bound to support the surface, either by leaving unmined coal which he has a right to remove, or of mining it out at the risk of damaging the surface, whether the operator is legally bound to support the surface, either by leaving unmined pillars of coal for that purpose, or substituting artificial support, or whether he has the right to remove all the coal without regard to its effect upon the surface, depends upon the rights acquired by, or reserved to, the mine owner and surface owner in and by the deeds and contracts under which they respectively hold title. These deeds and contracts in many instances were executed when the development of the mining industry was in its infancy and the surface overlying the coal was but sparsely inhabited. As mining progressed, population naturally centered in the neighborhood of colleries, and towns and villages grew up on lands underlaid with coal, the owners of which had acquired the right to wholly mine it out without obligation to support the surface. In exercising this right, it is evident that the removal of all the coal without furnishing other support must, and often does, cause a subsidence of the surface, menacing the safety of the structure and people upon it.

To consider this condition, and if possible, to suggest remedies which will tend to minimize, so far as may be done, the dangers resulting from this situation, this Commission has been constituted.

In submitting to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, this report of the investigations upon the physical conditions and legal rights in the matter of surface support in mining anthracite coal in Pennsylvania, the Commission realized that its scope was clearly and comprehensively set forh in the clause in the resolution, viz:

"* * * to investigate and report upon both physical conditions and legal rights in the matter of surface support where coal has been removed, or the right to remove said coal is vested in others than the owners of the surface; and for the further purpose of suggesting new legislation relative to the same; and an appropriation to meet the expense of the said commission. * * *

and it is hoped that the facts ascertained and the conclusions drawn therefrom will be accepted as representing the best thought and study of the Commission.

It may be assumed that the best evidence of the magnitude and importance of the problem exists in the fact that the Legislature of our Commonwealth created this Commission. The deposit of anthracite coal should be conserved as far as practicable, so that the economic and social prosperity of the State of Pennsylvania may be perpetuated.

State and Federal authorities have collaborated in investigation of mining operations in the anthracite region, as this industry is recognized as of national as well as State importance. The investigations conducted by this Commission have been developed by careful deliberations.

Its conclusions embody the best thought of many practical mining men familiar with the enconomic operations of coal mines in the United States and other countries.

The entire coal area of the anthracite fields is but four hundred and eighty-four square miles; in the year 1911 the market requirements, as represented by the shipments, reached seventy million tons.

To ship seventy million tons of coal requires a mining production of approximately 87,500,000 tons, to provide for the fuel consumption at the mines, the losses and waste in preparation, and the shipments,

The extent and present shipments of each region are:

Region.	Square Miles.	Shipment—Tons.
Wyoming	176	40,803,912
Lehigh	45	9,775,018
Schuylkill	263	19,375,369
Total	484	69,954,299

The Wyoming region embraces the Wyoming and Lackawanna valley, and is contained in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties.

The Lehigh region embraces the territory surrounding Hazleton, and the Panther Creek Valley, east of the Little Schuylkill river at Tamaqua. It is contained in Luzerne, Carbon and Schylkill counties.

The Schuylkill region embraces Schylkill, Mahanoy and Shamokin valleys, lying west of the Little Schuylkill river. It is contained in Schylkill, Columbia, Northumberland and Dauphin counties.

The shipments since the beginning of mining from each region have been:

Wyoming region	996,259,033	tons
Lehigh region	291,710,938	"
Schuylkill region	594,991,272	"
Total	1,882,961,243	"

These tremendous demands are drawing upon the coal contained in the ground, and it must be realized that certain portions of the field are being rapidly exhausted.

Of the shipments during the year 1911, from the Wyoming region, 20,177,155 tons were from Lackawanna county, of which 6,542,817 tons were mined from under the City of Scranton.

In Lackawanna county very little virgin land remains to be developed; the tonnage remaining to be mined being mostly contained in pillars and thin veins which were formerly considered unminable at the lower prices then prevailing. The assessment figures of 1907 prepared by the county commissioners of Lackawanna county show this condition clearly.

Of the one hundred and seventy-six square miles of coal land in the Wyoming region, approximately eighty-three square miles are in Luzerne county, and ninety-three in Lackawanna.

The support of the surface and the structures located thereon will in the future seriously reduce the life of the region, especially the Wyoming unless some wise policy can be made to prevail.

In Lackawanna county, of the ninety-three square miles, sixty-six square miles are occupied by incorporated boroughs and cities, while in Luzerne county, out of eighty-three square miles, thirty-five square miles are similarly occupied, while fully one-half of all the territory in both counties offers serious embarrassment to mining because of surface obstruction.

The area occupied by incorporated boroughs and cities in each region is given below:

Region.	Total Area Square Miles	Incorporated Boroughs and Cities, Square Miles
Wyoming	176	101.00
Lehigh	45	7.72
Schuylkill	263	18.00

A careful study of the tabulations contained in the body of this report will disclose the following facts:

That while in all the regions there was a material increase in the production of coal from 1899 to 1911, inclusive when analyzed by counties it is found that Lackawanna county, which is the northeastern portion of the Wyoming region, shows a comparatively smaller increase in its tonnage than the counties of Luzerne and Schuylkill. In the City of Scranton, the mining and commercial center of Lackawanna county, with a population of 130,000 people, located entirely within the coal measures, and in which the movement to solve the mine cave problem originated, a marked decrease in the percentage of shipments is indicated as compared with other localities in Lackawanna county. The percentage of shipments from the city, as compared with the entire county, is substantially less in 1911 than it was in 1899, although the shipments from the entire county show a substantial increase. The shipments from the city increased from 32.5 per cent. in 1899, to its maximum of 41 in 1902, and from then on steadily decreased to 32.4 in 1911. In other words, if the present rate of mining is maintained, the coal under the City of Scranton will be exhausted in about twenty years. The same is true of the mining industry of Lackawanna county. The life of the mining industry of Luzerne county and the Schuylkill region will be many times this period. Therefore, it is of vital importance that the greatest practicable amount of coal should be ultimately removed, and any action which will shorten the life of the mining industry will materially react upon the commercial activity of the city. All of which emphasizes the importance of the cooperation of the public and the mining companies in wisely conserving the coal for the market, thereby prolonging the life of the industry as much as possible. The result will be of substantial benefit to the community, to the surface owners and to the mining companies.

The great importance of the mining industry upon the commercial prosperity of the community is emphasized by the fact that there are employed in and around the coal mines, in the City of Scranton, about twelve thousand men and boys. Including the boroughs of Taylor, Dunmore, Old Forge and Dickson City, which are contiguous to Scranton, there are employed in and around the mines thirty thousand men and boys, whose annual wages aggregate $22,860,000.

The influence of the production of anthracite coal upon the growth of the communities located within the coal measures, as compared with the communities directly outside of the coal measures, is demonstrated by the tables contained in the main body of the report, illustrations from which follow:

COMMUNITIES WITHIN THE COAL MEASURES.

PROBLEM.

The Commission recognized that its problem was twofold; First, To find remedies for exsiting difficulties. Second, To suggest measures to prevent the continuation of the present menacing conditions. With those points in view the Commission makes recommendations which are contained in the body of the report.

In reaching a solution of this important problem, the Commission has not been unmindful of the efforts of the people of various municipalities to induce manufacturers seeking new sites to locate within their limits. Such activities are necessary if the municipalities are to continue to maintain their present importance and to grow and thrive after the coal has been exhausted. Nevertheless, we desire to call attention to the fact that coal mining is the basic industry, bringing many millions of dollars in wages into the coal region every month, and that in locating new industries care should be taken to provide against undue interference with the conservation of coal and that mining may not be hampered by operations of far less magnitude and value to the communities.

SOLUTION.

To state, as may be very truly stated, that no communities in the country, excepting those that have been visited with sudden and overwhelming catastrophies, have ever been confronted with a problem as difficult as the one now confronting the communities in the anthracite coal regions, is to admit the many and great difficulties in the way of any substantial solution thereof.

While more than fifteen months were devoted, exclusively, to the obtaining of whatever information, in the form both of data and of opinions that might give promise of shedding light upon the problem, fully six months were largely devoted to the consideration and discussion of possible remedies, and it soon became apparent that the members of the Commission held widely differing views, from insistence on the one hand, upon the admitted legal right of the owners of the coal, to insistence, on the other hand, not only upon the equitable rights of the owners of the surface but also upon the inalienable rights of community life to exercise its police power, whenever security, health or morals are threatened.

As the discussion proceeded, it became evident that the views as set forth were irreconcilable, and that if either were to prevail, it could only be after years of stubbornly fought contests, both political and legal.

On the other hand, the Commission was unanimous in its belief that:

First. Any practical delay in the application of remedial measures would work not only great but irremedial injury.

Second. The development of hostility between the communities and the owners of the basic industry of those communities, would also work serious injury by reason of their common interests.

Third. If reasonable concessions were made by all the parties interested, there might be a middle ground upon which all could stand, and which if found, would result in practical benefits of great value to all concerned.

These views being entertained unanimously by the Commission, negotiations were entered into with the presidents of the principal mining companies and the final result thereof was a voluntary understanding upon the part of these companies, as agreed to by their respective officers, of a policy as herewith set forth.

PLAN.

On condition that, and so long and so far as, the exercise of their rights to mine and coal are not restrained, restricted or penalized by the passage or enforcement of State laws or municipal ordinances, the mining companies agree to protect all public highways and city street, this protection, however, to be based generally upon the principle of the conservation of the coal there under for market purposes, and to involve a reasonable attitude upon the part of the communities having jurisdiction over said public highways and city streets, and also a reasonable use of the right of said companies to mine thereunder, so far as affecting the surface is concerned. On the one hand, the communities to refrain from unreasonably enjoining mining where no serious public injury will result; and on the other hand, the companies to refrain from so conducting their mining operations as to seriously interfere with the centers of traffic in municipalities where the conditions are such that serious public injury will result, and to provide for the security and convenience of the public by giving proper notice of proposed mining which may affect the surface, by providing temporary ways of passage, and finally, by repairing at their own expense any and all damage caused to the municipalities by said mining.

Pay at least one-half of the cost of repairing all structures (except those of mining and railroad companies) damaged by mining having a value of five thousand dollars or less.

Whenever danger of surface subsidence is imminent, sell so far as they have the legal right so to do, for a fair consideration to owners, (except mining and railroad companies) of structures exceeding five thousand dollars in value, such pillar coal as they may reasonably desire to purchase for the support of said structures, such consideration to be twenty-five per cent. above the prevailing royalty value upon losses made at or near the time of purchase, the basis of computation being eighteen hundred tons to the foot acre. In the event of such purchase, however, the coal thus purchased to be forever appropriated to the support of the surface. If, however, support may be reasonably provided by filling or otherwise, then to flush, fill or build artificial supports, in such portions of the mines as may be desired by the surface owner, at a price not to exceed the cost thereof to the mining companies, but at the expense of such surface owner, provided that when such support is at the election of the mining company, the expense to the surface owner shall not exceed the cost of pillar coal as hereinbefore provided.

In recognition of the peculiar conditions and the general fear of immediate surface damage in the City of Scranton and Borough of Dunmore, and with a purpose of relieving the public solicitude, but without admission or interpretation of the present value of the coal, the principal operators in this territory agree that during the period of eighteen months after March first, 1913, they will sell so far as they have the legal right so to do, to owners (except mining and railroad companies) of structures exceeding five thousand dollars in value, such pillar coal as they may reasonably desire to purchase for the support of said structure at the rate of thirty-five cents per ton on the basis of eighteen hundred tons to the foot acre.

In the event of such purchase, however, the coal thus purchased to be forever appropriated to the support of the surface. If, however, support may be reasonably provided by filling or otherwise, then to flush, fill or build artificial supports in such portions of the mines as may be desired by the surface owner at a price not to exceed the cost thereof to the mining companies, but at the expense of such surface owner, provided that when such support is at the election of the mining company, the expense to the surface owner shall not exceed the cost of pillar coal as hereinbefore provided.

Provisions to be made for the adjustment of any disputes arising in connection with such sale or putting in of artificial supports.

The undertaking as set forth upon the part of the companies is revocable; on the other hand, the communities remain prefectly free as regards the exercise of police power, a power that they could not divest themselves of even should they consent thereto.

The Commission, however, is unanimously of poinion that when the practical benefits of the plan are appreciated, the benefits being substantial to the communities, to the surface owners, and to the mining companies, that all parties will be led, not only through selfish interest, but also through a regard for the public welfare, to exercise that self restraint that will be necessary to render the plan substantially and permanently effective.

That the plan may occasionally work a hardship is undoubtedly conceivable, but no solution of so complex a problem could presumably be without that defect.

That the benefits are mutual and substantial is the well-considered belief of the Commission, and that they may be the more easily and clearly comprehended, they are herewith set forth.

Speaking broadly, all the parties,—the communities, the individual and the mining companies are benefited, obviously, by any prolongation of their basic industry, and therefore, as far as compatible with community and individual rights and necessities, this principle was acknowledged and kept in view. It was recognized in the classification of property, under which pillars are not to be left, by the dividing line of value, of five thousand dollars and under; such dividing line not only increasing the total amount of coal to be mined, but also decreasing the burden of making good the surface property of a very large percentage of the total structures of the anthracite regions, inasmuch as the cost of repairing the damage caused by letting down the surface under structures of five thousand dollars or under, will average much less than either of the two other methods, namely, the "leaving of pillars," of "flushing."

The prolongation of the basic industry is also helped by mining under highways and street safeguarded, as to traffic centers, said highways and street, however, being restored in all cases, to their original status and condition, by and at the expense of said mining companies.

The mining companies, therefore, benefit by such broadened activities and in consideration of same, they participate in the burden of making good all surface property, such participation taking two forms: First. By paying one-half, at least, of the cost of repairing all structures having a value of five thousand dollars or under. Second. In selling the necessary pillar support for all structures exceeding five thousand dollars in value, at a price that is a distinct concession from the actual value of such pillar coal to them as coal miners. The former burden is estimated, in the City of Scranton alone, at say $3,500,000, while the concessions upon the coal pillars, also in Scranton alone, would probably reach the same figure.

The benefit to the surface owners is, therefore, substantial, the companies, roughly speaking, paying one-half of the cost of the ultimate solution of the problem, as regards probably ninety per cent. of the property owners of the anthracite regions and making a distinct contribution wherever pillar support is demanded by reason of the character and value of the remaining ten per cent.

The communities are benefitted by the prolongation of the industry, and by the securing of terms for individual property holders that while burdensome are not considered as being prohibitive. Possibly one of the greatest benefits to the community is the sentimental reassurance that should come from the placing in immediate operation of a practical remedy for conditions that not only menace, but are actually retarding community development. As to the placing of a portion of the cost of supporting private property upon the communities as such, which is, in affect, but changing the form, but not the weight of the burden, it was felt that such action would be impracticable, owing to the voluntary character of the plan, to say nothing of the inequalities that would be worked through the varying conditions in any given community, or of the complications that would arise from increased municipal indebtedness.

The query very naturally arises as to what will be the attitude of the smaller companies who are not included in the arrangement. The Commission can only suggest that it will be difficult for any mining operator, however small may be his field, to decline to acknowledge this reasonable measure of his responsibility so overwhelmingly established by his competitors in trade, unless it be that such operator is indifferent not only to equitable, but also to ethical obligations.

With the setting forth of the benefits of the plan, and with a renewed expression of confidence in the effectiveness thereof, the Commission feels that it but remains to finally submit the same, and in so doing they simply express the hope that the practical results of their investigations and conclusions, may in some degree, be commensurate with the labor and thought expended thereon.

LEGAL RIGHTS.

After receiving carefully prepared opinions from learned counsel employed by the Commission, as to the legal rights or the various parties interested in the problem, it was realized that such rights could hardly be set forth with a degree of certainty that would not be open to dispute, and in view of the character of the solution to be recommended, it was felt that it would be unwise to attempt to do so, in fact the fundamental divergence of views as to the legal rights constituted an important factor in bringing about the plan as agreed upon and hereinafter recommended.

VOLUNTARY UNDERTAKING OF CORPORATIONS.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION.

Scranton, Pa., February 19, 1913.

On condition that, and so long and so far as the exercise of their rights to mine coal are not restrained, restricted or penalized by the passage or enforcement of State laws or municipal ordinances, the mining companies do agree to:

First. Protect all public highways and city streets; this protection, however, to be based generally upon the principle of the conservation of the coal thereunder for market purposes, and to involve a reasonable attitude upon the part of the communities having jurisdiction over said public highways and city streets, and also a reasonable use of the right of said companies to mine thereunder, so far as affecting the surface is concerned. On the one hand, the communities to refrain from unreasonably enjoining mining where no serious public injury will result; and on the other hand, the companies to refrain from so conducting their mining operations as to seriously interfere with the centers of traffic in municipalities where the conditions are such that serious public injury will result, and to provide for the security and convenience of the public by giving proper notice of proposed mining which may affect the surface, by providing temporary ways of passage; and finally, by repairing at their own expense, any and all damage caused to the municipalities by said mining.

Second. Pay at least one-half of the cost of repairing all structure (except those of mining and railroad companies) damaged by mining having a value of five thousand dollars or less.

Third. Whenever danger or surface subsidence is imminent, sell, so far as they have the legal right to do, for a fair consideration to owners (except mining and railroad companies) of structures exceeding five thousand dollars in value, such pillar coal as they may reasonably desire to purchase for the support of said structures, such consideration to be twenty-five per cent. above the prevailing royalty value upon leases made at or near the time of purchase, the basis of computation being eighteen hundred tons to the foot acre. In the event of such purchase however, the coal thus purchased to be forever appropriated to the support of the surface. If, however, support may be reasonably provided by filling or otherwise, then to flush, fill or build artificial supports in such portions of the mines as may be desired by the surface owner at a price not to exceed the cost thereof to the mining companies, but at the expense of such surface owner, provided that when such support is at the election of the mining company, the expense to the surface owner shall not exceed the cost of pillar coal as hereinbefore provided.

Fourth. Provisions to be made for the adjustment of any disputes arising in connection with such sale or putting in of artificial supports.

Fifth. In recognition of the peculiar conditions and the general fear of immediate surface damage in the City of Scranton and Borough of Dunmore, and with a purpose of relieving the public solicitude, but without admission or interpretation of the present value of the coal, the operators agree that during the period of eighteen months, after March first, 1913, they will sell so far as they have the legal right so to do, to owners (except mining and railroad companies) of structures exceeding five thousand dollars in value, such pillar coal as they may reasonably desire to purchase for the support of said structures at the rate of thirty-five cents per ton on the basis of eighteen hundred tons to the foot acre. In the event of such purchase, however, the coal thus purchased to be forever appropriated to the support of said surface. If, however, support may be reasonably provided by filling or otherwise, then to flush, fill or build artificial supports in such portion of the mines as may be desired by the surface owner at a price not to exceed the cost thereof to the mining company, but at the expense of such surface owner; provided that when such support is at the election of the mining company, the expense to the surface owner shall not exceed the cost of pillar coal as hereinbefore provided.

To this agreement, formal acceptances have been given, as to their respective territories, by the following corporations:

Lehigh Valley Coal Company,
Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company,
Pennsylvania Coal Company,
Hillside Coal & Iron Company,
Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Company,
Scranton Coal Company,
Elk Hill Coal & Iron Company,
Northern Coal & Iron Company,
Hudson Coal Company,
Delaware & Hudson Company,
Green Ridge Coal Company,
Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company,
Northwest Coal Company,
Sterrick Creek Coal Company,
Lackawanna Coal Company, Ltd.,

Forty Fort Coal Company,
Susquehanna Coal Company,
Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company.

COMMISSION'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

In the opinion of the Commission, any general solution of the problem should contemplate, so far as practicable, the ultimate extraction of all the coal.

In the future all cemeteries in the anthracite coal regions be located outside of coal measures. In several communities of the anthracite coal regions subsidences have occurred which have involved the disturbance of graves and the displacement of coffins. Such desecration is shocking to human sensibilities and in the future should be avoided by the location of cemeteries in safer places.

In communities in which mining operations are being carried on, this Commission advises and recommends that in the future school buildings and other public buildings should be built with special reference to existing conditions, so that the least possible injury may occur by reason of the subsidence of the surface.

The Commission recommends that hereafter no new plans of lots and streets shall be laid out over coal measures, where mining conditions are such that serious danger to the public is to be apprehended by reason of the mining out of the underlying coal.

It shall be the duty of all municipal and quasi-municipal corporations to require and direct that all public improvements be so undertaken, if practicable, that the tendency would be to lead to the location of municipal addition or extension over areas not underlaid with coal.

The attention of prospective builders of structures in the coal regions is called to the danger of building on lots underlaid with coal and are advised to desist from building on such lots unless the condtions are reasonably safe.

In mining communities, all waste materials, such as ashes, refuse, earth, etc., should be used for flushing purposes, whenever practicable, and that in order to secure co-operation to that end, municipalities, corporations and individuals should deliver such waste at such points as may be practicable for the mining companies to avail themselves thereof.

The Commission endorses the practice of mining companies in reasonably compensating surface owners for damages caused by mining operations.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

The Commission recommends the enactment of the following bills:

An Act providing for the appointment of arbitrators to settle disputes as to certain facts concerning the damage to public or private property by mine caves and fixing their compensation and providing for the payment of the cost thereof.

Whereas, A joint resolution for the appointment of a Commission by the Governor of this Commonwealth for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon both physical conditions and legal rights in the matter of surface support where Anthracite coal has been removed or the right to remove said coal is vested in others than the owner of the surface; and for the further purpose of suggesting new legislation relative to the same; and making an appropriation to meet the expenses of said Commission, approved by the Governor, March 24th, 1911.

And Whereas, In pursuance of said resolution said Commission has organized and fully considered the matters submitted to it under said resolution and has made its report to the Governor as therein required.

And Whereas, The said Commission has reported that there has been a voluntary offer made on the part of the mining companies to the effect that upon certain conditions they agree to bear a certain proportion of the cost of repairing property, and also will repair streets under certain conditions; and further, that under certain other conditions coal for the support of the surface will be sold at rates therein fully set forth or supports will be furnished for the support of the surface.

And Whereas, It is necessary to enact a law whereby any disputes arising as to the cost of repairing property, ascertaining the quantity of coal left to support the surface and improvements thereon, or the cost of furnishing artificial support, and further as to the repairing of public highways under conditions named in said report.

Now, Therefore, Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same:

Section 1. That whenever any dispute shall arise concerning the matters as herein stated, that such matter of dispute shall be submitted to a board of three arbitrators, one to be appointed by each of the parties to such dispute, and the said two arbitrators to appoint a third, and in case of their failure to agree upon a third arbitrator within a period of thirty days after their appointment, then the said third arbitrator to be appointed by the President Judge of the county in which the land is located about which the dispute arises. The decision of a majority of said arbitrators shall be as effective to all intents and purposes as if signed by all of the arbitrators.

Section 2. Said arbitrators shall be entitled to receive the sum of five dollars ($5.00) each day actually and necessarily employed in the performance of their duties.

Section 3. Either party aggrieved by the award of said arbitrators shall have the right to appeal to the Court of Equity of the proper county.

Section 4. All the cost of said arbitration and appeal shall be borne equally by the parties.

An Act to afford additional protection to the public against dangers resulting from the caving in or subsidence of the surface overlying anthracite coal mines.

Section 1. Be is enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same:

That where the owner or operator of any anthracite coal mine in this Commonweath possesses the right to mine out all the coal without obligation to support the surface, and proposes to exercise that right by removing or materially weakening the support theretofore afforded to the overlying surface by pillars of coal, it shall be unlawful for him to do so until sixty days after he shall have caused to be served in the manner provided by law for service of the writ of ejectment, a written or printed notice of his intention so to do upon the owner or owners and the occupant or occupants of the surface lands liable to be affected by such action. Such notice shall specify the time when such pillar mining will, in the operator's opinion, render further occupation of the surface dangerous, and shall be served at least sixty days before the date stated therein. Within the period during which the said occupant or occupants are thus given an opportunity to remove from such place of danger, it shall be his or their duty to do so and remain absent therefrom until the danger from subsidence of the surface has passed.

Section 2. The said owner or operator shall cause to be served in the manner aforesaid, a notice of fifteen days, upon gas companies and electric light of power companies maintaining pipes and wires in territory under which mining operations will be liable to disturb said gas pipes and electric wires; whereupon it shall be the duty of said companies to shut off the gas and electric currents or regulate the supply thereof in the threatened territory until subsidence of surface shall have occurred or the danger to be apprehended therefrom has passed away.

HISTORY OF MINE CAVE INVESTIGATIONS.

The story of scientific investigations of the mine cave problem as originated by the City of Scranton, is published in Bulletin No. 25. The United States Bureau of Mines and we quote from the same (pp. 12-14) as follows:

The occasional mine caves or settlements in various parts of Scranton during the past years had long caused more or less public concern, until finally popular sentiment was brought to a focus by the settlement in Hyde Park, on August 29, 1909. This subsidence seriously damaged public school No. 16, and much other surrounding property; and if it had occurred while school was in session, might have been the cause of loss of life.

Immediately following this event committees of councils, board of control, and board of trade took action in an endeavor to discover the immediate physical causes of the caving, as well as the legal responsibility therefor; and after much consideration, the former mayor, Hon. J. B. Dimmick, who was called in consultation with the joint committee, proposed the plan as set forth below and quoted from his final report, to wit:

To the joint committee of mine caves of select and common councils and of the board of control, Benton T. Jayne, chairman.

Gentlemen: I beg leave to herewith make report of what I have been able to accomplish in pursuance of your instructions looking to the selection of an engineer to be employed by the city and the board of control for the purpose of making a study of the physical aspect of the entire mine-cave problem as it affects our city, and to make a report thereon together with such recommendations as would seem fitting and practicable.

Shortly after I received your instructions I laid the entire situation before John Hays Hammond, the well-known engineer, and he at once not only became deeply interested in the problem but offered his aid and assistance without compensation, direct or indirect, being moved simply by a willingness to perform public service.

After much thought and conversation with the gentlemen whose names are hereinafter given, the following definite plan has been worked out and awaits but acceptance upon the part of the city government and the board of control.

PLAN.

An advisory board has been formed consisting of five well-known engineers, with power to add to their number, namely, John Hays Hammond, D. W. Brunton, R. A. F. Penrose, Jr., Lewis B. Stillwell and W. A. Lathrop, this board having all agreed to act without compensation. (a)

(a) The advisory board subsequently included the following additional members: Dr. H. S. Drinker, president of Lehigh University; Dr. J. A. Holmes, director of the Bureau of Mines; Prof. J. F. Kemp, Columbia University; Prof. J. F. McClelland, Yale University; and Prof. H. L. Smyth, Harvard University.

After a careful investigation of the necessary qualifications of the engineers that would make the actual study upon the ground, they suggested the names of Eli T. Conner, of Philadelphia, Pa., and William Griffith, of Scranton, Pa., Mr. Conner having had considerable experience in anthracite mining operations, and Mr. Griffith being especially informed as to the geological formation of this section. These two engineers to be employed by the city and the board of control, and upon the filing of their report, the same to be carefully considered and passed upon by the advisory board.

In order that the matter might be in complete form for your consideration, I secured from the two engineers, as recommended, a definite proposition, which is herewith incorporated in extenso:

Scranton, Pa., May 25, 1910.

Hon. J. Benj. Dimmick, Scranton, Pa.

As a result of our conference with you yesterday, in accordance with your request made at that time, we respectfully submit the following:

Of course, it is recognized by everybody that the situation is serious regarding the mining conditions under portions of the City of Scranton, and the proposition of protecting the whole city can best be met by a frank recognition of the varying conditions that undoubtedly exist, certain sections of the city being really in danger, while others are, practically speaking, not menaced. While our proposed report would be general in character, and intended to cover the entire city, yet it would properly be especially concerned with those sections of the city that are immediately threatened.

It seems to us that what is most necessary at the present time is more accurate knowledge of the physcial conditions which now prevail, and we would suggest a report based upon the results of a careful study of such physical conditions as they at present exist in the mines under the City of Scranton; this report to be general in its nature. We would group together the various similar conditions in several classes, to each of which similar remedies or lack of remedy might apply, with suggestions not only as to remedies but also as to the approximate cost thereof under certain ascertained conditions. We should expect to also include in said report such general observations and recommendations touching the entire situation as would seem to be justified by our inspection and study thereof. The completeness and value of any such report would depend in a large measure upon the assistance and co-operation tendered us by the several mining companies who are now operating under the city and of the city and school authorities.

It is to be distinctly understood that such proposed report and study of the situation existing under Scranton would be based upon such information as might be obtained from the second geological survey and from such other maps of the various coal mining companies and the city and school authorities, to which access could be obtained for the engineers, and from such personal inspection of accessible portions of the mines as, in our judgment, shall be necessary. We would, however, give expression to our belief that such surveys are sufficiently accurate and reliable as a basis for the general conclusions that the report will be expected to set forth.

It seems to us that the information to be secured through such a report would be the first requisite to a subsequent detailed investigation and application of any remedies which might be suggested for the amelioration of the mining conditions under this city.

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) WM. GRIFFITH,
ELI T. CONNER,
Mining Engineers.

It therefore remains but for the community, through its city government and the board of control to employ these two engineers at the price stipulated in order to receive a general report upon the cave problem that should command the respect and the confidence of all parties interested, not only because it will have been prepared by engineers selected by a board composed of experts of national reputation, but also because the very findings of such engineers would, in their turn, be submitted to and reported upon by that same advisory board. In short, the community would then be provided with information as to facts and opinions as to remedies that would form solid ground for both future deliberations and future activities.

I cannot refrain from suggesting, assuming the acceptance of this most unselfish offer upon the part of men of high professional equipment and without personal interest in the welfare of Scranton, that, simultaneously with the enactment of the necessary legislation to carry into effect this plan, there should be official appreciation of their proffered assistance.

Respectfully submitted,
J. BENJ. DIMMICK.

EVAN R. MORRIS, City Clerk.
September 15, 1910.

It is only fair to state that the Mine Cave Commission created by the City of Scranton, which in March 1911, presented a comprehensive report and recommendations upon the investigations conducted by it, at an expense to the city of about $10,000, was the first step in the direction leading toward a solution of this problem. Its results apparently did not produce practicable relief; therefore, in the hope of accomplishing this, the State of Pennsylvania created the present Commission, which we think has arrived at a solution entirely satisfactory to all.

PERIOD COVERED BY THE INVESTIGATIONS.

The period of the Commission's investigations extended over twenty months, from June 12, 1911, to date, and its work was practically continuous.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

The State Department of Mines under the direction of James E. Roderick has made valuable suggestions and has originated much useful legislation in the conduct of this great mining industry.

The Federal Bureau of Mines through Director J. A. Holmes, recognizing the national interest in this investigation, rendered valuable assistance in the services of its engineers and by placing at the disposal of the Commission the facilities of the Pittsburgh Experimental Station for the testing of roof supporting materials by the Bureau of Standards and the assistance of its competent corps of engineers.

The Commission was greatly aided in its investigations by the various coal companies including managers, superintendents, engineers and mine officials. Much credit is due for many helpful suggestions.

In this difficult problem, the Commission has had the benefit of the valuable experience and opinions of such mining authorities and engineers as Captain W. A. May, President, Pennsylvania Coal Company; C. C. Rose, General Superintendent, D. & H. Company; W. L. Allen, Superintendent, Scranton Coal Company; Mr. C. S. Weston, Scranton Real Estate; James B. Davies, retired mine superintendent; William Griffith, Consulting Engineer; George E. Stevenson, Consulting Engineer; R. V. Norris, Consulting Engineer; Douglass Bunting, Chief Engineer; Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company; George B. Hadesty, Superintendent, P. & R. C. & I. Company; Eli T. Conner, Consulting Engineer; N. H. Darton, Geologist, United States Bureau of Mines; John M. Humphrey, Chief Mining Engineer, Lehigh Valley Coal Company; also men prominent in public and civic associations, including Mark K. Edgar, Secretary of the Scranton Board of Trade; John T. Brown, President, South Scranton Surface Protective Association; and John J. Gibbons, President, West Scranton Surface Protective Association.

The Commission was aided in investigations by the report of Messrs. Griffith and Conner, as embodied in the United States Bureau of Mines Bulletin, No. 25 which is respectfully suggested as an addenda to this report.

EXCERPTS OF COAL AND SURFACE PROPERTIES.

Reservation No. 1. Date of Deeds, December 19, 1908.

"Excepting and reserving to the mining company, its successors and assigns all coal and minerals with the right to mine and remove the same, as the same, are excepted and reserved in the deed of the said company to the grantors hereof. It being expressly agreed between the parties thereto that the grantee hereby releases the granter from all damages occasioned by the mining of coal under the terms of said deed."

RESERVATION No. 2. Deed Dated August 9, 1899.

"Excepting and reserving, however, unto the party of the first part, its successors and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in, under and upon the said described lot of land, the surface of which is hereby conveyed; and also the right and privilege of mining the same and making and driving tunnels, passages and ways under the said surface for the purpose of mining and coal owned or held by the said party of the first part its successors and assigns, on said land or any adjoining leands as fully and entirely as if the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, remained the owners in fee simple of said surface or right of soil; and it is distinctly understood and agreed that the exceptions and reservations aforesaid have materially reduced the amount of the consideration of this indenture and that any damages of any nature whatsoever that may occur by reason of the mining and removing of all the said coal and other minerals have by such reduction been fully liquidated and paid and satisfied in full; and the said party of the second part for themselves, their executors, heirs or assigns, agree by the acceptance of this indenture to take said surface or right of soil with the full knowledge that the coal and other minerals thereunder have been or may be entirely mined or removed; and that from such mining out and removal or from carelessness in mining or from other causes the said surface and any improvements or creatures thereon may be injured or entirely destroyed that in this indenture there is no convenant or undertaking expressed or otherwise that the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, will sustain the said surface, either by vertical or lateral support; and this indenture is accepted by the party of the second part with full understanding and agreement that the party of the first part does not agree, undertake or in anywise covenant to support said surface, either vertically or laterally; and the party of the first part, its successors or assigns shall not in any event incur any liability whatever to the party of the second part, its successors, heirs or assigns for any injury that may occur to the said surface or to any building or improvements now or hereafter to be erected thereon or to any persons or creatures that may be thereon by reason of the mining or removal of all the said coal or other minerals or any adjoining coal by reason or driving tunnels, passages or ways."

RESERVATION No. 3. Deed Dated March 5, 1891. (Mining Company to Individual).

"Excepting and reserving therefrom to the party of the first part, their heirs and assigns, the coal and minerals beneath the surface of the above described and granted premises with the right to mine and remove the same; and the coal from adjacent lands by any subterranean passage or process whatever for the use, benefit and behoof of the said party of the first part, their heirs or assigns, without incurring in any event whatsoever any liability for any injury or damage which may be caused or done to the surface of the said premises or to any building or improvements now erected or which at any time hereafter may be erected thereon; provided that no mine or air shaft shall be intentionally opened or any mining fixture established on the surface of said premises."

RESERVATION No. 4. Deed Dated December 15, 1874, (Individual to Mining Company).

Conveys "all the anthracite coal in or under the tract."

Clause 4. "Together with the right to mine said coal in any approval subterranean process, leaving sufficient pillars to support the roof, without opening on or through the surface and without cousing injury or damage to same."

RESERVATION No. 5. Surface Conveyance.

"Excepting and reserving however unto the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in, under, and upon the said lot of land, and also the right and privilege of mining same, and it is distinctly understood and agreed that the exceptions and reservations as aforesaid have materially reduced the amount of the consideration of this indenture, and that any damages of any nature whatsoever that may occur, by reason of such mining has by such reduction been fully liquidated and satisfied in full, and the said party of the second part agrees to the acceptance of this indenture with the full knowledge, that the coal and other minerals thereunder have been or may be completely removed, and that from such mining or from carelessness in mining or from other cause, the said surface or any improvements and creatures thereon may be injured and that in this indenture, the party of the first part does not agree to support said surface either vertically or laterally.

And the said party of the first part shall not incur any liability whatever for any injury that may occur to said surface, or to any buildings, or improvements, or to any creatures thereon, by reason of the mining and removing of all the said coal, or of anything that may occur in connection therewith or in consequence thereof."

RESERVATION No. 6. Dated March 1, 1880. (Individual to Mining Company).

"The mining shall be conducted in a skillful manner and all the merchantable coal mined and removed as mining progresses, leaving sufficient supports."

RESERVATION No. 7. (Individual to Mining Company).

"Excepting and reserving out of the same unto the party of the first part, their heirs, etc., all the coal and other minerals in and under the same together with the unqualified right to mine and take out the whole of the same without opening for and transporting the same on and over the surface of said lot, and without any liability to the said party of the first part, for any damage done to the surface of said lot or to any building that now is, or hereafter may be erected thereon, by reason of the mining and taking out of said coal."

RESERVATION No. 8. Dated June 25, 1874. (Individual to Mining Company).

Grantee has all right to coal, etc. Nothing stipulated in reference to surface supports.

RESERVATION No. 9. Dated March 29, 1882. (Individual to Mining Company).

Conveys "all the merchantable coal. May mine and prepare in such a manner as they deem proper. Lessee shall not have right without consent of lessors to remove more than three-fourths of coal in any vein, and shall leave the remaining one-fourth so distributed as to best support the surface according to judgment of mining engineers. If necessary the lessee shall have right to leave more than one-fourth of coal.

Lessee shall not in any case be liable for any damage which may be sustained by the settling or falling in of the surface of said land.

(Part of Surface of the above.)

"Excepting and reserving however out of the same all coal and other minerals."

RESERVATION No. 10. Dated June 4, 1881. (Individual to Mining Company).

Grants full and exclusive right to mine all the coal on the tract. Lessee agrees to mine all merchantable coal.

Mines shall be worked in a skillful and workmanlike manner and reasonable pillars shall be left, but lessee shall not be held responsible for any damage or injury to the surface of said lands, that may be caused by reason of removing all or any part of the coal leased.

RESERVATION No. 11. (Surface conveyance of above property—to individual).

"Excepting and reserving fully and absolutely from same all coal and other minerals lying in, under, or upon the said premises with the full and complete right of the owners, or their lessees to mine and remove the same without any liability whatever to the parties of the second part, by reason of damage to surface or improvements thereon and without right or claim on the part of the parties of the second part to surface support of the coal thereunder, and said coal shall not be under any servitude for the support of said described land, either vertically or laterally.

It being understood and agreed that adequate compensation for the damage, which will or may occur, by reason of such mining has been liquidated and allowed in arriving at the consideration or purchase money.

RESERVATION No. 12. (Sub-conveyance of portion of the above surface to individual lot owner).

"Excepting and reserving however out of the same unto the parties having the legal right, thereto their heirs, etc., all the coal and other minerals in and under said lot of land together with the unqualified right on the part of the owners and lessees thereof to mine and take out the whole of the same without liability for any damage done to the surface, or any improvements thereon.

RESERVATION No. 13. (Individual to Mining Company) Dated Feb. 5, 1883.

This lease pertains to the beds overlying the Baltimore Coal Co. promises to mine out and remove all merchantable and mineable coal which can be mined by careful, prudent, and skillful mining (that its mining operations shall be conducted with prudence, skill and care).

A merchantable and mineable bed of coal shall be such a bed as mined by said lessee on its own adjacent lands.

The company shall not be liable for injury done to the surface or any improvements erected thereon, provided, that this exemption from liability shall not extend to injury to shops and buildings of a railroad company, or to mining improvements of another coal company, of the highways of any nature, which now cross the surface.

Lessors not responsible for damage to work in said beds caused by workings of another coal company in underlying beds.

Lessees not responsible for any coal, which may be lost or become unmineable on account of such operations.

Note—This lease is for Baltimore and overlying beds).

RESERVATION No. 14. Form of Surface Sale.

"Excepting and reserving always to the devises of the estate, their heirs, etc., all the coal or other minerals in, or under, and upon said and adjoining lands without any liability to any person or party for any injury that may be done to the surface, or to any improvements which now are or hereafter may be placed thereon by reason of the mining and removal of the said coal and other minerals in whole or in part, absolutely free and discharged from all servitude or liability for support of the surface vertical and lateral. A full and absolute release from such servitude or liability being a condition precedent to vesting of any estate under this conveyance.

RESERVATION No. 15. Dated April 1, 1881 or 2. (Individual to Mining Company).

Lease covers all merchantable coal.

If coal shall not prove to be of a merchantable quality, if it becomes unpracticable to mine the same in consequence of faults, lack of sufficient roof, or extraordinary expense, etc., the lessee shall not be liable for minimum royalty (merchantable coal defined by lessee.)

Mining operation shall be conducted in a careful, skillful and workmanlike manner.

Lessee shall leave sufficient horizontal and lateral support for the surface of said premises. (Pertains to all coal on this property.)

RESERVATION No. 16. Dated Sept. 28, 1890. (Individual to Mining Company).

Grant, sell, etc. All that certain piece or parcel of land situated, etc., together with all the ways, waters, water courses, rights, liberties, privileges, heriditaments and appurtenances whatsoever, etc.

Form of Deeds.

Conveys surface as follows: Excepting and reserving however unto said party of first part, etc., all the coal and other minerals, in under and upon the said described lot —and also the right and privilege of mining and removing the same, and of making and driving tunnels, passages, etc., under said surface for purposes of mining, etc., and it is understood that the exceptions have reduced materially the amount of consideration, etc., and that any damage that may occur by reason of the mining, etc.,—have by such reduction been fully liquidated and paid and satisfied in full. This indenture is accepted by said party of the second part. That said party of the first part does not agree or in any wise covenant to support either laterally or vertically and that party of first part shall not in any event incur any liability whatever to party of second part for any injury that may occur to any improvements or buildings now or hereafter erected thereon, or to any person, or any creature that may be thereon by reason of the mining and removal of all the said coal, or other minerals.

RESERVATION No. 17. Dated Oct. 20, 1874. (Individual to Mining Company).

Grants all the following described pieces of land, etc. Together with all the liabilities, rights privileges, hereditaments and appurtenances whatsoever thereunto belonging, or in any way appartaining.

(Nothing about surface support).

RESERVATION No. 18. Dated July 1, 1873. (Individual to Mining Company).

Party of the first part do grant, sell etc.,—all the coal in upon and under all that piece and parcel of land, etc.

Together with the right and privilege of mining and removing all the said coal, or as much thereof as they desire, either with or without leaving any pillars for the support of the surface, and of stripping the mines upon such lands of any pillars, that may be left in mining said coal without any liability whatever for any damage, or injury that may be done to, or upon the surface of said lot, or that may be done to or upon the surface of said land, or to any improvements, or buildings that now are or hereafter may be made or located thereon, by reason of mining and removing all, or any part of said coal from said lands, or by reason of stripping the said mines of any, or all of the pillars, and of failing to support the said surface; but without the right of opening upon, or transporting across the surface of said lot of land.

RESERVATION No. 19. Deed for Surface-Subconveyance of portion of surface to individual lot owner.

It is especially covenanted, understood and agreed that no rights of any nature to the coal, or other minerals underlying said surface are included in this conveyance all of said coal and other minerals having been heretofore sold to the Presidents, Managers, etc., of the Mining Company,—and said coal and other minerals may and will at some future time be entirely mined out, and removed; thereby endangering the said surface, all of which facts have been brought to the knowledge of the said party of the second part—liquidating the damage, and extinguishing any claim against said parties of the first part, their heirs, etc.

RESERVATION No. 20. Subconveyance of portion of surface to individual lot owner.

Excepting and reserving, however, out of the said lot, piece or parcel of ground, unto the said parties of the first part, their heirs and assigns, all the coal and minerals under, in or upon the same and also the right and privilege of mining and removing all and every part or parcel of land and every and any part thereof, and of making and driving tunnels, passages and ways under the surface of said lot, piece or parcel of land for the purpose of mining and removing any and all the coal, the coal or other minerals now owned or that may hereafter be acquired or ownel by the parties of the first part, their heirs or assigns, on said land or any adjoining or neighboring lands, as fully and entirely as if the said parties of the first part, their heirs or assigns remained the exclusive owners in fee and still held the exclusive possession of the said surface, right of soil of said lot hereby leased, the said parties of the first part not to transport the said coal and other minerals hereby reserved upon the surface of said lot but in all respects to be at liberty to mine and remove the same and to make and drive tunnels, passages and ways under said surface of said lot and even to remove all pillars or supports and entirely to strip the mine or mines under said lot, without objection or hindrance and not to be liable for any injury that may occur to said surface or any buildings now erected or that may be erected thereafter thereon by reason of mining and removing all said coal and other minerals. It is further understood and agreed by the parties of the first part, their heirs and assigns, that they will leave standing two pillars of coal when mining on or under demised premises, to be each twenty-four feet square wherever the party of the second part shall elect within two years from the date hereof, for the purpose of supports to the surface on which buildings may be erected, or the party of the second part may designate and desire to build thereon.

RESERVATION No. 21. (Individual to Mining Company) Dated Sept. 29, 1871.

"Leased and to mine let to the mining company, all the coal in, upon and under a tract of land containing two hundred and fifty-seven acres, including within its limits the whole of the lot last mentioned. This coal lease grants the right to mine and remove all the coal from all the strata except the upper or "Orchard" vein (which does not underlie the cemetery lot), and also excepts the coal under two small pieces of land marked on an appended draft—"surface or right of way for railroad" (not involved in this controversy) and also excepts from its provisions certain surface land off for building lots on two portions of the tract marked respectively on said draft—"the surface reserved for building lots" which latter includes the lot in question in this proceeding. This coal ease contains no provision relieving the mining company, its successors or assigns, from the obligation to support the surface not releasing it from damages for any injury thereto that might result from its mining operations.

RESERVATION No. 22. Dated Jan. 1, 1910. (Mining Company to Individual).

The lessor hath sublet demised, etc.—unto the lessee, all the merchantable coal and mineable anthracite coal mentioned and described in above recited indenture as fully and to the same extent as said premises are demised, etc. —unto the said lessors, etc.

The foregoing demise to the lessee is made together with the rights now vested in lessor under and by virtue of said lease from Hillman or otherwise to use surface of said premises for erection, maintenance, etc., of a breaker, pumps, and other necessary improvements and for construction of tracts and other improvements in connection with removal of coal from said premises connected therewith and with all the rights of said lessor as to removal of coal without liability for damages to the surface, or to overlying veins of coal (lease pertains to veins above Baltimore) or strata of rock, or to water, in, under and upon said premises and with further right to use said premises for dumping rock and mine waste thereon. Excepting and reserving all coal and all rights within fifty feet of the west and north boundary of premises. Lessee promises to ship over railroads agreed upon and agrees to following clauses of agreements:

Clause (1) Pertains to payment per ton for coal mined.

(2) Pertains to minimum royalty.

(3) Lessee shall make monthly returns of coal mined to lessors and keep accurate account of tonnage from each vein.

(4) Mining, shipping and sales books to be freely open to lessor.

(5) Will mine coal in proper manner, will not make more than an average amount of pea and smaller sizes, will leave no coal neglected, or abandoned that can by proper mining be taken out, will comply with State and national laws, and will have workings surveyed as work progresses.

(6) Will reimburse lessor for all taxes paid during term.

(7) Shall ship coal by railroad agreed upon only.

(8) Lessee shall keep a book showing point of consignment and mode of shipment of coal mined, which book shall be open to lessor at all reasonable times.

(9) Lessee shall fully indemnify lessor for all damages from any breach of the obligation for shipment of coal.

(10) Lessee shall not be liable for any injury done to the surface of premises in the usual course of skillful and careful mining to any greater extent than lessor is liable under said lease to it except always for his own negligence.

(11) Lessee shall not transfer, assign, mortgage, or encumber with liens, said premises, nor sublet same without written consent of lessor, except a company he may organize, or to one already organized.

(12) Pertains to mode of arbitration if lessor is of opinion that mines are not worked in a proper manner.

(13) Defines merchantable and mineable coal.

(14) When in opinion of general superintendent or lessee all mineable and merchantable coal has been taken out, the question shall be referred to arbitrators chosen as in Clause 12.

(15-16) Refers to procedure in case of default of rent.

(17) Heirs, etc., of lessee and successor, etc., lessors shall be bound by this indenture.

(18) Should other mine workings be carried under the veins mentioned in lease, lessee and lessor will join in such legal action as the counsel for lessor shall deem necessary or advisable to protect their joint interests.

RESERVATION No. 23. Dated July 1, 1882. (Individual to Mining Company).

The said lessor has demised, leased, etc.—all the coal in, under and upon the following described piece of land, etc., containing 168 acres.

Together with the right to mine and remove said coal until all the coal in, under and upon said tract of land shall have been exhausted.

The said lessee hereby covenants and agrees to mine and remove all the said demised coal in a workmanlike manner. (Nothing about surface support mentioned in this lease.)

RESERVATION No. 24. (Individual to Individual).

Excepting and reserving, however, out of the same and from and out of this conveyance unto the said grantor, and their heirs, etc., all the coal and other minerals upon, and under the said piece of land together with the unqualified right to mine and take out the whole of the same—without being under obligation to leave supports for the roof of the surface aforesaid—and it is expressly covenanted and agreed that said party of the first part shall in no wise be liable to the said party of the second part for injury or damage, which will or may be caused to the said surface or to any buildings, or improvements, which now are or may at any time hereafter be erected thereon, by reason of any past or future mining and removing of said coal and other minerals and it is agreed that any liability, which said party of the first part might otherwise be under for any damage, etc.—and that any servitude which the said coal, or other minerals underlying said surface might be under for support of said surface are hereby released—it being understood that a full and adequate compensation for such relases from liability and servitude has been allowed in arriving at the amount of the consideration aforesaid.

RESERVATION No. 25. (Individual to Mining Company).

This lease pertains to several tracts in some of which can be mined (1) all the coal, in some (2) all the coal in veins underlying the Hillman, and the rest (3) all the coal in Hillman and underlying veins.

The lessee promises, that it will conduct all its mining operations with prudence, skill and care and with a view to obtaining all the merchantable coal, which can be mined and removed leaving under the surface of the hospital and the lot conveyed to the cemetery association pillars sufficient in number and size, having due regard to the safety of the surface of those lots. It being understood that except as to the coal under the said lots the said lessee shall not be liable for any injury to the surface by reason of the mining and removal of said coal.

RESERVATION No. 26. (Individual to Individual).

Excepting and reserving all the coal and other minerals under, in and upon said lot of land, and also the right and privilege in mining and removing the same without incurring any liability for injury caused or damage done to said surface, or to any buildings or improvements, which now are or hereafter may be placed thereon and that an adequate and full compensation for such damage has been liquidated in arriving at the consideration aforesaid. Any servitude, which the said coal and other underlying minerals might otherwise be under for the support of said surface, being hereby expressly and distinctly released by said party of the second part.

RESERVATION No. 27. The following is the full reservation as appears in all the deeds given to the mining company:

(a) Excepting and reserving always to the parties of the first part their heirs and assigns all the coal and other minerals, in, under and upon said premises together with the full, free and uninterrupted right to mine and remove all the coal and other minerals but not through nor upon the said surface, without any liability to any person or party, for any injury that may be done to the surface by reason of the mining of said coal and other minerals, in whole or in part, and the said party of the second part do hereby release and discharge said coal and other minerals from any and every duty, whether absolute or by way of easement, to either lateral or vertical support of the said surface, and this indenture is made, delivered and accepted upon the express condition that as well the said party of the first part, as also their heirs and assigns shall be and continue to be wholly free and discharged from any liability in any form whatsoever for any damages of any nature whatsoever, which may happen to accrue to the said party of the second part, his heirs and assigns, or to the surface or any improvements now or hereafter to be erected thereon, by reason of the mining and removal in whole or in part, of said coal or other minerals from under the surface, and this condition and covenant is addition to, and not in qualification of all other legal effects and result shall so operate and take effect as though express releases and discharges to the said party of the first part their heirs or assigns, from all and every liability for injuries and damages had been specially in due form of law, and upon sufficient consideration, executed and delivered by the said party of the second part, their heirs and assigns, from all and every liability for every such injuries and damages had been specially in due form of law, and upon sufficient consideration, executed and delivered by the said party of the second part his heirs and assigns to the party of the first part, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns.

(b) Excepting and reserving, however, all the coal and other minerals in, under and upon said lot together with the unqualified right to mine and take out the whole of same without opening for or transporting same on or across the surface of said lot and without liability to said party of the first part, their heirs or assigns for any damages done to the surface of said lot or any building that may now or hereafter be erected thereon by reason of mining and taking out of said coal.

(c) The same reservation as contained in deeds until after death of one of the heirs when the following reservation was contained in the deeds by said heirs.

Excepting and reserving out of this indenture and covenant herein contained all the coal and other minerals, etc., with the unqualified right to mine and remove the whole or any part of same by any subterranean process, without any liability in any event whatsoever, on the part of the vendors, their heirs and assigns, nor on the part of the owners or lessees of said coal and minerals, for any damage done to the surface of said lot or improvements thereon by reason of such mining and removal of said adjoining coal and minerals and all claims for damages have been liquidated.

RESERVATION No. 28. Dated April 1, 1887. (Individual to Mining Company).

All the mineable coal in the veins or seams of coal geologically underlying the vein or seam of coal known as the Baltimore vein, etc.

Also certain surface overlying said coal excepting any parts of said surface not owned by the lessor.

Fifth Covenant. The said lessee shall not be liable to the said lessor for any injury that mny be caused to that part of the surface owned by said lessor of the improvements thereon overlying the coal hereby demised by reason of the mining and removing of all of the said coal and as the lessor is not the owner of all the said overlying surface, in the event of any injury to that part of said surface not owned by said lessor by reason of the mining operations on the veins of coal hereby demised if the lessee shall by the judgment or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction be obliged to pay to the then owners of such surface damages for such injury the said lessor will reimburse the said lessee for the amount of such judgment and the costs thereof, said lessee however to properly defiend in such actions and not to permit judgments by default. Also gives the right to remove all coal when it can be done without endangering mining operations in overlying veins.

Lessee may leave barrier pillars adjoining coal leased to the mining company where such are required. Said barrier pillars not to be wider than sixty feet.

The total coal area in this lease is 44.5 acres and that of the overlying surface which is leased is 289.25 acres less the reservation as noted.

The lease is for a term of 99 years with the right of refiewal for 99 years if the coal has not been all mined.

RESERVATION No. 29. Dated July 1, 1903. (Individual to Mining Company).

All the merchantable coal in the vein or seam known as the Baltimore vein and the veins or seams geologically overlying said Baltimore vein (containing 444.5 acres.)

The lease is for a term of 99 years from April 1, 1887, with the right of renewal for 99 years if the coal has not been all mined.

Lessee shall not be liable to lessor for any injury that may be caused to that part of the surface owned by said lessor overlying the coal hereby demised or the improvements thereon by reason of the mining and removing of the said coal; under that part of the surface, however, not owned by the lessor, the said lessee shall alone have the right to decide upon the proper size and number of pillars to be left for the support of that part of the surface, vertically or laterally, and such decision of the said lessee shall not be subject to revision by the board of arbitration, etc.

Provides for flushing culm into the mines by whoever washes the "Diamond Culm Bank" the ownership of this bank at present in litigation the culm thus washed into the mines to be used to support the surface not owned by the company whenever possible.

Abolishes the fifth covenant of lease of April 1, 1887, and in lieu thereof of the following is inserted—the said lessee shall not be liable to the said lessor for any injury that may be caused to that part of the surface owned by the said lessor overlying the coal hereby demised, or the improvements thereon, by reason of the mining and removing of said coal. Under that part of the surface, however, not owned by the said lessor the said lessee shall alone have the right to decide upon the proper size and number of pillars to be left for the support of that part of the surface vertically or laterally and such decision of the said lessee shall not be subject to arbitration, etc.

RESERVATION No. 30. Dated January 27, 1873. (Mining Company to Individual).

Excepting and reserving therefrom to the party of the first part, their successors and assigns, all the coal and minerals beneath the surface of the said lot, together with the sole right to mine and remove the same by subterranean process only. The said party of the second part, in consideration of one dollar, to him paid by the said mining company doth for himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, covenant and agree by these presents to release and by these presents doth release and forever discharge the party of the first part, their successors and asigns, their miners, laborers, artizans and all others in their employ from all damages, suits, actions or rights of action in law or equity that may arise or accrue or that may be supposed to have arisen or accrued in consequence of the mining operations of the said company, their successors or assigns, except such as may happen by gross carelessness.

RESERVATION No. 31. Dated October 28, 1904. (Mining Company to Individual).

Excepting and reserving, however, to the said mining company, its successors and assigns, all the coal and other minerals under, in or upon said lot of land; and also the unrestricted right and privilege of mining and removing the same or any part thereof, and of making, driving, using and occupying tunnels, passages and ways under the surface of said lot of land for the purpose of mining or removing any coal or other minerals upon or from said land, or upon or from any land adjoining or convenient thereto at its discretion as fully and entirely as if the said company, its successors or assigns remained the owners in fee simple of said surface or right of soil. The said mining company, its successors or assigns not to transport the aforesaid coal or other minerals upon the surface of said lot, but in all other respects to be at liberty to mine and remove the same and to make and drive tunnels, passages and ways under the said surface of said lot and to use and occupy the same at its discretion and without hinderance or objection and not in any event to be liable to the said party of the second part, his heirs or assigns, to or for any injury or damage that may occur by reason of mining all or any part of said coal or minerals, or by reason of making, driving, using or occupying the said tunnels, passages and ways.

RESERVATION No. 32. Dated July 11, 1898. (Mining Company to Individual).

Always excepting and reserving, however, to the mining company, its successors and assigns, all coal and minerals beneath the surface of and belonging to said lot and premises, with the sole right to mine and remove the same by any subterranean process incident to the business of mining or by any way the owners of such coal and minerals may think proper and also the sole right of passage through or under the said lands; to mine and remove coal and minerals from any other lands by any subterranean process without thereby incurring in any event whatever any liability for injury caused or damage done to the surface of said lands or to the buildings or improvements which are or hereafter may be put thereon; provided, however, that no mine or air shaft be intentionally opened or any fixtures established on the surface of said premises. The coal and minerals underlying the foregoing rescribed lot or piece of land, together with certain mining rights and privileges in the same, were conveyed by the mining company to the railroad company agreed upon by deed bearing date of October 27, 1874, and recorded in the proper office,—to which deed reference is hereby made and this deed is made subject to all the provisions, conditions, reservations and rights of the railroad company its successors and assigns in and to the coal and minerals.

RESERVATION No. 33. Dated March 5, 1891. (Individual to Individual).

Excepting and reserving therefrom to the party of the first part, their heirs and assigns, all the coal and minerals beneath the surface of the above described and granted premises with the right to mine and remove the same; and the coal from adjacent lands by any subterranean passage or process whatsoever for the use, benefit and behoof of the said party of the first part, their heirs or assigns, without incurring in any event whatsoever any liability for any injury or damage which may be caused or done to the surface of the said premises or to any building or improvements now erected or which at any time hereafter may be erected thereon; providing that no mine or air shaft shall be intetionally opened or any mining fixture established on the surface of said premises.

RESERVATION No. 34. (Mining Company to Individual).

Excepting and reserving out of the said lot or piece of ground unto the party or the first part, its tenants, lessees, successors and assigns, all coal areas and minerals, with the right to mine and take away the same, to drive air-holes to the surface of said lot or piece of ground and to pass over or through said lot or piece of ground, above and below the surface in all directions, for all purposes, necessary or convenient in mining coal, ore or minerals from said lot or piece of ground, or from any other land owned or leased by the party of the first part, its tenants, lessees, successors or assigns, for the purpose of ventilating any mine owned or operated by the party of the first part, its tenants, lessees, successors, or assigns, without thereby entitling the party of the second part her heirs or assigns, to any compensation for damage thereby done to said lot or piece of ground.

Provided always, that neither the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, nor any other party interested in the legal or equitable title to the estate above reserved and excepted, shall be in any way responsible for the acts or omissions of its officers, agents, employees, tenants or lessees, in mining or preparing coal, ore or other minerals, from said lot, or any adjacent property, or elsewhere, nor for any loss or damage which said acts or omissions may cause to the party of the second part, or any other person or persons, owners or occupiers of the said lot or piece of ground; it being a condition of this grant, that the same is made and accepted subject to the permanent right to mine and remove the coal under the said property, or in the vicinity thereof, as fully and freely as if this conveyance had not been made, without any obligation or duty on the part of the miner to maintain, protect and support the surface, either vertical or lateral.

Also reserving the full ownership of, in and to the roads, streets and alleys upon which said lot or piece of ground abuts, subject only to such use of the same by the party of the second part, her heirs and assigns, as is compatible with their use by the party of the first part, its successors and assigns, and for any purpose necessary or convenient in carrying on the mining and preparation of coal, ore or minerals from its property adjacent to or in the vicinity of said roads, streets and alleys, or for the purpose of supplying water, gas or other commodity to its colleries, or to the community or for building sewers or other means of drainage for its land, colleries or the community.

RESERVATION No. 35. Dated Feb. 9, 1907.

Excepting and reserving to the parties of the first part, their lessees, tenants, heirs, successors and assigns, and each of them, all the fossil and mineral coal and all other minerals that may be found under the surface of the above described lot or piece of ground, with the perfect and complete right, undiminished by this grant, to dig, work, remove and mine the whole and every part of the same, and to make, use and keep in repair airways, drifts, tunnels, slopes and other ways in all directions through or under the said lot or piece of ground, or through or under adjacent or other pieces of land for the mining purposes aforesaid, whether by so doing the surface of the above mentioned lot or piece of ground is impaired, thrown down or destroyed or not, and without compensation to the party of the second part herein, or her heirs and assigns, for coal or other minerals so mined, or for injury to, or destruction of, the surface of any buildings or improvements thereon erected, occasioned by said mining operation, even though such mining be negligently, unskillfully and improperly done, and without any provision for the support of the surface of the avove described lot or piece of ground adjacent thereto, or for the support and maintenance of the mines under the same, the said party of the second part by the acceptance of this indenture, hereby releasing the said parties of the first part, their tenants, lessees, heirs, successors and assigns, and each of them, from all claim for damages of every kind and nature for injury which may be occasioned to the premises hereby granted, and to buildings and improvements to property and persons thereon by the mining and working as aforesaid, or which may result from past, present or future mining operations in or under the aforesaid lot or piece of ground or in or under pieces of ground near or adjacent thereto.

RESERVATION No. 36. Dated Oct. 1, 1871. (Individuals to Individuals).

Excepting and reserving to the grantor, party of the first part, hereto, his tenants, lessees, heirs, and assigns all the fossil or mineral coal, iron and other ores and minerals that may be found under the surface of the earth within the boundaries of the above mentioned and described lot or piece of ground, with the right of digging for, mining and taking away the same without making any compensation therefore to the said grantee party of the second part hereto, his heirs and assigns.

Provided always that neither the said grantor, party hereto of the first part nor his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns at law or in equity, shall be in any way responsible for the acts or doings of his lessees or any of them in working, mining or digging the said coal, iron or other ores or minerals nor for any loss or damage which such acts or doings may occasion to the grantee party hereto of the second part or any other person or persons, owners or occupiers of the premises, but that the person or persons actually working the said mines or minerals and actually doing, causing or occasioning any loss or damage as aforesaid shall be solely and exclusively responsible therefor.

RESERVATION No. 37. Dated December 7, 1868. (Individuals to Individuals).

Reserving out of this grant all mineral coal and iron which may be found under the surface of the earth within the boundaries of said lot with the right of mining and removing the same, with the privilege of driving tunnels or drifts through said lot, and the right to use the said tunnels or drifts for the purpose of mining the coal and iron, both on the above lot and adjoining lands with all the powers and privileges legally appurtenant to the said rights and reservations.

RESERVATION No. 38. Dated December 1, 1837. (Mining Company to Individual).

Excepting and reserving all mines and quarries of coal, iron and other metals and minerals with full right, liberty, power and privilege to work, dig, quarry, mine, tunnel and carry away the same and aslo the right to take, use and divert all water or water courses now running through or upon said premises.

RESERVATION No. 39. Dated Oct. 24, 1863. (Individual to Individual).

Excepting and reserving nevertheless out of this present grant unto the said grantor, his heirs and assigns, all the fossil or mineral coal, iron and other ores that may be found under the surface of the earth within the boundaries of the above mentioned and described lots or pieces of ground with the right of digging for, mining, and taking away the same without making any compensation to the said grantee or to his heirs or assigns.

RESERVATION No. 40. Dated March 24, 1865. (Individual to Individual).

Excepting and reserving the grantors, their lessees, tenants, or their heirs and assigns or to the other parties interested in said tract all the fossil or mineral coal, iron and other ores that may be found under the surface of the earth within the boundaries of the above mentioned and described lot or piece of ground with the right of digging for, mining and taking away the same without making any compensation therefor to the said grantee or grantees, his or their heirs or assigns.

Provided always that neither the said grantor nor grantors, nor their heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, nor any other parties interested in the legal or equitable title to the premises shall be in any way responsible for the acts or doings of their lessees or any of them in working, mining and digging the said coal, iron or other minerals nor for any loss or damage which such acts or doings may occasion to the grantee or grantees or any other person or persons, owners or occupiers of the premises, but that the person or persons actually working the said mines or minerals and actually doing or causing the said injury, loss or damage shall be solely and exclusively liable and responsible therefor.

RESERVATION No. 41. Dated Oct. 15, 1909. (Mining Company to Individual).

Excepting and reserving, however, unto the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in, under and upon the said described lot of land, the surface of which is hereby conveyed, and also the right and privilege of mining and removing the same and of making and driving tunnels, passages, and ways, under the said surface for the purpose of mining any coal owned or held by the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, in said land, or any adjoining lands, as fully and actually as if the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, remained the owners in fee simple of said surface or right of soil. And it is distinctly understood and agreed that the exceptions and reservations as aforesaid have materially reduced the amount of consideration of this indenture, and that any damages of any nature whatsoever that may occur by reason of the mining and removal of all of said coal and other minerals has, by such reduction been fully liquidated and paid and satisfied in full.

And the said party of the second part, for himself, his heirs and assigns, agrees by the acceptance of this indenture, to take the said surface or right of soil with a full knowledge that the coal and other minerals thereunder have been or may be entirely mined out and removed, and that from such mining out and removal, or from carelessness in mining or from other causes, the said surface and any improvements or creatures thereon may be injured or entirely destroyed, and that in this indenture there is no covenant or undertaking, expressed or otherwise that the said party of the first part, its successors or asigns, will sustain the said surface either by vertical or lateral support; but on the contrary, this indenture is accepted by said party of the second part for heirs and assigns, with a full understanding and agreement that the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, does not agree, undertake or in any wise covenant to support said surface either vertically or laterally. And the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, shall not in any event incur any liability whatever to the said party of the second part——heirs and assigns, for any injury that may occur to the said surface or to any buildings or improvements, now or hereafter erected thereon, or to any person or creatures that may be thereon, by reason of the mining or removal of all the said coal and other minerals, or any adjoining coal or other minerals, or by reason of driving said tunnels, passages and ways, or anything that may occur in connection therewith, or in consequence thereof. And the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, shall not incur any liability to the said party of the second part——heirs and assigns for any injury or damage that may occur on the said surface or to any buildings or improvements now or hereafter erected thereon, or to any persons or creatures, crops, household furniture, or other personal property upon or in said surface buildings or improvements, by reason of the gases from the mines, dust, smoke and noise from the breaker when the coal from said premises, or from premises in the vicinity thereto is prepared for market, or from any other breaker or other operation for or connected with the mining or preparation of coal in the vicinity of the premises aforesaid.

RESERVATION No. 42. Dated December 1, 1901. (Mining Company to Mining Company).

To conduct all mining operations hereunder in such a manner as not to cause any damage to the surface of the demised piece or parcel of land or to the surface of the adjoining lands of the party of the first part, or to the improvements thereon erected and belonging to owners of town lots in the borough and at all times to save harmless the party of the first part and its successors and assigns from liability for claims for damages sustained by the owners or occupants of the said town lots and improvements thereon erected by reason of the subsidence or settling of the surface through future mining operations of the party of the second part on the demised tract of land.

FIELD INVESTIGATIONS OF MINE CAVES BY MEMBERS OF THE COMMISSION.

(1) PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP, "Welsh Hill." June, 1912.

Mine caves have been occurring in this vicinity for several years. During that time a suit was brought against the mining company, to restrain the mining of the pillars from under a cemetery. Judge Ferris, of Luzerne county, rendered an opinion in favor of the defendant. His opinion was subsequently sustained by the higher courts.

Surface subsidence has continued until the present time, and about 25 houses have become untenable.

The mining company has taken good care of all parties affected. Wherever possible the properties have been purchased. When conditions were threatening, the occupants were notified to vacate and after the subsidence had ceased the houses were repaired and families were allowed to reoccupy them.

The caves were caused directly by a squeeze in the Cooper and Bennett beds totaling a thickness of about 15 feet, and lying at an average depth of about 150 feet. The squeeze is supposed to have been initiated by mining operations in the lower (Ross and Red Ash) beds, and due to the vibrations caused by heavy charges of explosives employed in a nearby operation.

When pillar mining in the Ross and Red Ash beds is undertaken in the future, additional subsidence may be anticipated. These two beds approximate a thickness of about 28 feet, and lie at a depth of about 300 feet.

The mining company operates under the following rights as contained in surface conveyances:

"Excepting and reserving, however, out of the said lot or parcel of ground unto the said parties of the first part (coal lessors) their heirs and assigns, all the coal and minerals under, in or upon the same and also the right and privileges of mining and removing all and every part and parcel of the coal and other minerals under and upon the said lot—and remove the same and make and drive tunnels, passages and ways under said surface of said lots and even to remove all pillars or supports and entirely strip the mine or mines under the said lot, without objection or hindrance and not be liable for any injury that may occur on said surface or any buildings now erected or that may be erected hereafter thereon by reason of mining and removing all said coal and other materials * * *"

Several new buildings have recently been erected upon lots owned by others than the mining company. This was strongly discouraged by the mining company.

(2) COURTDALE, June, 1912.

A property located on the corner of Courtdale and Luzerne streets was damaged by the subsidence of the surface under a barn. The barn was entirely submerged but the surrounding surface remained unharmed.

The cave was caused by the workings in the Bennett bed, running into the outcrop clay, resulting in a subsidence of the overlying strata of sand, clay and gravel. The vein is on a steep pitch at the point and when the battery erected near the face failed the caved material ran down the pitch to the gangway battery.

Although the mining company claimed to be under no obligations as to surface support, the officials immediately proceeded to fill up the hole with refuse material and culm. The amount of damage was approximately four hundred dollars.

(3) NORTH WILKES-BARRE, April, 1912.

Considerable excitement was caused by a slight subsidence of the surface over mine workings in the 16th ward of Wilkes-Barre city.

Upon investigation it was found that the damage consisted of slight cracks in the cellar walls of one house on North Pennsylvania Avenue and slight cracks in the division wall of a second house nearby.

The subsidence was reported to be due to partial second mining in the surface vein, which is about 8 feet thick and lies at a depth of about 150 feet. The vein is on about 20 degrees pitch and the overlying strata consists mostly of shaley sandstone rock.

The mining company operates this property under a lease containing the following reservations in surface conveyances, viz:

"Excepting and reserving always to the devices of the lessor deceased their heirs, lessors and assigns, all the coal or other minerals in, under and upon the said premises together with the full, free and unrestricted right to mine and remove all said coal and other minerals and also the coal and other minerals in, under and upon adjoining lands without any liabilities to any person or party for any injury that may be done to the surface or to any improvements, which now are or hereafter may be placed thereon by reason of the mining and removal of the said coal and other minerals in whole or in part and the said party of the second part hereby expressly releases and discharges the said coal and other minerals from any and every duty whether absolute or by way of easement to either lateral or vertical support to the said surface and this indenture is made, delivered and accepted upon the express condition that, as well, the said estate of the said successor deceased as also his heirs and assigns shall be and continue to be wholly free and discharged from any liabilities in any form whatever for any damages of any nature whatsoever which may happen or accrue to the said party of the second part, his heirs or assigns or to the surface or any improvements now or hereafter erected thereon by reason of the mining or removal in whole or in part of the said coal and other minerals from under the surface. And this condition and covenant in addition to and not in qualification of all other legal effects and results so shall operate and take effect as though express releases and discharges to the said estate of the successor deceased, his heirs and assigns, from all and every liability for every such injury and damage had been specially in due form of law and upon sufficient consideration executed and delivered by the said party of the second part, his heirs and assigns to the said estate of the successor, deceased, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns."

(4) EAST END, (Wilkes-Barre), May, 1912.

On about the first of May a subsidence occurred at the intersection of Kidder and Hortense streets, in the 2nd Ward of Wilkes-Barre city. It is reported that the pillars in the Bennett bed workings had become weakened and caused a gradual settling of the surface.

The damage consisted chiefly of cracking cellar walls and plastering in about six houses. The doors and windows were slightly jammed and several water service pipes were broken. None of the houses have artificial gas connection.

In the deeds of the surface owners dated December, 1886 the following reservation is incorporated:

"Excepting, however, and reserving out of the same unto the said party of the first part, his heirs and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in and under said lot, together with the unqualified right to mine and take out the whole of the same without however opening for or transporting the same on and over the surface of said lot. And it is expressly understood, covenanted and agreed that the said party of the first part, his heirs, executors, administrators, lessees and assigns, shall in no wise be liable to the party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns for any damage which will or may occur to the said surface described or to any buildings or improvements which are now or may be hereafter erected thereon, by reason of the mining and removing all said coal and other minerals."

(5) PLAINSVILLE, May and June, 1912.

Several caves due to crop falls occurred during May and June. These are in fields north of the middle road and did not cause any damage to surface improvements.

(6) SEBASTAPOL, May 30, 1912.

On the 30th of May the surface overlying the Checker bed workings subsided to a considerable depth at the intersection of Chestnut and Mitchell streets, severely affecting five houses and disturbing the water mains.

On the morning of May 31st, one of the houses affected, located on the southwest corner of the above mentioned street intersection, was destroyed by fire. The fire communicated to the house west of it, which was also destroyed.

Both houses were two-story frame type. The second house was covered by fire insurance. The first did not have insurance.

The surface upon which the houses were built is under lease from the mining company. Leases from this company contain the following reservation:

"The said party of the first part reserves to itself its successors and assigns all the coal and minerals in, upon and under the above described lot or parcel of land, with the right to dig, mine and remove * * * without incurring any liability for damages that may accrue to the said party of the second part or to the said surface or to any building or improvement now or hereafter erected thereon, or to any person, creature or household effects that may be thereon from or by reason of the exercise of any or all of the rights hereby excepted and reserved."

(7) YATESVILLE, March, 1912.

During the month of March four properties on Hale street were damaged by subsidence of the surface overlying the mine workings of the Big or Pittston beds. The damage to the properties will range from two to six hundred dollars each. The mining company gave the surface owners ample notice of the subsidence. One of the houses has been repaired and the company is making preparations to proceed with the repairs of the other properties damaged.

No mine gas has been off from crevices, and artificial gas mains have not been extended to this village.

(8) PITTSTON TOWNSHIP, "Cork Lane," July, 1912.

During the last four years a number of subsidences have occurred in this vicinity, causing considerable damage to surface improvements.

The area thus far affected embraces about eight town blocks. The damage to houses is quite extensive and for the most part requires the entire rebuilding of foundation walls, replastering, and repapering the houses. The lots in many instances contain large holes or crevices which are sources of annoyance and concern to tenants or occupants having children. This annoyance was particularly emphasized in the instance of the cave on Bryden street between Broad and William streets.

The situation was sufficiently serious for the parties concerned to immediately erect safe-guards about all cave holes, and to post notices calling attention to the existing danger.

The surface lessees hold title with the following reservation:

"The said party of the first part reserves to itself, its successors and assigns, all the coal and minerals in, upon and under the above described lot or parcel of land, with the right to dig, mine and remove * * * without incurring any liability for damages that may accrue to the said party of the second part or to the said surface or to any buildings or improvements now or herafter erected thereon, or to any person, creature or household effects that may be thereon from or by reason of the exercise of any or all of the rights hereby excepted and reserved."

Several properties are held in fee, the deeds for which contain the following reservation:

"The said party of the first part reserves to itself, its successors and assigns, all the coal and mineral in, under and upon the above described lot or parcel of land with the right to dig, mine and remove * * * without incurring any liability for damages that may accrue to the said party of the second part or to the said surface or to any buildings or improvements now or hereafter erected thereon or to any person, creature or household effects that may be thereon from or by reason of the exercise of any or all of the rights hereby excepted and reserved, and it is distinctly understood and agreed that the exceptions and reservations aforesaid have materially reduced the amount of the consideration of this indenture and that any damages of any nature whatsoever that may occur by reason of the mining and removing of all of the said coal and other minerals have by such reduction been fully liquidated and paid and satisfied in full."

The mine caves in this vicinity are very destructive. The coal bed lies on about eight to fifteen degrees inclination, is about eight feet thick and the rock and soil overlying it varies from ten to thirty.

The surface tenants were notified to vacate the premises about four years ago and since that time no effort has been made to collect ground rental.

From all indications surface subsidence will continue for some time as pillar mining in the surface bed has not yet been completed.

(9) HUGHESTOWN, July, 1912.

A number of properties have been damaged in this vicinity by the mining of the surface beds. The bed is about ten feet thick and lies very close to the surface. The mining company has a force of men rebuilding the cellar walls and replacing the damaged property by filling up the caves.

The following reservation is contained in the deeds of the surface owners:

"Reserving and excepting therefrom and thereunder all the coal contained therein with the privilege of mining and carrying away the same."

(10) PLAINS, July, 1912.

During the early part of March, and continuing to the present time, surface subsidences have occurred in the portion of Plains township immediately adjoining Miners Mills borough.

The subsidences are reported to be due to pillar mining under what is known as the Stocker tract. A number of houses have been distorted and their foundation walls damaged. The damage, per house, ranging from a few dollars to several hundred.

An unusually threatening condition existed for a time, due to mine gas escaping from the crevices. This has now ceased.

The mining company did not issue formal notice that probable damage to surface improvements should be anticipated. They have, however, made overtures of settlement for damages to the owners.

The following reservation is contained in deeds of the surface owners:

"Reserving, however, out of the same unto the said parties of the first part, their heirs and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in, under and upon the said premises, and also the right and privilege of mining and removing the same and of making and driving tunnels, passages and ways under said lot of land for the purpose of mining any coal owned or held by the said parties of the first part, their heirs, assigns or lessees on said land or any adjoining land as fully and entirely as if the said parties of the first part, their heirs or assigns, remained the owners in fee simple of said surface."

(11) SCRANTON, South Side, August, 1912.

A property on Pittston avenue was damaged to the extent of cracking and settling of a portion of the foundation walls. A large cave hole occurred in the yard and extended from the house across the lot.

The owner purchased the lot from a land company in 1892. He states he was under the impression that the pillars of the surface bed at this point, which was near the outcrop, would not be mined. The deeds of the land company "convey the right of soil of all that certain lot or parcel of land * * *," reserving substantially as follows:

"Excepting and reserving, however, unto the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in, under and upon the said described lot of land, the surface of which is hereby conveyed, and also the right and privilege of mining and removing same, and of making and driving tunnels, passages and ways under the said surface for the purpose of mining any coal owned or held by the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, on said land or any adjoining lands, as fully and entirely as if the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, remained the owner in fee simple of said surface or signs, remained the owner in fee simple of said surface or right of soil. And it is distinctly understood and agreed that the exceptions and reservations aforesaid have materially reduced the amount of the consideration of this indenture, and that any damages of any nature whatsoever that may occur by reason of them mining and removing all of the said coal and other minerals have, by such reduction been fully liquidated and paid and satisfied in full.

And the said party of the second part, for himself, his heirs and assigns, agrees by the acceptance of this indenture, to take the said surface or right of soil with the full knowledge that the coal and other minerals thereunder have been or may be entirely mined out and removed, and that from such mining out and removal, or from carelessness in mining or from other minerals thereunder have been or may be entirely mined out and removed, and that from such mining out and removal, or from carelessness in mining, or from other cause the said surface and any improvement or creatures thereon may be injured or entirely destroyed, and that in this indenture there is no covenant or undertaking, expressed or otherwise, that the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, will sustain the said surface, either by vertical or lateral support, but on the contrary, this indenture is accepted by the said party of the second part, for himself, his heirs and assigns, with the full understanding and agreement that the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, does not agree, undertake, or in covenant to support the said surface, either vertically or laterally."

A property on Winfield avenue was damaged by a cave on the 29th of June. The officials of the mining company immediately began filling up the street opposite the property and gave assurance that they would make the necessary repairs to the house.

The breaking of the water mains added damage and annoyance by flooding the cellar and destroying its contents.

A singular feature of the caving of this property is brought out by the fact that the owner had previously employed some miners to prop and fill up under the property, at an expense of ninety dollars.

The owner's deed contains exceptions and reservations similar to the Pittston avenue property.

(12) SCRANTON, August, 1912.

Surface improvements in the Green Ridge district have been damaged by robbing operations in the Clark bed. The colliery is located in Dunmore borough, and operates all the workable beds in the property.

First mining has been completed and robbing is carried on on a rather extensive scale. The overlying burden is about 130 feet thick. The Clark bed is about 8 feet thick.

The method of pillar mining is systematically and skillfully conducted under the direction of competent mine officials. By the adopted methods extensive mine caves are improbable.

The company keeps the occupants of properties, liable to be affected, thoroughly informed, and has rendered immediate and substantial assistance to owners or occupants in the event of damage; generally the houses are put in better condition than they were before caving occurred. The mining company operates the lease with the following exception from liability to damage accruing to surface owners:

"Excepting and reserving, however, to the said party of the first part, his successors and assigns, all the coal and mineral beneath the surface of, and belonging to, said land, with the sole right and privilege to mine and remove the same by any subterranean process incident to the business of mining without thereby incurring, in any event whatever, any liability for injury caused or damage done to the surface of said lot or to the buildings or improvements which are now, or hereafter may be put thereon."

(13) WARRION RUN, February, 1912.

On Sunday evening, February 18th, an explosion occurred in a dwelling in Warrior Run borough, caused by mine gas finding its way into the building through crevices in the earth. The occupants, a man and woman, were severely burned.

During the past six years several accidents have been caused by exploding gas that had found its way into houses.

From photographs a fair idea can be obtained as to the force of an explosion of gas contained in a room 8 x 15 x 7 feet.

The estimated damage to the above house is twelve hundred dollars.

(14) PITTSTON TOWNSHIP, Cork Lane, September 30, 1912.

Since the sub-committee's report of July 16th, surface subsidence in the territory embraced between the Erie and Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks have been quite general and in a number of cases destructive, particularly in the vicinity of Broad and Bryden street. Probably the most serious cave occurred at noon on August 23rd, at which time the entire intersection of the above streets and considerable property adjoining subsided irregularly a distance of 7 feet. The public school property which is located in this vicinity was menaced by large cracks in the ground, near the building. The fence enclosing the yard was badly twisted. That portion of the lot adjoining Broad street subsided on August 24th. The mining company immediately began the repairing of the damage.

Several days prior to the cave the mine officials personally advised the occupants of the dwellings to move temporarily to places outside the affected districts. All streets leading to the affected area were securely fenced off, and waste material is now being hauled and deposited in the subsided territory.

The surface lessees and owners hold under the reservation quoted in a previous report.

(15) SCRANTON, Robert's Court, September 30, 1912.

A cave occurred at the rear of properties between Robert's Court and Sumner avenue due to the removal of pillars in a bed lying very close to the surface. The subsidence affected the court and the rear of the properties. An examination of the mining showed that mining was confined to such pillars the removal of which would not seriously damage the houses. The mining company had notified the people living in the affected area, of the probable danger. After the subsidence the company erected guards, and promptly began to fill up the hole.

A second and more destructive cave occurred on Sumner avenue, seriously damaging the front part of the house. In this instance the mining company supplied material for blocking and sent workmen to block up the house preparatory to repairing the foundation walls. Surface owners in this section hold title with the following reservation:

"Excepting and reserving, however, unto the party of the first part, its successors and assigns, all the coal and other minerals in, under and upon the said described lot of land, the surface of which is hereby conveyed; and also the right and privileges of mining the same and making and driving tunnels, passages and ways under the said surface for the purpose of mining any coal owned or held by the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, on said land or any adjoining lands as fully and entirely as if the party of the first part, its successors and assigns, on said the owners in fee simple of said surface right of soil; and it is distinctly understood and agreed that the exception and reservation aforesaid have materially reduced the amount of the consideration of this indenture and that any damages of any nature whatsoever that may occur by the mining and removing of all the said coal and other minerals have by such reduction been fully liquidated and paid and satisfied in full; and the said party of the second part for themselves, their executors, heirs or assigns, agree by the acceptance of this indenture to take said surface or right of soil with the full knowledge that the coal and other minerals thereunder have been or may be entirely mined or removed; and that from such mining out and removal of, from carelessness in mining, or from causes the said surface and any improvements or creatures thereon may be injured or entirely destroyed that in this indenture there is no covenant or undertaking expressed or otherwise that the said party of the first part, its successors, or assigns, will sustain the said surface, either vertical or lateral support, and this indenture is accepted by the party of the second part with full understanding and agreement that the party of the first part does not agree, undertake or in any wise covenant to support the surface, either vertically or laterally; and the party of the first part, its successors or assigns, shall not in any event incur any liability whatever to the said party of the second part, its successors, heirs or assigns, for any injury that may occur to the said surface or to any building or improvements, now or hereafter to be erected thereon, or to any person or creature that may be thereon by reason of the mining or removal of all the said coal or other minerals or any adjoining coal by reason of driving tunnels, passages or ways."

(16) SCRANTON, Hyde Park, September, 1912.

During the early afternoon of September 16th, a surface subsidence occurred in the vicinity of the junction of Merrifield and North Main avenue (between Price and Lafayette streets). The subsidence was due to a cave in the Big Vein workings. It seriously damaged a number of properties, among which are a moving picture theatre, and a quintuple block of brick houses and tenement houses.

In the rear of the brick block the surface subsided between 2 and 4 feet, causing a wide fissure The subsidence caused the foundation and lower side walls to settle and bulge out, presenting a rather menacing appearance. The ground floors and basements of the houses affected are occupied for business purposes, while the second floors are occupied by tenants. The occupied floors of these buildings subsided very slightly. The interiors were not seriously damaged with the exception of the rear end of the theatre.

That the City of Scranton is adversely advertised by these unfortunate occurrences is noted from the large multi-colored signs advertising a sale of merchandise as a "Cave-in Sale" This merchant could not point to one item of damage he had sustained

The subsidence which caused the damage was somewhat general; covering an area in the neighborhood of one acre, and extending to the vicinity of Merrifield and Price streets. In the latter section two properties were rather seriously damaged. The gas mains were also badly damaged.

Only one title to property ownership was available for examination and this contained the following phraseology, "* * * grants, sells, * * * his heirs and assigns, the surface and right of soil only of and to the following lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the City of Scranton, Lackawanna county, Pa., * * *."

(17) NORTH PITTSTON, October, 1912.

A number of residents of North Pittston are seriously alarmed as to the damage that has been done to their properties by the recent caves. A property which was damaged on August 24th was erected on a lot about 15 years ago. The lot is valued at $610. The rental for surface tenants is based on the valuation of the property and is fixed on the basis of interest on the value of the lot at the rate of 6 per cent. of the valuation, which makes the rental of the property in question thirty-seven dollars per year.

(18) COURTDALE, September and October, 1912.

During the latter part of September and the early part of October a number of mine caves occurred in the Borough of Courtdale; probably the most serious cave occurred on October 6th. This cave pulled down the greater portion of the cellar and almost the entire rear half of the foundation walls of a house located on Courtdale avenue.

The cave was due to a crop fall in the Bennett bed workings. No coal has been mined from these chambers for the last 14 years. Pillar mining had been conducted on the lift below and probably a thousand feet to the west of the location of the cave. On account of the dip of the bed, which varies from 40 to 45 degrees, and the 14 feet thickness of the bed, it is very probable that the side-draw due to the pillar mining might have been the cause of the cave by breaking the soft shaley roof.

The officials of the mining company arrived on the scene shortly after the cave occurred, and with heavy timbers and blocking shored up the house so that no further damage occurred.

The company later purchased the property and removed the house northward off the outcrop.

The following statement was made by the owner: "We have no complaint to make. Everything has been satisfactorily adjusted."

(19) CARBONDALE, October, 1912.

On October 26th surface subsidence occurred in the vicinity of Hospital and Fall Brook streets, in the northeastern section of Carbondale. Eight houses were more or less seriously affected by the squeezing of the pillars in the Grassy bed workings. The most seriously damaged property is located at the corner of Hospital and Fall Brook streets. This is a three-story business and dwelling house. The amount of damage would probably not exceed eight hundred dollars. The geology of the coal in this section is briefly as follows: Three beds of coal varying from 4 to 16 feet in thickness underlie this section of Carbondale, pitching to the north outcrop along the hillside a short distance north of Fall Brook.

The stratigraphy being approximately as follows:

Surface	10'	0"
Rock	41	0
New County Vein	4	0 not mined.
Clark Top Coal	7	6 mined.
Clark Bottom Coal	6	0 not mined.
Third Vein	4	6 now being mined.

The trouble here probably arose from the mining of the Third Vein; the blasts shaking the very small pillars in the "Top Coal," which was mined many years ago. The Third Vein coal is not particularly hard nor tough in character; only a small amount of 35 per cent. dynamite is being used for blasting.

The nature of the subsidence is indicated by irregular cracks or fissures of not more than 6 inches in depth, running almost due east and west. Although the subsidence did not do a great deal of serious damage, the property owners are greatly alarmed and a number of them have moved their families to other localities.

Apparently there are two different classes of titles to properties in this location. The Italian properties damaged east of Fall Brook street are to be repaired by the mining company. No agreement has been reached regarding the repairs of the other property, which holds title under the following reservation and exception in deed dated June 20th, 1903.

"All that surface or right of soil of that certain lot * * * being number 246 on a map of out-lots on a tract of land in the warrantee name of ————, etc. Being part of land which was conveyed to the president and manager of the mining company and it sold the same Nov. 28, 1887. Coal and minerals and mining rights reserved to the legal owner thereof."

The title to the other properties was acquired through tax sale and according to reports the mining company will make all repairs.

(20) SCRANTON, September, 1912.

On September 12th another property located on Winfield avenue was damaged by a subsidence of the surface overlying the Clark bed workings. At the time of the examination on November 9th a force of masons were engaged in repairing the foundation walls of this property. Very little damage was done the house itself, which is of frame construction.

It was noted that a number of new street corner gas lamps hed been erected since a previous visit, indicating the extension of gas mains. This should be discouraged until the subsiding of the surface has ceased.

The mining company has repaired the property adjoining the above property on the west. The same is true of the property on Pittston avenue also previously reported.

The residents of this section of the city are very much relieved by the action of the mining company in making repairs to the damaged houses.

On October 26th the third serious cave occurred on the property at No. 1923 Pittston avenue. The dwelling house was not seriosuly damaged but a barn on the rear of the property was practically thrown over on its side.

(21) LUZERNE, November, 1912.

During the night of November 20th a cave occurred at No. 280 Main street, Luzerne borough. The hole was approximately 45 feet in diameter, 20 to 25 feet deep, and extended over a portion of the vacant lot adjoining the property on the south and almost the entire width of the cellar of the house, taking down with it a portion of the south foundation wall. The house is a two and one-half story frame dwelling, about nine rooms with one-story kitchen extending to the rear.

The subsidence was due to the caving of the face of a chamber in the Cooper bed workings.

In this vicinity the Cooper bed, about 8 feet in thickness, lies practically horizontal except at the outcrop, and on account of the proximity to Toby creek the chambers were mined only about 6 yards wide. Overlying the workings at this point is the Mill Hollow trough, which contains a wash of glacial till varying in depth from a few feet to 60 feet.

As soon as the cave was reported to the mining company provisions were made to block up the house and to fill up the hole. On November 25th the hole had been completely filled. The entire expense incurred was borne by the mining company, although a provision in the company's coal lease exempts them from liability to damage to the surface. The extent of the damage to the house would probably not exceed three hundred dollars, outside of the repairing of the cellar walls.

(22) SCRANTON, January, 1912.

On the 20th of January an extensive surface subsidence occurred in the 4th Ward, Hyde Park District, embracing the territory of North Main avenue, Lafayette street, Bromley avenue, and Price street. About thirty houses were affected; most of them but slightly. Two houses on North Hyde Park avenue, near Lafayette street, and five houses in Starks Place were seriously damaged. The houses on North Hyde Park avenue settled practically uniformly and consequently were not seriously damaged.

This subsidence is reported to be the third or fourth of a series during the last four years. It has also been the most destructive.

The line of fracture on the surface, as indicated by a large fissure and a vertical parting of about eighteen inches, extended from a point near Lafayette street, southward across Price street where it appears as a small crack and terminates in the park about twenty feet south of Price street.

The subsidence is due to squeezing of pillars in either the Rock or Diamond beds and not to the robbing of pillars in the New County bed as reported. The Stratigraphy of the coal measures under the affected area is approximately as follows:

Surface	100 feet
Coal (solid) Five Foot	5
Rock	25
Coal (solid) Four Foot	5
Rock	100
Coal (mined) Diamond	10
Rock	25
Coal (mined) Rock	8
Rock	85
Coal (mined) Big	12
Rock	30
Coal (mined) N. County	5.5
Rock	50
Coal (mined) Clark	7
Rock	120
Coal (partially mined) No. 1 Dunmore	3
Rock	40
Coal (mined) No. 1 Dunmore	3.5
Rock	50
Coal (mined) No. 3 Dunmore	3

The mining company is filling the openings by hand rock stowing in the beds where the workings are accessible and are also laying a pipe line with a view to filling the workings with culm and ashes.

With one of two exceptions the houses in the affected district are of frame construction. The estimated damage to the houses is seventeen thousand dollars and about three thousand dollars to paving and street grading. Thus far no definite plan has been formulated for repairs of damage to the properties, but the mine officials expressed the probability of co-operation in making the repairs.

(23) WILKES-BARRE CITY, North Wilkes-Barre, January, 1913.

Considerable excitement was caused among the residents of North Wilkes-Barre, in the block formed by North Pennsylvania avenue, Chester street, Wyoming avenue, and Ralph street, by a surface subsidence on the evening of January 22nd; about ten houses were affected, none very seriously.

In April 1912, the first evidence of a surface subsidence was noticed in this same neighborhood, and at that time caused considerable agitation.

The recent subsidence was caused by a squeeze of the pillars in the Bowkley bed, lying at a depth of about seventy-five feet and on an inclination of about twenty-five degrees. The mining company is making every possible affort to check the squeeze, and the subsidence has practically ceased. Although three families vacated their houses, there is no further demonstration of anxiety on the part of the people living there.

The stratigraphy of the coal measures in the affected area is approximately as follows:

Surface	25 feet
Coal (mined) Abbott bed	7
Rock	60
Coal (mined) Bowkley bed	8
Rock	80
Coal (mined) Hillman bed	10
Rock	125
Coal (mined) Baltimore bed	16
Rock	300
Coal (partially mined) Red Ash bed	14

A rather complicated condition exists on this property, due to a dual ownership of the coal. One coal company controlling the beds overlying the Baltimore bed, and another controlling the Baltimore and underlying beds. The mine openings in the Baltimore bed have been filled with culm and rock; the mining in the Red Ash bed is not very extensive on this property.

The following is a statement issued by the mining company:

"This disturbance coming from workings in the Bowkley Vein, is as much a surprise to us as to the people living in that locality Our mining operations there have been conducted with a view of maintaining the surface, and we consider that the pillars left were ample. The fact is that the top bench of coal in that vein, measuring about 18 inches is soft, and the pressure from above has caused it to run out. The vein at this point dips towards Main street, and crops out just east of Pennsylvania avenue. It lies about 60 feet from the surface."

"We have stopped all operations there and will discontinue mining until we have revised our method of supporting the surface to conform with the newly recognized conditions."

"While we hold the coal under lease, and that lease gives us the right to take out all coal, it is not our purpose to exercise that right, and we have already taken steps to prevent any further disturbance in that neighborhood."

This statement has created considerable confidence and peace of mind to those affected, and no animosity towards the company is apparent.

From personal interview it has been ascertained that the mining company has made satisfactory settlement for damages incurred in connection with this subsidence. This amounted to approximately three thousand dollars.

(24) SCRANTON, Petersburg District, February, 1913.

On the morning of February 8th a small cave occurred in Farber court, in the Petersburg District of Scranton, east of Mulberry street, between Irving and Prescott avenues. A brick dwelling 50 x 100 feet, constructed for the purpose of manufacturing ice cream, was slightly damaged. No other properties were affected.

The cave was in the nature of a crater of about 20 feet in diameter, and settled to a depth of 8 or 9 feet. No very serious excitement resulted on account of the cave.

The subsidence was caused by a chamber in the No. 1 Dunmore bed outcrop being driven into the overlying clay and soil, due to an erosion of the overlying rock. The bed is about 8 feet thick and lies at a depth of about 39 feet. It is the only bed being worked at the present time. The No. 2 Dunmore bed has been worked many years ago.

All mining in this section has been suspended while the rock cover is being determined by drilling. The stratigraphy of the coal measures in this location is approximately as follows:

Surface	39'	0"
Coal (partly mined)	8	0	(No. 1 Dunmore)
Coal (mined)	4	6	(No. 2 Dunmore)
Coal (solid) (unmineable)	1	2	(No. 3 Dunmore)

The depression in the surface was immediately filled in with ashes by the city authorities. The estimated damage to the ice cream factory is about three hundred dollars.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

BUREAU OF MINES

Washington.

Office of the Director. February 26, 1913.

Mr. W. J. Richards, President,
State Anthracite Mine Cave Commission,
Scranton, Pa.

Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in transmitting herewith computations of notes and observations in connection with the roof supporting materials tests conducted at the experiment station of this bureau at Pittsburgh, Pa., during December 1912, and January, 1913, for the Pennsylvania State Anthracite Mine Cave Commission.

These tests were conducted under the personal supervision of Mr. Charles Enzian, of this bureau, who is also a member of your Commission, and with the assistance and co-operation of Secretary Davies of your Commission. These men were assisted by engineers of the Bureau of Standards, who operated the testing machines, and engineers of this bureau, who assisted in recording the tests and computing the results. These letters were transmitted to you without any discussion by this bureau, for the reason that there has been no opportunity to consider or discuss them.

It seems scarcely necessary to call your further attention to the fact that this series of tests was of a preliminary nature, and that care should consequently be taken not to lay stress on a single series of unchecked tests for which new experience had to be obtained and new methods developed. These tests are, therefore, chiefly interesting in their suggestion of needs and methods for a more extended series of tests.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) VAN. H. MANNING,

Asistant to the Director.

EXPLANATION OF TESTS.

The materials used in the following tests were generously furnished to the Mine Cave Commission by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, Coal Mining Department, and the Susquehanna Coal Company of the Anthracite District, and are representative of the supporting materials available in that region.

Every specimen tested was constructed by expert miners and timbermen sent by the Commission, to the Bureau of Mines Experimental Station at Pittsburgh, for this purpose. The erection of the specimens in the testing machine was personally supervised by two members of the Commission.

Graphical illustration of the unit bearing value in relation to the percentages of compression obtained in the following tests are in course of preparation by the United States Bureau of Mines, and will appear in a subsequent report.

The tests are divided into the following groups:

A—EMBRACES TESTS 1 TO 4 INCLUSIVE.

Consists of loading mine props to determine the bearing value when placed in vertical position, two specimens being placed into the testing machine with the large ends uppermost, and the other two specimens placed with the small ends uppermost. While both specimens with the small diameter up resulted in higher unit bearing values, further tests are necessary before it is possible to advocate or disapprove the practice of placing props with respect to either the large or small end uppermost.

B—EMBRACES TESTS 5, 6, 12 AND 13.

Consists of loading dry rubble masonry mine rock cogs to determine the unit bearing value at various percentages of compression.

C—EMBRACES TESTS 7 TO 11 INCLUSIVE.

Consists of loading yellow pine, chestnut oak and spruce timber cogs, filled and unfilled, to determine the unit bearing value for various percentages of compression.

D—EMBRACES TESTS 14 AND 16.

Consists of loading square mine rock, mortar masonry, cogs centers hydraulically filled with culm, sand and ashes, to determine the unit bearing value at various percentages of compression. From the dimensions contained in the specifications of these tests it will be noted that the center cores are small as compared with the enclosing masonry walls; the dimensions of the testing machines did not permit the construction of larger specimens.

E—EMBRACES TESTS 15 TO 22 INCLUSIVE, EXCEPT 18.

Consists of loading hydraulically placed culm, sand, anthracite ashes, equal parts broken mine rock and breaker refuse, equal parts anthracite ashes and sand, and equal parts sand and crushed mine rock (passing through 1½ inch screen), in steel cylinders, to determine the unit bearing value at various percentages of compression.

F—EMBRACES TESTS 23 TO 29 INCLUSIVE.

Consists of concrete columns of various mixtures of cement, sand, gravel, anthracite ashes, breaker refuse, broken mine rock and culm, to determine the unit bearing value. Owing to the necessity of completing these tests for the purpose of this report, the specimens were allowed to set only seven days. This condition is comparable with situations which sometimes arise in mines where a stress is brought on supports almost immediately after erection. The materials used in the tests in this group, with the exception of the cement, were furnished from the anthracite region as representative materials available for this purpose. The sand is from the "River Flats" deposits and probably not the most suitable for making the best concrete mixtures.

G—EMBRACES TESTS 30 TO 34 INCLUSIVE.

Consists of loading reinforced concrete columns and brick piers to determine the unit bearing value at maximum loading. These specimens were constructed by the Bureau of Standards from certain materials as stated in the specification of the individual tests.

ROOF SUPPORTING MATERIALS TESTS CONDUCTED FOR THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION BY U. S. BUREAU OF MINES EXPERIMENTAL STATION, PITTSBURGH, PA.

TEST NUMBER 1.

Compression strength of Yellow Pine Props (Specimen 0-1 and 0-2).

INVESTIGATIONS OF OTHER MINING STATES.

With the hope of enlisting every available source of information, the Commission invited the co-operation of the Mining Department of every Mining State in the United States by submitting the following communication, viz:

"Scranton, Pa., Oct. 18th, 1912.

State of.....
Chief, Department of Mines..

Dear Sir:—The Pennsylvania State Anthracite Mine Cave Commission is at the present time engaged in the investigation of surface subsidence due to mine caves, with the view to arriving at a solution to this serious question. It is the hope of the Commission to enlist your co-operation in this matter. You will do so by replying to the general outline of the information desired, and indicated below, also by submitting such other suggestions or statements of fact and results of practical experience along these lines as you may care to offer, all of which will greatly help the Commission in arriving at conclusions and to formulate our report to the Legislature. We hope to have your permission to incorporate in our report to the Legislature of our State, your reply to this communication. A copy of the act of assembly creating the Commission is enclosed herewith. If practicable, the Commission would greatly appreciate your reply before November 1st.

1. Has the question of surface support received State, corporate or individual consideration in your State, particularly in connection with public buildings, railroads and waterways.

2. Give a brief general description of the geology of the coal measures in your State, with particular reference to the number of seams; the inclination of the seams; the thickness of the seams; the thickness and nature of the intervening strata; the depth of the deepest lying coal measure; the character of the coal (wether friable or tough); and the crushing strength per square foot—if determined.

3. Briefly describe the system of mining, whether longwell, room and pillar or other methods; also the method of second or "pillar" mining if any.

4. What is the extent of surface subsidence where all the coal has been removed and what precautionary methods, if any, have been adopted to guard against damage or loss of surface property. The extent of the surface subsidence should be expressed in terms of the depth of the coal seam below the surface.

5. What is the relation between the surface owners and the mining companies; that is, do the mining companies own or lease the coal? Are they required to support the surface overlying the coal measures where the same is valuably improved, occupied by public buildings or railroads?

6. Has any system of mine filling, either by hand or hydraulic methods been conducted in your State, if so kindly describe the material used, the approximate cost per cubic yard, of same and by whom the expense was borne.

7. Are there any laws on the statute books of your State pertaining to methods of coal mining or to damage caused by the act of mining?

We quote from replies received as follows:

ALASKA.

"There are no operating coal mines in alaska at the present time * * *."

ARIZONA.

"I am unable to give you any information that would be of any value to you along the lines suggested, as I do not believe there is a coal mine in operation in the State * * * The nearest approach to conditions similar to anthracite mining in my opinion would be those connected with the extraction of the low grade copper ores under what is known as the caving system whereby the overlying capping is expected to be brought down simultaneously with the stoping of the ore. The area of the ore body being determined beforehand by churn drilling and as the surface rights in common with other privileges belong to the operating companies, prior arrangements are made to avoid any complications arising from those conditions."

CALIFORNIA.

"There are very few coal mines in California and as far as I am aware, there is no direct legislation affecting coal mines only. Metal mines are worked in the usual manner, being timbered by stulls or in the case of large veins, by the square-set method. Sometimes, though not always stopes are filled with waste rock. In some cases where filling has been neglected, caves have resulted, the fact of which was observed on the surface where it is indicated by subsidence of the ground, the racking of buildings, etc. The California State law makes the owner of a mine responsible for any damage which may be done by his operations, whether such operations be conducted in a miner-like fashion or not."

IDAHO.

"We have no coal mines in this State, excepting a prospect of two producing a total output of not to exceed 2,000 tons annually, and consequently I have no experience to quote from on this subject.

Our big metal mines, principally lead-silver, are nearly all vertical or steep pitching veins, and are worked by square set methods of timbering, and filled with waste rock sorted out of the vein or borken in waste raises driven in the hanging wall, and do not have any surface cave troubles worth mentioning in the metal mining industry of this State, and nothing that would be of any value to you for comparison."

INDIANA.

1st. "The question of surface support for buildings and railroads receive individual consideration, waterways receive State consideration, when the safety of the employees in the mines becomes a question.

2nd. The number of seams being worked in Indiana are nine. They lay horizontal. The thickness of the different seams ranges from two to eight feet. Thickness of intervening strata ranges from ten to two hundred feet. Their nature is usually fire clay, slate, shale, small strata of coal, conglomerations and bastard slate. Depth of the deepest coal measure being worked four hundred and forty feet. The seams are both friable and tough. The question of strength not determined.

3rd. System of mining; room and pillar. Second pillar mining is not carried on to any extent, when it is the pillars are usually slabbed or robbed.

4th. Where the strata overlying the coal seams in deepest mines is thick and heavy and the bottom is soft, we are troubled with squeezes, and the subsidence, if any on the surface is uniform. On the other hand when the seam is shallow and the roof is not thick and heavy, and the bottom is sufficiently hard to support the down thrust the surface subsidence is considerable.

5th. The coal companies usually own both the surface and mineral rights, but quite frequently the mineral rights only are purchased and enough surface rights for buildings, etc., leased. There is nothing uniform in this matter, sometimes the coal rights are leased and the coal companies pay so much a ton royalty.

6th. No system of mine filling has been adopted though there have been instances where the railroad company have filled up portions of the mine that was worked out under their right-of-way. Slate or gob was usually used in this work, and sometimes cement pillars were built.

7th. There are cases on record where judgment has been secured on account of damage caused by the act of mining."

NORTH DAKOTA.

1. "The question of surface support in this State has received neither State, corporative or individual attention, and to my personal knowledge there are no mines whose underground workings extend under any building, railroads or waterways.

2. The coal beds in this State occur wholly in the Fort Union formation. The Fort Union here consists of alternating beds of sand, friable sandstone, clay and lignite. Sections of coal bearing beds have been found which aggregate 1,720 feet. Coal is found in locations by deep wells as deep as 800 feet. However, all the beds that are worked lie generally at a depth from 35 to 200 feet. Lignite is usually slightly resilient and of a tough character.

3. The pillar and room system of mining is generally adopted. Pillar mining is done where the roof is of exceptionally good character. The more usual system is to leave the pillars and mine the roof coal.

4. In regard to surface subsidence. This usually consists merely of pits on the surface, caused by caving from abandoned rooms in the mines, and of course, renders the surface unfit for argicultural purposes.

5. Practically all mines own the land on which they are operating.

6. With the exception of filling room necks for the purpose of maintaining permanent entries, there has been no system of back filling adopted.

7. There are no laws on the statute books of our State pertaining to the methods of coal mining. The only laws there are, are those calling for an examination of the coal properties, to be made biennially by the State engineer's office, and a report published concerning the condition in which the mines are found, with the end in view of discovering just what kind of legislation would be most efficient, and satisfactory to all concerned, and legislation along this line would undoubtedly be required when the industry becomes more developed within the State."

OHIO.

"No legislative consideration on the subject of surface support."

TENNESSEE.

1. "This question has not to my knowledge come up in this State.

2. Our coal lies generally in a mountainous section, often with heavy cover. Usually comparatively level or with slight pitch. Our openings are drift with a few slopes, with only two exceptions which are shaft mines. While in some localities there are several seams, there are few if any in which more than one are being worked. The geological work in the coal area has been limited so that I can give little data relative to position of seams, strata, etc. The coal varies greatly in the different seams as to stratification, hardness, etc.

3. Working room and pillar, no systematic long wall. Considerable variation as to detail especially as to robbing pillars.

4. I have no data on this subject nor do I know of any general surface subsidence to have taken place.

5. Many operators own the land; I cannot give the per cent. of land owned and leased. There are few places (none new to my knowledge) where improved property is, or is liable to be affected by underground workings.

6. None that I know of in coal mining.

7. None in our codifications of mining laws, and I do not know of any in our general statutes."

During the summer of 1912 a party of European Mining Engineers made a tour of inspection to mines in this country and it was the Commissions privilege to obtain expressions from them concerning the mine cave problem and to receive many valuable suggestions leading towards remedial measures. In general, mining in most of the European countries is conducted under close governmental inspection with particular attention to safety and conservation. Where the surface overlying the coal measures is valuably improved, no general solution for its support has been developed, other than filling. This may consist of hand stowed goaves, masonary pillars and hydraulic filling. In many instances filling material from quarries, mountain soil, sand, gravel, etc., is loaded into mining cars and taken into the mines and deposited in the workings at the expense of the parties directly obligated or benefited.

A more detailed statement of the European surface protective measures and their methods employed, and the expense connected therewith, is embodied in this report in a paper prepared on the subject by Mr. C. B. Hadesty, superintendent of the P. & R. C. & I. Company.

MINE SLUSHING OR HYDRAULIC FILLING IN EUROPE.

By Mr. G. B. Hadesty.*

Pottsville, Pa., October 14, 1912.

Apparently the impression has been created that a great deal of slushing is done in England and Europe. We traveled through England, Scotland, Wales, Belgium, France and Germany, always inquiring for the region where the slushing operations could be seen, but were invariably directed to Westphalia or Upper Silesia in Germany.

Germany does the greatest amount of slushing. Some slushing is done in France, but it is not of any magnitude.

Near Arras, France, we visited Lieviu Pit No. 4, where they are slushing on a small scale, about 300 tons per day being slushed into the mine. The material used is the slush and slate from the washeries. The coal seams in this region are not all pure coal, many of them carrying several seams of slate and rock, so that it is necessary to jig and wash considerable of the coal. The slate is crushed, mixed with silt and water, and carried down the shaft 1,365 feet deep in steel pipes 5.9 inches in diameter. They claim they can carry a mixture of 1 1-2 volumes of water and 1 of dirt, a horizontal distance, ten times as great as the vertical distance.

This mine produces 1,700 tons of coal per day, so that it can readily be seen that only about one-sixth the area worked is being slushed. This is not done to protect the surface but to win more coal in the mining, which is said to be 95 per cent.

The vein is 13 feet thick, dipping 10 degrees, and is worked in panels, with inclines each 150 feet that extend up the pitch 246 feet; every 75 feet a block of coal, 75 feet by 13 feet is removed and the roof propped every 3 feet. Around the outside props No. 12 wire is run every 6 inches, and ordinary burlap fastened from floor to roof to hold the slush and drain the water. Straw and small twigs are used to block leaks. This space is filled in two hours. Timber costs 20 cents per ton of coal removed. Slushing costs in addition 17 cents per ton of coal recovered.

Mr. Leon, Chief Inspector of Mines stated that at this depth hand packing subsides 65 per cent. of thickness of vein removed, slushing with waste and slate 15 per cent. and sand 10 per cent.

The profit on coal in this region is $1.00 per ton.

The sale price in $3.20.

Germany particularly is noted for the great amount of territory already slushed and being slushed.

---

*Mr. Hadesty is superintendent of the Pottsville Division for the P. and R. C. and I. Co. In 1910 he was a member of a party of American Mining Engineers on a tour of inspection of European mining practice.

It was the consensus of opinion of all the managers consulted in Germany that slushing was the only satisfactory method yet adopted for supporting the surface.

It must not be supposed that where slushing is done there is no settling as at the Salzer and Neuack Mine, 1,700 feet deep, owned and operated by Fred Krupp, Ltd. In the center of Krupp's works and practically in the center of the City of Essen, where they have been slushing for five years and where very close records were kept, it was found that with a surface cover of nearly 1,000 feet there was a settlement of 5 per cent. of the thickness of the veins removed, after slushing.

At this mine they also have records on areas packed by hand, in these instances the settlement on the surface was equal to 15 per cent. of the thickness of the vein, showing beyond doubt that the slushing method is far superior to hand packing.

As stated, this mine is in the center of the Krupp works and is possibly covered with property of greater value than any mine in Germany. They have 335 acres of surface to protect, as the entire area is covered either by Krupp's property or property within the city limits. Sand and all the refuse from Krupp's works, such as ashes, granulated slag, etc., is used for slushing.

Packing and slushing costs 37 1-2 cents per metric ton (2,230 pounds).

One of the Krupp buildings cost $800,000; it is underlain with several veins of coal, but they expect to mine and fill so rapidly that the settling will be so gradual as not to seriously affect the building.

They are now slushing 50 per cent. of all area worked, but when new arrangements now being made are completed, they will slush 80 per cent. of their workings.

To accomplish this they are building a new plant for storing, mixing, etc., which will cost $250,000. The concrete work of this building is in the shape of a large funnel and extends 50 feet below the surface; the superstructure is of structural steel and will support the crushers, cleaners, screens and mixers. It is said to be one of the most modern plants in Germany.

The colliery has worked 300 days per year, 2 shifts each day for many years, and for the last five years has been slushing daily 1,500 cubic meters of filling.

The 5 1-4 inch bronze pipe used for slushing costs $2.15 per foot, and is made by the Krupps exclusively, no other manufacturer thus far being able to determine its composition.

Coal produced costs $2.12 1-2 per ton, which includes about 25 cents per ton for damages to surface.

Coal sells at $3.25, leaving a profit of $1.12 1-2.

At the Deutscher Kaiser Mine, Duisburg, Meiderich, 25 kilometers from Essen, they are mining under the river Rhine and the canal.

The shaft is 1,950 feet deep, now working on the 1,880 feet level.

Three of their shafts produce 8,500 tons per day, working 16 hours per day and 300 days per year.

They are mining in 7 veins, from 2 1-2 to 5 feet thick, dipping 20 to 35 degrees, and are slushing in all these veins.

They use ground slag from their furnaces, and other refuse which is conveyed into the mines in porcelain-lined pipe costing $1.53 per foot. Some of this pipe has carried 500,000 tons of slush and shows no sign of wear or abrasion.

Cost per ton of coal removed for slushing in 22 1-2 cents.

They are not slushing the entire area worked, only portions where surface is occupied. The cost of slushing on whole output is 9 cents per ton. Using at present 1,200 tons ground slag.

The method used here is to remove the coal from an area 15 meters (48.7 feet) square, placing props every meter (3.24 feet). Around the outside row of props, boards 8 inches wide are nailed on inside props, about 5 inches apart, and burlap stretched over the boards, through which the water escapes. Before slushing the next section the boards and burlap are removed.

Coal costs $2.12 per ton, sells at $2.52 per ton.

In a salt mine 1,300 feet deep, near Stassfeurt, controlled by the potash syndicate, they are working a vein of potash salt called kanite, nearly 50 feet in thickness, on a pitch of 40 degrees. The space from which the salt is removed is packed with rock, mined especially for this purpose in rooms driven horizontally under the salt bearing strata. This rock is so strong that the rooms, 300 feet long, 75 feet wide and 25 feet high are standing the same as when driven. The pillars between the rooms are 48 feet.

At some points the surface has settled as much as 20 feet, whole rows of buildings being removed on this account.

One thing that impresses you very much in this town is a large Catholic church, not occupied, built of stone in the 13th century, the walls of which are considerably shattered but still intact. They claim it has settled 22 feet 4 inches in the last 20 years. Twenty-four feet of salt strata were removed in an area 400 feet under the church. At the time this was mined they worked rooms 75 feet wide, 120 feet long, and left pillars 27 feet wide but did not do any packing or filling.

Old towers are still standing in this town on an angle of 85 degrees.

Potash costs $8.00 to $10.00 per ton to mine and concentrate, and sells at $19.00 to $21.00 per ton, so that there is ample profit to do all that they are and more, to support the surface.

This mine is operated entirely on day wages, the average earnings being $1.12 per 8 hour day.

At the Ludwig shaft, near Kattowitz, Upper Silesia, Germany, they are mining a vein of coal 30 feet thick, working it in two benches of 15 feet each.

They use sand slushing to support public roads, cemeteries and other important structures.

Now using 700 to 800 tons per day.

They work the breasts 12 feet wide, leaving a pillar of 18 feet. The breast is worked with a double track, the loaded buggy descending, pulling the empty buggy to the face; this breast is then slushed and the pillar just left is removed and the space slushed. The vein dips 12 degrees.

Another method in use at this colliery is to drive inclines from the main haulage way every 180 feet, and from these inclines drive at right angles in the two benches, working the bottom bench first, slushing it, and then working the top bench in the same manner.

Slushing costs 22 cents per ton of coal recovered.

Average selling price of coal $2.00 per ton.

Net profit on coal 50 cents per ton.

This company pays 12 to 14 per cent. dividends.

The coal mined is used for steam and domestic purposes.

This company recently bought a tract of sand at 31 cents per square meter. The sand is 20 meters deep, so that their cost per cubic meter for sand in the ground will be only 1 1-2 cents.

At the mine Mizlowitz, near Kattowitz, owned by the Ferdinand Mining Co., they are using about 2,000 tons of sand in 20 hours for slushing, working two 10 hour shifts.

The increase in water pumped from the mine, due to slushing, is equal to 2 1-2 cubic meters per minute, the total pumping being only 12 cubic meters per minute.

The vein here is 30 feet thick and is worked in three benches. Inclines are driven 450 feet up the pitch (12 degrees) in the bottom bench 10 feet thick, from these inclines rooms are driven right and left 150 feet in the bottom bench, then slushed with sand. Next the middle bench, 10 feet thick, is removed and slushed in the same manner; finally the top bench, is taken, this space slushed and new rooms started farther up the pitch.

They are not slushing in all portions of this mine, only about two-thirds of the working places being so treated.

The mine produces 3,400 tons in two ten hour shifts and works 300 days per year.

The slushing is principally on a level 1,137 feet under the surface, but the shift is being extended to a depth of 1,625 feet. It is their intention on the new level to slush with sand and refuse for every ton of coal removed.

The ease of mining in this region can be readily seen when we say that one tenth kilogram of black powder produces one ton of coal.

This company has recently purchased a field of sand sufficient for 10 years slushing.

The slushing arrangements on surface are similar to those at other collieries, the funnel shaped concrete being used here also.

The miners at this colliery average $1.25 per day.

Outside men average 75 cents per day.

Profit on coal 60 cents per ton.

The Queen Louise mine, near Kattowitz, Upper Silesia, Germany, was opened in 1791. It is still working, two 8 hour shifts per day, 300 days per year, and produces 1,200,000 tons per year. The estimated life of the property is 30 years more.

The shaft in 650 feet deep.

They are slushing portions of the mine only, to support villages, railways, etc. Where farm lands only are affected, no slushing is attempted.

At some of their operations they are slushing to rob out old pillars left in the original workings of the colliery.

Only 850 tons of sand per day are used for slushing. This sand is loaded by a steam shovel 17 kilometers distant, and hauled by rail to the mixing pit. The water necessary for slushing is pumped 3 kilometers by electrically driven pumps, the electric power being carried the same distance.

The proportions of sand and water used at this colliery are equal.

The slushing costs 32 cents per ton of coal recovered from the area slushed.

All their slushing costs them 25 cents per ton output.

The company operating this mine has six other operations, and at all its mines is using 162,500 feet of pipe.

They claim to carry slush 23,000 feet.

The miner's earnings average $1.37 per day.

Outside men average 93 cents per day.

Boys average 25 cents per day.

The coal costs on the cars ready for shipment $1.70 per ton and sells for $2.30, leaving a net profit of 60 cent per ton. It was stated that this company's operations yield 35 per cent. on the investment.

They have a total of 8,000 employees.

We were told here that there is a convention of mine owners who fix the price of coal and determine how much each company shall mine. The government is a party to the convention and sends regular delegates representing the mines owned by them.

One of the Prussian government mines, Delbruck shaft, situated near Kattowitz, is working and slushing with sand, a vein of coal 30 feet thick on a pitch of 45 degrees.

There are two shafts at this mine, and the tract contains 12 seams of coal with a total thickness of 130 feet.

As we were particularly interested in thick veins we only visited the 30 foot seam, called the Jackson seam.

Main levels are driven east and west; then, every 750 feet, planes are driven up the pitch; from these planes, every 10 feet vertically one over the other, small gangways are driven east and west 375 feet. Three are worked advancing and filling with sand, three are left solid and worked retreating. From these gangways, rooms 30 feet wide are driven from bottom slate to top slate at right angles to gangways 10 feet high, timbered every 6 feet and then filled with slush from the gangways 10 feet above. A pillar of 30 feet is left between each room, and after all rooms are worked advancing, the pillars are worked in the same manner retreating.

The colliery produces 2,400 tons in two 9 hour shifts, and works 300 days per year. They could produce 4,000 tons, but the output is restricted by agreement.

It is estimated that with an output of 2,400 tons per day, this colliery can produce coal for 250 to 300 years.

Miners earn $1.25 per day.

Laborers earn 87 cents per day.

Coal costs $1.63 per ton.

Coal sells for $2.13 per ton.

Profit 50 cents per ton.

This plant cost $1,500,000 and has been in operation for 6 years.

Some idea of the extent of this basin can be had when we say it is 90 kilometers long, east and west, and 80 kilometers wide, north and south, making 7,200 square kilometers. One-fourth of the basin lies in Austria, one-fourth in Russia, and one-half in Germany.

SLUSHING PIPES.

The relative cost of iron pipe and porcelain lined pipe is as 1 is to 2 1-2.

The relative life is not determined, but at present is as 1 is to 8, with the porcelain lined pipe still in service.

Iron pipes last only a few months.

The standard porcelain liners are 5 1-4-inch inside diameter by 1 foot 3 inches long, while short pieces are furnished to fill the iron casing. This casing is flanged and comes in 15 foot lengths; the inside diameter is 3-4 inch greater than the outside diameter of the porcelain liner, which allows for 3-8 inch of Portland cement to hold the liner in place.

At most mines the iron casing and porcelain liners are bought separately and put together by their own mechanics.

In only one instance did we find any criticism of the porcelain lined pipe, so that we feel safe in making the statement that it is the best they have found for the purpose.

THE CAUSE OF MINE CAVES.

From the large number of mine caves investigated by the Commission numerous conclusions might be drawn. The primary cause of mine caves is the disturbance of the strata overlying a coal bed, due to a net work of openings by reason of the excavation of certain portions of the coal. The principles of safe and economical mining are well understood, and are more closely adhered to at the present time than in earier years.

There are many circumstances which affect the quiescent condition of coal pillars. In some of the early mining it was the practice to get the greatest possible quantity of coal from any given area, by making the excavations as large as possible. This practice naturally resulted in very small pillars, which as a rule were strong enough to support the strata overlying the bed at that time. When the mining in underlying or overlying beds was undertaken, it was found that the pillars in the old workings were of insufficient strength to withstand the vibrations and shocks caused by the heavy blasting thus occasionally originating what is termed a "squeeze." *

Frequently caves are due to the regular rountine of mining operations in the course of removing the coal pillars, variously termed "second mining," "pillar mining," "robbing," etc. This process of mining generally causes damage to surface improvements in inverse ratio to the depth of the bed below the surface.

PRECAUTIONARY METHODS ADOPTED.

A brief review of preventive methods in guarding against surface mine caves, is given below, as the result of investigations conducted by this Commission and stated, in the order of what is considered their roof supporting efficiency.

(1) Hydraulic filling and masonry supports.

(2) Hand mine rock stowing.

(3) Timbering.

Hydraulic mine fillings has been extensively employed in the anthracite region, where it has been found necessary to sustain the roof and protect the surface improvements, to guard against the possibilities of flooding the mine workings either by water or quick sand. It is also extensively employed in extinguishing mine fires, arresting squeezes, and as a substitute for roof support for either

*A "Squeeze" is caused by the general subsidence of the strata overlying the coal bed, due to a partial failure of the pillars; when this subsidence radiates from its origin it is called a "creep."

partial or total removal of coal pillars. Masonry roof supports, constructed of concrete, brick, dry or mortar rubble are extensively employed as an economical type of support for local strengthening or partial roof support under important buildings, streams and railroads.

Hand mine stowing has been employed for the purpose of roof support in assisting the removal of pillars or to improve the physical condition of the pillars.

Timbering is a form of roof support which has been made to serve various purposes in the course of mining operation. For the development of the final robbing out of a mine, timber has been the most extensively employed roof supporting material known. The most serious objection to this form of support is its comparatively low supporting value and very short life due to the rapid decay induced by the mine atmosphere.

METHODS OF COPING WITH THE MINE CAVE PROBLEM.

The investigations of the Commission disclosed a variety of methods of coping with the mine cave problem. In many instances the mining companies have assumed the obligations of repairing the properties damaged, although the titles of the surface owners contain explicit waivers of any such obligation. In other instances the mining companies have filled the workings by hydraulic methods, or by hand stowing in order that the subsidence of the surface would be as slight as possible when all or part of the pillars should be removed. In a number of instances the surface owners were allowed to construct artificial supports in the form of piers, either of concrete or mortar masonry. Timber cogs have also been constructed, where excessive first mining or final pillar mining indicated probable damage to the surface improvements.

VALUE OF REPORT TO PROPERTY AND MINE OWNERS.

In the preparation of this report the interests of the coal and surface owners have been constantly in mind. The investigations into the physical conditions and legal rights of each have been so conducted that the experience of one applies for the benefit of the other; also to make it possible from analysis of the result of the investigation to draw conclusions that would justify any recommendations which the Commission could formulate.

In presenting the results of our investigations it is hoped the surface property owners, as well as the mineral owners, will carefully analyze the results, compare deductions and approach our recommendations with an open mind. This has been the consistent policy of the Commission. The greatest value of this report lies in the hope that the general public and the mining companies may be assisted in arriving at agreements of adjustment of future possible surface damage.

CONSERVATION OF ANTHRACITE RESOURCES.

It must be borne in mind in the mining of anthracite, as well as in any other mining industry, a certain portion of the deposit must be left intact so long as it is deemed necessary to support the roof either as a legal obligation or for the maintenance of the mine. The latter may be governed by geological or physical limitations.

The geological conditions are the most difficult to surmount; presenting great difficulties due to water-bearing strata or to flexures, faults and folds. The physical condition of a mine is maintained to conserve the best interests of economical operation.

In every respect the conservation of the coal is influenced directly as the title to the same is governed by the exceptions and reservations contained in the severance of the surface and the mineral.

Experiments and researches have been conducted for many years to secure the utilization of every part of the anthracite product, and while the yield per foot acre has varied widely, there are many operations which by legal restrictions in their contracts are prevented from obtaining a maximum yield. The interests of the Commonwealth and nation are so vitally involved that the Commission feels it would not have completed its full duty without calling attention to the great importance of conducting mining in such manner as to make possible the highest practicable yield. From tables hereinafter given one can not fail to be thoroughly impressed with the importance of conserving our natural resources and the magnitude of the revenue to be derived from the industry by the public, the State and the nation.

THE EXTENT OF THE PENNSYLVANIA ANTHRACITE COAL REGION. *

LOCATION AND BOUNDARIES.

The anthracite field of Pennsylvania is located in the northeastern part of the State, mainly within Lackawanna, Luzerne, Carbon, Schuylkill and Northumberland counties. In these five counties anthracite mining is the dominant industry. The anthracite measures, however, extend into Wayne, Susquehanna, Wyoming, Sullivan, Columbia, Dauphin and Lebanon counties.

In general terms the anthracite region may be said to be bounded on the west by the Susquehanna river, on the north by the north branch of the Susquehanna river, and on the east by the Lehigh river. These rivers, together with the Schuylkill from the drainage outlets for the region.

The anthracite region embraces a territory of about 3,300 square miles, but less than one-seventh of this total area, or about 494 square miles is underlain by workable coal measures. This productive portion is, moreover, not a continuous area, but consists of a number of detached valleys, or basins.

NORTHERN BASIN.

The northern, or Wyoming-Lackawanna basin extends from Forest City to Shickshinny, a distance of 55 miles, and includes the historic Wyoming and Lackawanna valleys. The maximum width is 6 miles, and is crescent shaped, with the upper or northeastern extremity bending sharply toward the north. The Lackawanna river drains the upper, or Lackawanna valley, and empties into the Susquehanna near Pittston. The Susquehanna breaks through the hills from the north just above Pittston and flows through the Wyoming valley to Nanticoke, where it leaves the valley by an abrupt, southern turn. Carbondale, Scranton, Pittston Wilkes-Barre and Nanticoke are the principle commercial centers.

WESTERN-NORTHERN OR BERNICE BASIN.
(Loyalsock and Mehoopay Division)

Twenty-five miles northwest of the main northern basin there are several small detached coal areas, sometimes known as the western-northern basin, but included by the second geological survey of Pennsylvania in the northern basin, while the output is included in that of the Wyoming region. The principle towns are Bernice and Lopez.

EASTERN-MIDDLE BASIN.

This the smallest of the geographic divisions, lies about 15 miles south and southwest of the western and the northern basin, from which it is separated by a mountain range and an intervening valley. Its maximum is about 26 miles in length; its greatest width about 10 miles, and the total actual coal area is about 33 square miles.

The surface is a barren, unpicturesque plateau, ranging in elevation from 1,400 to 1,700 feet. The drainage toward the north is through the Black and Catawissa creeks, which empty into the north branch of the Susquehanna; toward the east it is through several small creeks emptying into the Lehigh. There is a very slight drainage toward the south and west into the Little Schuylkill river. The principal city is Hazleton.

WESTERN-MIDDLE BASIN.

This basin lies southwest of and adjoins the eastern-middle basin. It is north of and approximately parallel to the southern basin, which it adjoins for a short distance.

---

*For a more extensive account see Stock, H. H., 22d Annual Report, Director U. S. Geological Survey, pt. 3.

It is 36 miles long, 4 to 5 miles wide, with tapering ends, and contains 94 square miles. There are two distinct sub-basins or divisions of the western-middle basin, the Mahanoy and Shamokin basins, which are about equal in size, depth and importance. The Mahanoy basin extends from Delano on the east 25 miles westward to a point 4 miles west of Locust Gap. It is 2 1-2 miles wide near Ashland, and about 2,000 feet deep. The Shamokin basin extends from a point just east of Centralia 30 miles westward, to the west end of the eastern-middle basin. It is 3 miles wide near Shamokin and approximately 1,800 feet deep. The principal towns are Mahanoy City, Shenandoah, Ashland and Shamokin.

SOUTHERN BASIN.

This basin extends 70 miles east and west of Mauch Chunk on the Lehigh river, to Dauphin, on the Susquehanna. Near Pottsville it is 8 miles wide and then tapers; gradually toward both east and the west. In the latter direction it divides into two long narrow basins, the Dauphin and Lykens valleys. It is the largest of the fields, containing 181 square miles. Panther creek drains the extreme eastern and but the greater portion of the field drains southward through the Schuylkill and Little Schuylkill.

The surface contour is very broken and rugged, the general elevation varying from 600 to 1,800 feet above tide. The principle towns are Lansford, Tamaqua, Pottsville and Lykens.

TRADE DISTRICTS.

The lines of division for trade purposes are fairly indicated by the accompanying map (Pl. 1.) and tabulated as follows:

Trade.	Geographic.
Wyoming region...	Northern field and Bernice Basin.
Lehigh region.....	Eastern middle field and southern field east of Tamaqua.
Schuylkill region..	Western middle field and southern field west of Tamaqua.

PROBABLE EXTENSIONS OF THE ANTHRACITE FIELD.

It is probable that the limits of the anthracite measures are quite accurately shown on the accompanying may (Pl. 1.) and that the boundaries there given can be relied upon as representing the outside limits of the anthracite field.

GEOLOGIC RELATIONS.

The beds of anthracite coal were, according to Lesly, originally bituminous in character; probably deposited at the same time as the bituminous coal of western and central Pennsylvania, and subsequently changed to their present character by some process of metamorphosis.

STRATIGRAPHY OF THE COAL BEARING ROCKS.

The carboniferous formations of Pennsylvania, with the number by which they are generally referred to in reports of the second geological survey of Pennsylvania are the following: *

No. 10. Pocono gray sandstone.
No. 11. Mauch Chunk red shale.
No. 12. Pottsville conglomerate.
No. 13. Allegheny River coal measures.
No. 14. Pittsburgh (Lower Barren) measures.
No. 15. Monongahela River coal measures.
No. 16. Washington county group.
No. 17. Greene county (Uppen Barren) measures.

STRUCTURE OF THE ANTHRACITE BASINS.

A very striking feature of the anthracite coal field is the form of its basin. The coal beds are frequently upturned to the vertical position, and sometimes even overturned. At the upper or northern end of the northern field the basin slopes gently but gradually increases in steepness toward the south-west and west, and at the lower end of the field, in the neighborhood of Glen Lyon, the measures dip steeply and are very much contorted. The general dips in the northern field are much more gentle and uniform than in any of the other fields.

In the eastern middle field the basins are shallow, but the dips are sharp, being from 30 degrees to 50 degrees and more.

The basins of the western middle and southern are deep, with steeply dipping sides, the maximum of depth and steepness being in the southern field.

Throughout all of the fields the steepest dips are, as a rule toward the north and the more gentle ones toward the south. These characteristics are well shown in the accompanying cross sections of the several fields. (Pl. 1.)

NUMBER AND EXTENT OF WORKABLE BEDS.

NORTHERN FIELD.

From Forest City to Pittston and from Pittston to Nanticoke, north of the Susquehanna, the maximum dips are 10 to 20 degrees, while between Pittston and Nanticoke south of the Susquehanna, steeper dips sometimes ranging from 60 to 70 degrees are found, and near Glen Lyon the measures are overturned and badly broken. There are numerous anticlines and synclines in the measures, which can sometimes be traced on the surface, the anticlines being often marked by ridges and the synclines by valleys.

A marked feature of the northern field is the buried valley of the Susquehanna, extending from Pittston to Nanticoke. This is the bed of a former glancial stream which has cut down into the coal measures in places, thus cutting out large areas of the upper coal beds. The valley is now filled with sand, and there are numerous pot holes in it, which add an element of uncertainty and danger to the mining.

The Wyoming-Lackawanna basin is deepest (2,200 feet) midway between Wilkes-Barre and Nanticoke. About four miles above Pittston near Lackawanna station, only 100 to 150 feet of the coal measures are left, but north-east from here, several miles above Scranton the coal measures sink again to a depth of 700 feet, and then rise and open out beyond Forest City.

It is difficult to state the number of workable beds, as beds are now being worked in the upper end of the Lackawanna valley, which a very few years ago were considered unworkable. The splitting of a large coal bed into several smaller beds, which divide and are sometimes separated by as much as 200 feet of rock, renders it impossible to correlate beds in different parts of the field until continuous sections can be made from actual mine workings. As a result of measurements of 891 sections by the second geological survey of Pennsylvania, 81.8 per cent. of the total coal is considered workable, the remaining 18.2 per cent. being interbedded slate, shale and other refuse. The deposits in this field are particularly free from refuse, and the comparative freedom of this field from folding ensures a high percentage of marketable coal.

EASTERN-MIDDLE FIELD.

The structure of this field is simple, consisting of a section of anticlines, usually with broad flat crests and shallow intervening basins only about 500 to 600 feet deep, the sides dipping 10 to 40 degrees. This gives a large extent of outcrop, and the comparative shallowness of the basins has been very favorable to mining, so that the field has been extensively developed and its structure quite thoroughly determined. The Mammouth, Buck Mountain Primrose, Parlor, Portland, and Gamma beds vary in thickness in different localities. The second geological survey of Pennsylvania estimated that from 75 to 77 per cent. of the total thickness of coal was marketable.

WESTERN-MIDDLE FIELD.

In this field the beds incline steeply, the average dip being 35 to 40 degrees. There has been much folding, sliting, and shifting of strata, which has crushed the coal in many places and mined with it slate and bony coal partings. The coal measures are 1,200 feet thick and contain from 10 to 12 different beds, many of them of great thickness and with comparatively small intervening barren intervals. The Lykens valley beds are also found in the conglomerate, or No. 12, and toward the western end of the field these beds are mined; 1,144 sections throughout the field gave 23 per cent. of refuse in the coal but it is probably not safe to estimate more than 75 per cent. of the original as marketable coal.

SOUTHERN FIELD.

This field consists of a number of connected basins which grow gradually deeper from the north to south, culminating along the foot of Sharp mountain in very deep highly upturned, and greatly contorted measures. The Pottsville conglomerate in this region is very thick, ranging from 1,100 to 1,500 feet. It is made up of coarse materials, and contains a number of valuable coal beds, especially at the western end. At the point where the main field subdivides into the two westwardly extending basins there are six Lykens Valley beds in the conglomerate, each 3 to 10 feet thick. The coal measures proper are at least 2,500 feet thick, and twenty different coal beds have been worked. From measurements of 275 sections the second geological survey estimated 72 per cent. of the coal as marketable.

PRECAUTIONARY METHODS.

Our investigations show that at many mines throughout the region all waste materials, including the fine particles of coal, not now saleable as well as the crushed rock and slate picked from the coal, is washed into the mines to fill excavations, and to eventually serve as surface support. The quantity available for this purpose is comparatively small, being estimated at 10 to 15 per cent. of the excavated space, and therefore prevents filling on an extensive scale. In many mines when refuse material in the beds is excessive, stows of this refuse are built along the ribs or in open spaces.

Under massive masonry buildings, railroads, waterways, etc., masonry supports of concrete, mine rock or brick are sometimes erected as a special precaution.

ABSTRACT OF COMMENTS ON THE ANTHRACITE TRADE AS CONTAINED IN THE "COAL TRADE JOURNAL" 1912.

Despite all changes in trade conditions, an average of almost 10 per cent. of the total output of anthracite goes to points beyond Buffalo, and this has been the case from twenty to thirty years.

Figures showing the distribution of the anthracite output by States or sections were made public in earlier years through official channels, but since 1905 the compliation of these statistics has been discontinued.

The following table showing the distribution during the first half of the last decade, is of value, however, for the movement of hard coal along rather definite lines and the division of the tonnage is probably about the same today as it was in 1905. That is to say, each locality receives the same percentage of total output as it formerly did.

It will be observed that the three States, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey take approximately two-thirds of the entire shipments of anthracite and nearly one-half of the remainder goes to New England. Thus about 85 per cent. of the entire output is consumed in the East.

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLES.

The papers following were contributed by men of proinence in the Pennsylvania anthracite region. These papers have been given very careful consideration and in many instances were of great help in the deliberations of the Commission. They are included here as contributions to the exhaustive study of the mine cave problem, and the ultimate conservation of the coal, and as worthy of most careful consideration by all interested in a correct and practicable solution of the problem before this Commission.

The Commission however does not assume any responsibility for statements made and opinions expressed in these articles.

REMARKS BY MR. C. C. ROSE BEFORE THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION AT A MEETING HELD IN SCRANTON, JUNE 20, 1912.

Mining under the City of Scranton has been carried on for about fifty years and during that time the extraction amounted to about two-thirds of the total. This statement may be taken as a measurement of the time that will be required to fill back, which is estimated as about fifty years, if the surface is to be supported.

The Delaware and Hudson Company has been flushing culm, crushed slate and rock into their mines for a number of years. It is estimated that about seventeen million tons of flushing has been deposited. In many sections pillars have been removed from flushed areas, a rough estimate places this at about eight million tons.

Flushing is a very expensive operation. Great care must be exercised in selecting the amount of slate and rock or other valuless material with the culm, in order that an easy floating mass is secured, thus avoiding quantities of water to be handled. Items of considerable expense are air spouts, causing water-hammer in the flush lines; battery construction; filling sumps with fine sludge; pump valves and column lines becoming clogged with fine substance; bore hole construction and maintenance, etc.

Flush water in its course through the mines becomes impregnated with sulphuric acid, and causes destruction in its contact with all metal surfaces, thus affecting shakers, screens, jig and pipe lines. Flushing operations so far have been compensated by the coal made available due chiefly to the fact that such operations where conducted in the most convenient and available sections of the mines. The amount of flushing done under the City of Scranton is not definitely known, but its application is general in cases of squeeze and reinforcing of pillars in openings in the vicinity of the shaft and main traveling and haulage ways. As a general proposition it is not considered practical for coal companies to fill all the workings under the City of Scranton at their expense, excepting probably where coal is held in fee.

Where surface is damaged due to second mining in the leased properties at the present time, any damage to improvements must be borne by the party legally obligated unless the surface owners are old employees of the companies and in extreme destitute circumstances.

If all the coal is to be removed, approximately fifty per cent. of the Delaware and Hudson holdings will eventually require surface protection. The improvements consist chiefly of frame buildings which will not be injured permanently by surface subsidence.

The policy of the company is to conduct mining as carefully as is consistent with safety and conservation. The company has not made it a practice to offer to sell the pillars under property endangered. This attitude is due to the difficulty generally experienced in getting a sufficient number of property owners to agree on such a plan, moreover, the coal is generally far more valuable than the surface improvements.

Where the company holds coal property under lease containing provisions for the removal of all the coal, considerable trouble has been experienced with several lease holders who insisted that the provisions of the lease be carried out at the risk of damage to surface improvements.

It is difficult to offer a solution to the surface support problem other than filling the workings with some suitable substitute. In my opinion culm is the cheapest material, available, on account of its low specific gravity and its relatively good supporting value. Surface material such as sand, clay, loam, gravel; boulders, etc., if conveniently available to the mine, might be crushed and prepared for flushing, but as a probable prohibitory cost. Portions of the workings have become practically filled by falls and caves, except in the new workings in the Dunmore seams which contain impurities now gobbed along the sides of the road at the time of mining, thus forming a partial filler. Considerable relief to the pillars could be accorded by flushing at the street intersections of each city block.

It must be borne in mind that wherever coal is left in the mines for surface support when such coal is leased to the companies, and they are thus prohibited from taking it out, the lessors will lose that amount of royalty unless payment therefore is made.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF CULM FLUSHING IN ANTHRACITE MINES.

Read at a Meeting of Pennsylvania Anthracite Operator's Association, November, 1897.

James B. Davies.

Plymouth, Luzerne Co., Pa., Nov., 1897.

A.—BEGINNING OF FLUSHING.

In January of 1891 we built a small portable washer in order to experiment in cleaning the Dodson culm bank. This was replaced by a larger and a more permanent one, which is now our Jig House. By running our culm cleaners we found that to get rid of the dirty water was a problem not easily solved. The law was against us and would not allow us to run it into the Susquehanna river so we sunk several sumps on the top of the culm bank and pumped this water into them, in the hope that it would filter through and leave the imputities behind. This it did, but the mud filled our sumps faster than we could dig them, so necessity became the mother of invention and the thought struck us that we might as well face the shaft and try the old workings. A six-inch pipe was laid from the plant down the shaft, which is 400 feet below the surface; thence from the bottom of shaft to an old chamber below its level. We were soon convinced that this new invention was a success. Then another question flashed across our minds, "If the water of the washers could be disposed of into the old workings, why not the breaker culm also?" A practical answer to this question was given at once by making the new connection, November 20th, 1891. We are more than pleased to say that this was the first time as far as can be known in the history of mining, that the dirt pocket of the breakers were replaced by the old chambers in the mines. This happened in the Spring of 1891, with the culm cleaner and on November 20th of the same year the connection was made with the coal breaker. So this system was begun 6 years last March and completed 6 years on the 20th of the month. After filling several acres at Dodson the same system of flushing was established at Black Diamond. When this system of flushing was completed at both places, different operators and their officials examined it—fell in love with it and then applied it to their own colleries with success.

B.—CONDUCTING OF THE SYSTEM.

1. Outside: A small tank is set up under the chute that leads the dirt from the buckwheat screen. The dirt and water goes into this tank together and enters a pipe down the shaft into the mine.

2. Inside: This pipe is continued along the main gangways and airways from bottom of the shaft and branch turn off by means of three ways and elbows into the different chambers. At the bottom of the entrance of these chambers, a wall is built—well timbered on the gangway side, to dam the dirt that comes from the pipe. If the pitch or strata is light, the culm pipe must be brought down near this wall and the whole length of the said chamber. The mouth of the pipe is raised against the roof in order to fill this section tight. When this is done the contents of the main culm pipe must be turned into another chamber while the men are taking so many lengths of pipe off in the first chamber to give it another section to fill. When this is ready they must do the same with chamber number two. The pipe comes into the chamber in or as near as possible to the face of the chamber and continue to fill them thus, upwards. It would be well to notice right here, that the lighter the grade the more expensive it is. The pipe must be put in nearly the whole length of the chamber and must be taken out as it fills up. These two items—the pipe and labor is saving where the pitch is heavy enough for water to carry dirt—such a pitch is an exception in the Wyoming Valley.

C.—THE PIPE.

1. Size of Pipe: At the Dodson we use 6 inch-pipe from culm plant down the shaft along the Bennett gangway and Bennett Vein and down the Rock slope to Ross Vein, but in branches that turn to different chambers we use 4-inch and 5-inch pipes. At Black Diamond we use two lines of pipe—one 3-inch line, which takes the breaker culm into the mines and the other 4-inch that takes the bank culm to different points in the same veins. At Dodson the bank culm and the breaker culm enter the mines through the same pipe. We intend to do this at Black Diamond.

2. Nature of Pipe: We have tried three different sorts of pipe,—wrought iron, steel and cast iron pipes. The first is the best. The second is too soft and will soon wear out, while the third is harder than either, but when the culm begins to rub in it by flowing through, it becomes very rough. On account of this roughness that is created, the friction becomes very great and the casting is soon eaten out.

3. The wear of pipes: The best pipe depends on the nature of the water and the material that is flowing through.

a. With the fresh water and small culm from Buckwheat screen, it will last some eighteen months.

b. When carrying bank culm from dust up to pea coal and some chestnut in size, it will last some nine months.

c. When this is mixed with ashes it will not last more than six months.

d. When small culm from Buckwheat screen and bank culm runs together through the same pipe at the ratio of two small to one large, the pipe will last some twelve months.

D.—BEST SIZED MATERIALS.

1. The smaller the materials the better. The pillars in the mines are full of cracks and crevices—sometimes these run half way through the pillars and sometimes through. This depends on the nature of the coal and the size of the pillars. If these are to become solid once more the water must be supplied with small particles so that it can be carried to the farthest end of these crevices and make the pillar whole.

2. The smaller the material the less water required to carry it through. The reason for this is obivious. The larger the material the more space between the particles and the quicker the water will travel—it will travel faster than its load. But when its load is ground from rice size to dust, it is easier for the water to take it along than to penetrate through and leave it behind.

3. Also when smaller materials come in contact with the pipe it creates no friction and the pipe will wear better which is just the reverse with the largest size.

E.—BLOCKING OF PIPE.

A great many think that our culm pipe is a great Siphon with one end in the breaker and the other in the old workings depositing its contents in peace. This is a great mistake. It is quite an art to run it from one place to another without interupting the stream of culm and then cause it to block from the face of the mines to the breaker. When this happens the culm must be taken care of in the usual manner by taking it out to the bank until the pipe is cleaned out. This will sometimes take half a day—a day and sometimes two days, that is when a great many pipes need changing. This blocking seldom happens with the pipe that carries the small material from Buckwhat screens but this will happen in the culm bank plant pipe some three times a week but it will not happen one-half that many times in the pipe that carries the breaker culm and bank culm together. This also proves the importance of having enough good crushers to grind it to the proper size.

F.—WATER.

Among the numerous questions in regard to the culm filling the most important are those in regard to the water.

1. What kind of water? By all means it should be fresh, Dodson gets its water from the Susquehanna and the Black diamond gets it from Toby's creek. Mining water was tried at both places but proved to be very injurious to both pipe and pumps. Whatever percentage of sulphur might be in this water it doubles itself by the time it returns after washing the culm down to the mines.

2. Amount of water: This depends on

a. Distance: Dodson culm pipe is 2,500 feet long with its mouth near the bottom of the Ross slope. 1 1-2 pounds of water will deposit 1 pound of breaker culm at this point. 2 to 2 1-2 pounds will deposit 1 pound of bank culm in the same place. Dodson breaker and culm is flushed through same pipe. Black Diamond breaker culm pipe is 2,924 feet long. 1 1-2 pounds of water will deposit 1 pound of breaker culm at this point. Black Diamond culm pipe is 5,624 feet long. 2 to 2 1-2 pounds of water will deposit 1 pound of bank culm at this place.

b. When the pipe is changed from running into the slopes or anywhere under shaft level to the hill the water must be increased as its altitude above shaft level increases. When the Dodson culm pipe was running west some 1,500 feet then up hill three hundred until it became some 90 feet above level of shaft bottom then ran east some 700 feet to discharge its contents into the old cave, it took some 6 pounds of water for 1 pound of culm—mixed large and small.

c. We cannot claim that the above is scientifically correct on account of the impossibility of keeping the flow of dirt running as steadily as the flow of water. The flow of dirt from even the screen is not continuous but comes in rushes even when the dumping of coal is regular for the coal comes to the screen in doses like into the dump. Besides there are numerous stops during the day in the breaker and the shaft; whatever the length of three stops may be, there are the same lengths of clean water in the dirt pipes. If the stop happens to be three, five, ten or twenty minutes, more or less, the quantity of water pumped in that time goes to waste. The pump cannot be stopped until all the culm is out and that will take some twenty minutes at either of our mines. This proves that no two colleries can reach the same result for their conditions and irregularities differ very materially, so the waste water cannot be measured. The rule of the mines is, to give as little water as possible but enough to keep it from blocking. When it happens to block it is natural to increase the water a little more than is necessary. By being too careful against a second blocking, we may become too liberal with the water.

G.—HELP IN THE TIME OF SQUEEZES.

Props and cogs are not to be named the same day as flushing. The props soon break. The roof must lower many feet in a thick vein before the cog will begin to feel its load. By this time the pillar is crushed and its strength is gone. But flushing renders its support to the pillar as soon as it comes in contact with it. Even when the pillar is far gone and the roof in its rage, getting the best of it and no one dares to venture with a prop near the place, the water will carry its load and deposit the dirt around it into all its crevices until it becomes whole, in spite of the pressure, however great. The grunting of the pillar ceases as the dirt rises towards the roof. When the roof is reached and the pillar is buried, its prayer for help ceases and the pressure which was upon it goes for weaker pillars, but when so many others are braced up in the same way, they will stop the squeeze even if the roof must be broken to the surface. This they did at the Dodson and the shaft (400 feet) was saved. It is quite interesting to know how much this culm filling will give under a great pressure. Some say that a great pressure will reduce it to half of its thickness. In this case the roof will press the culm down to a smaller space than the coal occupied before it was mined. Others say that a great pressure will reduce it to occupy the same space exactly as the coal occupied before. This also cannot be correct. There is no formula also by which we can calculate the help that flushing furnishes the pillar in the time of a general squeeze. We have this question asked to mining engineers, but they seem to be at sea like ourselves—in the same waves and quite as far from shore in regard to the answer. It seems that experience only can throw any light on the question. It proves beyond any doubt that it is the best help for pillars that was ever invented. In a test we made at Black Diamond, by sawing out a perfect cubic foot of anthracite coal—pound it with hammers into rice and dust and flush the same into a box 12 inches by 12 inches by 17 1-2 inches that it will fill it completely. Thus the expansion is 5 1-2 inches. If so many chambers 17 1-2 feet high were flushed with the same sized material and density, the roof could not press the culm lower than 5 1-2 feet for it would be as hard as the coal at this point. But the roof cannot drop this 5 1-2 feet for the coal in the pillars must be considered. In a general squeeze, 5 1-2 feet of the top of each pillar will claim the same space, so the half of it must take its residence on top or in the culm and the pressure cannot drive the roof lower than 2 3-4 feet for at this point the solidity underneath it equals the solidity of the coal itself. We assume in the above that the pillars represent half of the coal. In case they represent a third only, the roof of a chamber 17 1-2 feet high will drop some 3 feet 8 inches.

The following facts should be considered in connection with the above:

1. Culm cannot be filled as closely in the mines as in the above mentioned box, but there is a margin as you see in No. 2.

2. No squeeze ever compressed the surface to the density of coal.

3. The waste of mines is supposed to fill only part of the vacancy that is made by mining, especially when the mines are old before the flushing begins.

4. Besides, pitch and location of openings, have their advantages and disadvantages in flushing.

H.—NUMBER OF ACRES FLUSHED.

The number of acres flushed in our two mines—Dodson and Black Diamond—as computed by our engineers, Aikman and Auman is as follows:

	Area of space filled to thickness of vein.	Area of space covered one foot in thickness.
Dodson—Old Bennett (Hillman) Vein	1 67-100 Acres	8 68-100
Bennett and Baltimore Vein	17 23-100 "	147 66-100
Ross Vein	24 02-100 "	141 74-100
	42 92-100 "	298 08-100
Black Diamond—Ross Vein	14 43-100 "	121 40-100
Red Ash	17 03-100 "	153 21-100
	31 46-100 "	274 61-100

I.—AMOUNT OF COAL SAVED.

There is no formula by which we can calculate the amount of coal that can be saved per acre by flushing. The conclusion is out of the reach of any theorist. It is pure and simple a matter of judgment, which varies of course according to the experience of the different judges. However, the judges in this case, like many others must be the very best class of miners—men of experience in squeezes, caves and explosions.

We are under the impression that their conclusion would be if they could come to any.

1. That when mining under some 400 feet of strata, flushing will save the company one-fifth (in the Bennett).

2. When mining 200 feet deeper in the Ross it will save the sixth.

3. In the Red Ash when some 700 feet below the surface they might say that flushing will save the seventh. The difference in the amount of percentage is brought in by the facts that the Bennett is under less weight and makes stiffer and better pillars than either the Ross or the Red Ash. The best pillar is the one that will stay as it was cut out until it is disturbed by a squeeze. The Ross pillars at Dodson and the Red Ash at Black Diamond will not do this. It is their nature to tear themselves, fly into space and fill up the empty chambers and cease to be pillars. Although the Red Ash pillar in Plymouth is nearly three times as high as that of the Ross, the nature of the coal makes it a tougher and a better pillar. Atmospheric changes do not effect this vein the same as it does the Ross. The Red Ash above Kingston is worse for a pillar than even the Ross in Plymouth. There is from 8 inches to 2 feet of loose stuff between the vein and the roof at Black Diamond which runs off the pillar until it becomes bare like a prop without a cap piece, for so many feet each side. This loose stuff decreases our average very much and increases the dirt besides making a pillar valuless. The owner of ten acres Red Ash from Plymouth to Nanticoke is better off than the owner of twenty acres Red Ash from Plymouth junction to Pittston. The percentage of coal saved by flushing depends very much on the size of the property also, for when two veins are under seventy feet apart it is necessary sometimes to stop the party in the upper or lower vein until one is worked or flushed through first then return the other party. Even in the same vein it is necessary to remove miners when their chambers are not half done until the surrounding chambers are flushed. But this cannot be done unless the property is large enough to allow us the required number of chambers for such changes. In some cases a whole gangway should be stopped in order to flush in it so many chambers have and there that would stand in place of so many blocks of coal to be in readiness by the time the whole of the chamber comes through to the gangway above. But this is impossible unless the size of the property will allow it.

J.—THE QUESTION OF FIRE.

A great many have been under the impression that culm after being filled tight in old chambers would take fire, either through natural combustion, explosions or otherwise. This is out of the question.

1. Culm with the present preparation is lifeless on account of its heavy precentage of slate and slate dust that is mixed with it.

2. This when set by the water becomes close and hard—so much so, that it is an impossibility for the fire to penetrate it on account of its being dead and without crevices for air to feed the fire.

3. The nature of the material, thus set, is better to put fire out in the mines than either water or steam. Water runs away unless the mines are flooded above the fire level. Indeed we have mines flooded hundreds of feet above the fire three times and pumped out three times and the fire is still there. If this could be surrounded by so many flushed chambers its life would soon cease. Steam has been in great demand for this purpose but it seems that it has ceased to do so. No wonder, for it is a matter of impossibility to close it tight and the heat ruins the mines by bringing down the roof. This then goes on fire—a fire that is one hundred per cent. worse to put out than one in the coal, for it is more fierce and ascends out of reach and becomes the worst enemy the miner ever met.

SURFACE PROTECTION.

By George E. Stevenson.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 17, 1912.

Gentlemen of The Mine Cave Commission:

Realizing that the problem referred to you is an extremely difficult one and believing it is the duty of every good citizen to lend what small assistance he can in the matter, I hereby grant your request and submit the following as a brief outline of my thought in the matter.

The conservation and ultimate utilization of every pound of anthracite coal that can be won is necessary for the continued prosperity of the people of the entire anthracite region.

The continued mining of anthracite coal in Scranton is vital to Scranton's growth and prosperity. It cannot be stopped by any drastic enactment without causing greater damage to the city's welfare and is now occasioned by the surface settlements which follow the exhaustion of the coal. The right of the owner of the surface and the coal to sever the surface from the coal and by apt words in the conveyance reserve the right to mine and remove the coal without liability for damage to the surface, having recognized and thoroughly established for many years, cannot now be taken away by the creation of new laws without doing gross injustice to the owner of the coal.

It seems to me as an economical proposition, that where the present value of the surface and improvements is less than the present value of the coal beneath the surface, and it is necessary to sacrifice the surface and improvements in order to win the coal or sacrifice the coal and cease mining it in order to save the surface and improvements, that the matter of which shall be sacrificed resolves itself into a question of value only.

The area overlying the anthracite fields in which the surface and improvements are of greater value than the mineral yet to be won beneath the surface is comparatively small as compared to the area when the coal is of greater value than the surface and improvements, and it does seem that the owners of the surface, and the owners of the mineral, and the municipality might, by agreement, in these restricted localities work out a system of artificial support of the surface that would insure protection at a cost that would warrant such a plan to be put into operation. At the present time, flushing with culm, ashes and coal waste seems the most economical and satisfactory method and one which meets the approval of the majority of engineers and skilled mining men.

In some instances where extraordinary strength is required in the filling material, and at points that are easily accessible, more substantial supports of concrete might be used. The expense of these supports should be shared in proportion to the interests to be served.

It is self-evident that where the surface values and improvements would not equal the cost of artificial supports, that it is idle to talk of sacrificing the more valuable mineral beneath the surface to save the less valuable surface.

Schools and public buildings within zones liable to suffer surface settlements should be planned to withstand, as far as is possible, the effects of surface settlement; should be lower structures, planned to withstand the conditions as are the buildings within the earthquake zones, which are planned to withstand the earthquake shocks. Such buildings might be, particularly school buildings, located beyond the out-crops of the coal measures and a system of low rate street car transportation used to carry the children to and from the buildings.

The Lackawanna Valley underlaid with coal varies in width from as low as one and one-half miles to perhaps three miles, and with the school buildings located beyond the coal measures, the longest distance the children would have to be transported to reach the schools would not exceed two miles.

In the country districts of Lackawanna county today, high schools are centralized and the children are transported by wagons, at public expense, several miles, to enable them to enjoy the better advantages of schools containing more grades. This system has seemed to work successfully in the country, why will it not work successfully in the city?

Any method adopted for the protecting of the surface must be applied with full recognition of the legal and equitable constitutional rights of the owners of both the surface and mineral so as to work justice to each. If public necessity demands that the coal now standing beneath the public streets of the city be left in order to support the surface, it seems to me that the only available method of securing this might be an extension or broadening or the right of eminent domain, bearing in mind always that the owner of private property cannot be deprived of that ownership or have his property taken away from him for public use, without due compensation. Surface lands can be taken under the right of eminent domain for public use, and the owner is paid a value for the property so taken, determined by disinterested viewers, subject to appeal to the courts and a jury. If the coal beneath the streets is necessary to support the streets for public use, why not apply the same principle and take it and pay for it.

SURFACE SUPPORT.

By R. V. Norris.

Surface Support. The problem of surface support in coal mining is naturally divided into three branches:

First. Surface covered with improvements of such value as compared with the value of the underlying coal, or with such elements of danger to life, that absolute support is essential.

Second. Surface with improvements of less value than the underlying coal such that moderate settlement may be permitted, but destructive settlement must be avoided, either by reason of danger to human life, or of unwarranted property damage.

Third. Surface of relatively small value as compared with the underlying coal where destructive settlement may be permitted.

In the first case it is evident that the original support must be maintained either (a) by leaving ample pillars and confining the coal recovery to a very conservative first mining, (b) by so supporting less conservative first mining by filling or flushing that the gradual deterioration of the pillars may be prevented and subsidence avoided, (c) by incompressible support as masonry either as an adjunct to insufficient pillars or in place of the original coal support.

(a). From the Scranton Engineers Club tests it appears safe to figure on 2,000 pounds per square inch as the safe squeezing strength of coal pillars in place provided that these are, as usual, not higher than their least horizontal dimensions, and from this figure the percentage of pillar to be left for various depths may be easily calculated, for safety in this case it would be necessary to protect the pillars from deterioration by lagging or better by packing, and for minor depths the roof between the pillars should be at least partially supported by packing or flushing to prevent local caves.

(b). With full support as by flushing or careful packing it seems probable that as high as 3,000 pounds per square inch would be safe for coal pillars in place, and that the first class support could be given by a percentage of pillars calculated on this basis with full flushing.

(c). As the materials available for masonry in the mines are usually relatively weak sandstones and slates even first class masonry supports built of these will have no greater strength than the original coal pillars, and as the masonry would cost at present prices much more than the value of the coal in place. It does not seem practicable to remove the coal and replace by masonry supports where the first class surface support is required.

The second case, where moderate settlement may be permitted, but destruction of the surface should be avoided, is the general condition applying to ordinary built up territory without monumental buildings, or special mining conditions. In this it is assumed that all possible coal is to be removed and the problem becomes one of partial support and the avoidance as far as practicable of destructive fractures. This then requires such mining and support as will permit gradual settlement, and while it cannot be absolutely accomplished can be approximated, (a) by leaving sufficient pillars for temporary support only which will gradually disintegrate under pressure, avoiding leaving any large blocks of coal which by their resistance would cause a breaking off of the strata and fracture of the surface, such mining would necessitate very evenly distributed pillars of practically equal size, and the expectation of a general squeeze and final loss of the pillar coal thus sacrificed. That such squeezes may result in surface squeezes without serious injury is shown by a study of the results of many serious squeezes in the mines of the Lackawanna and Luzerne counties, the surface damage from which, assumng sufficient depth to prevent cave holes, has usually been confined to the vicinity of large blocks or of barrier pillars.

(b). By extensive flushing or rock filling, the coal should be capable of full removal, the inevitable settlement on to the filling which as shown by Messrs. Conner and Griffith may compress from 25 to 30 per cent., should if second mining is carried on regularly and systematically be gradual with a minimized surface damage. A careful study of the results to the surface of the extensive second mining now in progress should be made with the purpose of determining the amount of filling necessary to prevent destructive rupture of the strata, as in my opinion it will be found that very much less than full filling by flushing or packing is necessary to attain a gradual settlement, with a minimum of surface damage, provided that the second mining as it progresses is complete, and that no solid blocks are left to form breaking points for the strata.

The third case, where destructive settlement is permissible covers the greater part of the mineable area, and it would seem a mistake to use the limited amount of flushing material in territory of this sort, and that the filling desirable for mining purposes only, should, in such territory, come from the mine rock rather than from finer material.

Surface Beds. The above discussion presupposes a sufficient depth of working to prevent local roof falls from affecting the surface; unfortunately in many places large beds lie so close to the surface that simple falls in the workings result in disasterous surface rupture.

Surface Rupture. Where the surface value warrants the expense such shallow beds should certainly be supported by full flushing or filling regardless of the conditions in the underlying beds, and it is my opinion that such support would go very far towards minimizing or even preventing surface damage from subsidence in the lower beds, as the fully flushed workings in surface beds, even with a full removal of coal and reflushing of the openings with the resulting gradual subsidence, should act as a cushion to distribute the settlement from the removal of the coal in the lower beds, and minimize the surface damage therefrom.

To. Summarize. In my opinion complete support can only be attained by leaving sufficient coal pillars properly protected, or the replacement of such pillars by first class masonry of sufficient strength to carry the overlying strata.

But damage may be minimized and in the main avoided by the support by flushing or filling of any surface beds which may threaten surface damage from local falls or cave holes, and bringing about the gradual subsidence of the underlying beds by complete removal of the coal with partial support from packing or flushing with the removal in second mining of all blocks or pillars which could by their resistance cause fracture of the strata.

Further, sections of second mining should be so chosen that the edges of the area, where fractures and destructive surface damage are inevitable, will fall in places where such damage is permissible.

PILLAR AND ARTIFICIAL SUPPORT IN COAL MINING WITH PARTICULAR REFERENCE TO ADEQUATE SURFACE PROTECTION.

Douglas Bunting.

When surface caves and disturbances occur so frequently as during recent years in the anthracite fields, suggestions are made as to the best means of preventing future surface disturbances and incident damage.

This subject can be resolved into two problems in which the conditions are more or less dependent as follows:

First. The determination of the size of pillars necessary for economical and safe mining.

Second. The determination for the size of pillars and artificial support necessary for adequate surface protection.

The two problems are contingent in the fact that if pillars of sufficient size are established by the first problem they will meet the requirements of the second problem absolutely when the depth of the veins below the surface are not less than 800 feet.

In the determination of the size of the pillars for veins at depths of less than 800 feet and especially when the vein is less than 300 feet below the surface, the problem is dependent upon the variable conditions of the vein, bottom, top and influence of underlying veins.

These conditions, being of more consequence than in the determination at greater depths, result in a lower factor of safety for the pillars as determined, and consequently necessitate the application of the second problem for the determination, of pillars necessary for adequate surface support when such is required or desirable.

In determining the sizes of pillars necessary for economical and safe mining, the reader is referred to my paper entitled "Chamber Pillars in Deep Anthracite Mines," published in the transactions of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, Vol. XLII, pp.-236-245.

The size and character of pillars necessary in the second problem, whether they are coal artificial or a combination of both, will be dependent upon adequate surface protection, the nature and value of surface improvements, as well as depth, thickness of veins, nature of top and bottom and the influence of underlying veins.

When the surface is to be absolutely supported against subsidence and the existing coal pillars are thought inadequate or second mining is to be done, then an incompressible artificial support will have to be used.

When the surface improvements will permit of subsidence, then compressible artificial support can be used of a size dependent upon its character, ultimate loading and the amount of subsidence permissible.

The application of a formula for determining the safe size of coal pillars for various thicknesses of veins and depths can be considered practical for depths greater than 500 feet, but it is doubtful if the same formula would be of any practical value for application to veins at less depth and certainly of diminishing practical value with reduction in depth and thickness of veins for the reasons that the variable conditions of vein, top, bottom, etc., are of more consequence with small pillars than with large pillars.

The influence of mining in underlying veins upon the pillars of overlying veins is of importance, as the effect is to throw abnormal stresses upon the overlying pillars which may cause a squeeze with its consequent damage to other veins and surface. This damage may occur to pillars which would otherwise have been of sufficient size and strength to withstand the natural superimposed loading and furthermore this influence is more marked where the overlying veins have not been systematically mined and the pillars are of variable size. These are the conditions to be found in much of the older mining, and where surface protection is to be considered should be given due consideration in the solution of the problem pertaining to artificial support necessary for adequate protection.

An illustration of the consideration of the possibility of such influence is to be found in the work done by the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company for the Central Railroad of New Jersey in the City of Scranton, and of which the following is a description:

The passenger station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in Scranton, located on the north side of the Lackawanna river at the intersection of Lackawanna avenue and Seventh street, was destroyed by fire early in 1911, and in August of the same year, when the erection of a new station was under contemplation, the question arose as to the liability of future surface disturbance due to past and future mining beneath the property.

In order that the exact conditions might be determined in the Diamond and Rock veins, which had been mined years previous by the Bridge Coal Company, it was necessary to gain access to these old workings. This was done by opening an old air shaft on the property and shown in plates 1 and 2, also by a rock slope leading from the surface to the Rock vein and located about 630 feet east of the shaft.

After opening the shaft, which had been filled with culm and other refuse, and cleaning the workings of water and falls in so far as necessary, surveys and examinations were made in the Diamond and Rock veins. The mining in the underlying veins being of more recent date, accurate and reliable maps were at hand.

In consderation of the extent of the workings and the conditions as found in the Diamond and Rock veins, it was decided that in order to adequately protect the surface for the new station to be erected it would be necessary to introduce artificial support in both veins. The artificial support recommended was sand, to be introduced by slushing. It was not considered necessary to fill the entire area of the workings, but only to reinforce sufficiently the smaller pillars in both veins and fill the wider areas in the Diamond vein so as to prevent any further caving of the roof.

The method of procedure in doing the work was as follows: An 8-inch bore hole was put down near the corner of Lackawanna avenue and Seventh street to the Rock vein and a 6-inch pipe inserted to convey the sand slush to the Rock and Diamond veins. The location of this hole is indicated in plates 1 and 2, and it is to be observed that the depth to the Diamond vein is approximately 48 feet, and to the Rock vein, approximately 32 feet. At the top of the bore hole a double hopper was constructed, as shown in figures 3 and 4, to receive the sand as it was unloaded from the cars. At each end of this hopper the water for sand slushing was put in. To supply the necessary water for slushing a 10-inch by 5-inch by 13-inch sinking pump located in the shaft at the Rock vein was used, also a 6-inch by 4-inch by 6-inch duplex pump located at the Lackawanna river directly south of the shaft. Both pumps discharging in the hopper referred to above. In order to confine the sand slush to the mine workings to be filled, stoppings constructed of mine rock were built at the locations shown in figures 1 and 2. After completing the sand filling in the Rock vein, as shown in figure 2, the slushing in the Diamond vein was proceeded with by disconnecting the 6-inch pipe in the 8-inch bore hole at the Diamond vein and making connection with the pipe previously laid in this vein to convey the sand slush to the locatoins desired. The extent of sand filling in the Diamond vein is shown in figure 1.

In figure 5 is shown a general view of the property with the one-story temporary passenger station, the Lackawanna river in the foreground and the sinking tower located over the shaft. In figure 6 is shown a closer view of the sinking tower, engine, boiler house, etc., at the shaft.

The sand used in this work amounted to approximately 9,400 cubic yards and was transported in railroad cars from Wanamie, Luzerne county. The total labor cost of this work, including the opening of old shaft, clearing caves for the purpose of examination and survey, building batteries, laying pipe and sand slushing, but not including materials or cost of sand delivered in cars at the work amounted to $6,454.07 or 58 cents per cubic yard of sand filling.

The total labor cost from the time of actually starting the sand slushing to completion, but not including the costs of preliminary work, amounted to $2,671.12 or 29 1-2 cents per cubic yard of sand filling.

These costs of sand flushing could be materially reduced where the work is more extensive and of greater magnitude.

PRELIMINARY REPORT OR MEMORANDUM SUBMITTED TO THE PENNSYLVANIA ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION BY MR. J. BENJAMIN DIMMICK, OF SCRANTON, PA. A MEMBER OF THE COMMISSION, SEPTEMBER 3, 1912.

The problem of the support of the surface in the anthracite region is probably one of the most difficult problems that has ever confronted a modern community and a certain feeling of hopelessness has brought about an almost stolid indifference—the hopelessness springing from the legal exceptions and reservations in almost all conveyances of real property (that is, surface property) and the indifference being accentuated by the fear of injury through publicity, the necessary publicity of any attempted solution; but the far-reaching effects of any doubt as to the stability of the surface, upon which great communities are not only carrying on their daily activities but actually living, entrusting thereto wives and children, all that is dearest to them, have at last awakened and stipulated all, both men and women, to action, and the community should be satisfied with no final solution until at least reasonable security is promised, promised not as a matter of grace, but as of right.

The careful and comprehensive report of Messrs. Griffith and Connor, approved by John Hays Hammond and by as distinguished a body of engineers as possibly ever convened to pass upon a community problem, sets forth the conclusion that flushing is practically speaking, the only remedy and this conclusion has been substantially confirmed by most of those who have appeared before this Commission. Another general conclusion in which I think all would concur, is that without passing upon the question of who should pay for it, flushing could be carried on more effectively and at less cost by the mining companies themselves, rather than by municipalities or individuals.

The suggested remedy of flushing, however, is a remedy designed not only to meet existing situations already created, but also to meet anticipated situations, such situations as would be brought about by the removal of pillars, such removal being professionally called "second mining" but popularly dubbed "robbing," and possibly the latter term is the more accurate definition.

The discussion of the problem may therefore be divided into two branches, namely; the consideration of remedies for mining operations already comsumated and remedies for future mining operations constitute by far the greater letter that I propose to discuss, believing not only that future mining operations constitute by far the greater menace to the surface, generally speaking, but also that there is liable to be a greater divergence of opinion as to the undoubtedly conflicting equities with which one is confronted in endeavoring to work out any practicable solution.

In considering as to where the cost of supporting the surface should fall, we are met at the very threshold by the reservations and exceptions in almost all deeds and conveyances—reservations and exceptions so clear and explicit as to leave but little doubt as to their true meaning and intent; and furthermore apparentely supported and buttressed by the Federal Constitution and its amendments, forbidding any government to pass any law impairing the obligation of a contract or to deprive any person of his life, liberty or property without due process of law, I say

"apparently" and use the word advisedly, because I am of the opinion, and I shall give you my argument "in extenso," that there is no constitutional barrier against the inclusion in the general police power of a State or a community of the specific power to declare as null and void and as against sound public morals any and all contracts that waive the right to a reasonable support of the surface which is to be occupied and used for community purposes. I say "reasonable support" meaning such support as is given by the leaving of such pillars as may be regarded as giving substantial support to the surface. That a certain risk must be run by surface owners goes without saying in a community in which the operation of mining and the existence of the community are interdependent, but between the slight, almost negligible risk of settlement, where the pillars are left, and the almost certain and widespread disaster where the pillars are removed, there is a most decided and appreciable difference not only as to property, but also as to danger to life and limb.

From the report of Messrs. Griffith and Connor, confirmed by the many opinions expressed before this commission, the amount of property in the City of Scranton seriously menaced at the present time is relatively small, not over 15 per cent., but the amount that would be endangered by the removal of pillars is decidedly large; therefore it becomes of the first importance to consider such removal and such removal is undoubtedly now imminent. If such removal can be prevented, or at least prevented until other support is provided, a very great step forward would have been taken in the matter of surface support.

This position, the improperiety, or immorality, if you please, of removing the pillars is further emphasized by the widespread belief, for many years at least, upon the part of owners of the surface, their contracts to the contrary notwithstanding, that such pillar support would not be withdrawn. This belief, doubtless, having been developed at the start through the almost universal practice that prevailed of leaving pillars, whatever may have been the purpose thereof, and this belief was confirmed rather than shaken by the subsequent activities of the large mining interests, such interests by their own investments and improvements upon the surface, such as stations, shops, etc., to say nothing of the private dwellings of the very officials of the companies in question, intimating their confidence in the substantial character of the communities that were being developed, at least not suggesting their belief that these communities were ultimately to be in effect destroyed by their own activities.

Undoubtedly there is a clash of equities in the situation, but I contend that this attitude upon the part of the great mining corporations towards these communities, that were, moreover, necessary for the the permanent carrying on of their very mining operations, was such as to easily offset in the mind of the individual owner of real estate the force of the reservations and exceptions in his deed—such reservations and exceptions being not infrequently in the printed form and doubtless as little regarded, especially by those of foreign birth, as the eleborate legal phraseology that still obtains in transfers of real estate in this Commonwealth.

This attitude of the mining corporations in question has been further emphasized by their leading resident officials, men not only performing their official duties, but entering into community life, being directors of banks, and as such trustees making large commitments all based upon the continued welfare of their respective communities; participating in the erection of costly churches, great hospitals and all of the many institutions that are features in our modern life; in fact, playing the part of good citizens their attitude wholly inconsistent with the idea that they themselves believed that the day would ever come when either they or their successors would demand their "pound of flesh;" supporting this demand upon their ancient contract and the alleged economic necessities of the nation, and taking this "pound of flesh" not only at the expense of the property investments of the men and women who had made their mining operations possible and also all their gifts and donations that were supposed to be of benefit to oncoming generations, but also at the expense of human life, for no man who is familiar with the exceptional good fortune, as regards loss of life, that has attended the anthracite communities thus far, can contemplate the general taking out of pillars without appreciating that there would be, in all probability, a heavy toll of human life, to say nothing of property, if this "second mining" or "robbing" of pillars is permitted. I do not, I cannot believe that the owners and managers of the great anthracite properties will evade, and with such disastrous results, the penalty of their own participation in the lulling to sleep of growing communities as regards their, the corporations alleged rights, and yet, if such should be their attitude, I think that the moment has arrived for the assertion upon the part of our communities of a police power that will secure to them such reasonable security as is not only desirable, but necessary for their very existence; and incidently, the plan I would suggest need not of necessity take a dollar from the treasury of the mining companies, provided they can satisfy public opinion of their own equities, and clearly that much should be not only expected, but demanded of them.

I would recommend submitting to the Legislature an act that would declare null and void and as being contrary to public policy any and all contracts that waive the right to, or release from responsibility for, reasonable support of the surface wherever such surface is actually devoted to community life, the word "reasonable" to be interpreted as meaning such support as would, in the opinion of the mining experts, give promise of being effective.

First let me speak of the practical result of such placing of the burden of support, as regards future operations at least; upon the mining companies.

Fortunately this problem has been attacked at a period in which public opinion is slowly but surely crystallizing in favor of acceptance of two general principles.

The first being in the direction of such qualifications to the ownership and use of property as are exacted through the increasing interdependence of modern life, such qualifications being in no sense a redistribution of property, in no sense a taking away from one and giving to another, but simply such restrictions and regulations as are demanded, not only in the carrying out of the ancient rulesic utere tuc ut alienum non laedas—(So use your own as not to injure another); but also for the general welfare of the community.

The second principle being that society must accomodate itself to such costs as are incident not only to fair return to both capital and labor but also to all the accidents and burdens that result from any activities that society desires or is compelled to enjoy, and this principle is being regarded as so clearly equitable that its enforcement is being demanded, all private contracts to the contrary notwithstanding.

If this principle can and should be enforced when the health of the community or individual is at stake, surely it can and should be enforced when, as in the case of support of the surface the very lives of men, women and children are jeopardized.

In this very anthracite field, and very properly in my opinion, a living wage, based upon Amercian standards of living, has been secured for the workers in the mines, and such wage has been considered as a necessary factor in the cost of production. Surely the maintenance of the surface, upon which are located the communities that extract the coal, should also be regarded as a necessary factor in the cost of mining and should be paid for by the consumer. Such inclusion of the cost of the support of the surface in the general cost of production will be fairer than any fixed tax to be imposed by the State and then paid out, say to municipalities, to be expended in securing such support, and for three reasons.

First. Because, as has been suggested above, the mining companies themselves can more effectively and more economically arrange for such support.

Second. The needs and necessities of different localities are of such varying character that under the plan proposed each company would bear its own burden and no more.

Third. The long delay that would be incident to a contest over the constitutionality of such proposed tax would be avoided.

It might be added, moreover, that the suggested method would permit of the ultimate extraction of all coal, provided that society would pay the price, and certainly it should be compelled to do so; the argument that all coal should be mined in justice to the community at large, is broadly speaking, a sound one, but it is utterly unsound and immoral to say that there should not be compensation by the consumer for all the costs, both direct and indirect, that were incident to its production. It needs no argument to prove that the present cost of mining anthracite coal would be substantially higher than at present existing if permanent communities had not been established throughout the anthracite region and permanent communities could never have been established and developed if it had been felt that the very industry to which they were auxiliaries, and to which they could only be effective auxiliaries by the establishment of permanent institutions, would ultimately destroy such very factors in its own prosperity.

Such attitude upon the part of the great mining companies is inconceivable in the field of morals and I believe that the ablest men in control of these companies are of sufficient breadth of view, if moved by no higher consideration, to realize that in this age sound economic action can only be predicated upon sound morals. That these companies have had a prosperity during the last decade that is second to that of no other general industry in the country removes any possible plea of financial inability to comply with such a plan, but even though conditions were less favorable, economic activity must bend and adjust itself to human welfare. It is possible that even under the existing welfare clauses of the acts governing municipalities of Pennsylvania, the proposed exercise of police power might be upheld, but certainly the hands of those municipalities in the anthracite region would be greatly strengthened by such proposed legislation.

In contemplating this exercise of police power, I realize that there is possibly no exact precedent therefor but I also realize that the property interests of the mining companies in this great Commonwealth have been not only safeguarded as they should be, but safeguarded even at the expense of the practical rights of individual citizens, as is illustrated by that decision of our Supreme Court, Noonan vs. Pardee, which declared that where the owner of surface lands had the right to support, his cause of action against anybody mining thereunder, dated from the period that the actual mining was carried on and not from the date of a "cave-in," that such "cave-in" was only evidence of the undermining of the surface and that, therefore, if the "cave-in" did not occur within six years from the time the mining operation was consummated, the statute of limitations would bar any recovery of damage. Any one might very properly observe, notwithstanding that we are in the throes of a political campaign, that it is just such decisions of our courts as that to which reference has been made that have caused and are causing that widespread dissatisfaction, a dissatisfaction that has, and not unnaturally endangered more or less radical suggestions as to our governmental machinery.

On the other hand, while there is possibly, as I have stated before, no exact precedent for such exercise of police power, yet such exercise would clearly fall within not only the modern but even the ancient definition of the power. So eminent a judge and publicist as Jeremiah S. Black once said that "the police power of the State of which she cannot disarm herself if she would, enables her to regulate the use even of private property in such manner that neither the general public nor particular individuals can be made to suffer by it unjustly," and he then goes on to refer to the power of the State to forbid an excessive rate of interest for the loan of money, fixed charges of hack drivers, ferryman, etc., etc. And such exercise of police power is simply to protect the pockets of the community. Can it be assumed that the power can be evoked for our material welfare and yet not for our very physical existence, not only as a community but also as individuals? Fortunately not only the right but the duty of the State to intervene upon behalf of the health, happiness and well-being of the community can no longer be disputed and a sound and sane public opinion is insisting that power shall be broadened rather than limited, broadened of necessity to meet the increasing complexities of modern life.

We of the anthracite region should not be indifferent to the value of this great basic industry in these valleys, but on the other hand we should decline to accept the argument often put forth, namely, that because it is our basic industry we should sacrifice everything to its successful operation, the owners thereof being the exclusive judges as to what constitutes its successful operation. We should confront those owners with the incontrovertible fact that these great, and as I shall continue to believe, permanent communities, were quite necessary to their as to our prosperity and that in insisting upon not only their continued wellbeing, but their very existence, we are demanding nothing that we should seek as of grace, but rather as of right. Possibly the non-resident ownership of this vast industry may make it all the more difficult to secure the clear recognition of our rights, but certainly there should be no difficulty in reaching the unanimity of opinion upon our part and of not only demanding but also of expecting whatever aid may be necessary, both from the Legislature and the courts of the Commonwealth.

To the possible and probable reply that the communities are free to buy these pillars, either through voluntary sale, or the exercise of the right of eminent domain, it can only be said that the price, when added to possibly other expenditures that will be encumbered upon the community in the handling of this entire problem, would be, practically speaking, prohibitive, while the equities of the communities, as I have endeavored to set forth, demand the payment of the indirect cost of the economical mining of anthracite coal from either the consumer or those who are profiting from its exploitation, and the police power must intervene not to settle simply a dispute over property rights, but to safeguard the very lives of the men, women and children who are dependent upon this great industry and are necessary factors in its prosperity, lives that are directly menaced by all alleged property rights of that industry. Must a great disaster be awaited before public opinion shall crystallize along the line that I have indicated?

We members of this Commission have a huge responsibility upon our shoulders and the very fact that some gentlemen upon this Commission are representatives of the large mining companies should engender the hope that those very representatives will be able to appreciate, in view of our investigation, the far-reaching and fundamental importance of this whole problem; will be able to report to the owners of these vast properties the undoubted conflict of equities that are to be found in the problem, and, lastly, will be able to bring those owners into recognition of rights that, whether they are to be accorded or extorted, must be sustained.

ADDRESS OF ELI. T. CONNER, CONSULTING MINING ENGINEER OF PHILADELPHIA, PA., BEFORE THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE ANTHRACITE MINE CAVE COMMISSION, AT ITS MEETING MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 11, 1912, AT SCRANTON, PA.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Mine Cave Commission, when your secretary invited be to be present with you this evening, I was somewhat in doubt as to just how you would proceed and what you might desire to ask me, but I am very willing to help, so far as possible, in arriving at some kind of a recommendation for the solution of the problem you are investigating. Your secretary did not indicate in his letter the phase of the problem that I might be expected to treat, so I have assumed that this meeting, so far as I am concerned is more in the nature of a general, informal discussion of the whole subject, since I am on record rather voluminously in the Scranton Mine Cave Report. That report was expected to be general and preliminary in its conclusions and suggestions. As one of the authors, I hope it may be of some service to this Commission in formulating remedial measures. It is conceded by all that the existing laws of the State and their judicial interpretation covering the varied interests in the Anthracite region upon the subject you are investigating, fall short of equitably providing for the conditions that have grown with the great expansion of the anthracite industry and the communities dependent thereon. The conclusions arrived at by the authors of the Scranton Mine Cave Report indicate that where the surface improvements are sufficiently valuable, it is possible to afford protection by the means suggested; and further, that where such remedies are systematically applied the coal that may be won from pillars will go far towards meeting the cost of these measures. As anthracite coal grows in value, with the gradual exhaustion of the reserve, it becomes more and more imperative to mine all that can possibly be won, as it will be too valuable to be left in the ground merely to support the surface. Admitting these axiomatic truths, the question then resolves itself into one of the equitable distribution of the burden of excess cost of the protective measures that may be applied above normal mining cost. As the public at large wherever anthracite coal is used would suffer by the failure of the supply of this fuel, they are correspondingly interested in its production as long as possible. The general public must then expect to share in the burden incident to the protective measures. The matter of justice to the communities upon which the industry must rely for men and other facilities is one of the charges quite as legitimate as the actual digging of coal. It would be impossible for the owners of surface improvements to bear the cost of protection and equally so for the local municipalities although each must necessarily share either directly or indirectly in the work. It is almost, though not quite, as unreasonable to expect the mining companies to bear all of the burden, for it must not be forgotten that they are legally entitled to remove all of the coal under most of the surface, without liability for surface damages. Those are a few thoughts, gentlemen, that I have jotted down that are the result of my experience here and my cogitation of the subject since. As I have said, it appears to me to be how shall the burden be borne or distributed? Remedies surely can be applied but at what cost and is the result to be attained worth the expenditure? Now, I shall be very glad to answer any question that the Commission may desire to present, either relative to the report that I assisted in making or otherwise.

Q. Mr. Conner, you said the burden should be divided between the communities and the mining corporations. Have you made any figures as to what proportion you think the operators ought to bear and what portions the community?

A. I think you did not quite understand what I said. I think the burden should be distributed between the property owners, through their local municipality, the coal corporations and the general public; those who buy the coal outside of the anthracite region. They are as vitally interested in this problem as we who live and get our living here. That was quite well brought out in the discussions of the Advisory Board. One of the members of that board, after he had gone over the situation here with us said he realized more fully than ever before the difficulties of producing anthracite coal, the cost of producing it and the burden such a community as Scranton would have to bear if the measures recommended in our report must be paid for by this community itself. And he said, "I, as a consumer of anthracite coal, am interested in its being supplied to me just as long as it is possible to do so, and realize that this community here ought not to be asked to bear the whole burden of these protective measures recommended in this report."

Q. Have you figured out any proportions these three elements would bear?

A. I have figured it on two or three different occasions, but I must confess I am not very clear in my mind as to how that division should be made.

Q. Mr. Conner, let me ask you a question: If this damage is wrought in the carrying on of the industry and necessarily incident to it, and these communities are, as you said a moment ago, a necessary factor in carrying out the industry here, should not the consumer pay for the whole of it just the same as he pays for all labor and capital; he pays for every other expense, why shouldn't he pay this expense?

A. Ultimately the cost must follow the product, whatever it may cost and whatever the elements making up that cost are, whether it is such measures as are now under consideration or whether as I say, it is merely digging the coal. The cost must follow the product and ultimately it must be paid by the consumer. There is no escape from that.

Q. It seems to me as a mere matter of opinion. The argument could be put up to the consumer in this character. An absolutely necessary element for the mining of coal would be felt more quickly or acknowledged than the price of labor. People may differ what labor ought to be paid, but when it comes to the weakening of the surface in which the community lives which carries on the operation, anybody that has any factor of fairness in his make-up must admit it. I am speaking in this way to bring out if the price of coal was increased, whether or not there would be any great opposition on the part of the consuming public today. Of course there is always a kicking we know; I mean any solid opposition?

A. The situation relative to the price that the public is willing to pay or can be convinced that it ought to pay is so complicated that I don't think I can assent to that statement as you put it.

Q. How would you put it? You have taken the position, as I understand you, that a certain and substantial amount of this cost should be paid by the consuming public.

A. Yes; that has been my belief right along.

Q. Theoretically, the local community will have to bear its share, of course?

A. Everybody buying coal would bear his share.

Q. Of the increased price?

A. Yes, as I gather from what you say that that would be the only way the local community would share in the burden of whatever protective measures are adopted.

Q. No. I mean simply speaking theoretically. When you come to speak of things practically, a great deal of the coal has been mined already in Scranton. You can't collect that from the consumer. It is quite possible the community will have to undoubtedly appropriate money to meet what has already been done. But as regards future mining operations here, to the extent of injuring the surface, why should not that be charged to the consumer? It will be a pretty heavy burden on the community looking at it practically from what has already been done to meet those questions or situations as they arise. The community, in other words, won't get stuck very often on that theory if worked out in the future.

A. Gentlemen, I know that you all—and I know I do myself—approach this subject with a great deal of careful thought, careful consideration. Going back to the question as to whether I had arrived at any division of the burden that I thought might be applicable, I will answer that question. I have figured it out about this way: that in view of the fact that practically all of the coal under the City of Scranton is owned and will be mined by corporations who are controlled by transporting concerns, that the remaining coal, the pillars and the solid coal, that, if mined, might affect the surface, my thought was this, that the mining companies and the transportation companies who own them, in order to recover the pillar coal, could afford to go to the extent of winning that pillar coal at no profit on the coal for the sake of getting it out and making the transportation profit. You remember we brought that out in our oral discussions. That, of course, would mean that the pillar coal would cost with the necessary protective measures for supporting the surface, considerably more than ordinary mining. The mining companies could afford to go up to the point where they would make no profit on that coal.

Q. Mr. Conner, if the situation is as it is pictured and the mining hereafter is to cause surface damage and all the mining that will cause surface damage be stopped, what will be the value of the surface property? That same question applies to all the towns around here that feed their profit in Scranton, what will be the effect on the prosperity of Scranton?

A. Why, I don't think there would be very much business in Scranton, because to effectually, completely stop surface damage by reason of mine caves would mean the shutting down of a large part of the mining industry within the city limits and nearby, not by reason of the mining of the solid coal still left, (mostly in the lower seam) but for the reasons just illustrated. The old workings in many instances are still standing open. There is very little, if any, pillar reclamation or robbing in these old workings. There is some recovery of bottom benches or top benches that were left in the old days, but I don't know of any instances of actual robbing of pillars under improved surface, excepting in a few cases near the outcrop of the coal beds. But further answering your question, Mr. Chairman, if you were to discontinue mining for the sole purpose of protecting the surface, why, there would be mighty little coal produced under the City of Scranton.

Q. What effect would that have on the City of Scranton?

A. Well, I don't believe that the city would be as prosperous as it is today by any means.

Q. What would be the effect on the values of property?

A. I should think they would materially decrease.

Q. So then the surface owner of property has an interest in maintaining the tonnage so that the volume of business can come through the city?

A. Unquestionably.

Q. That there must be a value guaranteed to the property owners by the mining of all of the possible coal under the city and its surroundings?

A. I stated that in the beginning of my discussion here; that it is a self-evident truth that the mining of coal should be conserved, continued and in every way assisted as long as the coal lasts; as long as it can be produced here.

Q. So that the filling of these workings or the supporting of them in some way, that operation would benefit the property owner in the maintenance of present or increased values of the property?

A. Whatever will lengthen the life of the coal mining industry will naturally necessarily benefit everybody and all property holders in the community.

Q. Then do you think that Scranton has reached that point where it needs this? I mean now in asking that question from your knowledge don't you think the mining of coal has reached that point in Scranton and surrounding territories that it needs to be conserved for mining every ton of coal that can be won? In other words, there are no large virgin fields in this neighborhood?

A. Yes. I think I stated that in the beginning of my talk, the importance of conserving it just as long as possible; and I think further that the pillars of coal still remaining—and I don't imagine anybody now has any thought of robbing at the present time—that coal will become too valuable to leave in the ground for surface support only.

Q. Do not the surface owners of Scranton receive a share of the proceeds of all the coal mined?

A. A share of the proceeds? Those who have worked in or about the mines have gotten their living by that occupation and they have given labor in return for that living.

Q. And the merchants?

A. The merchants live by their activities in dispensing necessaries of life to those others who dig the coal.

Q. If the merchant has got no greater profits from his sales here than in any other community where he made sales, say to people who work in factories or industries, he has got no particular advantage from this special industry? Of course it is an industry but he has got no advantage over and above what he would have in his commerce if we would have automobile factories here?

A. I think that is correctly stated.

Q. This city started as a mining community, as I understand it, and its entire growth based on the mining of say one hundred and seventy-seven million tons of coal—has produced the city we now have, plus the benefits around it which we see; don't you think that city has some interest in protecting itself and the continuation of the mining of the remaining coal?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Conner, don't you think that people here pay as much for the original lots of land as they pay in other communities where there is no coal and where mining conditions are not apt to disturb them; that is on the various phases of the growth of a city?

A. Yes.

Q. That leads up to this then—that under the business section of this city, where these large buildings are erected, the only proper way to protect those would be to leave pillars, say one-third? In other words, to further illustrate, we will say that one-third of the coal that was in the ground is now remaining in pillars in some shape or form, two-thirds have been mined out, that even though the one-third is left in they should also be protected by flushing to keep them in preservation? Is that your idea too? Do you think these one-third pillars that are left in without any further protection would forever hold up these buildings?

A. I don't think that the present conditions where, as you say, about one-third of the coal has been left in, will continue to be safe so far as the surface is concerned, especially when you mine in the lower or possibly in the upper beds and shake the strata by shooting, as stated a little while ago.

MINING WITHIN THE CITY OF WILKES-BARRE WITH REFERENCE TO SURFACE DAMAGE.

By Douglas Bunting and J. M. Humphrey, Mining Engineers.

The probability of damage to the surface in the City of Wilkes-Barre is confined to a small area due to the fact that in a large portion of the territory within the city limits, support of the surface was not waived when the coal was sold, and, therefore, under the law protection must be provided by the operator who mines the coal. As a further assurance of surface support a considerable part of the area is overlaid with water-saturated wash and it is incumbent on those mining the coal to protect themselves against this menace. Furthermore, the bulk of the coal lies at such depths that the robbing of pillars without artificial support is impracticable. Again, at these depths it is doubtful if the ordinary squeeze would have any material effect on the surface due to the large amount of overlying strata.

In illustration of what is above outlined, we submit, herewith, certain maps showing the geological conditions. Plate 21 showns the contours of the various seams of coal at a depth of 300 feet below the surface. Plate 22 shows the contours of the same veins at a depth of 600 feet. These maps indicate that the veins in the western portion of the city are at much greater depths than in the eastern portion. A contour line at 1,000 feet of depth below the surface to the Red Ash vein would divide the city into two zones. The zone of less than 1,000 feet of depth would embrace all of wards 2, 3 and 6, and portions of wards 1, 9, 13 and 16—a total area of 1,133 acres, while the zone of more than 1,000 feet of depth would embrace the remaining portions of the city, 1,944 acres in area.

Plate 23 shows the contours of the top of the rock at 10, 50 and 100 feet of depth below the surface. The contours of 50 feet of depth passing around the easterly side of the Public Square and thence wasterly to the city line in the vicinity of Brock street, divides the city in two zones with reference to the depth of wash. The portion to the east and south has an area of 2,312 acres, and that to the west and north an area of 765 acres. It is only reasonable to assume that mining in the latter zone, whether surface is controlled or not, will be so conducted as to preclude the probability of breaking the overlying strata.

Plate 24 shows the sections across the city the locations of which are indicated on Plates 21 and 22.

Plate 25 shows the ward divisions of the city. The area of the wards bordering the Susquehanna river has been taken to the shore line whereas the city line is the center of the river.

Wilkes-Barre City has an area of 3,077 acres, all underlaid with coal. Of this, 2,759 acres are controled by the mining companies and 318 acres are the property of the surface owners or the city. The latter territory is located, in large measure, in the central portion of the city and embraces the most valuable real estate. Over the 2,759 acres owned by the mining companies, 444 acres are owned or controlled for the use of their mining operations. Of the remaining 2,315 acres, there are 1,738 acres in which there has been no waiver of surface support and the coal companies are liable for damage to the surface. It will thus be seen that only in the limited area of 577 acres have the mining companies the right to mine the coal under surface owned by others regardless of surface effect.

It is apparent that, as far as this municipality is concerned, there is comparatively small cause for alarm, as by far the greater portion of the city is fully protected under the existing statutes and physical conditions typical of the Wyoming region.

ADDRESS OF COL. R. A. PHILLIPS BEFORE MINE CAVE COMMISSION.

Scranton, Pa., December 9, 1912.

We have had the privilege as members of this Commission of listening to many engineers and mining men of vast experience in anthracite mining, and I desire to say that I do not know of any mining men more efficient than those in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, many of whom have honored the Commission by their presence.

The gentlemen who have given to us so much of their valuable time and information have done so with the very highest motives; they have demonstrated by their earnest statements, their desire to aid us in solving this important and preponderous question. To me they viewed this as one of the greatest engineering problems that has been attempted in the history of mining.

It was very evident that many of the gentlemen, particularly those of mining experience, who appeared before this Commission, have given much time and study to the important feature of mining anthracite coal in its various phases. The ready manner in which they answered the questions pertaining to the subject leads me to believe that they had given special thought and study to the question of extracting all the coal and at the same time give the best protection to the surface and surface improvements.

Mining engineers, like lawyers, doctors and professional men in general, quite frequently, differ in their views and recommendations in handling questions of importance; especially is this so if results are expected and responsibilities are to be assumed from new and intricate problems—such as confront this Commission. However, mining men, whom it has been our pleasure and privilege to have before us, were all of one accord on the one phase of this question, to wit: That all the coal cannot be removed within the area comprising the out-crop lines of the several coal veins in the City of Scranton within a reasonable cost without causing some damage to the surface and surface improvements.

It is a self-evident fact that if the foundation from underneath a building is removed the building of its own weight will collapse, or if the keystone of an arch is removed the arch will not sustain itself. The several veins of coal underlying the City of Scranton may be considered as parts of the foundations of the buildings erected above them; they are to the buildings as the keystone is to an arch and cannot be removed without doing more or less damage, unless some equally good substitute is placed instead of the one removed. If we all agree to that fact we must, as a natural consequence, agree that damage to the surface and improvements thereon is inevitable at some period during the usual conduct of mining operations in the coal mines of the anthracite regions, unless an expenditure of money is made for a safe, or reasonably safe, support. However, we no doubt fully agree, after thoroughly discussing this factor of the problem among the members of the Commission, and which has been fully explained by the witnesses, that this would be prohibitive, especially when taking into consideration the value of all the improvements that are to be protected. If all the coal within the City of Scranton cannot be mined without seriously damaging the surface, the next problem in mind is: If all the coal were removed, what would be the estimated damage? But, if that is impossible, impracticable or prohibitive, from a cost standpoint, how much coal or how great an area can possibly be mined in the City of Scranton within a reasonable cost, bearing in mind always the continuation of the industry, which is probably as important to the welfare of our citizens as the protection of their properties from mine caves.

This problem would be an easy one to solve if the cause of mine caves could be removed; that is to say, cease mining entirely. Our problem is one of greater difficulties and cannot be solved by an easy or reckoner method, neither can it be solved by a blast of trumpets. It must be considered as a business proposition, and the interests of all concerned must be regarded. It cannot be solved by removing the equity or legal rights of one party and conveying them to another; neither can it be solved by jeopardizing one party's interests for another; nor can it be solved by this or any other Commission unless the issue is met with a fair and unprejudiced mind.

Before presenting to this Commission my views, and recommendations of solving the problem, I think it is incumbent that I should place before the Commission the condition of the mining operations as well as the physical conditions under which they are conducted in this city, as they appear to me from personal observations in and about the mines of this city for the last twenty-seven years. In order to do this in a manner that will be plain and free from a hazy conception, and without treating upon the rights, sincerity or intelligence of the people in general, the miners of this valley in particular, I will, as briefly as possible, describe each vein from the surface to the vein that was first operated. When this vein has been reached I will digress from the description of various other veins, and their physical conditions, to the method and system of mining. I have decided to use in my explanation the west side of the Lackawanna river for two reasons: 1st. It is the section that I am most familiar with. 2nd. It contains probably the worst mining conditions in the city, in reference to the problem to be solved.

EIGHT FOOT VEIN.

On the west side of the City of Scranton from the borough line at Taylor to the borough line of Dickson City there are eleven veins of coal. The uppermost vein is commonly known as the Eight Foot, and lies directly underneath the surface, varying from zero to 100 feet. The character and physical conditions of this vein are about as follows: Coal not of the best quality, being rather soft and very free burning on account of its close proximity to the surface. The character of the vein may be better observed by referring to the following section:

Bony coal	2 ft. 2 in.	Bone	0 ft. 4 in.
Coal	0 ft. 11 in.	Bone	0 ft. 4 in.
Coal	1 ft. 2 in.	Bone	0 ft. 1½ in.
Coal	0 ft. 6 in.	Slate	0 ft. 0½ in.
Coal	2 ft. 9 in.
Total	7 ft. 6 in.		0 ft. 10 in.

Total Vein, 8 ft. 4 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 915.0.

You will note that the coal is about seven and one-half feet in thickness. Overlying this coal is a soft, pliably boney; in certain localities it is impossible to keep this boney up for roof, and when it comes down it usually causes caves or pot holes sometimes extending to the surface, for in many localities the roof above this boney is loam or semi-hardpan. The tidal elevation is usually higher than the mouth or head of any shaft located on the west side of the Lackawanna river. This precludes flushing, by gravity, from the culm banks located near and at shaft elevations. Also, note that the per cent. of impurities is so small as compared with the whole vein matter that little waste is left in the mines for gob or filling purposes.

FIVE FOOT VEIN.

The second vein from the surface is known as the Five Foot. The name is given to this vein on account of the entire thickness being about five (5) feet. The following is an average section:

Coal 2 ft. 6 in.	Slate 0 ft. 2 in.
Coal 2 ft. 6 in.
Total 5 ft. 0 in.	0 ft. 2 in.

Total thickness of Vein, 5 ft. 2 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 820.0.

You will note that the tidal elevation precludes flushing by gravity and that the impurities in this vein is but two inches in thickness. The character of the roof is of a poor quality of fire clay which deteriorates and falls as soon as the mine air comes in contact with it, causing falls which weaken the intervening strata between it and the overlying or Eight Foot Vein. The character of this vein varies in some localities. The benches of coal become much thinner and the rock between the two benches becomes thicker, necessitating heavy blasting which has a serious effect on the intervening strata. It will also be noted that in its average condition the per cent. of impurities is small—not enough to properly ballast the roads. Caves in this vein will naturally make large depressions in the surface, especially is this true where the character of the roof of the Eight Foot is as previously described.

FOUR FOOT VEIN.

The third vein from the surface is known as the Four Foot. The character of the coal in this vein is somewhat better than either of the two veins lying above it, being hard and of very good quality—able to withstand the average compression of anthracite coal. The following is a section of this vein:

Coal 2 ft. 0 in.	Slate 2 ft. 0 in.
Coal 2 ft. 0 in.
Total 4 ft. 0 in.	2 ft. 0 in.

Total Vein, 6 ft. 0 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 791.

The tidal elevation of this vein also precludes flushing by gravity from any of the culm banks located near the breakers. It will be noted that the per cent. of impurities in this vein is somewhat larger than either of the two overlying veins. The two-foot of rock to be cut necessitates heavy blasting, which materially weakens the pillars in the over and underlying veins. After this rock is blasted and gobbed in the openings in the vein it accomplishes some good, but, so little as compared with the damage done in cutting the rock from the solid, that it is a question in my mind whether we would not get results, as to caves, if it was not in the vein at all.

DIAMOND VEIN.*

The fourth vein from the surface is known as the Diamond. The coal is of good quality, and while it is hard in character it is easy drilling and free blasting. The following is a section of this vein:

Coal 6 ft. 9 in.	Bone 1 ft. 3 in.
Coal 1 ft. 10 in.	Rock 1 ft. 0 in.
Coal 0 ft. 4 in.	Rock 0 ft. 4 in.
Coal 1 ft. 7 in.
Total 10 ft. 6 in.	2 ft. 7 in.

Total Vein, 13 ft. 1 in.

Elevation of bottom of Vein, 671.0.

The tidal elevation of this vein is such that the workings can be flushed in localities below the shaft, level, but, when the vein rises in the direction of the west mountain the elevation precludes flushing by gravity from the culm bank. This vein you will note contains a very small per cent. of impurities, in fact where it was mined by leaving the bottom coal down there was not sufficient impurities to properly ballast the roads.

This was the first vein opened in the city for the following apparent reasons:

First: It was the first vein encountered in the shafts that were sunk in the city.

Second: It was of an unusually good quality as compared with the overlying coal veins.

Third: On account of its thickness it was the most economical to mine.

Fourth: It is presumed that the financial conditions of the operators were such that it precluded the mining of the more expensive and the then inferior veins lying above the shaft level. Whether this was considered at that time, from a mining standpoint, is a debatable question and at this date it is very difficult to answer, or account for their mining attitude at so early a time.

METHODS OF MINING.

The method in the anthracite regions of conducting its mining is what is termed the pillar and stall systems. This method has been in vogue ever since mining operations were first commenced. Briefly it consists of driving main gangways and airways from the foot of the shafts to the end of the property. As the gangways and airways are progressing counter gangways and airways are driven from the main gangways usually at right angles to the same. From the counter gangways chambers, breasts or stalls are driven.

In order to properly and safely conduct mining operations it is essential that the mine be supplied with a sufficient quantity of air in order that the miners and other employees can comfortably perform their respective duties, and also to dilute and render harmless noxious gases met with in the regular course of mining. In order that this ventilation may be effective a current of air must be produced. This is usually done in our region by sinking two separate shafts or by placing an air tight partition in the one shaft, and placing an exhaust fan at the top of our section, which is called the up-cast in order to exhaust the air out of the mines that descends down the other section, which is called the down-cast. In order to conduct the air from the foot of the shaft to the face of the workings a partition must be maintained between the gangway and the airway so as to keep separate the air that enters the shaft at the down-cast from the air that comes out of the mines through the up-cast. This partition between the gangway and airway is of solid coal, and is called the "pillar." The pillar is for two purposes: Primarily to be used as a partition between the fresh air and the foul air, and, second, for the purpose of supporting overlying strata, or roof of the mine. In fact one reason is as essential as the other in mining anthracite under physical conditions as found in our field.

These pillars are not only between gangways and airways, but between chambers or stalls. Hence, the name of our mining system, "Pillar" and "Stall." These pillars are pierced about every sixty feet: that is, connections are made between gangways and airways, and likewise between chambers, by blasting or mining holes the full thickness of the vein; about nine (9) feet in width. These holes are called cross-cuts, and their purpose is to allow the fresh air, or intake air, to enter the return airway and thence to the fan at the head of the shaft. As the working places advance new cross-cuts are driven and the old ones closed. The closing of these cross-cuts is made in order to keep the full quantity of air continually in the face of the workings.

This explanation is given principally to illustrate how pillars came to be left during first mining. One may possibly gain a better idea of the pillar and stall method, and the purpose of pillars as to effect on the ventilation of a mine by the partial plan of a mine, plate No. 7. Note the general uniformity of the pillars of a modern well regulated mine in contrast with the old-time workings, Plate No. 6.

We will now revert to the Diamond Vein. As previously stated, this was the first vein in which mining was conducted as a general mining proposition. The mining was done many years ago, Plate No. 6, and at a period when anthracite mining was in its infancy in this county. Mining men of even limited experience were very scarce at that time. In consequence it must not be expected that the modern methods of today were in vogue.

Coal mining, like all other similar industries, has greatly advanced over the older methods. It has kept pace with the advance and progress of our country. This generation has profited by the errors and mistakes of former generations. In order to fully comprehend the system of mining in the early period of this industry, I have copied from one of the old maps of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company a section of the Diamond Vein, Plate No. 6.

You will note by reference to above plate that apparently little attention was given to width of chambers and size of pillars. No regularity as to courses or distances existed and respect of general uniformity of working places was lacking. You will also note that in this small section of a map there are spaces over 100 feet in width, the roof of which is not supported by any pillars.

ROCK VEIN.

Shortly after this vein was opened the next underlying vein was opened known as the Rock Vein, or the fifth vein from the surface. The opening of this vein soon after the Diamond Vein allowed the operator to mine both veins at about the same period, and the natural consequence was both veins were mined in precisely in the same manner,—wide chambers, small pillars, no uniformity and apparrently with little regard for the future welfare of the property. Notwithstanding the above conditions, the men of mining affairs of those days should be commended and praised for their work, and I may say good work, considering the period, the facilities at hand and the knowledge of mining, which was entirely in its experimental stages. Following is a section of the Rock Vein and its tidal elevation:

	Falling Roof 0 ft. 7 in.
Coal 3 ft. 6 in.
	Rock 0 ft. 5 in.
Coal 4 ft. 3 in.
Total 7 ft. 9 in.	1 ft. 0 in.

Total Vein, 8 ft. 9 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 620.0.

The coal in this vein is of very good quality, being hard and of such character as to be able to withstand a greater weight than any of the overlying veins. This vein like the Diamond Vein contains very little impurities, which precludes any waste for gobbing against the pillars for their protection or hand packing the openings.

BIG OR FOURTEEN FOOT VEIN.

The sixth vein is known as the Big Vein or Fourteen Foot Vein. It has an average thickness of 14 feet, and is the largest vein in this district. On that account it derives the name "Big Vein" or "Fourteen Foot Vein." It was opened after the Diamond and Rock Veins. The mining men in charge at that time being more experienced by having mined the overlying vein, profited thereby, and the result was a much better system of mining. Chambers were reduced in width, pillars were increased in thickness, working places were driven in a more uniform manner and considerable attention was paid to courses and distances in general. I am impressed with the great increase in mining intelligence shown in such a short period. Notwithstanding the marked improvement, I regret to say that it has been determined that the pillars were not sufficiently increased and the width of chambers sufficiently decreased. The following is a section of the Big Vein.

Coal 2 ft. 0 in.
	Rock 1 ft. 0 in.
Coal 0 ft. 2 in.
	Slate 0 ft. 1 in.
Coal 5 ft. 0 in.
	Slate 0 ft. 4 in.
Coal 0 ft. 4. in.
	Slate and Bone 0 ft. 4 in.
Coal 4 ft. 7 in.
Total 12 ft. 1 in.	1 ft. 9 in.

Total Vein, 13 ft. 10 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 573.0.

NEW COUNTY VEIN.

The seventh vein from the surface is the New County Vein. The following is a section of this vein:

	Bone 0 ft. 5 in.
Coal 1 ft. 10 in.
	Rock 0 ft. 8 in.
Coal 2 ft. 5 in.
	Bone 0 ft. 5 in.
Coal 1 ft. 0 in.
	Bone 0 ft. 9 in.
Coal 1 ft. 5 in.
Total 6 ft. 8 in.	2 ft. 3 in.

Total Vein, 8 ft. 11 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 554 ft.

You will note by reference to the tidal elevation that this vein lies very close to the next overlying vein, or in other words, the strata intervening between the Big Vein and the New County Vein is not very thick. On this account it was not mined until some years after the underlying or Clark Vein had been opened. When it was finally undertaken to mine, it was under the most adverse and difficult conditions. Very little attempt was made to keep the chambers and pillars directly under the chambers and pillars of the Big Vein. The result was that caves would take place from one vein to another, thereby weakening the pillars in the Big Vein, which would cause local caves, and in return place greater burden upon the pillars in the New County Vein, in many instances resulting in squeezes and ultimately caves in this vein. It was finally decided to work every other chamber leaving, thereby an extra pillar consisting of the width of one Big Vein chamber and pillar. This was some relief, but not as successful as to give ultimate surface protection as if the vein had been completely and systematically mined prior to opening the lower veins. In the northern tier of the city this vein thins out to about two (2) feet. The rock between it and the Big Vein also increases in thickness. It is a perplexing problem to decide which condition is the better in relation to surface protection. In one case the coal is thick and the intervening strata thin. In the other, thin coal and thick strata. In the latter case it will require the cutting of at least three feet of rock to mine two feet of vein. In so doing it will require heavy blasting, which will tend to shatter the coal pillars in the Big Vein, and from the character of the coal in the Clark Vein, underlying which well be described later, the pillars will be affected in the same manner.

CLARK VEIN.

The next vein or the eighth is known as the Clark Vein. A section of which is as follows:

Coal 0 ft. 7 in.
	Bone 0 ft. 9 in.
Soft Coal 0 ft. 9 in.
Coal 3 ft. 9 in.
Coal 1 ft. 2 in.
	Rock, Coal and Bone 1 ft. 0 in.
Coal 0 ft. 10 in.
Total 7 ft. 1 in.	1 ft. 9 in.

Total Vein, 8 ft. 10 in.

Elevation of bottom of vein, 430 ft.

This vein has a characteristic pecularity. The mining bench is of cleaner coal, and lies between the bottom and top benches of coal. The coal in this bench is of a long fracture and "slivers" off from the pillars so that within a few months the pillars have the appearance as if mine rats had been feasting upon the best coal in the vein. When the above action on the pillars takes place, they should be promptly lagged or faced with mine gob in order to keep the coal intact. If the work of protecting the pillars is not given immediate attention, the coal will continue to "sliver" and fall off until there is sufficient loose coal against the pillar to provent more from "silvering" off and naturally reducing the size of the pillars.

The next veins are the Dunmores, numbers one, two and three. The name for these veins was derived from the fact that they were the veins operated in the Borough of Dunmore at the time the Diamond and Rock Veins were being mined in Hyde Park. These veins vary in thickness from one to four feet, or an average of less than three feet, approximately as follows:

No. 1. Dunmore Vein, 2 feet 0 inches.

Coal, approximately 2 feet 0 inches.

Elevation of bottom of vein, approximately 360 feet.

Rock intervening, 50 feet.

No. 2. Dunmore Vein, 2 feet 6 inches.

Coal, approximately 2 feet 6 inches.

Elevation of bottom of vein, approximately 315 feet.

Rock intervening, 50 feet.

No. 3. Dunmore Vein, 2 feet 6 inches.

Coal, approximately 2 feet 6 inches.

Elevation of bottom of vein, approximately 262 feet.

I have now given a description of each vein from the surface to the lowest vein in Scranton section of the anthracite coal fields, and have briefly outlined the method by which the veins in our earlier coal mining days were mined and the conditions in which they were left.

I will now explain how mining at present is being conducted and the physical conditions incident thereto.

PRESENT MINING METHODS AND ITS EFFECT ON THE PILLARS LEFT IN EVERY PERIOD OF MINING.

From careful investigations and estimates, I find that 70 per cent. of the coal mined from underneath the City of Scranton today is mined from the surface and lower veins, which indicates that mining in the intermediate veins, as far as first mining is concerned, is about completed. In addition to the mining of the Surface and Dunmore Veins an attempt has been made to mine the New County Vein in the northern tier of the city. The mining of today shows that a much larger per cent. of coal is being left in the pillars, and that the chambers have been very materially reduced in width. This has been done in order to protect the mines in advancing and to keep them in proper condition so that second mining can be more efficiently prosecuted toward the conservation of this anthracite coal resource. With but one or two exceptions the same pillar and stall system, as previously described, is still in effect. The veins that are being mined are either thinner or have other pecularities, such as benches of rock lying between the benches of coal, or else the character of the roof is such as to cause the weakening of the old pillars left in the intermediate veins.

Take for instance the Dunmore or lower veins, from which at least 50 per cent. of the coal mined in the City of Scranton comes today. Every working place in these veins requires the blasting of sand rock anywhere from one to four feet in thickness, the average amount of coal produced from these veins is only five tons for every twenty-five pounds of powder consumed. A further illustration of the character of the coal that is being mined today in the City of Scranton, and the amount of rock necessary to be removed in order to mine this coal, is found in the fact that during the year 1910, 45,112,322 pounds of black powder and 12,677,598 pounds of dynamite were consumed in the anthracite fields, or a total of 57,789,920 pounds; and of this large quantity 7,250,000 pounds of explosive, or over 12 per cent. of the total of the entire region, were consumed in the mines located within the city. It is simply incomprehensible to the layman, what effect the exploding of this large amount of powder means to the thin and irregular pillars that were left in the intermediate veins. Please recall the peculiarities of the Clark Vein, the coal of which has a long fracture, and slivers or spalls from the pillar, and imagine what effect this heavy blasting will have on these pillars, and also the vein above it (the New County) and the Big Vein that lies so close to the New County. Fix in your mind the effect the heavy blasting incident to mining the Four Foot Vein will have on the next underlying vein, the Diamond Vein, which was the first vein opened in the city.

These present day facts are recited in order to show that more than 15 per cent. of the property in the City of Scranton is menaced by first mining whether second mining is conducted or not, and to further emphasize that fact, I will state that from records and observations I have made I find 80 per cent. of the properties affected by mine cavés in the City of Scranton, since mining was first started, were due to first mining and not second mining or "robbing of pillars," as is generally supposed. I also desire to prove, by the above statements, that the mining of the Dunmore Veins will cause surface damage notwithstanding the statements very often made by engineers that the mining of the Dunmore Veins, even though the coal is removed entirely, will not affect the surface. I desire to emphasize the fact that although the pillars in the veins lying between the surface veins and Dunmore Veins are not removed in second mining, they must be protected either by flushing, hand packed gobs or in some other manner that will produce equally as good a result. These pillars when in their original state were too weak by fifty per cent. and during the many years of their life have deteriorated. But, the greatest effect upon their usefulness to my mind is due to the mining of the over and underlying veins. For this reason mining should probably cease in the over and underlying seams until such time as the pillars are properly strengthened to withstand the shock incident to the mining of these veins.

To cease mining in these veins, until the pillars have been fully protected, would practically close every mine in this city, and as to how long that would be, can best be calculated by considering two important factors, viz: The space to be filled, and equipment and material to do the work. These few facts may sound harsh upon the ears of the optimist, but they are nevertheless the cold facts and true conditions as they appear to me.

In addition to the time it would take to fill, by flushing, all the openings underneath the City of Scranton, we must not lose sight of the cost incident to the work, and whether the property to be protected is worth in value the amount expended for its protection. Again, if the pillars are to be left in the mines we must not lose sight of what effect this will have towards curtailing the life of the industry.

In order to fully realize what effect the closing of the mines will have on the welfare and business interests of this city, bear in mind that in the City of Scranton there are employed in and around its coal mines about 12,000 men and boys; including the Boroughs of Taylor, Old Forge, Dunmore and Dickson City there are employed about 30,000 men and boys. The total wages paid these employees is about $9,144,000.00 per year for those in the city; a total, including the above named boroughs, of $22,860,000.00 per year.

In addition to the above, the tax that the owners of coal properties pay into the Treasury of the City of Scranton amounts to $75,000.00 annually. So in considering this question, or plan suggested in solution to this question we must not lose sight of the fact that the industry must be maintained; and that any plan to be adopted should not entail a cost which will make the solution prohibitive or will too seriously curtail the life of our basic industry.

FLUSHING.

In order that some definite idea may be had as to the cost of flushing, I have prepared some data along the line that may have some effect upon the consideration of adopting this method of protection. I find, from investigations, that flushing silt into the mines is not a new idea by any means. It has been in effect in the anthracite region more or less for over twenty-seven years. I find, however, that in all cases where flushing is being carried on that it is not done entirely with the view of protecting the surface. Especially is this true in hamlets where very few buildings are erected over the mining area. In such localities, I presume it is done with the sole purpose of facilitating the mining of pillars or the winning of a greater per cent. of coal during second mining than could otherwise be done.

The D. L. & W. R. R. Co., began flushing silt into their mines in about the year 1890, and up to the present time have flushed over 10,000 foot acres, or about 12,500,000 tons. It was not until about ten years ago that this company did flushing on any great scale or magnitude. At present and for the last seven years this company has been doing more or less flushing at all its colleries. In many instances, rock, slate and other waste material, removed from the coal in the usual course of preparation, is broken down to a small size and is flushed with all the ashes made at their various boiler plants into the mines. All of this material is being flushed by gravity into veins the tidal elevations of which is at least 100 feet or more below the surface elevation at the shaft where the work is being done. The D. L. & W. R. R. Company is now flushing about 125,000 tons per month into its mines at a cost of 32.4 per ton, amounting to $40,000 per month. This cost includes crushing of material, labor, pumping of water and building materials incident to the work, and does not include any value for material flushed. In addition large areas are being filled by "hand packing" of rock, which will materially aid in supporting the overlying strata.

Having in mind the area necessary to be flushed, the cost of flushing, the amount of flushing material available, the large amount of material necessary to be shipped into the region, the cost of this material delivered to the bore hole, the time required to flush the area, as well as the restriction of mining operations pending the work, we must keep in mind that when it is all completed and mining resumed we will still have such mine settlements, which will cause more or less damage to buildings. I am fully convinced that the idea of completely filling the mine workings should be abandoned for the following reasons:

First: Cost is prohibitive.

Second: Length of time required for its application too great.

Third: Necessitates the closing down of the industry during the greater period of its application.

Fourth: No positive assurance of its practicability; on the contrary from tests and investigations made by eminent engineers at home and abroad it is probably impracticable.

The same objections apply to other methods of supporting the surface, after removing all the coal, such as concrete pillars, hand packing of rock, wooden cogs, etc. Further, the cost will be greater and the results less satisfactory,—with the possible exception of hand filling or hand packing of rock.

After considering all the plans, suggestions, reports of investigations and views of mining men, I have come to the conclusion that all the coal under the City of Scranton cannot be removed, and at the same time furnish a positive protection or even a reasonable protection to the properties erected upon this coal area at a reasonable, or under a prohibitive cost.

If this problem had been propounded 30 of 40 years ago, with our present knowledge of mining, we could give a more thorough and definite solution, but, as we are dealing with the present day problems under inherited conditions, we must meet the problem as it stands and confine ourselves to the conditions of the mines as they are today as well as the character and location of the buildings to be protected.

Having those conditions in mind, and after giving my views on the mining conditions as they appear to me, I thought it essential to investigate the character and value of the buildings to be protected.

From an examination of the Scranton City Assessment books, we find that there are 22,253 buildings assessed in the City of Scranton, 9,591 of these are assessed under $1,000; 8,189 are assessed between $1,000 and $2,000; 2,970 are assessed between $2,000 and $4,000. In other words, nearly 80 per cent. of the buildings in the city are valued at $2,000 and under, and over 93 per cent. of the buildings are valued at $4,000 and under. Eliminating coal breakers there are but 24 buildings in the city valued over $65,000. You will note from tabulations attached, that the total valuation of all the buildings in the city is $41,399,190,—an average valuation of $1,860 per building. There are, however, about 400 buildings in the city that are exempt from taxation or nominally assessed, these include churches, hospitals, public buildings, railroad buildings, public utilities, factories, etc.

Attached hereto are tabulations showing the number of buildings in each ward and their classified assessed valuation; also a table showing the number of houses assessed in each ward and their total valuation; the number of barns and other outbuildings in each ward and their assessed valuation. I may add that the assessment made in the City of Scranton is on the full valuation.

You will note by reference to the tables that the 8th ward has a building valuation of $4,722,050, which is the highest in the city; the 9th ward is next, having a valuation of $4,089,510; the 17th ward has a valuation of $3,107,000. The other wards vary in their valuation from $273,000 in the 18th ward to $2,791,285 in the 1st ward.

Having in mind the condition of the mines in the coal area of the City of Scranton, and the character and value of the buildings in various wards in the city, I cannot see any good reason for changing my views as expressed to the Commission at our first meeting when our organization was effected, which is briefly as follows:

Divide the city into zones or districts; these districts to be classified according to the character and valuation of the buildings, rather than the mining conditions underneath the buildings. By reference to the map of the City of Scranton, Plate No. 5, (in folder) you will note that I have marked by hatched lines three sections to indicate that the buildings within three areas are constructed of such material and are of such character that the least settlement, due to the mining of coal, would in all likelihood cause irreparable damage.

Therefore, according to my plan, sufficient pillars should be left underneath such buildings as to prevent the buildings from settling. And the pillars so left should be properly protected from deterioration. The protection I recommend would be to face them with reinforced concrete properly dovetailed to roof and bottom, or faced with hand packed rock primed to roof as indicated in some of the photographs attached, or probably better than either of the two would be to flush the areas with silt, ashes, sand, or some other suitable material. This plan I think is also the most economical.

In addition to the areas indicated by hatched lines you will note, indicated, public buildings, churches, hospitals, public utilities, factories, etc. Buildings of such character should be protected in the same manner as described. By protecting the pillars to be left under this plan, it would allow the mining in small localities of a maximum of about 75 per cent. of the coal. Of course it is to be understood that where first mining is now being conducted modern methods are in vogue.

In localities outside of these districts, where the character of the buildings are of ordinary frame construction, the damage to them incident to removing all the coal would be very small as compared with their value plus the cost of protecting them against mine settlements, it is more practical and certainly more economical to remove the coal and repair the buildings along the line, now being done by the D. L. & W. R. R. Company.

From information at hand I find that this company has repaired, on account of mine settlings, 50 buildings at an average cost of $400 per building.

Without going into further detail or arguments in favor of my plan of handling this question, I wish to say that I shall be pleased to answer any question in connection with the practical operation of the plan that the members of the Commission desire to ask.

As to the financial end of this proposition, my idea of it is based upon the assumption that the plan, as suggested, only applies to localities wherein the owners of the coal are released from any legal liability for damage to the surface. Dismissing the question of legal liability, and assuming that the owner has a certain moral obligation to perform, I think the following plan might work out satisfactorily, viz:—Leave a certain amount of pillar coal and protect such pillars, for surface protection, and assess the cost of a basis of one-third to the owner of the property, one-third to the owner of the coal, and one-third to the municipality. The same basis of settlement would apply in the other zones where the coal is to be removed and the properties repaired.

The question as to classifying the buildings or of determining which buildings are to be protected, and which buildings are to be repaired after being damaged should be left to a commission similar to the one named by Mayor Von Bergen of this city in lieu of city ordinance recently approved by him, with the exception that one of the members of the Commission shall consist of a General Superintendent of four or more mines, or, that the Commission shall in passing upon questions of such character call to its assistance the Superintendent or Chief Engineer of the company of the mines from which the mining is being done, and cases under such circumstances, the Superintendent or Engineer will have the same power as if he were a member of the Commission, except that he is not to receive compensation for his service while acting on said Commission, except for actual expense incurred.

The question as to how and in what manner payments are to be made is a question of detail to be worked out by counsel. I think, however, the plan is one that can very easily be applied, providing it can be placed in legal form, or its legality not contested, by mutual agreement of parties interested. I am also of the opinion that the operators of the mines can more economically do the work, such as making the repairs and flushing the areas than any contractor or municipality. I would further suggest in connection with my plan that each municipality should have the right to elect by popular vote of the property owners their wishes as to adopting or putting into effect any plan that may be approved by this Commission. My sole reason for this is, that some municipalities may not want to incur the expense incident to putting any plan into operation. I would also suggest that counsel for this Commission be asked to embody into our report a section regulating the kind or character of buildings to be erected within the coal areas of this State in order to further protect the lives of the inhabitants of such buildings in case of mine caves.

I would further suggest that a section be embodied in our report regulating the measure of damage to properties wherein surface support is required. By such a law it would materially permit the extension of the life of the anthracite industry, which is such a paramount part of the life of the communities of the anthracite region.

I desire in closing to state to this Commission that the suggestions as herein expressed are my personal views and are not concurred in, so far as I know, by the company I represent in the anthracite industry.

REVIEW OF THE HYDRAULIC EXCAVATION AND REGRADING OF THE CITY OF SEATTLE, WASHINGTON.

By Charles Enzian.

In reference to our deliberations and discussions, it may be illuminating to consider more fully some notes relative to the Seattle Hydraulic grading, I beg to submit a resume of that project as described in various issues of the Engineering News:

The first point to be attacked was the Denny Hill Section, an elevation of some 60 feet. The work was first undertaken by steam shovels, during the latter part of 1905. In September 1906, a hydraulic giant, using water from the city mains was introduced. These methods in conjunction were slow and inadequate to the handling of hard blue shale forming the lower portion of the hill.

A contract was entered into for a pumping plant to deliver 3,500 gallons of water per minute, from Elliot Bay, under a nozzle pressure of 100 pounds. A second hand motor was procured in New York City, it being a Westinghouse Synchronous type 804 H. P., 2,400 volts, 60 cycles. This motor was capable of delivering 1,350 H. P. when running at 330 R. P. M. It was connected by a 48-inch belt, 66 feet long, to the Worthington turbine, 4 stage pump, running at 500 R. P. M., and equipped with a friction clutch to allow changing and moving the giant at the pit.

In order to perform the work, the working pressure was 180 pounds at the pump; the water is delivered through 1,500 feet, 14-inch steel pipe. The plant efficiency is 51 per cent.

The work of regarding Seattle continued and was extended so that in 1908 whole sections of the town were cut down from 10 to 100 feet. Steam shovels, cars and wagons were found inadequate to handle the waste from the pits therefore hydraulic sluicing was adopted to level Seattle's hills and convert almost worthless sharp hills and ridges into valuable property disposing them into the sound and upon the tide flats. In 1908 the regrading work in Seattle was divided into 3 large and 3 small areas. The first known as Jackson Hill included an area of 120 acres of property and 5.8 miles of streets; entailing the removal of 3,400,000 cubic yards of earth, which was sluiced upon the tide flats adjacent to that area on the south. Work on that section was carried on with six 4-inch giant nozzles, using half and half 24,000,000 gallons of fresh and salt water every 24 hours. The cost of the work amounted to about $515,000,000, and was divided as follows:

	Excavating.	Embankment.
Total streets	1,791,115	1,388,994
Total alleys	35,631	65,830
Total blocks, private	1,515,279	975,110
Street railway	82,238	35,865
Total	3,424,263	2,465,799

Other terms of the contract were as follows:

Contractors to pay city:

For water from the city reservoir, $20.00 per million gallons.

Use of Lake Washington pumping plant, $3,000 per year.

Contractors are to receive:

Clearing and grubbing	$30,000
Earth excavating, 1,770,000 cu. yds., at 10 cts.	177,000
Earth embankment, 1,363,000 cu. yds., 15 cts	204,450
New lumber, 100 ft., at $24	2,400
Relaying old lumber	750
Concrete retaining walls, 600 cu. yds., at $10	6,000
Iron railing	500
Bulkhead piling, 5,000 ft., at 40 cts.	20,000
Bulkhead lumber	12,500
Iron, 200,000 lbs., at 5 cts.	10,000
Oak blocks	375
Sewer box	7,500
Total	$471,475

According to the charter of Seattle, improvements, amounting to more than 50 per cent. of the assessed value of the property benefited, cannot be made without a petition therefor, signed by 75 per cent. of the property holders affected. Fifty per cent. of the assessed value of this property is $515,813, so that the above contract is well within the limit.

The contractors remove the ground from private property at 10 cents per cubic yard and render each owner a statement of his amount. The property owners have the right to pay cash, or in five or ten years installments at 7 per cent. interest. It may seem a hardship to assess a poor man so extensively, but the assessments are small in comparison with the increased value of the property. Even if forced to sell, owners can often get from three to six times as much as the property was worth before the regrade.

Water is supplied from two sources, fresh water from the city reservoir and salt water from a pumping plant on Elliot Bay 6,000 feet from the center of the work. The pump house is built on piles 200 feet from the lake shore, the pump floor being about level with the normal high tide, which varies some 20 feet during the winter months. The pumping equipment consists of two pairs of 10-inch five-stage Worthington turbine pumps, each pair direct connected by a flexible shaft to a 650 H. P., 2,000 volt, two-phased A. C. Synchronous Westinghouse induction motor. Each unit is capable of supplying 6,000,000 gallons of water per 24 hours against a head of 380 feet. The pumps operate normally at 690 R. P. M., having thrust bearings with six collars and oil-enclosed cooling rings surrounded by circulating water. The vanes of the pump are bronze to resist the action of the salt water. A pressure of about 155 pounds is maintained. The water is supplied in a 24-inch firewood pipe. From this main line 4 branches lead to 4 giant cast iron nozzles from 2 1-2 inches to 4 inches effective diameter. The material excavated consists of about 60 per cent. blue clay or hard pan and 40 per cent. yellow clay, loam, gravel and boulders.

As a summary of the great work it is well to note the proportions of the other districts. The district north of the central part of the city, known as the Third avenue regrade, includes 95 acres, 2.6 miles of street and 5,400,000 cubic yards of earth. In this section four nozzles are using 14,000,000 gallons of water every 24 hours and two steam shovels, six locomotives and 36 dump cars are also employed. The cost of this regrade will be about $1,000,000 exclusive of cost of grading private property.

The third great section is the Fourth avenue regrade of 40 acres, 1.7 miles of street and 540,000 cubic yards of earth. Two steam shovels, four locomotives and 35 dump cars are in use here.

The material from Jackson and Fourth avenue districts is being used to fill tide lands. That of the Third avenue district cannot be conveniently brought to the tide lands and it is wasted into the sound.

The three smaller sections of regrade work comprise 126 acres, 5.4 miles of street and involve 700,000 cubic yards. Here one steam shovel, two locomotives and 20 cars are in operation.

This gives a grand summary of 15.4 miles of streets, 271 acres of area and 10,000,000 cubic yards of earth to be moved at a cost of $2,018,000 exclusive of charges against private property. Besides this there are five other districts which will be completed in the coming three years, to include 237 acres, 14 miles of street and 6,000,000 cubic yards at a cost to the city of $1,300,000. In all, this involves one-eighth as much dirt as is being moved in the great canal project at Panama.

One very striking and beneficial effect has been the cleaning up of the district in which the work is going on. Before, the buildings were all on the low, wet grounds adjoining the tide flats. At high tide they were soaked, and the result was a dirty, filthy region that naturally became the immoral center of Seattle. Since the regrade began, these buildings have been raised from 20 to 40 feet, and are now on piles and have plenty of dry air around them. House moving has developed into an important business. The cost is often excessive, in some cases more than the buildings are worth. A three-story frame building 60 by 120 feet in plan, can be raised 40 feet, and blocked for about $2,000.00.

In 1910 the Engineering News contains information as follows:

From a total of 80,000 people in 1900, this thriving seaport has grown in less than ten years to a population of approximately 320,000.

Since the inception of regrading in Seattle, the amount of dirt removed is remarkable. More than 14,000,000 cubic yards of earth and stone have been removed up to this time, and before the work shall have been completed more than 34,000,000 cubic yards will have been disposed of.

THE DENNY HILL REGRADE.

The first contract having been successfully completed, the more ambitious scheme now known as the Denny Hill Regrade was inaugurated. The legal machinery had been set in motion by the filing of a petition by a majority of the property owners of Seattle on May 23, 1906. The ordinance provided for "the laying off, widening, extending, altering and establishing of Third avenue, between Denny Way and Pike street, Fourth avenue, between Denny Way and Pike street, and Fifth avenue, between Westlake avenue, and Denny Way." It further provided for "the changing and establishing of the grades of the following named streets and avenues, to wit: Third avenue, from Pine street to Cedar street, Fourth avenue, from Pine street to Cedar street, and Fifth avenue, from Westlake avenue to Denny Way," together with the several named cross streets intersecting them.

Under this proceeding, Third, Fourth, and Fifth avenues were widened from 66 feet to 90 feet by condemning a 12-foot strip on each side of the avenues throughout their length from Pine street and Westlake avenue on the south to Denny Way on the north. The awards for the private property so appropriated totaled over $1,500,000.

This necessitated very heavy cuts, running to a maximum, at a point near Fourth avenue, and Blenchard street, of 110 feet. It may be noted that the item of the grading amounted to not far from $1,000,000 bringing the total cost of the improvement up to approximatly $2,500,000.

Following the approval of the ordinance as above outlined, suit was brought before the Superior Court to "ascertain the just compensation to be awarded for the taking or damaging of private property" included within the district. The jury empanelled in this case brought in 347 verdicts for amounts aggregating a total of $1,510,958, and on March 13, 1907, a judgment on these verdicts was entered, by which action the city acquired title to the property condemned and was free to proceed with the work of regrade.

The Board of Public Works then called for bids for the grading, according to specifications prepared by the city engineer. The bid of the Rainier Development Company was accepted as itemized below:

Fixed estimate	$10,000
Clear and grub (lump sum)	1
Earthwork, 5,590,000 cu. yds., at .27 per yd.	969,300
Box drain, 5,500 lin. ft., at .35	1,225
Total	980,526

Certain changes were later made in the plans, slightly altering the amount of earth to be removed, and the final estimate of the yardage to be removed for the various purposes is approximately as follows:

	Cu. yds.
Streets	3,314,100
Alleys	174,500
Blocks (private)	1,768,200
Seattle Electric Co.	140,900
Total	5,397,700

With regard to the above intemization, it is to be noted that the amounts given for streets and allays include also the amounts comprized in the side slopes.

The contract with the Rainer Development Company, on a basis of the bid already given was dated August 17, 1907. It provided the installation of a pumping plant capable of removing 12,000 cubic yards daily, and required the commencement of the work within a period of 180 days from the date of notice to begin work, and the completion of same within thirty months from that date.

In addition to the pumping plant previously described, the Lake Union plant was installed.

THE LAKE UNION PLANT.

The new plant is located on the edge of Lake Union at Eighth avenue, North and Valley street, and an air line distance of approximately one mile from the point of maximum out at Fourth avenue and Blanchard. It is an excellent example of the most advanced type of the electrically driven, hydraulic plant as developed for regrade work.

In the one-story building which comprises the plant are installed three turbine units, aggregating 1,950 H. P. and capable of delivering a total of 12,600 gallons per minute against a pressure head of 180 pounds.

In order to hasten the slicing, both by the loosening of large masses and by breaking up of the more closely compact lumps of the shale like clay, blasting powder is used throughout the area under regrade. Comparatively small charges are used, however, and very little disturbance has so far resulted from the cause.

These are the salient features of a regrading project which is remarkable even for Seattle, a project involving the removal of nearly 5,400,000 cubic yards of material, an amount surpassing by a million cubic yards that of its nearest predecessor, the Jackson street regrade; and it is very probable that, both in point of the amount of material handled and in respect to the maximum depth of cut attained, the Denny Hill regrade above described is the largest municipal regrading problem ever carried to a successful completion.

The following is a summary of the work as accounted:

Jackson St. section.	3,400,000	cu. yds. excav. at	.15	per cu. yd.
Third Ave. section.	5,400,000	" "	.19	" "
Denny Hill section.	3,590,000	" "	.27	" "
9 smaller sections.	6,700,000	" "	.21	" "
Grand total recorded	19,090,000	" "	at average rate of 21c. per cubic yard.

BRIEF CHRONOLOGY OF THE ANTHRACITE MINING INDUSTRY.

(Griffith, William, Scranton Truth, Feb. 24, 1908.)

1710. Existence of coal beds known by Indians.

1754. July 11, Lackawanna and Wyoming Valley coal regions included in the sale of property by Five Nations to the Susquehanna Connecticut Company. The purchase price of the entire tract was but 2,000 pounds, about $10,000.

1762. First Connecticut settlers, after camping at mouth of Mill Creek, above Wilkes-Barre for several days, and cutting hay on Jacob's Plains, returned to Connecticut and reported discovery of anthracite coal.

1763. "At a meeting of the Susquehanna Company held at Windham, in Connecticut, April 17, 1763, it appearing to this company that some of the proprietors of our purchase lands at Susquehanna river, to the number of two or three hundred, desire that the lands be laid out into several townships as a part of their rights for the speedy settlement of said lands.

FIRST RESERVATION OF COAL.

It is therefore voted that there shall be eight townships laid out on said river as near as may be to the townships granted as gratuity to the first settlers, each of said townships to contain five square miles of land, fit for good improvement, or equivalent thereunto as the land may suitably accommodate, at the discretion of a committee hereafter to be named and appointed for that purpose, reserving for the use of the company for their after-disposal, all beds of iron ore and coal that may be within the towns ordered for settlement.

"This would appear to be the first discovery and mention of anthracite coal in the country."—Dr. Egle's History of Pennsylvania.

It is also undoubtedly the first instance of coal reserve deed, which are so familiar in this region today.

1766. Indians from this locality visiting Governor of Pennsylvania, complained of robbing of mine by whites, believed to have been a coal mine. In letter from James Tilghman, of Philadelphia, to the Proprietaries, Thomas and Richard Penn, Spring Garden, London, it is stated that a Col. Francis had found a very great fund of coal at Wyoming in the hills which surround a very fine and extensive belief. "This coal," says the letter, "is thought to be very fine. With his compliments Col. Francis sends you a piece. This bed of coal situate as it is on this side of the river, may at some time or other be a thing of great value."

1768. Charles Stewart surveyed Sunbury, across river from Wilkes-Barre, and on maps indicated presence of "stone coal" at Ross Hill, now Edwardsville.

FIRST BURNED IN FORGE.

1769. Obadiah Gore first burned anthracite in his smith forge at Wilkes-Barre.

1775. Coal mined on banks of Susquehanna, near Pittston.

1176. Two Durham boats from down the river came to Wyoming for coal. It was purchased from R. Geer, who had a mine opening above the mouth of Mill Creek. This coal was later used in the manufacture of arms at Carlisle, Pa.

1779. Major George Grant, Sullivan's Army, writing from Wyoming says, "The land here is excellent and contains vast mines of coal, lead and copper."

1783. John Schopf, in "Travels" mentions a visit he made in this year to a bed of brilliant black coal, a mile above Wyoming, which on handling leaves no taint and burns without emitting an offensive odor.

1788. Nails made with anthracite by Judge Jesse Fell, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

1790. Coal known to be plentiful in Schuylkill county, but not used.

1791. Coal was accidentally discovered by Philip Ginter, a hunter, in the neighborhood of Mauch Chunk. Specimens were carried to Philadelphia in saddle bags by Col. Jacob Weiss, who purchased the land upon which the discovery was made.

1792. Col. Weiss and others formed the Lehigh Coal Mine Company, the first of the kind in the United States.

1795. Blacksmith named Whetstone used anthracite in Schuylkill.

1799. Coal discovered at Carbondale.

1800. Coal shipped to Philadelphia from Pottsville.

1803. Lehigh Coal Mine Company succeeded in getting two ark loads, about thirty tons, to market at Philadelphia, but no purchasers could be found. City authorities as an experiment attempted to burn it beneath the boilers at the water works, but it only served to put the fire out and the remainder was broken up and distributed over the sidewalks of the vicinity in place of gravel.

1803. Anthracite coal first burned in a grate in Philadelphia. Although this experiment was successful it excited no public interest and no results followed beyond the simple record of the fact.

1806. Another boatload sent to Philadelphia from Lehigh region and rejected.

1807. Abijah Smith and Company began mining at Plymouth, in Wyoming Valley; shipped 55 tons.

JESSE FELL'S EXPERIMENT.

1808. On Feb. 11, Judge Jesse Fell made an experiment in the bar room of his hotel at the corner of Washington and Northampton streets and on the fly leaves of a book entitled "The Free Mason's Monitor" he made the following memorandum:

"February 11th, of Masonry 5808. Made the experiment of burning the common stone coal of the valley in a grate, in a common fireplace in my house and find it will answer the purpose of fuel, making a clearer and better fire, at less expense, than burning wood in the common way. February 11th, 1808. Jesse Fell."

This experiment excited great interest and people came from far and near to watch further experiments which were made in a grate of iron and soon there were dozens of similar grates being constructed and put into use. It is the one hundredth anniversary of this event, which was celebrated February 8th, 1908, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

BEGINNING AND EARLY DEVELOPMENT OF COAL TRADE.

The coal trade for export really commenced in 1808 and those who first started in the business and continued in it were John and Abijah Smith, of Plymouth. These young men left their home in Derby, Conn., in 1805-06 and immediately purchased coal land and engaged in mining coal. They shipped the first ark of coal to Columbia, Pa., in 1807. The following year they sent several ark loads to Columbia and with them sent masons who constructed fire-places for the purchasers of coal, in which the coal might be burned. At this time coal sold for $10 per ton.

1812. Col. George Shoemaker discovered coal on Schuylkill and carted nine wagon loads to Philadelphia. He sold two loads and was later denounced as an impostor by the purchasers and was compelled to give the rest away.

1812. Abijah Smith and Co., of Plymouth, Pa., making shipments to Baltimore and New York City in coasting vessels from Havre de Grace, Md., the coal being successfully used there.

1812. Abijah Smith and Co., of Plymouth, Pa., making shipwas Price and Waterbury, who handled this coal for Abijah Smith and Co., selling at $25.00 per chaldron or 3000 pounds.

1813. George Hollenback shipped two arkloads of coal from Mill Creek mine. Joseph Wright, of Plymouth, mined two ark loads of coal from mines of brother Samuel G. Wright, of New Jersey, at a point near Port Griffith. Charles Miner and Jacob Cist about this time started to write news articles for the Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York papers and thus arouse interest in the product. They leased a mine near Mauch Chunk in 1813 and in 1814 took an arkload of coal down the river to Philadelphia and disposed of it after much difficulty.

1814. Miner, Cist and Robinson made their first shipment to Philadelphia from near Mauch Chunk. Two boat loads arrived at Philadelphia and were purchased by White and Hazard for $21.00 per ton and used in the first successful effort to utilize anthracite in the iron industry at their wire mills at Falls of Schuylkill.

1815. Being firmly convinced of the value of the coal, White, Hazard and Hanto set about securing leases on Lehigh Coal Mine Company land near Mauch Chunk for 10,000 acres for 20 years, for "one ear of corn per year if demanded," etc., and succeeded.

Coal mined at Carbondale and shipped via Lackawaxen and Delaware Canal to Philadelphia.

1815. Schuylkill Navigation Co. organized.

1817. Coal trade well established and coal the chief article of export and the local fuel of Wyoming Valley. Several mines in operation, shipping 2,000 tons per year down the Susquehanna river.

1818. White and Hazard secured passage by Pennsylvania Legislature of "An act to improve the navigation of the Lehigh river." Lehigh Navigation Company and Lehigh Coal Company organized and merged into the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company.

LEHIGH COAL TRADE BEGINS.

1820. About 12,000 tons shipped to date and 2,500 tons shipped per year from Wyoming Valley. Lehigh Coal and Navigation Co. began mining and shipping. Price, Philadelphia, $8.40 per ton. Shipment this year 365 tons.

1821. Half dozen mines operating in Wyoming Valley and shipping via Susquehanna river. Coal at mines valued at 50 cents a ton, cost 50 cents a ton to mine and 50 cents a ton to haul to river. Price, Harrisburg, Columbia and other river points, $4.00 to $4.50 per ton.

1823-25. Delaware and Hudson Canal Company organized.

1825. Schuylkill canal was completed from Mt. Carbon to Philadelphia.

1826. Coal discovered near Hazleton.

FIRST RAILROAD BUILT.

1826. First railroad built by Delaware and Hundson Canal Company.

1829. Baltimore Coal Company organized to mine coal at Wilkes-Barre.

Delaware and Hudson Canal Company began shipping from Carbondale.

1829. Lehigh Canal opened Mauch Chunk to Easton.

1830. Stephen Girard purchased from trustees of late Bank of United States 28,200 acres of land in Pennsylvania at $1.00 per acre, which included the present coal lands of the Girard Estate.

1831. North Branch Canal Completed to Nanticoke.

1831. Nesquehoning Railroad and plane built.

1831. Morris Canal opened Phillipsburg to Newark; opened to Jersey City. 1836; leased by Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., 1872.

1832. Little Schuylkill Railroad began transporting coal from Tamaqua region.

1832. Shamokin division Northern Central Railroad originally opened. Reorganized 1851. Leased to Northern Central Railroad 1863.

1833. Delaware division Pennsylvania Canal opened.

1834. Wyoming and State Canals opened.

1837. Lehigh navigation to White Haven opened.

1837. Shipments of coal began from Beaver Meadow region.

1837. Shipments of coal began from Pine Grove via Union Canal.

1837. Morris and Essex Railroad opened. Leased to D. L. and W. R. R., 1869.

1838. Col. James W. Johnson, of Pittston, Pa., secured a charter from State for Pennsylvania Coal Company.

1838. Shipments of coal began from Hazleton region.

1838. Washington Coal Company organized.

1839. Summit Branch Railroad opened. Leased to S. B. R. R. Co., 1866.

1838. Shipment of coal began from Shamokin region westward.

1839. Shipments of coal began from Lykens Valley region westward.

1840. Shipments of coal began from Buck Mountain region.

1840. Quakake Railroad opened. Extended and opened to Mt. Carmel, 1862.

1841. Philadelphia and Reading Railroad transported 850 tons of coal.

1842. Philadelphia and Reading Railroad began transporting coal through to Port Richmond.

RAIL SHIPMENTS FROM WILKES-BARRE.

1846. Rail shipments of coal began from Wilkes-Barre via L. and S. R. R. planes and Lehigh Canal.

1847-48. Wm. R. Griffith, for the Wyoming Coal Association purchased large areas of coal land about Pittston at $100.00 per acre and transferred same to Pennsylvania Coal Company.

1849. Washington Coal Company began business and building of Gravity Railroad to Hawley.

1850. Total shipments from all regions for year 3,358,899 tons.

1851. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad built from Scranton to Great Bend.

1852. Central R. R. of N. J. opened from Elizabeth to Easton. Third rail from Hampton Junction laid 1856.

1852. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad began breaking coal into sizes for market, followed by Delaware and Hudson Company.

1854. Lehigh Valley Railroad building.

1855. Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. began transporting coal to Phillipsburg. Opened to Perth Amboy in 1875.

1856. Treverton Railroad opened.

1856. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad completed to Delaware Water Gap.

1857. Belvidere, Delaware Railroad opened. Leased to Philadelphia and Reading Railroad May 1, 1879.

1858. Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad opened, leased to D. L. and W. R. R. Company 1873.

1858. Mining began in McAley mountain region.

1860. Total shipments this year, exclusive of local consumption, 8,513,123 tons.

1864. Stove coal sold at auction in July for $12.03 per ton.

1866. Lehigh and Susquehanna Railroad opened to Scranton.

1867. Lehigh Valley Railroad opened to Pittsburgh Junction.

1867. Pea coal first appears, returned separately on the railroad toll reports of the Girard Estate collieries in April, this year.

1868. Lehigh and Susquehanna Railroad opened to Phillipsburg. Leased to C. R. R. of N. J. 1871.

1868. Pennsylvania Railroad began carrying coal.

1869. Pennsylvania and New York R. R. (Lehigh Valley) opened to Waverly. Strike at mines January and May.

1869. Wilkes-Barre Coal and Iron Company began business.

1869. Pea coal first recognized in Girard leases, and described as coal which would pass through five-eights of an inch screen mesh.

1870. Nesquehoning Valley Railroad and Panther Creek tunnel opened.

1870. Sunbury, Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre Railroad opened. Leased to Pennsylvania R. R. 1878.

1870. Total annual shipments, 16,182,191 tons.

Subsequent history is undoubtedly familiar to all; having been published continuously and is therefore not here repeated.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION TO REVISE AND CODIFY THE PRESENT ANTHRACITE MINING LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA, Submitting for the Consideration of the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Session of 1913.

AN ACT OF ASSEMBLY

CODIFYING THE ANTHRACITE LAWS.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:

By an Act of Assembly approved by Governor Tener on June 14th, 1911 (P. L. 920), it was provided as follows:

"An Act authorizing the appointment of a commission to revise and codify the present anthracite mining laws; defining its powers and duties, and making an appropriation to defray the expenses of said commission.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the Governor of the Commonwealth be and he is hereby authorized to appoint a commission to revise and codify the present anthracite mining laws of Pennsylvania; said commission to be composed of nine members, three of whom shall be selected from among the operators, managers, and superintendents of the anthracite region, three from among the mine workers of the anthracite region, one shall be a member of the Senate of the session of one thousand nine hundred and eleven, one shall be a member of the House of Representatives of the session of one thousand nine hundred and eleven, and one shall be a person versed in the art of mining and who has no pecuniary interest in the operation of any coal mine in Pennsylvania.

Section 2. The chairman of said commissian shall be designated by the Governor. The commission shall have power to employ such legal counsel and other officers and employes as it may deem necessary to properly perform its duties. The members of the commission shall receive no compensation for their services, but shall be allowed their actual traveling and other necessary expenses while in attendance upon their duties as authorized by this act. The salary of any other person employed by the commission shall be fixed by it.

Section 3. The said commission shall hold its meetings in Wilkes-Barre, where all persons who are interested in the revision and codification of the said anthracite mining laws may appear and give expression to their views. The said commission shall have the right to call into consultation any persons who, in its opinion, may be able to give information that will assist in the work of revision. Said commission shall make a full report in writing of its deliberations, together with such recommendations as it may deem proper, to the next General Assembly, which shall convene in January, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

Section 4. The sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated for the expenses of the said commission; the said expenses shall be paid on warrant duly signed by the chairman of the commission.

Approved—The 14th day of June, A. D. 1911.

JOHN K. TENER."

In accordance with the provisions of this Act, Governor Tener in the early part of January of 1912, appointed the following as a Commission: Chairman, Sterling R. Catlin, of Wilkes-Barre; E. E. Jones, of Harford; James E. Roderick, of Hazleton; H. C. Morgan and W. G. Robertson, of Scranton; Peter O'Donnell, of Wilkes-Barre; Martin A. Nash, of Glen Carbon, and Wm. R. Reinhardt, of Shamokin; and W. D. Owens, of West Pittston, and pursuant to a call issued by Chairman Catlin, the Commission met on January 20th, 1912, for the purpose of organization and to formulate a plan or mode of procedure. Mr. O'Donnell was elected as Vice-Chairman, and Wm. W. Hall, Esq., of West Pittston, as Secretary and Counsel of the Commission.

Realizing that the work before the Commission was one of great importance, wherein the conservation of the health and safety of the lives of many thousands of persons engaged in a hazardous occupation, was to be the primary consideration and the protection of the property of those who have invested many millions in the industry as the secondary consideration and that it was no easy task to revise and codify the anthracite mining laws of the Commonwealth within the time provided by the Act, the Commission at once set about the serious consideration of the subject and lost no time whatsoever in commencing its labors.

Copies of the mining laws of many of the States of the Union, and also of England, Belgium and France, were procured, and the same have been frequently referred to for comparison and guidance. The work of drafting a tentative code was referred to a sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Roderick, Owens and O'Donnell, and after numerous sessions, a proposed code was submitted by them to the Commission on December 20th, 1912. Since that time, the code as thus submitted has been the basis of all subsequent work of the Commission.

Many public hearings were held in the City Hall at Wilkes-Barre and the meetings were given wide publicity in all of the newspapers in the Anthracite Region. All persons interested in the subject then before the Commission were invited to appear before the same and give expression to their views. In response, representatives of both the operators and of the United Mine Workers of America, as well as other persons, including electrical and mining engineers and various mine inspectors of the Anthracite districts, appeared before the Commission. Ample time was given to all so appearing, and their remarks were given careful attention by the members. A stenographic record of these hearings was taken and a transcript thereof furnished to each member of the Commission for their guidance upon the final consideration of the code.

The Commission again met, and after a somewhat lengthy discussion of the code the matters brought out at the public hearings, as well as by correspondence, again referred the code to the sub-committee for the purpose, if possible, of harmonizing the same with the ideas and suggestions received. Before this was done, however, the attorney for the Mine Workers appeared before the Commission and asked that he and the representatives of the Mine Workers be given another opportunity to be heard by the whole Commission, as the Mine Workers desired to point out to the Commission sixty-six different instances in the proposed code wherein the element of safety had been lessened instead of increased; and further, to show that the Act of Assembly as prepared by them, the Mine Workers, had increased safety as many times.

After the Commission had decided to refer the code to the sub-committee, as above outlined, the sub-committee were given authority to hear the miners' representatives on these matters, and the sub-committee accordingly fixed a date for them to appear, and at the time appointed, came before the sub-committee and stated that they desired their matters to be heard by the full Commission and not by the sub-committee. Upon being requested to submit their objections to the code in writing to the sub-committee, they declined to do so. The sub-committee accordingly referred the matter back to the whole commission, and fixed March 6th, 1913, at ten o'clock A. M., as the time for the miners' representatives to appear before the Commission.

After many days of tedious and exacting work, the sub-committee again reported to the Commission on the 6th day of March, an amended draft of the code, at the same time calling the attention of the Commission to such sections thereof as the sub-committee were unable to unanimously agree upon. On March 6th the miners' representatives not appearing before the Commission, adjournment was taken until the morning of the 7th, and the miners' representatives still not appearing, the Commission took up the code for final consideration, with the understanding that the operators' representatives, who had requested that they be given a hearing on the morning of the eighth, would be heard before the final adoption of the report. A hearing was granted the operators on the morning of March 8th, and upon their retiring, the attorney for the miners' representatives appeared before the Commission and stated that inasmuch as the Commission had decided not to report the Act of Assembly as drawn by the miners' representatives, they did not wish to take up the matters previously referred to with reference to the provisions of the code increasing or lessening safety. The Commission finally agreed to submit the proposed code as contained in a copy of an Act of Assembly attached hereto, to the Legislature for its consideration.

The anthracite mining laws have not been codified or revised since 1891, a period of nearly twenty-two years, and since then many changes have taken place in the Anthracite Region. The collieries of the small individual operators have nearly all been absorbed, or merged into large corporations; the mining of small veins, at one time thought unmineable, is now carried on extensively; the removal of pillars where the solid coal has been mined out, the introduction and application of electrical power, and several other innovations taken together, have almost revolutionized the industry in mining methods since that time.

To meet these conditions (which in some instances have greatly increased the hazard of mining) and to provide a substantial, and at the same time, a practical system of laws to safeguard in the highest degree the lives and health of the employes, as well as protecting the employer's property, has been the sole aim and desire of this Commission.

In the codification of the laws, the Commission decided to retain, as far as possible, the exact language of the existing statutes, changing only when absolutely necessary. It was not thought wise to draft a code entirely of new language in embodying all the existing provisions of the Anthracite laws, as such a code, though it might be more concise and desirable from a literary standpoint, nevertheless would involve some risk. Every change of language in familiar laws would require more or less litigation after the enactment of the code to determine its real meaning and intent. The Commission has systematically arranged, under appropriate sub-divisions, the duties of the various officials and employes in and about the mines and collieries of the Anthracite Region, so that the individual affected may more readily familiarize himself with the provisions defining his duties.

We earnestly hope that the code as prepared, and which is hereto attached and submitted to you, will receive earnest and careful consideration, and that in the presentation of the same a thorough and intelligent discussion of the subject may follow, so that when the code is finally adopted, there will be enacted into law a statute which will be a credit to the Commonwealth and its people, and fully serve the purpose intended, viz: the safeguarding of the life and health of the employes, and the prevention, if possible, of accidents.

Respectfully submitted.

An Act to provide for the health and safety of persons employed in and about the anthracite coal mines in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and for the protection and preservation of property connected therewith.

ARTICLE I.

APPLICATION OF ACT.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the provisions of this act shall apply to every anthracite coal mine in this Commonwealth.

ARTICLE II.

DEFINITION OF TERMS.

Section 1. For the purpose of this act the definitions of the terms contained herein shall be as follows:

Colliery—The term "colliery" means the inside workings of a mine or mines, and the outside operations connected therewith.

Mine—The term "mine" means all underground workings and excavations, shafts, slopes, drifts, tunnels and all other openings penetrating a coal seam or seams; also all shafts, drifts, slopes, tunnels and other openings being sunk or driven, together with all roads, appliances, machinery and materials below the surface, which openings are tributary to one colliery and ventilated by one general air current or division thereof and connected by one general system over which coal is or may be delivered to one or more points outside the mine, when such is operated by one operator.

Shaft—The term "shaft" means a vertical opening through the strata that is or may be used for the purpose of ventilation or drainage, or for hoisting men or material, or both, in connection with the mining of coal.

Slope—The term "slope" means an incline opening used for the same purpose as a shaft.

Workings—The term "workings" means all the excavated parts of a mine, those abandoned as well as those being worked.

Breaker—The term "breaker" means the structure containing the machinery used for the preparation of coal.

Approved Safety Lamp—The term "approved safety lamp" means any safety lamp approved by the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Operator—The term "operator" means any firm, corporation or individual, operating any colliery, mine, or other part thereof, as owner, occupier or lessee.

Superintendent—The term "superintendent" means the person who shall have immediate supervision of one or more mines, or collieries, on behalf of the operator.

Mining Engineer—The term "mining engineer" means any person who is competent to survey and plot accurately the inside workings of a mine, as well as the surface topography, and who has had five years practical experience at such work, or a graduate of a school of mines or some similar institution, who has had three years practical experience.

Mine Foreman—The term "mine foreman" means the person who is in charge of the inside workings of a mine or mines and of the persons employed therein.

Outside Foreman—The term "outside foreman" means the person in charge of all the outside operations of a colliery and the persons employed thereat.

Miner—The term "miner" means the person who blasts coal or rock and has charge of a working place; also any person engaged at general work in a mine who has the qualifications of a miner as herein prescribed.

Working Place—The term "working place" means a gangway, airway, breast, chamber, pillar or cross-headings.

Chief—The term "chief" means the Chief of the Department of Mines, who is commissioned by the Governor and is charged with the supervision of the execution of the mining laws of this Commonwealth.

Inspector—The term "inspector" means the person commissioned by the Governor on behalf of the Commonwealth, to have supervision of mines and collieries, in the district allotted to him.

ARTICLE III.

DUTIES OF OWNER, OPERATOR OR SUPERINTENDENT.

Secton 1. The owner or operator of every colliery shall appoint a person to be known as the superintendent, provided, however, any individual operator, or any member of a firm operating any coal mine or colliery, may act as superintendent of his respective colliery or collieries, within the meanng of this act.

Provided further, whenever the superintendent cannot personally comply with the provisions of this act, he shall have the right to employ a sufficient number of assistants, who shall be liable to the same penalties as the superintendent for any violation of this act.

Section 2. In order to secure efficient management to promote the health and safety of the persons employed, and to protect and preserve the property connected therewith, the owner, operator or superintendent shall appoint a certificated mine forman for every mine, except as otherwise provided in Section One of Article Six of this act, where twenty or more persons are employed therein.

Section 3. The superintendent of every mine shall provide and maintain ample means of ventilation to furnish a constant and adequate supply of pure air for the persons and animals employed therein.

Section 4. It shall be his duty, on behalf, and at the expense of, the operator, to keep on hand at each mine, at all times, a sufficient quantity of materials and supplies required to preserve the health and safety of the employes, as provded by this act.

Section 5. He shall direct that all foremen employed under him, shall comply with the provisions of this act, especially when his attention has been called by the inspector to any violations thereof.

Section 6. The superintendent of every mine shall provide a sufficient number of danger signals or signs. Such signals or signs shall be uniform and as designed by the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Section 7. He shall keep on hand at the mine a supply of printed rules and record books required by this act, which shall be furnished through the inspector, on request in writing, and he shall see that said rules and record books are delivered to the proper persons, and that an abstract of that portion of this act known as General Rules, Special Rules and Article 24, shall be posted up in legible characters in conspicuous places near the main entrance of the mine which shall be protected and renewed when necessary.

Section 8. The superintendent shall employ a competent person to be called "outside foreman" who shall have charge of the breaker and the outside operations of every colliery.

Section 9. He shall see that no mine cars or motors shall be used inside or outside any mine, unless the bumpers are of sufficient length and width to keep the bodies of said cars separated by not less than twelve inches when the cars stand on a straight level road, and the bumpers touch each other.

Section 10. He shall forthwith notify the inspector by telephone or telegraph, or special messenger, of any loss of life or of any serious accident inside or outside a mine whereby the lives of the employes are endangered.

Secton 11. The operator or superintendent of a mine or colliery, shall use every precaution to insure the safety of the workmen in all cases, whether provided for in this act or not.

Section 12. The superintendent shall, at least once each week, read, examine carefully and countersign, all the reports entered in the record book of the mine foreman. If he finds therefrom that any of the provisions of this act are being violated, he shall at once call the attention of the mine foreman to the fact and shall order that said provisions be complied with forthwith.

Section 13. The superintendent of every colliery, on or before the 25th day of January in each year, shall send to the inspector a correct report of the year ending December 31st, which shall contain the name of the operator and officials of the colliery; the tons of coal mined; the quantity of gun powder, dynamite and permissible explosives used; the number of persons employed inside and outside of each mine, those between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years, and those between sixteen and twenty-one years, and those above twenty-one separately, classifying the occupations of persons so employed; and also the number of days each breaker has been in operation. The reports shall be in such form and on such blanks, and shall give such information regarding the mine or colliery as may be from time to time required and prescribed by the Chief.

Section 14. The superintendent of every colliery shall notify the inspector within fifteen days of the following occurrences:

(1) When any work has been commenced for the purpose of opening a new mine.

(2) When the working of a mine is resumed after an abandonment or a discontinuance for a period exceeding two months.

(3) When a mine has been abandoned, or the working thereof discontinued.

(4) When any change occurs in the name of a colliery, or in the name of the operator.

(5) When the pillars are to be removed, and he shall forthwith notify the inspector of the following occurrences:

(1) When a serious fire occurs.

(2) When a dangerous body of gas is encountered.

(3) When a squeeze or any other cause that may endanger the safety of the employes occurs.

Section 15. The superintendent shall cause to be placed at every colliery, a self-recording barometer which shall be properly cared for, and the records for each day shall be preserved in the mine foreman's office.

Section 16. An office to be known as the mine foreman's office, shall be provided and maintained by the superintendent at or near the main entrance to each mine, of sufficient size and dimensions to properly store and care for the maps and records required by this act to be kept and preserved.

Section 17. Any operator, superintendent or assistant superintendent who neglects to comply with any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE IV.

MINE MAPS.

Section 1. The operator or superintendent of every mine shall make, or cause to be made by a competent mining engineer, an accurate map of the mine, on a scale of one hundred (100) feet to the inch, which map shall show as follows:

First. All the openings, excavations, shafts, slopes, drifts, tunnels, planes, gangways, airways, breasts, and the name or number of each.

Second. An accurate delineation of the boundary lines between said mine and all adjoining mines or coal lands, and the relation and proximity of the workings of said mine to all adjoining mines or coal lands; and, if requested by the inspector, the map or blue print in the office at the mine, shall show by arrows the direction of the air currents in said mine with each split shown in different color.

Third. The elevation above or below mean tide of the top and bottom of each shaft, slope, drift, tunnel, plane, and of gangways; and also of breasts adjacent to boundary lines between such mine and any adjoining mine or mines at points to be not more than three hundred feet apart, and the location of streams, rivers, lakes, dams, or any other bodies of water on the surface, with their elevations accurately and plainly marked; the location and elevation of any body of water dammed in the mine, giving the true area of said body of water, unless inaccessible before the passage of this act; and also the location and number of all bore holes penetrating the coal strata, and a vertical section of the same shall be furnished to the inspector upon written request to the superintendent.

Section 2. A true copy of said map shall be kept in the mine foreman's office, for the use of the mine officials and the inspector, and for the inspection (in the presence of the superintendent or the mine foreman) of any person working in said mine, whenever he shall fear that his working place is becoming dangerous by reason of its proximity to other workings that may contain dangerous accumulations of water or noxious gases.

Section 3. At least once every six months the superintendent of every mine shall cause to be shown accurately on the original map of said mine, and on a true copy of the same, kept at the mine foreman's office, all the excavations made therein during the time that has elapsed since such excavations were last shown there on.

Section 4. The inspector's map of any particular mine shall be open for inspection in the presence of the inspector to any miner, whenever said miner shall have cause to fear that his working place is becoming dangerous by reason of its proximity to other workings which may contain water or dangerous gases. Said map shall also be open to the inspection of any citizen interested, in the presence of the inspector.

Section 5. The owner, operator or superintendent, at the request of the inspector in writing, shall order that any portion of a mine be surveyed and entered on the original map, and on the duplicate at the mine foreman'e office, when in his opinion, such portion of the mine is approaching accumulations of water or noxious gases. And whenever any of the workings or excavations of such mine have been driven to their destination, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to see that the mining engineer checks up all his previous work and notes, so that he can certify that the said map shows correctly all the excavations made therein.

Section 6. The owner, operator or superintendent of every mine, shall furnish the inspector with a true and correct copy of the aforesaid original map on tracing cloth, and at the end of every six months thereafter, the inspector shall return said copy to the superintendent, who shall place or cause to be placed thereon, all the extensions made during the preceding six months, as provided for in section three of this article, and shall forward the map to the inspector within thirty days from the time of receiving it: Provided, that in lieu of the map on tracing cloth as foresaid, the superintendent shall have the privilege of furnishing a blue print showing the complete workings of the mine. When more than one seam of coal is being worked in any mine, the inspector shall be provided with a separate copy of the original map on tracing cloth or a blue print of the complete workings of each seam, as provided for in this article. The copies of the maps of the several mines, as hereinbefore required to be furnished to the inspector, shall remain in his care as official records pertaining strictly to the omce of said inspector, to be transferred by him to his successsor in office, and in no case shall any copy thereof be made without the consent of the superintendent in writing.

Section 7. Whenever a mine, or a portion thereof, is worked out or abandoned, the superintendent shall, within thirty days thereafter, have the inspector's map extended to show clearly all the worked out or abandoned territory, with all property and boundary lines and elevations, as required in section one of this article.

Section 8. The owner, operator or superintendent of the abandoned mine shall also, within sixty days after its abandonment, send to the Department of Mines, a tracing of said complete original map, which shall be kept in the department as a public document, and the mining engineer shall certify that said tracing is a true and correct copy of the said map, and that the original map is a true, complete, and correct survey of all the excavations made in said abandoned mine.

Section 9. If the inspector shall have reason to believe that any map of any mine, furnished to him in pursuance of the provisions of this article, is inaccurate or imperfect, he is hereby authorized to have a special survey made and a map thereof. The cost of said survey and map shall be recoverable from the owner or operator as other debts are recoverable by law: Provided, however, that if the map claimed by the inspector to be inaccurate or imperfect, shall be found sufficiently accurate to serve the purpose for which it is intended, then the Commonwealth shall be liable for the expense incurred in making said survey and map, which expenses shall be paid by the State Treasurer upon warrant of the Auditor General, issued upon the presentation of voucher approved by the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Section 10. Any person, firm or corporation neglecting or failing to comply with any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE V.

BOARDS TO EXAMINE APPLICANTS FOR CERTIFICATES OF QUALIFICATION AS MINE FOREMAN, ASSISTANT MINE FOREMAN AND FIRE BOSS.

Section 1. On petition of the inspector of any district, the Court of Common Pleas in any county in said district, shall appoint on or before the third Tuesday in January in each year, for said inspection district, an examining board of three persons, to be known as the Mine Foreman's Examining Board—consisting of said inspector, a miner and a superintendent who shall be residents of said district. The miner so appointed shall have had at least five years' practical experience as a miner in gaseous mines and be, at the time of appointment, in actual practice, and the superintendent shall also have had five years' experence as a superntendent of gaseous mines. All members of said Examining Board shall be citizens of the United States, and shall, after being duly organized, take and subscribe to, before an officer authorized to administer the same, the following oath, namely:

"I, the undersigned, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will perform the duties of examiner of applicants for sertificates of qualification as mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire bosses; that I will not divulge or make known to any person, any question prepared for the examination prior thereto, or in any manner assist any applicant to pass the examination, but will be governed by the evidence of the qualifications of the applicants to fill said positions, and not by any consideration of political or personal favor; and that I will certify all whom I may find qualified in accordance with the law."

Section 2. Any vacancy that may occur in the membership of the Board of Examiners, shall be filled by the Court of Common Pleas, in accordance with the provisions of section one of this article.

Section 3. Any member of any Board of Examiners, who divulges or makes known any question prepared for an examination prior to such question being handed to the applicants at the examination, or in any manner assist any applicant to pass the examination, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

Section 4. The members of the Boards of Examiners appointed as provided in section one of this article, with the inspectors in office, shall meet in the City of Hazleton each year on the second Tuesday in April, for the purpose of discussing the nature and scope of the theoretical and practical questions to be given the applicants, and to adopt rules to govern the examinations, and to decide any other important matter pertaining to their duties.

Section 5. The members of said Boards shall select at such meeting, a committee of six of their number, comprising two inspectors, two miners and two superintendents, who shall meet in the City of Harrisburg on the third Tuesday in April to formulate a code of questions to be used at the next succeeding examinations. This committee shall select one of their members as chairman and one as secretary. The questions prepared by the said committee shall be printed under the personal direction of the chairman and sent by him, by registered mail in sealed packages, each package containing a set of questions for each session, to the chairman of each Board of Examiners, who shall break the seal and open the package at the commencement of each session in the presence of the applicants and the other members of the Board.

Section 6. The said Board of Examiners shall meet in their respective districts at the call of the inspector on the third Tuesday in May, at a place designated by him, to examine applicants for mine foremen, assistant mine foremen and fire bosses. Public notice of said meeting shall be given twice a week for two weeks in two daily newspapers published in the district, prior to the holding of said examinations.

Section 7. After the examinations are over, and before the several boards meet to examine the papers of the applicants the said committee of six shall meet in the City of Wilkes-Barre not later than seven days after such examinations to prepare answers to the questions propounded, and these answers shall be printed and sent by registered mail to the chairman of each board to be used in the rating of the value of the answers to the questions as given by the applicants. While preparing answers to the questions, the committee is hereby authorized to engage the services of a clerk, whose compensation and mileage shall be the same as that of the members of the committee.

Section 8. The members of each board, except the inspectors, shall receive six dollars a day for every day actually employed, not exceeding twelve days in all, and mileage at the rate of two and one-half cents a mile for every mile traveled, by the shortest route in going to and from the place of meeting. Provided, that the mileage shall be paid out once for each continuous session of the board, and by a continuous session is meant, a session of not less than four days in each week: Provided, further, that the members of the committee of six, except the inspectors, shall each receive additional compensation at the rate of six dollars a day for the time spent in preparing the questions and answers, together with mileage as hereinbefore provided, and all other necessary expenses.

Section 9. The chairman of each Board of Examiners shall, on final adjournment, send to the Chief of the Department, properly attested vouchers for compensation and mileage of each member of the board. The Chief shall then approve all proper vouchers and transmit them to the Auditor General who shall issue a warrant for their payment to the State Treasurer.

Section 10. Applicants must appear before the Board of Examiners of which the inspector of the district where they work is a member, and all persons who desire to attend the examination shall notify the chairman of the board of their intention, if possible, not less than six days prior to the day set for the examination.

Section 11. Applicants for certificates of qualifications as mine formen or assistant mine foremen, shall be citizens of the United States, at least twenty-three years of age and shall have had at least two years practical experience as miners in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania.

All applicants shall be able to read and write the English language intelligently, and shall furnish the board with certificates from trustworthy persons as to their character and temperate habits, and also from superintendents and foremen showing the length of their services in the different mines.

Section 12. Certificates of qualifications as mine foremen shall be granted to persons who have given to the Board of Examiners, satisfactory evidence of their ability to perform their duties and who shall have received an average of at least eighty per centum in the examination.

Section 13. Certificates of qualification as assistant mine foremen shall be granted to persons who have given to the Board of Examiners, satisfactory evidence of their ability to perform their duties, and who shall have received an average of at least seventy per centum in the examinations.

All applicants for certificates as mine foremen and assistant mine formemen, must also undergo an oral examination of their practical experience with dangerous gases found in mines.

Section 14. Certificates of qualifications as fire bosses shall be granted to persons who have given to the Board of Examiners, satisfactory evidence of their ability to perform their duties, and who shall have received an average of at least sixty per centum in the examination.

Section 15. Before such examination each applicant shall pay to the Board of Examiners the sum of one dollar, and if successful, two dollars additional for a certificate. All money received by the Boards of Examiners shall be transmitted to the Chief of the Department, who shall pay the same into the State Treasury, less the cost of issuing and recording the certificates.

Section 16. Each Board of Examiners, or at least two members thereof, shall certify to the Chief on forms furnished by him, every person whose examination shall disclose his fitness for the duties of mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss, who shall then prepare certificates of qualilcation for the successful applicants and send them to the inspector for distribution. Each certificate shall contain the full name, age and place of birth of applicant, and also the length and nature of his previous service in or about the mines. The certificates shall be in manner and form as prescribed by the Department of Mines.

Section 17. Each Board of Examiners shall send to the Department of Mines, the answers to each applicant to the questions propounded, with all other papers, together with the tally sheets and a list of the questions and answers as prepared by the Committee of six, which shall be filed therein.

Section 18. It shall be unlawful to employ a mine foreman, an assistant mine foreman or a fire boss, who has not obtained the proper certificate of qualifications as required by this article: Provided, that all persons holding certificates of qualification or service as mine foremen, or assistant mine foremen granted prior to this act, may continue to serve as such without further examination.

Section 19. In case of the loss or destruction of a certificate, the Chief of the Department shall issue a duplicate thereof to the person losing the same, on payment of the sum of one dollar: Provided, that it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Chief, by affidavit, that the loss or destruction has actually occurred.

Section 20. If any person shall forge a certificate or knowingly make or cause to be made any false statement in procuring such certificate issued under this act, or shall make use of such forged or false certificate or duplicate thereof, or shall make use of any false declaration, representation or statement in any such certificate or duplicate thereof, or any document containing the same, he shall be deemed guilty of an affense against this act.

ARTICLE VI.

DUTIES OF MINE FOREMAN.

Section 1. To secure efficient management, every mine where twenty or more persons are employed inside shall be under the direction of a mine foreman, who shall have full charge of the inside workings and of the persons employed therein, so that the provisions of this act, so far as they relate to him, shall be complied with, and he shall direct that the regulations prescribed for each class of workmen be complied with: Provided however that a mine foreman may have charge of several detached openings of the same colliery, if not more than one hundred and fifty persons in the aggregate are employed therein. And provided further, that in a mine where less than twenty persons are employed, they shall be under the charge and direction of an assistant mine foreman.

Section 2. The mine foreman shall possess a mine foreman's certificate and the assistant mine foreman shall possess an assistant mine foreman's certificate.

Section 3. He shall have charge of all matters pertaining to ventilation, and the speed of the ventilator shall be particularly under his charge and direction. He shall post a notice at the fan engine house stating the least number of revolutions per minute the ventilator shall run.

Section 4. Every working place shall be examined at least once a day, and whenever the mine foreman cannot personally comply with this provision, he shall have the right to employ a sufficient number of assistants to make such examinations wherever practicable during working hours. He shall give specal care and attention to miners engaged in removing pillars.

Section 5. The mine foreman or assistant mine foreman shall, once every two weeks, on the first and third Mondays of each month, or as soon thereafter as practicable, while the mine is in operation, measure the air current at or near the main inlet and main outlet and also in the main inlet and outlet of each split in the cross-heading nearest the face of the first inside working breast, and in the inside cross-heading nearest the face in the last outside working breast of each split of air, and he shall make a record of such measurements with ink in a book prepared for that purpose. Said record shall also designate the area of each opening, the velocity of the air therein and the number of persons employed in each split, with dates when measurements were taken. An exact copy of such measurements and records shall be sent to the inspector not later than the eighth day of the following month.

Section 6. The mine foreman shall devote his time to his duties in the mine while the same is in operation, and shall keep a careful watch over the ventlation, airways, traveling ways, timbering, and drainage, and shall see that all stoppings between gangways and airways are properly built as provided for in section five of article fourteen of this act. He shall see that proper cross-headings are made in pillars of all breasts and gangways at such distance apart as in his judgment may be necessary, but the face of any breast shall not be more than sixty feet distant from the gangway or last cross-heading, and the face of any gangway shall not be more than sixty feet from the last cross-heading, and that cross-headings are closed when necessary or when ordered closed by the inspector in writing, and that in gaseous mines, a cross-heading is driven at the face of every breast when finished.

Section 7. The mine foreman or assistant mine foreman or fire boss shall once each week examine carefully all accessible openings to all abandoned portions of a mine where explosive gas has been or is being generated, and all dangers found therein shall be immediately removed if practicable. A report of said examination shall be recorded with ink in a book kept in the mine foreman's office and signed by the persons who made the examinations.

Section 8. He or an assistant mine foreman shall see that every working place is properly secured by props, timbers, or otherwise; that no person is permitted to work in an unsafe place unless it be for the purpose of making it secure, and that safety in all respects is assured; and if any employe neglects to carry out, or disobeys the instructions given in regard to securing his working place, and through such negligence or disobedience shall cause serious injury or loss of life to any person, he shall report such employe to the inspector.

Section 9. He shall see that the miners are provided with the necessary ties, rails, props, timbers and cap pieces of suitable sizes, which shall be delivered at the working faces or as near thereto as they can be conveyed in mine cars, when requested by the miner; that the props are cut square on one end and as near as practicable to the proper length as given by the miner, and if for any reason the said props, timbers and caps are not provided, the mine foreman shall withdraw the men from the mine, or from the portion of the mine affected which is dangerous to life and limb until such props and timbers are received.

Section 10. He, or a competent person or persons designated by him, shall each working day examine the shafts, slopes, traveling ways, signal apparatus and all machinery connected therewith, to see that they are in safe and efficient working condition, so as to safeguard life and property. The person making such examination shall report the same in writing, with ink, each day in a book kept for that purpose, signing his name and giving the date of the examination.

Section 11. When an assistant mine foreman is employed, his duty shall be to assist the mine foreman in carrying out the provisions of this act. In the absence of the mine foreman through sickness or otherwise, one of the assistant foremen designated by him or the superintendent, may perform his duties and shall be liable to the same penalties as the mine foreman for any violation of this act.

Section 12. Each assistant mine foreman shall make a daily report with ink in a book provided for that purpose, stating the general condition of the working places visited in the portion allotted to him by the mine foreman, and shall make a note of any danger observed and sign his name thereto. The mine foreman shall read carefully the daily report of each assistant mine foreman, and shall countersign such reports with ink not later than the following day.

Section 13. The mine foreman shall each day enter plainly with ink, in a book provided for that purpose, a brief report of the condition of the portion of the mine examined by him, and shall state clearly any danger that may have come under his observation and sign his name thereto.

Section 14. In a mine wherein explosive gas has been generated within one year before the passage of this act or shall be generated after the passage of this act, in sufficient quantities to be detected by an approved safety lamp, the mine foreman shall employ a sufficient number of fire bosses (whenever he is unable to make the examination himself) in order that each mine shall be examined in accordance with the provisions of article seven of this act, and he shall see, as often as practicable, that such fire boss has left his mark in places reported as examined. He shall each day read carefully and countersign with ink, all daily reports entered in the record book of the fire boss.

Section 15. The mine foreman of a mine generating explosive gas shall, at or near the bottom of each shaft or slope, or on the surface, provide a permanent station where a proper danger signal or sign, designated by letters and colors shall be placed thereon and no persons shall pass said station as long as the danger signal or sign is so posted.

Section 16. When the workings of a mine are a mile or more from the bottom of a shaft or slope, the mine foreman, with the consent of the inspector in writing, may provide a permanent station for the use of the fire bosses, with danger signal or sign attached, as provided in section fifteen, and no person shall pass said station so long as the danger signal or sign is posted thereon. In said station a fire proof vault of ample dimensions shall be erected of brick, stone or concrete, in which the temporary record book of the fire boss shall be placed and locked for safe keeping during their absence.

Section 17. When the permanent station of the fire bosses is located a mile or more from the bottom of a shaft or slope, all abandoned, finished or unfinished workings in the intervening distance shall be completely shut off from the traveling way (which shall be in the intake) by stopping of stone or brick laid in cement or lime mortar, or by concrete of sufficient thickness to prevent noxious or explosive gases from coming in contact with the employes while going to or returning from their work.

Section 18. The mine foreman shall see that all working places and roadways, and all other places of the mine are kept free from standing gas. Any accumulation of explosive gas or noxious gases in the worked-out or abandoned portion of a mine shall be removed as soon as possible after its discovery, if practicable. No person, except those employed in the removal of the same, shall be allowed in that portion of the mine until such gases are removed or rendered harmless.

Section 19. He shall see that all dangerous places in the mine are properly fenced off across the openings, so that no person can enter, and that danger signals or signs are posted thereon. He shall notify the superintendent, in writing, whenever in his opinion the mine is becoming dangerous through the lack of ample ventilation, squeeze, or from any other cause beyond his control.

Section 20. The mine foreman shall see that locked safety lamps are used where, in his judgment, an open light is a menace to life and property, and that only permissible explosives shall be allowed for blasting purpose in such places.

Section 21. He shall provide suitable lighted signals to be placed on the end of all trips operated in the mine by motors.

Section 22. The transportation of explosives and tools into and out of the mine shall be under the direction of the mine foreman.

Section 23. He shall direct and see that efficient safety blocks or devices are placed for the purpose of preventing cars from running into shafts, slopes or planes where employes are hoisted or traveling therein, and shall see that they are maintained in good working condition.

Section 24. The mine foreman shall see that in a place that is being driven within supposedly dangerous proximity to an abandoned mine or a portion of the same, suspected of containing explosive gas, noxious gases or an accumulation of water, at least one bore hole shall be maintained not less than twenty feet in advance of the face, and on each side bore holes of the same depth shall be drilled at right angles not more than ten feet apart and the opening shall not be more than twelve feet wide.

Section 25. He shall see that no dangerous accumulation of water or gas shall be tapped from the mine or any abandoned portion thereof, until all the employes are out, except those engaged at the work of tapping, and such work shall be done with locked safety lamps under the immediate supervision of the mine foreman or an assistant mine foreman.

Section 26. In case of accident to a ventilator or its machinery, whereby the ventilation of the mine or portion thereof is seriously interrupted, he shall order the employes to withdraw immediately from the mine or the portion thereof affected, and they shall not be allowed to return to their work until the ventilation has been restored and the mine examined by the mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss and reported safe.

Section 27. The mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss, shall have the right, if he deems it necessary for the protection of life and property, to make a personal examination of any employe about to enter a gaseous mine or portion thereof where locked safety lamps are used, and he shall not allow such employe to go to his work until it shall be satisfactorily shown that no prohibited articles are concealed about the employe's body.

Section 28. At the foot of every shaft or slope where persons are hoisted therefrom, the mine foreman shall provide a comfortable waiting room for shelter and protection, and of ample dimensions to seat from ten to twenty persons.

Section 29. The mine foreman shall see that the height of gangways, or traveling ways, wherein employes have to travel into and out of the mines, shall not be less than five feet. Where such height is impracticable, the employes at their request shall be hauled into and out of the mine at the beginning and end of each shift.

Section 30. If at any time it is found by the person in charge of the mine, or any portion thereof, for any cause whatever, the same has become dangerous, every precaution shall be taken to insure the safety of the employes and every employe, except such as may be required to remove the danger, shall be withdrawn from the mine or portion thereof until it is examined by the mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss and reported safe.

Section 31. A miner when first employed shall have his attention called by the mine foreman to Article 24 of this act.

Section 32. Any mine foreman or assistant mine foreman who fails or neglects to carry out the provisions of this article, or of any other article that relates to his duties, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE VII.

DUTIES OF FIRE BOSS.

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the fire boss to examine carefully every morning before the men enter the mine, every working place, all places adjacent to live workings, every roadway and every unfenced road to abandoned workings and falls, but before entering the mine he shall satisfy himself that the ventilating apparatus is running at the speed designated by the mine foreman, and before proceeding with the examination, he shall see that the air current is traveling in its proper course. In making the examination for gas he shall use no light other than that enclosed in an approved safety lamp, provided, however, that in addition thereto, he may use an approved electric lamp for other examinations. The examination shall begin within three hours prior to the appointed time for the men to enter the mine. The fire boss shall examine for all dangers in all portions of the mine under his charge, and after such examination shall leave at or near the face of every place, the date as evidence that he has performed his duty. He shall also examine the entrance or entrances to all worked-out and abandoned portions adjacent to the roadways and working places under his charge where explosive gas is likely to accumulate, and he shall place a danger signal or sign across the entrance to every working place and every other place where explosive gas is discovered, or where immediate danger is found to exist from any other cause, and said signal or sign shall be sufficient warning to persons not to enter.

Section 2. A suitable record book shall be kept in the mine foreman's office on the surface or at a station located near the bottom of a shaft or slope, or at a station a mile or more from a shaft or slope, and on the return of the fire boss to said station, he shall enter with ink in said record book the condition of the portion examined, giving the date and sign his name to the same. Such record shall show the time taken in making the examination, and shall clearly state the location and nature of any danger that may have been discovered, and he shall immediately report the location thereof to the mine foreman.

Section 3. No person shall enter the mine or any portion thereof until the fire boss returns to the station on the surface or to a station near the bottom of a shaft or slope, or to a station located a mile or more from the shaft or slope, as the case may be, and reports that the mine or the portion thereof is safe for men to enter. When the station is located a mile or more from the foot of the shaft or slope, he shall report to the mine foreman or an assistant mine foreman, by telephone or otherwise, and it shall be his duty, when stations are located inside the mines, to keep his record book locked in a vault provided for that purpose, whenever he is absent from the station.

Section 4. A second examination shall be made by him each day when practicable during working hours, of every working place previously examined, where men are employed, and shall give special attention to the condition of the roof and sides and the general condition of each working place as to its safety, and if he discovers any working place in a dangerous condition, he shall direct the miner to secure the place at once if practicable, but if it cannot be made safe, he shall withdraw the men immediately and report the matter to the mine foreman.

Section 5. It shall not be lawful for any person (except mine foreman, and in case of necessity such other persons as may be designated by him) to pass beyond a danger signal until the mine or the portion thereof has been examined and reported to be safe, and he shall not allow any person to remain in any portion of the mine through which a dangerous accumulation of explosive gas is being passed in the ventilating current.

Section 6. Any fire boss who neglects to comply with the provisions of this article relating to his duties, or who shall make a false report of the conditions of any place in the portion of the mine allotted to him for examination, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act, and upon conviction his certificate shall be revoked by the Chief: Provided, however, that he may again be an applicant for a certificate at any regular examination after the expiration of six months, but if found guilty of a second offense, his certificate shall be revoked and he cannot be an applicant for re-examination.

ARTICLE VIII.

DUTIES OF OUTSIDE FOREMAN.

Section 1. The owner, operator or superintendent of every colliery, shall appoint a person to be known as outside foreman, provided, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the superintendent from also acting in the capacity of outside foreman, where the circumstances will permit of such an arrangement.

Section 2. The outside operations of every colliery shall be under the charge and direction of the outside foreman, whose duty shall be to see that the provisions of this act, so far as they apply to him, are obeyed and carried out.

Section 3. He shall see that all dangerous machinery is properly protected and especially in breakers, such as engines, rolls, wheels, screens, shafting and belting, and sides of stairs, trestles and plank walks, shall be provided with hand or guard railings for protection, but this section shall not forbid the temporary removal of a fence, guard rail or covering for the purpose of repairs, if precaution is taken, but which shall be replaced immediately thereafter.

Section 4. The outside foreman shall employ a sober and competent person not under eighteen years of age as a breaker engineer, who shall attend to such engine while the same is in motion.

Section 5. A signal apparatus shall be placed at important points in every breaker so that in case of accident the engineer can be promptly notified to stop the machinery.

Section 6. He shall not employ an oiler for said breaker machinery under sixteen years of age, but such oiler or any other employe shall not oil danegrous parts of such machinery while in motion.

Section 7. He shall not employ any person under the age of fourteen years to do any work in the breaker or at any other work on the surface.

Section 8. The outside foreman, where coal dust in a breaker is injurious to the health of the persons employed therein, shall immediately adopt measures for the removal of the same as far as practicable, and see that the breaker is heated by steam or hot water and kept at a temperature so as to preserve the health of the persons employed therein.

Section 9. In shafts or slopes where men are lowered from, or hoisted to, the surface, the outside foreman shall, as often as necessary, see that the part of the rope inserted in the cone is cut off, (as much thereof as may be found defective) and the cone readjusted, and that no doubtful ropes are allowed to be used in lowering or hoisting employes.

Section 10. Any outside foreman who neglects or fails to comply with any of the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE IX.

MINE INSPECTORS' EXAMINING BOARDS.

Section 1. The Governor shall appoint during the month of June, 1913, and every four years thereafter, nine citizens of this Commonwealth and residents of the anthracite region, who shall be men of good repute and at least thirty-five years of age, to be known as the Mine Inspectors' Examining Board, whose duty it shall be to examine applicants for the office of mine inspector. Three of the members of said board shall be mining engineers of not less than five years' practical experience in mines and mining, five shall be miners in actual practice who shall have had at least five years' practical experience as miners in anthracite mines generating explosive gas and one shall be an electrical engineer of five years' practical experience in or about mines and mining.

The members of said board shall each receive the sum of ten dollars a day for each day actually employed, not exceeding thirty-five days in all, and all necessary expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this article which shall be paid out of the State Treasury on warrant of the Auditor General, issued upon presentation of vouchers properly made out and sworn to by each member of the board and approved by the Chief of the Department of Mines. The board is hereby authorized to engage the services of a clerk, whose compensation shall be the same as that of the members of the board. Any vacancy that may occur in the membership of the board shall be filled by the Governor.

Section 2. The said Board of Examiners shall meet in the City of Harrisburg on the second Tuesday in July following its appointment to prepare questions and answers thereto, and formulate rules for conducting and governing the examination, provided there be a vacancy in the office of inspector. The members of the board, after being duly organized, shall each take and subscribe to, before any officer authorized to administer the same, the following oath, namely:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will perform the duties of examiner of applicants for appointment as inspector to the best of my ability, and that in recommending or rejecting said applicants I will be governed by the evidence of their qualifications to fill the position, and not by any consideration of political or personal favor, and that I will certify all applicants who may be found qualified and no others, according to the true intent and meaning of the law."

The oaths of the members of the Examining Board shall be filed in the Department of Mines.

Section 3. On the fourth Tuesday in July, public notice having been given for two weeks prior thereto, in two newspapers published in the district, where any such vacancy exists, the board shall meet again in the City of Harrisburg to examine applicants for the office of inspector, whose qualifications shall be certified to the board and be as follows: They shall be citizens of this Commonwealth and residents of the anthracite region, of temporate habits, of good repute, of personal integrity, in good physical condition, and not under thirty-five and not over fifty-five years of age. They shall have a comprehensive knowledge of the different systems of working and ventilating coal mines, and shall have had at least ten years' practical experience in mines as miners, fire bosses, mine foremen or superintendents, five years of which immediately preceding their examination, shall have been in the anthracite mines of this Commonwealth. They shall have had practical experience with explosive, dangerous and noxious gases generally found in coal mines, and shall have a general knowledge of mines, mining and machinery and of chemistry of gases generally found in coal mines. They shall be conversant with the work of first aid corps and with the work and requirements of the rescue corps. They shall be conversant with the science and use of electricity as applied to coal mines, and shall have sufficient knowledge of the science of mining engineering to enable them to understand and read the mine workings of any mine as shown on maps presented at the examination and to make a cross section of any mine from said maps when so required by the examining board. They shall give evidence of such theoretical as well as practical knowledge and general intelligence respecting mines and mining and the working and ventilation of mines as will satisfy the board of their capability and fitness for the important duties imposed upon the inspectors by the provisions of this act.

After the passage of this act no person shall be eligible to the position of inspector, unless he shall prove to the saticfaction of the Mine Inspectors' Examining Board, that he has served as a practical miner for at least five years: Provided, that this section shall not apply to inspectors now in office.

Section 4. The principal examination shall be in writing, and each applicant shall also undergo an oral examination pertaining to explosive gas and noxious gases, safety lamps and general methods of mining. The questions and answers in the oral examination shall be reported verbatim by an expert stenoghapher and typewritten fully to assist the board in the work of rating the qualifications of the applicants. The applicants who have made a general average of at least ninety per centum shall be deemed successful.

Section 5. The manuscripts and all other papers of the applicants in the principal examination, together with the tally sheets and the correct solution of each question as prepared by the examining board, and also the stenographic report of the oral examination shall be filed in the Department of Mines. The Examining Board, or at least six members thereof, shall certify to the Governor and also to the Chief of the Department of Mines, the names and percentages of all successful applicants who are properly qualified under the provisions of this article to fill the office of inspector. A certificate of qualification prepared by the Chief of the Department of Mines shall be issued to each successful applicant.

The Examining Board shall, as soon as practicable after the examination, furnish to each candidate examined, a typewritten copy of all questions (oral and written) given at the examination, marked "solved right," "imperfect," or "wrong" as the case may be.

Section 6. The Governor shall, from the names certified to him by the Examining Board, commission a person or persons having the highest percentage in the examination, to be inspector for each district where a vacancy exists; Provided, however, that no person shall be eligible who has received a less rating than ninety per centum in the examination. The inspectors so named during 1913, shall serve until December thirty-first 1915. The inspectors elected or appointed under the provisions of the act of 1901 shall continue to serve until December thirty-first, 1915. After January first, 1916, the term of all inspectors shall be four years.

Section 7. When a vacancy occurs in the office of inspector by death or otherwise, the Governor shall commission for the unexpired term, from the names on file in the Department of Mines, the person having the highest percentage in the examination to fill said vacancy. When the number of applicants who have received at least ninety (90) per centum shall be exhausted, the Governor shall cause the Examining Board to meet for a special examination and examine the persons who may present themselves for examination in accordance with Section three (3) of this article, and the board shall certify to the Governor, and also to the Chief of the Department of Mines, the names of all applicants who have made a general average of at least ninety (90) per centum in said examination as provided for in Section four of this Article, and the one receiving the highest percentage shall be commissioned by the Governor, according to the provisions of Section six of this Article, for the office of inspector for the unexpired term. Special examinations shall be conducted in the same manner as regular examinations.

Section 8. After the passage of this act, the salary of the inspectors shall be three thuosand and six hundred dollars ($3,600.00) a year, to be paid quarterly by the State Treasurer, on warrant of the Auditor General, issued upon the presentation of voucher approved by the Chief of the Department of Mines. Each inspector may also incur traveling and all other expenses as may be necessary for the proper discharge of his duties under the provisions of this act, which shall be paid quarterly by the State Treasurer on warrant of the Auditor General, issued upon the presentation of vouchers properly made out and sworn to by the inspector and approved by the Chief of the Department of Mines. Each inspector shall have an office in his district, which may be at his place of residence: Provided, that a suitable room approved by the chief be set apart for that purpose. The Chief of the Department of Mines shall have authority to procure for the inspectors, on their request, furniture, instruments, chemicals, typewriters, stationery and all other necessary supplies which shall be paid for by the State Treasurer, on warrant of the Auditor General, issued upon the presentation of vouchers approved by the chief. All furniture, instruments, plans, books, memoranda, notes and other materials pertaining to the office of inspector shall be the property of the State and shall be delivered by the inspector to his successor in office.

Section 9. The inspectors shall be allowed all necessary expenses incurred by them in enforcing the several provisions of this act in the respective courts of this Commonwealth, provided they have the consent of the Chief of the Department of Mines before such expenses are incurred, the same to be paid by the State Treasurer, on warrant of the Auditor General, issued upon the presentation of itemized vouchers approved by the court before which the proceedings were instituted and also by the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Section 10. Each inspector shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, give a bond to the Commonwealth in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties to be approved by a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the District, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties; and shall take an oath, or make affirmation that he will discharge his duties with impartiality and fidelity.

No inspector under this act, shall act as manager of any coal mine, or as agent or as mining engineer for any company, or be interested in the operation of any anthracite coal mine of this Commonwealth.

Section 11. In case any inspector becomes incapacitated to perform the duties of his office, or is granted a leave of absence by the Chief of the Department of Mines, it shall be the duty of the Governor, at the request of said chief, to appoint temporarily to the office, a person on the eligible list of applicants filed in the Department of Mines. The temporary inspector shall act until the regular inspector is able to resume the duties of his office, and shall be paid in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the payment of the regular inspector.

Section 12. Any member of the Board of Examiners, or clerk or stenographer employed by the board, who fails to comply with the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE X.

DUTIES OF INSPECTOR.

Section 1. The inspector shall devote the whole of his time to the duties of his office. It shall be his duty to examine thoroughly each mine and the outside workings thereof as often as possible, but at least once every three months, giving special attention to all mines generating explosive gas, and to all other mines where unusual dangers exist or may be suspected to exist, to see that all the provisions of this act are complied with, especially those that effect the safety of life and health and property therein, and those that demand that the air current be carried to the working faces. He shall keep in his office a record of all such inspections showing the general condition in which he finds the mine, especially with reference to its condition as to safety and ventilation, and also drainage where employes travel therein; the number of persons employed inside; and the number of serious accidents, showing the nature and causes thereof; the number of deaths resulting therefrom, and such other information as he may deem necessary, or as may be required by the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the inspector to visit each emergency hospital in the mines of his district once every three months, see that the law is being complied with and examine the records of said emergency hospitals. He shall notify the superintendent in writing of any neglect or noncompliance with the provisions of this article. Such complaint shall be regarded as evidence in any inquest that may be held on any employe dying from injuries received in the mine.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the inspector, whenever he has reason to believe that an illuminant is used or sold in violation of the provisions of this act, to take samples of the same and have them tested under the directions of the Chief of the Department of Mines.

Section 4. It shall be the duty of the inspector when making his regular inspection, to read and examine carefully the record books of the mine foremen, assistant mine foreman and fire boss. Upon the discovery that the law is not being complied with, he shall notify the mine foreman to that effect, in writing, and if the same offense is found the second time, his duty shall be to forthwith prosecute the guilty party. He shall also see that all notices are posted in compliance with the provisions of this act.

Section 5. It shall be the duty of the inspector to see, as far as practicable, that all the provisions of this act are observed and obeyed: Provided, that whenever he is in doubt regarding the enforcement of certain provisions, he shall refer the matter to the Chief of the Department of Mines, who shall render a decision as soon as possible, and said decision shall be final unless the superintendent shall, within seven (7) days of the receipt thereof, appeal from such decision to the court.

Section 6. To enable the inspector to perform the duties imposed upon him by this act, he shall have the right at all times to enter any mine in his district or in any other district when directed to do so by the Chief of the Department, to make inspection or to obtain information, and upon the discovery of, or being informed of, any violation of this act which may endanger life or limb, or if he finds any other thing or practice not covered by the provisions of this act, which may endanger life or health of the employes, he shall at once notify the mine foreman, in writing, to remove forthwith said dangerous conditions. If the mine foreman fails to comply, he shall immediately apply, in the name of the Commonwealth, to the Court of Common Pleas of the county in which said mine is located, or to a judge thereof in chambers, for a writ of injunction to enjoin the operation of all work in said mine or portion thereof. Whereupon said court, or a judge thereof, shall at once proceed to hear and determine the case; and if the cause appears to be sufficient, after hearing the parties and their evidence, as in like cases, shall issue its writ to restrain the working of said mine or portion thereof until all cause of danger is removed. The cost of said proceedings shall be borne by the operator; Provided, that should said court, or a judge thereof, find said allegations not sufficient, said case shall be dismissed and the costs shall be borne by the county wherein said mine is located; Provided, also, that should any inspector find, during his inspection of a mine, or a portion thereof, such dangerous conditions existing therein that in his opinion any delay in removing the workmen from such dangerous places might cause loss of life or serious personal injury, said inspector shall have the right to temporarily withdraw all persons from such dangerous places until the foregoing provisions of this section can be carried into effect.

Section 7. It shall be his duty after the final inspection of any mine, to make out a written report on forms furnished by the Department of Mines, which shall show the general condition thereof, the dates of all inspections, the number of cubic feet of air entering the mine, and the number of cubic feet of air as found in the return airway outside the last cross heading in each split, together with the number employed in each split. The report shall contain such other information as he may deem necessary, or as may be required by the Chief of the Department of Mines. Said report shall be conspicuously posted at the mine, and protected, where it shall remain until the next final inspection is made, and a copy shall be sent forthwith to the chief. Said report shall be preserved in the office of the inspector for one year.

Section 8. The inspector shall make the following reports to the chief, on blank forms provided for that purpose; not later than the tenth of each month he shall make a report of all fatal and serious non-fatal accidents as reported to him by the several formen during the preceding month, stating the date, nature and cause of each accident and placing the responsibility therefor, together with the name, age, occupation and nationality of each person killed or injured, and whether married or single, and the number of widows and orphans left; which report shall be recorded and filed in the Department, and included, or a synopsis of the same, in the annual report of said Department. Not later than the sixth day of each month he shall make a report giving the name of the operator and the name and location of each mine inspector during the preceding month, with dates of inspection, condition of mine, quantity of air in circulation at all points required by this article or as required by the chief, and the number employed in each split of air. Not later than the twentieth of February of each year, he shall make an annual report to the chief, which shall recapitulate the duties performed by him during the preceding year, and briefly describe the conditions of the mines relative to ventilation, drainage and general sanitary conditions as relating to the health, safety and welfare of the employes, and which shall also contain such suggestions or information of importance as he may deem necessary, or as may be required by the chief.

ARTICLE XI.

DISCRETIONARY POWERS OF INSPECTTORS.

ARBITRATION.

Section 1. The inspector shall exercise sound discretion in the performance of his duties under the provisions of this act, and if the operator, superintendent or mine foreman, shall be dissatisfied with any decision the inspector has given in the discharge of his duties, which shall be in writing, it shall be the duty of the dissatisfied persons to appeal from said decision to the Chief of the Department, who shall at once direct two or more other inspectors to accompany promptly the inspector of the district to make further examination into the matter in dispute. If the said inspectors shall agree with the decision of the inspector of the district, their decision shall be final, unless the dissatisfied person shall within seven (7) days of the receipt of the decision of the committee of inspectors, appeal therefrom to the Court of Quarter Sessions of the county in which said mine is situated.

Section 2. Whereupon the court, or a judge thereof in chambers, shall forthwith appoint a commission of four practical, reputable and competent persons, two of whom shall be recommended by the superintendent, and two by the chief, and the four (4) persons thus recommended shall name a fifth person equally qualified and the five persons so named (none of whom shall be in the employ of the operator, operating company, or any of its officers, or of the Department of Mines) shall constitute a commission to investigate and report on the matter in dispute: Provided, however, in case any or all of said four (4) persons are not recommended by a writing filed in said court within seven days after the appeal is filed, then the said court, or a judge thereof in chambers, shall forthwith fill the vacancy or vacancies by the appointment of a person or persons of equal qualifications; should the four persons thus chosen not agree in writing, upon the fifth person of this commission, within five days after they have received notice of their appointment, then the said court shall appoint the said fifth person on this commission. The duty of said commission of five persons shall be, under the instructions of the court, to forthwith examine said mine, or a portion thereof, and report under oath, within ten days after their appointment, the facts as they exist and the conditions pertaining thereto, based upon such conditions and facts, the decision of a majority on the matter in dispute, and their report and decisions thereto shall be final and conclusive, unless exceptions thereto shall be filed by the operator or superintendent, or by the chief within seven days of the filing of said commission's report. If exceptions are filed, the court shall at once hear, and testimony taken thereon, determine then and enter a decree in accordance with such determination: Provided, that the superintendent or the chief, shall thereafter have the right to have the record and proceedings removed to the supreme court for review, by appeal or writ of error.

Section 3. If said Court of Quarter Sessions sustains the decision of the committee of inspectors and said court's decree is not appealed from, or if no appeal the Supreme Court finally sustains the decision of the inspector, then the appellant from said decision of the inspectors shall pay all costs of such proceedings; but if said Court of Quarter Sessions or the Supreme Court shall not sustain the decision of the committee of inspectors, then all costs shall be paid by the Commonwealth: Provided, however, that any and all appeals from any decision made by the committee of inspectors or made by the committee appointed by the Court of Quarter Sessions, shall not operate as a supersedeas to such decision during the pendency of such appeal either to the Court of Quarter Sessions or the Supreme Court, unless so ordered by the Court of Quarter Sessions or the Appellate Court or any judge thereof either by general rule or special order, upon such terms as may be required by the court or judge granting the order of supersedeas.

ARTICLE XII.

NEGLECT OR MALFEASANCE OF INSPECTOR.

Section 1. The Court of Common Pleas in any county of district, upon a petition signed by not less than fifteen reputable citizens, who shall be mine workers or operators of mines, and with the affidavits of five or more of said petitioners attached, setting forth that any inspector is neglectful of, or is incompetent to perform the duties of his office, or that he is guilty of malfeasance in office, small issue a citation in the name of the Commonwealth to the said inspector to appear, on not less than fifteen days' notice, given in the same manner as summonses are now by law required to be served, upon a day fixed before said court; at which time the court shall proceed to inquire into and investigate the allegations of the said petitioners; Provided, however, that the citation shall not issue until the petitioners shall file a bond in said court in the name of the Commonwealth in such sum as the court may direct and with sufficient sureties to be approved by the court, conditioned that the petitioners shall pay all costs of the proceedings in case the charges are not sustained.

Section 2. If the court finds that the said inspector is neglectful of, or is incompetent to perform the duties of his office, or that he is guilty of malfeasance in office, the court shall certify the same to the Governor, who shall declare the office of said inspector vacant, and proceed in compliance with the provisions of this act to fill the vacancy.

The costs of said investigation shall, if the charges are sustained, be imposed upon the inspector; but if the charges are not sustained, they shall be imposed upon the petitioners.

ARTICLE XIII.

INSPECTION DISTRICTS.

Section 1. Under this act, the anthracite region of the Commonwealth shall be arranged by the Chief of the Department of Mines into twenty-five (25) inspection districts and it shall be the duty of the chief to assign the inspectors to their respective districts. He shall also designate their places of abode at points convenient to the mines under their charge.

Section 2. With the consent of the Governor, the chief may at any time re-arrange the districts and add to the number of inspectors, if in his judgment the same should be increased.

ARTICLE XIV.

VENTILATION.

Section 1. The minimum quantity of air provided shall not be less than two hundred cubic feet per minute for each person employed in the mine, and shall be as much more in the interest of safety, as may be required by the inspector.

Section 2. The ventilation shall be conducted to and along the face of every working place in the mine, in sufficient quantities to dilute, render harmless and carry away smoke and noxious and dangerous gases, to such an extent that all the working place and roadways shall be kept continually in a healthful and safe condition for the employes who work and travel therein.

Section 3. All worked out or abandoned portions of a mine in operation, so far as practicable, shall be kept free of dangerous bodies of gas or water, but if found impracticable, the inspector must be immediately notified.

Section 4. Every mine where more than seventy-five persons are employed shall be divided into two or more districts. Each district shall be provided with a separate split of pure air, and the ventilation shall be so arranged that not more than seventy-five persons shall be employed at the same time in any one split. The return air from each split shall be conducted through an overcast or an undercast when necessary, which shall lead into a main return airway. The inlet and return airways of every district shall be separated by a pillar of coal or rock where practicable; otherwise with a wall of concrete, stone or brick laid in cement or lime mortar, not less than sixteen inches in thickness.

Section 5. All cross-headings connecting the inlet and outlet airways of every district, when closed permanently, shall be substantially done with walls of concrete, or of stone or brick laid in cement or lime mortar. Cross-headings between rooms, except those nearest the face shall be closed and a brattice shall be erected from the last cross-heading through which the air enters, so as to conduct the air to the face: Provided, that the closing of such headings between rooms may be omitted on the written consent of the inspector.

Section 6. All doors used for guiding and directing the ventilating current shall be so hung and adjusted as to close automatically.

Section 7. Every main door (that is, the door that controls the air currents in each split, or the door, the opening of which, would short circuit the air between the intake and the return of any split) shall have an attendant, whose constant duty shall be to open and close the same for transportation or travel, to prevent it from standing open any longer than is necessary for persons, animals or cars to pass through, unless a self-acting door is used which is approved by the inspector. A hole for shelter shall be made at each door where an attendant is employed; Provided, that the space is less than five feet from the body of the cars to the rib.

Section 8. All main doors shall be so placed that when one door is open, another, which has the same effect upon the air current shall remain closed, and thus prevent any temporary stoppage of the ventilation, but if the inspector, is of the opinion that an extra main door is necessary, he shall notify the mine foreman in writing to that effect, and such door shall be erected forthwith, and left standing open and out of reach of accidents from runaway cars, and so fixed that it can be at once closed in the event of accident to the main door in use. The frame work of all main doors shall be substantially secured with concrete or with stone or brick laid in cement or lime mortar.

Section 9. Every permanent overcast or undercast shall be substantially built of incombustible material and of such strength as the circumstances may require: Provided, that this section shall not apply to overcasts or undercasts in use prior to the passage of this act, unless in the opinion of the inspector the same are a menace to the lives of the persons employed in the mine.

Section 10. All permanent ventilators shall be erected on the surface: Provided, that this shall not be construed as to prevent the erection of a temporary ventilating machine inside of the mine. All such permanent machinery built for such ventilation shall be kept continually in operation at the speed established by the mine foreman, and said ventilating apparatus shall not be stopped except upon his written consent.

Section 11. Every ventilator in operation at a mine shall be provided with a recording instrument by which the speed of the ventilator or the ventilating pressure for each hour of every day is indicated with the date thereof; and such record shall be preserved in the mine foreman's office for a period of three months for future reference.

Section 12. It shall not be lawful to use a furnace for the purpose of ventilating any mine wherein explosive gas is being generated.

Section 13. All air passages shall be of sufficient area to allow for the circulation of not less than two hundred cubic feet of air per minute for every person working therein; and in no case, in mines liberating explosive gas which can be detected by an approved safety lamp, shall the velocity exceed four hundred and fifty (450) lineal feet per minute in any opening through which the air current passes if safety lamps are used, except in the main inlet or outlet airways.

Section 14. Every person who shall neglect or fail to comply with any of the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XV.

SIGNALING APPARATUS.

HOISTING MACHINERY, ROPES AND SAFETY CATCHES.

Section 1. In every shaft or slope wherein men are being lowered or hoisted, the owner, operator or superintendent shall install and maintain in good condition, a signal apparatus so that conversation may be held and understood between the employes at the top and at the bottom, and vice versa. The same provisions shall apply to inside planes where coal is lowered and employes have to travel therein.

Section 2. In mines generating explosive gas, telephone connections shall be made from the surface to each lift or main centers of the mine, and telephone connections shall be made in any other mine when ordered in writing by the inspector.

Section 3. Every carriage used for lowering or hoisting employes in shafts shall be provided with guard rails at the sides, and with chains, bar or gate at the ends, and with sufficient covering overhead to protect the employes thereon, and with suitable overhead holds and each carriage shall also be provided with efficient safety catches which shall be tested once every two (2) months, and a record of each test shall be sent to the superintendent and also recorded in a book kept at the mine foreman's office for that purpose.

Section 4. All shafts shall be provided with safety gates at the top and intermediate landings, the top gates to be controlled by the carriages, where practicable.

Sections 5. All ropes shall be securely attached to the shaft of the drum of every engine that is being used for lowering or hoisting employes into and out of the mine, and the flanges of said drum shall have a clearance of not less than two inches when the whole of the rope is wound thereon, and no less than two full turns of the rope shall always remain on the drum. An adequate brake shall be attached to the drum where men are being lowered or hoisted, and an indicator shall be attached to the hoisting apparatus to show the position of the carriages, cages or cars in the shaft or slope, and an efficient device to prevent overwinding shall be attached to every engine used for lowering or hoisting employes, if required in writing by the inspector.

Section 6. The main coupling chain attached to the socket of the wire rope of every shaft or slope shall be made of the best quality of steel or iron, and bridle chains of the same material shall be fastened to the top cross-piece of the carriage and attached to the rope not less than three feet above the socket.

Section 7. In shafts or slopes where coal is hoisted and employes lowered or hoisted, the ropes, links and chains shall be of ample strength, with a factor of safety of not less than four to one of the maximum load. In shafts or slopes used exclusively for lowering or hoisting men and supplies, the factor of safety shall not be less than eight to one of the maximum load or four to one of the maximum load of supplies. All such ropes, links and chains, safety catches, sockets and other hoisting apparatus, shall be carefully examined at least once every working day by a competent person delegated for that purpose by the outside or inside foreman; and any defect therein found, by which life and limb may be endangered, shall be reported at once to the outside or inside forman, who shall immediately proceed to remedy the defect; and until that is accomplished, he shall prohibit the employes from being lowered or hoisted by the defective apparatus. The person making said examination shall keep a daily record of each inspection, in a book kept for that purpose, and the record shall be made out in ink.

Section 8. Wherever practicable, every car, cage or gunboat used for lowering or hoisting employes in any slope shall be provided with a proper guard, so constructed that employes while thereon shall be protected from anything that may roll down said slope.

Section 9. Every person who fails or neglects to comply with any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XVI.

SAFETY LAMPS AND OPEN LIGHTS.

Section 1. The use of open lights is prohibited in any gangway, airway, traveling-way, or in any other working place where explosive gas is being generated in such quantity as will indicate danger by an approved safety lamp or other approved device, also in pillar workings where a sudden inflow of explosive gas is likely to be encountered, and all such places shall be worked exclusively with locked safety lamps. The use of open lights in also prohibited in all working places, roadways, or other portions of the mine through which explosive gas is carried in the air current in quantities indicating danger.

Section 2. When one section of a mine is worked by the use of locked safety lamps, while another section is worked by the use of open lights, the return air from the gaseous section shall be conducted directly into a return airway leading to the outlet. When a section of a mine is worked by the use of locked safety lamps and other sections are worked by the use of open lights, it shall be the duty of the mine foreman to provide a suitable danger station with danger signals or sign posted thereon, and employes using open lights shall not pass such danger signals or signs, nor enter a section where locked safety lamps are in use.

Section 3. When safety lamps are used, the position of the lamp station for lighting or relighting shall not be in the return air current.

Section 4. Whenever safety lamps are used by fire bosses or other persons they shall be so constructed that they may be safely carried against the air current ordinarily prevailing in that portion of the mine in which the lamps are used.

Section 5. All safety lamps used for examining mines or for working therein shall be the property of the owner or operator, and shall be in the care of a competent person or persons appointed for that purpose, whose duty it shall be to clean, fill, trim, examine, light and deliver them in a safe condition to the men who are using safety lamps, when entering the mine, and to receive the lamps from the men when returning from work. Where locked safety lamps are required to be used, they shall be locked before delivery to the man, unless permission be first given by the mine foreman to have the lamps used unlocked, and any person receiving a safety lamp shall see that it is clean and safe for use.

Section 6. At any mine generating explosive gas in sufficient quantity to be detected by an approved safety lamp, a sufficient number of safety lamps, not less than one-fourth of the number of safety lamps in use, shall be provided by the owner, operator or superintendent as a surplus and kept in a convenient place and in good condition for use in case of emergency.

Section 7. It shall be the duty of every person who knows that his safety lamp has been injured, or is defective, to extinguish the light at once and return the lamp immediately to the person who has charge of such safety lamps.

Section 8. Any person who neglects or fails to comply with any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act, and any person using a safety lamp who shall without authority, make an alteration thereto or commit intentional damage to the same while in his possession, shall likewise be guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XVII.

SHAFTS, SLOPES, OPENINGS AND OUTLETS.

Section 1. It shall not be lawful to employ any person to work in a mine unless there are at least two openings, inlet and outlet from every seam of coal actually worked, and available from every lift thereof, and such openings and outlets shall have distinct means of ingress and egress available at all times for the use of the employes. The distance between shafts shall not be less than one hundred and fifty feet. The distance between inlet and outlet of a slope must not be less than one hundred and fifty feet on the surface, but the distance between said openings inside shall not be less than sixty feet; Provided, that such distance between said openings shall apply only to mines opened after the passage of this act; and provided further, that the distance specified may be less with the written consent of the inspector. The passageways between said two shafts or slopes shall at all times be maintained in safe and available condition for the employes to travel therein, and the pillars between said shafts or said shall not be removed without the consent of the inspector given in writing to the mine foreman. The foregoing requirements shall not apply to the openings of a new mine, or to the openings of a new lift of a mine that is being worked for the purpose of making connection between said two outlets, provided that not more than twenty persons are employed at any one time in making such connection or driving the second opening; nor shall said requirements apply to any mine in which the second opening has been rendered unavailable, by reason of the final removing of pillars, provided, that not more than twenty persons are employed therein at any one time.

Section 2. The cage or carriage or other safe means of egress shall be available at all times for the persons employed in any mine that has no available second outlet.

Section 3. There shall be at the bottom of every shaft, where employes and material are lowered and hoisted (and similarly at such shaft at any intermediate point where it intersects any lift) a passageway, not less than five feet high and three feet wide in the clear, which passageway shall be either cut through the solid strata or constructed of masonry, and shall be kept open at all times, so as to enable persons to pass around said shaft or slope in going from one side thereof to the other.

Section 4. The escapements, shafts or slopes shall be fitted with safe and available appliances by which the persons employed in the mine may readily escape in case an accident occurs deranging the hoisting machinery at the main outlets.

Section 5. In slopes where the angle of inclination is fifteen degrees or less, and not more than one thousand feet in length, there must be provided a separate traveling way, which shall be maintained in a safe condition for travel and kept free from steam, dangerous and noxious gases.

Section 6. No inflammable structure, other than a frame to sustain pulleys or sheaves, shall be erected over the entrance of any opening connecting the surface with the underground workings of any mine, and no "breaker" or other inflammable structure for the preparation or storage of coal shall be erected nearer than two hundred (200) feet to any such opening, but this act shall not be construed to prohibit the erection of a fan drift for the purpose of ventilation or for a trestle for the transportation of cars from any slope to such breaker or structure; neither shall it apply to any shaft or slope until the work of development and shipment of coal has commenced; provided, that where breakers are now erected over shafts that fire doors to be approved by the Department of Mines shall be so installed in the same as to prevent the passage of smoke or fire from said structure into the mine.

Section 7. One year after the passage of this act, if in the opinion of the inspector such precaution is necessary, the sides, roof and bottom of every slope, airway, traveling way and every other opening to the surface except cave-ins, shall be made incombustible for at least twenty-five feet from the mouth; and all cave-ins as far as practicable, shall be so secured that fire from the surface cannot enter the mine. The work shall be done to the satisfaction of the inspector: Provided, however, that an extension of time, not to exceed sixty days, may be granted by the Chief of the Department of Mines on the recommendation of the inspector in writing.

Section 8. The top of each shaft and also of each slope where the angle of inclination is forty-five degrees or more, or any intermediate lift thereof, shall be securely fenced off by railing or by vertical or flat gates.

Section 9. Every abandoned slope, shaft, air-hole or drift shall be properly fenced and the fencing maintained around or across its entrance.

Section 10. All underground entrances to any places not in actual course of working or extension, shall be properly fenced across the whole width of such entrances, so as to prevent persons from entering the same.

Section 11. Every person, firm or corporation failing or neglecting to comply with, or who violates any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XVIII.

SINKING OF SHAFTS.

Section 1. The owner, operator, superintendent or contractor shall erect over every shaft that is being sunk, or shall hereafter be sunk, a safe and substantial structure to sustain sheaves or pulleys, ropes and loads, at a height of not less than twenty feet above the tipping place, and the top of such shaft and landing platform shall be so arranged that no material can fall into the shaft while the bucket is being emptied. Said structure shall be erected as soon as a substantial foundation is obtained, and in no case shall a shaft be sunk to a depth of more than fifty feet without such structure.

Section 2. If provisions are made to land the bucket on a truck, it shall be so constructed that material cannot fall into the shaft.

Section 3. Rock and coal from shafts while being sunk shall not be hoisted, except in a bucket or on a cage, and said bucket or cage must be connected with the rope by a safety hook, clevis or other safe attachment. The rope shall be securely fastened to shaft of the drum and not less than three coils of rope shall always remain on the same. If said shafts are one hundred feet or more in depth they shall be provided with guides and guide attachments, applied in such manner as to prevent the bucket from swinging while being lowered or hoisted, and such attachments shall be maintained at a distance of not more than seventy-five feet from the bottom.

Section 4. An efficient brake shall be attached to every drum of an engine used for sinking shafts, and all machinery, ropes and chains connected therewith shall be examined once every day.

Section 5. Where the strata are not safe, every shaft shall be cased, lined or otherwise made secure.

Section 6. The following rules shall be observed, as far as practicable, in every shaft to which this article applies:

First: After each and every blast the chargeman must see that all loose material is swept down from the timbers before the workmen descend to their work.

Second. After a suspension of work, and also after firing a blast in a shaft where explosive gases are evolved, the person in charge must have the said shaft examined and tested with a safety lamp before the workmen are allowed to descend.

Third. Not more than four persons shall be lowered or hoisted in any shaft on a bucket at the same time, and no person shall ride on a loaded bucket.

Fourth. Whenever men are employed on platforms in shafts, the person in charge must see that the said platforms are properly and safely constructed.

Fifth. While shafts are being sunk all blasts therein must be exploded by electricity.

Section 7. Every person who fails to comply with or who violates any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XIX.

OPENINGS FOR DRAINAGE, ETC., ON OTHER LANDS.

Section 1. The owner, operator or superintendent of any mine to which there is only one shaft, slope or outlet, may petition the Court of Common Pleas in and for the county in which such mine is situated, which said court is hereby empowered to act in the premises, setting forth that, in consequence of intervening lands between the working of his mine and the most practicable point, or the only practicable point, as the case may be, at which to make or bring to the surface from the working of his mine, he is unable to make an additional shaft, slope or outlet in accordance with the requirements of this act, whereupon the court may make an order of reference and appoint three (3) disinterested persons, residents of the county, viewers, one or more of whom shall be a practical mining engineer, all of whom, after being sworn to a faithful discharge of their duties, shall view and examine the premises and determine as to whether the owner should have the privilege of making an additional outlet through or upon any intervening lands, as the case may require, and report in writing to the court, which report shall be entered and filed of record. If the finding of the viewers, or any two of them, is in favor of the owner of such coal mine or colliery he may make an additional shaft, slope or outlet under, through or upon intervening lands, as may be determined upon and provided for by the award. If the finding of the viewers is against the owner, or if no award be made by reason of any default or neglect on the part of the owner, he shall be bound to comply with the provisions of this act in the same manner as if this section had not been enacted. In case the said owner, operator or superintendent desires to, and claims that he ought to make an additional opening under, through or upon any adjoining or intervening lands, to meet the requirements of this act, for the ingress and egress of the men employed in his or their mine, he or they shall make a statement of the facts in the petition, with a survey, setting forth the point of commencement and the point of termination of the proposed outlet which he or they, their engineers, agents or employes may enter upon said intervening lands and survey and mark, as he or they shall find it proper to adopt for such additional outlet, doing as little damage as possible to the property explored; and the viewers shall state in their report what damage will be sustained by the owner or owners of the intervening lands by the opening, constructing and using of the outlet, and if the report is not appealed from, it shall be confirmed or rejected by said court as to right and justice shall appertain, and any further and all proceedings in relation thereto shall be in conformity with like proceedings as in the case of a lateral railroad across or under intervening lands, under the act in relation to Lateral Railroads, approved the fifth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, and the supplements thereto, so far as the provisions of the same are applicable thereto; and the notices to the owner of intervening lands, of the intention to apply for the privilege of making an outlet and meeting of the viewers shall be given, and the costs of the case shall be paid as provided in the said act of fifth May, Anno Domini one thousand eigth hundred and thrty-two and the supplements thereto.

ARTICLE XX.

BOUNDARY PILLARS.

Section 1. It shall be obligatory on the land owners and operators to leave a pillar of coal in each seam worked, along the lines of adjoining mines or properties, of such width, taken in connection with the pillar to be left by the land owner or operator of an adjoining property, that will be a sufficient barrier to safeguard life and property in case the mine or mines of either property should be filled with water or endangered from any other cause.

Section 2. Whenever a gangway, airway, breast or any other opening in a mine has reached within three hundred feet of any boundary line of any adjoining mine or property, it shall be the duty of the mine foreman to suspend work in said opening until the width of the pillar necessary to safeguard life and property shall have been decided upon; and he shall notify the inspector, whose duty it shall be to look into the matter and, with the engineers of both properties, shall forthwith decide upon the width of the pillar required.

Section 3. If the inspector and said engineers shall fail to agree on the width of said pillar, the matter in dispute shall be referred to the Chief of the Department of Mines, and if he is not able to amicably settle the dispute he shall select three (3) disinterested engineers who shall decide upon the width of said pillar, and their decision shall be final. The cost of the investigations made by the three engineers so selected shall be paid jointly by said land owners and operators.

Section 4. If at any time a barrier pillar, as provided for in the previous section of this article, should have fully served its purpose and shall no longer be necessary in the interest of safety, the same may be removed, if upon petition of the adjoining operator to the mine inspector of the district, the board shall establish such pillar or a new board selected for the purpose shall give its approval in writing for the removal of said pillar.

Section 5. Any land owner or operator who shall fail or neglect to comply fully with the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act, and in addition there shall be liable to the operator or owner of the adjoining property in a sum equivalent to treble the value of the coal mined beyond the boundary line established in accordance with the provisions of this article; said sum to be recovered with costs of suit, by action of trespass, and no presecution by indictment under this act shall be a bar to such action.

Section 6. Any owner, or operator, who fails to comply with any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XXI.

USE OF ELECTRICITY.—DEFINITIONS.

Section 1. The definitions of terms contained herein shall be as follows:

Potential. The term "Potential" and "Voltage" are synonymous and mean electrical pressure.

Difference of Potential. The term "Difference of Potential" means the difference of electrical pressure existing between any two points of an electrical system, or between any point of such system and the earth, as determined by a voltmeter.

Potential of a Circuit. The potential, or voltage of a circuit, machine or any piece of electrical apparatus, is the potential normally existing between the conductors of such circuit or the terminals of such machine or apparatus.

A. Where the conditions of supply of electricity are such that normally the difference of the potential between any points in the circuit does not exceed three hundred twenty-five (325) volts, the supply shall be deemed a low voltage.

B. Where the conditions of supply of electricity are such that the difference of potential between any two points in the circuit may at any time exceed low voltage, but normally does not exceed six hundred fifty (650) volts, the supply shall be deemed medium voltage.

C. Where the conditions of the supply of electricity are such that the difference of potential between any two points in the circuit at any time exceeds medium voltage, the supply shall be deemed a high voltage.

Grounding. Grounding any part of an electrical system shall consist in so connecting such part to the earth as will insure at all times a proper path for the immediate discharge of electrical energy.

Explosion or flame proof casings or enclosures are those which when completely filled with a mixture of methane and air, and the same exploded, are capable of either entirely confining the products of such explosion within the casing or of so discharging them from the casing, that they cannot ignite a mixture of methane and air, combined in a proportion most sensitive to ignition, and entirely surrounding the points of discharge, and in most intimate proximity therewith.

Underground Stations. An underground station is herein considered as any place where electrical machinery, including transformers, is permanently installed.

SPECIAL RULES.—GENERAL.

Section 2. The following rules relating to the installation and use of electricity in mines shall be observed as far as is practicable.

1. All electrical apparatus and conductors shall be sufficient in power and size and of proper design for the work they may be called upon to do, sufficiently protected, efficiently covered and safeguarded, and so installed, worked and maintained as to reduce danger from accidental shock or fire to the minimum, and shall be of such construction and so worked that the rise in temperature caused by ordinary working will not injure the insulating materials.

2. No higher voltage than medium voltage shall be used underground, except for transmission or for application to transformers, or other apparatus in which the whole of the high voltage circuit is stationary.

3. When high voltage cables are taken into the mine, and unless they are mechanically protected, they shall be taken through a bore hole suitable for the purpose, or through a shaft or slope where no employes are lowered or hoisted therein, or through a tunnel, drift or gangway where no employes travel, into an underground station, from which point low or medium voltage may be conveyed. All high voltage circuit cables or conductors shall be properly insulated.

4. In gaseous mines high voltage transmission cables shall be installed in the intake airways only, and high voltage motors and transformers shall be installed only in underground stations, ventilated by the intake air which has not passed through or by a gaseous district.

PRECAUTION AGAINST SHOCK.

5. Gloves or mats of rubber or other suitable insulating material shall be provided and used by persons so engaged when repairs are made to the live parts of any electrical apparatus, or when the live parts of electrical apparatus have to be handled for the purpose of adjustment.

6. At every colliery where electricity is used below ground for power, there shall be available a competent electrician who shall have full charge of the electrical apparatus in the mine, but who shall be subject to the authority of the mine foreman.

7. Instructions shall be posted in every generating transforming, and motor room, and at the entrance to the mine, containing directions as to the restoration of persons suffering from electric shock, and all employes working in connection with electrical apparatus shall be familiar with and know how to carry out these instructions.

8. In the event of a breakdown, or of damage or injury to any portion of the electrical equipment in a mine, or of over-heating or of the appearance of sparks or arcs outside of enclosing casings, or in the event of any portion of the equipment not a part of the electrical circuit becoming alive, every such occurrence shall be promptly reported to the mine foreman.

UNDERGROUND STATIONS.

9. In underground stations where switchboards are installed, there shall be a passageway in front of the switchboard not less than three (3) feet in the clear.

When medium voltage is used, insulating floors or mats shall be provided where live metal work is on the front of the board.

When high voltage is used there shall be no live metal work on the front of the main switchboard, within seven (7) feet of the floor or platform, and the space back of the board shall be kept locked up, but the lock shall allow of the door being opened from the inside without the use of a key, and the floor back of the board shall be made of incombustible material.

10. No person other than one authorized by the mine foreman shall enter an underground station or interfere with the working of an apparatus connected therewith.

11. Fire buckets filled with clean dry sand, or other standard extinguishers for electrical fires, shall be kept in underground stations ready for immediate use in extinguishing fires.

TRANSMISSION CIRCUITS AND CONDUCTORS.

12. Medium or low pressure conductors may be bare, except in gaseous portions of the mine.

13. Every branch power circuit shall be provided at the point where it leaves the main circuit, with a switch of not less than one hundred (100) ampere capacity on each pole.

14. In underground roads the trolley wires shall be installed as far to one side of the passageway as is practicable and securely supported on insulated hangers and placed at such intervals that the sag between points of support shall not exceed three (3) inches. The sag between points of support can exceed three (3) inches if the height of the trolley wire above the rail is five (5) feet or more, and does not touch the roof when the trolley passes under it.

15. All other wires, except telephone, shot firing and signal wires, shall be on the same side of the road as the trolley, where practicable.

16. All landings and partings where men are required to regularly work or pass under trolley or other bare power wires which are placed less than six and one-half (6½) feet above top of rail, a suitable protection shall be provided. This protection may consist of channeling the roof, placing boards along the wires, which shall extend below them, or the use of other approved devices that afford protection.

17. All undergrounded power wires and cables in hoisting shaft or manway compartments shall be highly insulated and substantially fixed in position. Shaft cables not capable of sustaining their own weight shall be properly supported at intervals according to the weight of the cables. Where the cables are not completely boxed in and protected from falling material, space shall be left between them and the sides of the shaft so that they may yield when struck, and thus lessen the blow given by the falling material.

18. Where the cables or feed wires, other than trolley wires in main haulage roads, cannot be kept at least twelve (12) inches from any part of the mine car or locomotive, they shall where practical, be specially protected by guards.

19. when main or other roads are being repaired, or blasting is being carried on, suitable temporary protection from damage shall be given the cables.

20. Trailing cables for portable machines shall be specially flexible, heavily insulated and protected with extra stout braiding, hose pipe, or other equally effective covering.

21. Each trailing cable in use shall be daily examined by the machine operator for abrasions and other defects, and he shall also be required to carefully observe the trailing cable while in use, and shall at once report any defect to the mine foreman.

22. In the event of the trailing cable in service breaking down, or becoming damaged in any way, or of its inflicting a shock upon any person, it shall be at once put out of service. The faulty cable shall not again be used until it has been repaired, and tested by a properly authorized person.

23. In gaseous portions of mines, a fixed terminal box shall be provided at the points where trailing cables are attached to the power supply. This terminal box shall be flame proof and shall contain a switch and fuse on each pole of the circuit. The switch shall be so arranged that it can only be operated from without the box when the latter is completely closed, and the switch shall also be so constructed that the trailing cables cannot be detached or removed when the switch is closed.

SWITCHES, FUSES AND CIRCUIT BREAKERS.

24. All points at which a circuit other than a signal circuit have to be made or broken, shall be provided with proper switches. The use of hooks, or other make-shifts, is prohibited, except that connection for gathering locomotives, or locomotives and machines used in driving headings, or rooms, may be made to the trolley by means of suitable hooks; switches shall be so installed that they cannot be closed by gravity. In any gaseous portion of a mine, switches, circuit breakers, or fuses shall not be of the open type, but shall be enclosed in explosion proof casings, or break under oil.

MOTORS.

25. In any gaseous portion of a mine where gas is likely to be encountered, all stationary motors, unless placed in such room as are separately ventilated with intake air, shall have all their current carrying parts, also their starters, terminals and connections completely enclosed in explosion proof enclosures, made of non-inflammable material. These enclosures shall not be opened except by an authorized person, and then only when the power is switched off. The power shall not be switched on while the enclosures are open.

26. Motors used for operating fans in non-gaseous mines, where they are so situated that they are not under constant supervision of a competent man, shall be totally enclosed (not necessarily explosion proof), unless placed in a chamber or passageway completely lined with incombustible material and the chamber or passageway itself free from combustible material.

27. In working places where gas is likely to be encountered a safety lamp or other suitable apparatus for the detection of explosive gas shall be provided for use with each machine when working, and should any indication of explosive gas appear on the flame of the safety lamp or other apparatus used for the detection thereof, the person in charge shall immediately stop the machine, cut off the current at the nearest switch, and report the matter to the mine foreman.

28. No man shall be placed in charge of a coal cutting machine in any gaseous portion of a mine who is not a competent person capable of determining the safety of the roof and sides of the working place and detecting the presence of explosive gas.

29. In any gaseous portion of a mine a coal cutting machine shall not be brought within the last break-through next to the working face until the machine man shall have made an inspection for gas in the place where the machine is to work, unless such examination is then made by some other competent person authorized or appointed for that purpose by the mine foreman. If any explosive gas is found in the place, the machine shall not be taken in.

30. No coal cutting machine shall be continued in operation in a gaseous portion of a mine for a longer period than half an hour, without an examination as above described being made for gas, and if gas is found the current shall at once be switched off the machine, and the trailing cable shall forthwith be disconnected from the power supply.

31. The person finding gas shall at once report the fact to the fire boss, or mine foreman and the machine shall not again be started in such place until the fire boss, or a person duly authorized by the mine foreman, has examined it and pronounced it safe.

32. The person in charge of a coal cutting machine or drilling machine shall not leave the machine while it is working, and shall before leaving the working place see that the current is cut off from the trailing cables.

33. In any gaseous portion of a mine, if an electric sparking or arc be produced outside of coal cutting or other portable motor or by the cable or rails the machine shall be stopped and not be worked until the defect is repaired and occurrence shall be reported to the mine foreman.

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES.

34. Electric haulage by locomotives operated from a trolley wire is not permissible in any gaseous portion of mines, except in the intake air fresh from the outside.

35. In no case shall the potential used in the trolley system be higher than medium voltage.

36. Storage battery locomotives shall be used in gaseous mines only when the boxes containing the cells and all electrical parts are enclosed in flame and explosion proof casings.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

37. Arc lamps shall not be used in gaseous mines except under conditions where trolley locomotives are allowable.

38. If arc lamps are used in the mines they shall be of the enclosed arc type.

39. In all mines the sockets of fixed incandescent lamps shall be of the so-called "weather proof" type, the exterior of which shall be entirely non-metallic. Flexible lamp and socket, and shall be provided with a handle to as hereinafter provided.

40. In any gaseous portion of a mine, except where ventilated by fresh intake air, incandescent lamps shall be protected by gas-tight fittings of strong glass, except that lamps of two hundred and twenty (220) volts or higher and of not more than eight (8) candle power and without tips, need not be so protected.

41. Incandescent lamps shall be so placed that they can not come in contact with combustible material.

42. Portable incandescent lamps other than battery lamps, shall not be used except in connection with the repair and inspection of machines and equipment, and then only in non-gaseous portions of mines. When so used they shall be protected by a heavy wire cage, completely enclosing both lamp and socket, and shall be provided with a handle to which both cage and socket are firmly attached and through which the leading-in wires are carried.

43. Electric lamps shall be replaced by a competent person only, and in gaseous portions of a mine, only after an examination for gas has been made with a safety lamp.

SHOT FIRING BY ELECTRICITY.

44. Electricity from any grounded circuit shall not be used for shot firing.

45. When shot firing cables or wires are used in the vicinity of power or lighting conductors, special precaution shall be taken to prevent the shot firing cables or wires from coming in contact with the light, power or any other circuit.

46. Any miner or any person who has the necessary training and skill, and who has been properly instructed in the work and duly authorized by the mine foreman, shall be allowed to fire shots electrically in any mine.

47. Portable shot firing machines, sometimes called generators, shall be enclosed in a tightly constructed case, when employed in any portion of the mine. All contacts when made or broken, shall be within the case, except that the binding posts for making connections to the firing leads may be outside.

48. All portable devices for generating or supplying electricity for shot firing, when in a mine, shall be in charge of the person firing the shots.

49. No firing machine or battery shall be connected to the shot firing leads until all other taps preparatory to the firing of a shot have been completed, and all persons have moved to a place of safety.

50. Immediately after the firing of a shot the firing lead shall be disconnected from the supply or source of electricity, and no person shall approach a shot which has failed to explode, until the firing leads have been so disconnected from the device, and an interval of five (5) minutes have elapsed since the last attempt to fire the shot.

ELECTRIC SIGNALING.

51. All proper precautions shall be taken to prevent electric signal and telephone wires from coming into contact with other electrical conductors, whether insulated or not.

52. Bells, wires, insulators, contact-makers, and other apparatus used in connection with electric signalling underground shall be of suitable design, of substantial and reliable construction and erected in such manner as to reduce the liability of failure or false signals to a minimum.

53. In any gaseous portion of a mine, the potential used for signalling purposes shall not exceed twenty-four (24) volts, and bare wires shall not be used for signal circuits except in haulage roads.

ELECTRIC RELIGHTING OF SAFETY LAMPS.

54. If in any place or portion of a mine in which safety lamps are used, they are relighted underground by electricity, the mine foreman shall select a suitable station or stations, not being in the return airway, and where there is not likely to be any accumulation of inflammable gas, and no electric relighting apparatus shall be used in any other place. All electric relighting apparatus shall be securely locked and shall not be available for use except by persons authorized by the mine foreman to relight safety lamps, and such persons shall examine all safety lamps brought for relighting before they are reissued.

Any person who neglects or fails to comply with any of the provisions of the foregoing rules, or who shall wilfully damage or without authority alter or make connections to any portion of a mine electrical system, shall be guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XXII.

INSPECTION BY OR IN BEHALF OF EMPLOYES.

Section 1. The employes of every mine may, at their own expense, appoint two of their number who are practical miners with not less than five years experience, to inspect the mine where an accident has occurred of which notice is required under this act to be given, and shall be allowed to go together with any person acting as legal adviser to the employes, or with a mining or electrical engineer selected by said employes, accompanied as aforesaid, to the place where the accident occurred, and to make such inspection as may be necessary for ascertaining the cause of the accident, subject, however, to the provisions of this act requiring the place where the accident has occurred to be left as it was immediately after the accident.

Section 2. Every facility shall be afforded by the mine foreman and all persons employed in the mine for the purpose of the inspection, and if the mine foreman or any other person refuses or neglects to afford such facilities as aforesaid, he shall be deemed guilty of an offense against this act.

ARTICLE XXIII.

MINERS' EXAMINING BOARD.

Section 1. Hereafter no person whosoever shall be employed or engaged in the Anthracite Coal Region of this Commonwealth as a miner in any anthracite coal mine, without having obtained a certicate of competency and qualification so to do from the "Miners' Examining Board" of the proper district, and having been duly registered as herein provided.

Section 2. That there shall be established in each of the inspection districts in the anthracite coal region, a board to be styled the "Miners' Examining Board of the ———— District," to consist of three miners who shall be appointed in the manner hereinafter set forth, from among the most skillful miners actually engaged in said business in their respective districts, and who must have had five years, practical experience in the same. The said persons so appointed shall each serve for a term of two years from the date upon which their appointment takes effect, and they shall be appointed upon or before the expiration of the term of the present members of the "Miners' Examinging Board," and they shall be and constitute the "Miners' Examining Board" for their respective districts, and shall hold the office for the term for which they were appointed, or until their successors are duly appointed and qualified, and shall receive as compensation for their services three ($3.00) dollars per day for each day actually engaged in this service, and all legitimate and necessary expenses incurred in attending the meetings of said board under the provisions of this act, and no part of the salary of said board or expenses thereof shall be paid out of the State Treasury.

Each of said board shall organize by electing one of their members president, and one member as secretary.

Every member of said board shall, within ten days of their appointment or being apprised of the same, take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before a properly qualified officer of the county in which they reside, that they will faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of their office.

Any vacancies occurring in said board shall be filled in the manner herein provided, from among only as are eligible for original appointment.

Section 3. Each of said examining boards shall designate some convenient place within their district for their meetings, of which due notice shall be given by advertisement in two or more newspapers of the proper county, and so divided as to reach as nearly as practicable all the mining districts therein; but in no case shall such meeting be held in a building where any intoxicating liquors are sold.

Each of said committee shall open at the designated place of meeting a book of registration, in which shall be registered the name and address of each and every person duly qualified under this act to be employed as a miner in an anthracite coal mine. And it shall be the duty of all persons employed as miners to be properly registered, and in case of a removal from the district in which a miner is registered, it shall be his duty to be registered in the district to which he removes.

Application for registration only may be sent by mail to the board after being properly attested before any person authorized to administer an oath or affirmation in the county in which the applicant resides. The form of application shall be subject to such regulation as may be prescribed by the boards, but in no case shall any applicant be put to any unnecessary expense in order to secure registration.

Section 4. Each applicant for examination and registration and for the certificate hereinafter provided, shall pay a fee of one ($1.00) dollar to the said board, and a fee of twenty-five (25c.) cents shall be charged for registering any person who shall have been examined and registered by any other board, and the amount derived from this source shall be held by said board and applied to the expenses and salaries herein provided and such as may arise under the provisions of this act; and the said board shall report annually, to the Court of Common Pleas of their respective counties and the Department of Mines, all moneys received and disbursed under the provisions of this act, together with the number of miners examined and registered under this act and the number who failed to pass the required examination.

Section 5. That it shall be the duty of each of the said boards to meet once every month and not oftener and said meeting shall be public, and if necessary, the meeting shall be continued to cover whatever portion may be required of a period of three days in succession, and examine under oath all persons who shall desire to be employed as miners in their respective districts; and said board shall grant such persons as may be qualified, certificates of competency or qualification which shall entitle the holder thereof to be employed as and to do the work of miners as may be expressed in said certificate, and such certificates shall be good and sufficient evidence of registration and competency under this act; and the holder thereof shall be entitled to be registered without an examination in any other of the anthracite districts upon the payment of the fee herein provided.

All persons applying for a certificate of competency, or to entitle them to be employed as miners, must produce satisfactory evidence of having had not less than two years practical experience as a miner or as a mine laborer in the mines of this Commonwealth, and in no case shall an applicant be deemed competent unless he appear in person before the said board and answer intelligently and correctly at least twelve questions in the English language pertaining to the requirements of a practical miner, and be properly identified under oath, as a mine laborer by at least one practical miner holding miner's certificate. The said board shall keep an accurate record of the proceedings of all its meetings, and in said record shall show a correct detailed account of the examination of each applicant, with the questions asked and their answers, and at each of its meetings the board shall keep said record open for public inspection. Any miner's certificate granted under the provisions of this act, and any prior acts, shall not be transferable to any person or persons whatsoever, and any transfer of the same shall be deemed a violation of this act. Certificates shall be issued only at meetings of said board, and said certificates shall not be legal unless then and there signed in person by at least three members of said board.

Section 6. That no person shall hereafter engage as a miner in any anthracite coal mine without having obtained such certificate as aforesaid. And no person shall employ any person as a miner who does not hold such certificate as aforesaid, and no mine foreman or superintendent shall permit or suffer any person to be employed under him or in the mines under his charge and supervision as a miner, who does not hold such certificate. Any person or persons who shall violate or fail to comply with the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not less than one hundred ($100.00) dollars and not to exceed five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or shall undergo imprisonment for a term not less than thirty days and not to exceed six months, or either or both, at the discretion of the court.

Section 7. For the purpose of examination of applicants for certificates as aforesaid, a board of examiners shall be appointed immediately after the passage of this act, in each of the inspection districts, by the judges of the Court of Lackawanna county, for all inspection districts wholly or the greater part in the counties of Lackawanna, Sullivan, Susquehanna and Wayne; by the judges of the court of Luzerne county for all inspection districts wholly or the greater part in the counties of Luzerne and Carbon; and by the judges of the Court of Schuylkill county for all inspection districts wholly, or the greater part in the counties of Schuylkill, Northumberland, Columbia and Dauphin. The board so appointed shall hold office until December thirty-one, one thousand nine hundred and fourteen. And the respective courts shall, on the tenth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, and every two (2) years thereafter, appoint the aforesaid board of examiners.

Section 8. Nothing in this act shall be construed to in any way excepting as herein provided, affect miners' certificates which have been lawfully issued.

Section 9. It shall be the duty of the several Miners' Examining Boards to investigate all complaints or charges of non-compliance or violation of the provisions of this act, and to prosecute all persons so offending; and upon their failure so to do, then it shall become the duty of the District Attorney of the county wherein the complaints or charges are made to investigate the same and prosecute all persons so offending, and it shall at all times be the duty of the District Attorney to prosecute such members of the Miners' Examining Board as have failed to perform their duty under the provisions of this act; but nothing herein contained shall prevent any citizen, a resident of this Commonwealth, from prosecuting any person or persons violating this act, with power to employ private counsel to assist in the prosecution of the same; upon conviction of any member of the Miners' Examining Board for any violation of this act, in addition to the penalties herein provided, his office shall be declared vacant and he shall be deemed ineligible to act as a member of the said board.

Section 10. For the purpose of this act, the members of the said "Miners' Examining Board" shall have power to administer oaths.

ARTICLE XXIV.

DUTIES OF MINER.

Section 1. No miner shall fire a blast in any mine, or in any portion of a mine, where locked safety lamps are used, except by permission of the mine foreman, the assistant mine foreman or fire boss.

Section 2. A miner, whether using black powder, high explosives or permissible explosives, shall tamp the hole complete to the mouth irrespective of whether it is fired by electricity, fuse or squib, and in charging the hole he shall only use one kind of explosive in the same.

Section 3. A miner who is preparing to explode a blast by the use of a fuse, shall at all times cut the fuse of sufficient length that it shall protrude at least six inches outside of the hole, and that said fuse shall be lighted at the extreme end and so as to give the miner ample time to reach a place of safety.

Section 4. No miner while charging holes for blasting coal, slate or rock, shall use an iron or steel pointed needle, or tamping bar, unless the end is tipped with at least six inches of copper or other soft metal, nor shall he force a tight cartridge into any hole.

Section 5. A miner who is about to explode a blast by the use of a patent squib, shall not shorten the match nor saturate it with oil, nor turn it down when placed in a hole, nor ignite it, except at its extreme end, nor do anything to shorten the time the match will burn.

Section 6. A miner who is about to fire a blast shall be careful to notify all persons who may be in danger therefrom, and shall give sufficient alarm before and after igniting the same so that any person or persons who may be approaching shall be warned of the danger.

Section 7. A miner who ignites a feeder of gas by a blast or otherwise, shall immediately extinguish it, if possible. If he is unable to do so, he shall at once notify the mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss. The miner immediately before leaving his working place shall see that no gas blowers are left burning.

Section 8. No miner shall withdraw a charge of any explosive from a hole that has misfired, nor shall he reopen the same, but a new hole shall be drilled at a distance of not less than two feet from the old hole and fired.

Section 9. Any miner having charge of a working place, shall keep the roof and side thereof properly secured by timber or otherwise. so as to prevent such roof and sides from falling, and he shall not do any work nor permit any work to be done under loose or dangerous material, except for the purpose of securing the same.

He shall order props, cap-pieces and timbers necessary at least one day in advance of needing them, as provided for in the rules of the mine. If he fails to receive the same and finds his place becoming unsafe, he shall vacate it until the necessary timbers are suppled.

Section 10. A miner working a breast or any other place shall, before commencing work, and also after firing of every blast, enter said breast or place to examine and ascertain its conditions, and his laborer or assistant shall not go to the face of said breast or place until the miner has examined it and found it to be safe.

Section 11. No person shall remove any props or timbers that are supporting the roof or sides, except it shall be done by blasting or by some other safe method.

Section 12. Any miner who has gunpowder or other explosive, shall keep it in a wooden or metallic box securely locked, and at least ten (10) feet from the tracks, where space at that distance is available.

Section 13. A miner when opening a box containing explosives, or when handling the same, shall first place his lamp at a distance of not less than five (5) feet therefrom and in such position that the air current cannot convey sparks to the explosives; and he shall not approach with a lighted lamp, pipe or any other thing containing fire, nearer than five feet to an open box containing the same.

Section 14. Any miner who fails or neglects to comply with, or who violates any of the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of an affense against this act.

ARTICLE XXV.

EMERGENCY HOSPITAL.

Section 1. After the passage of this act, it shall be unlawful to operate any mine where twenty or more persons are employed inside, unless said mine is provided with a sufficient quantity of linseed oil or picric acid, gauze bandages, splints and woolen and water-proof blankets. Said articles shall be stored in a room to be known as the Emergency Hospital erected at a convenient place in the mine or on the surface at the discretion of the inspector, which shall not be less than eight by twelve feet, and sufficiently furnished, lighted, kept clean aond properly ventilated so that medical treatment may be given therein promptly to injured employes.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the mine foreman, assistant mine foreman or fire boss, in case of a serious personal injury to an employe from any cause, to at once visit the scene of accident, see that the injured is properly cared for, wrapped in woolen blankets and removed to the Emergency Hospital, and then so treated as will add to the comfort and ease of the patient. Immediately thereafter the injured shall be wrapped up and sent to the surface and taken to his home or to a hospital. The mine foreman shall keep a book showing the required articles on hand, name of the person injured, nature of injury, treatment, and by whom treated at time of accident.
